forces to these camps during both the Hambarine and Kozarac operations.<sup>5449</sup> In addition, a large proportion of the male population of Kozarac and Hambarine were rounded up and taken to these camps, which, according to Kelečević, was done mainly by the Prijedor Crisis Staff.<sup>5450</sup> Once at the camps, the civilian authorities were responsible for the detainees, and together with the respective ministries of defence, established whether the detainees belonged to any Muslim or Croat armed forces.<sup>5451</sup> According to a Prijedor SJB report addressed to the MUP, VRS, and Banja Luka CSB, the War Presidency of the Prijedor Municipal Assembly had adopted a decision on 24 July 1992 to reduce the reserve police forces and security presently employed at the Keraterm, Trnopolje and Omarska camps.<sup>5452</sup> Simo Drljača reported that the Prijedor SJB was not able to implement this decision as long as the army refused to take over the security duties in the camps.<sup>5453</sup>

1273. Trnopolje camp was established in the village of Trnopolje at the same time as Omarska camp and Keraterm camp were established in Prijedor and it was officially closed down at the end of September 1992, although some of the detainees stayed there longer.<sup>5454</sup> The camp consisted of a two-storied former school building and what had been a municipal centre and attached theatre, known as the 'dom'.<sup>5455</sup> Witness RM-709 stated that on 26 May 1992, a special military police unit from Prijedor, under the command of Slobodan Kuruzović, arrived in Trnopolje Village.<sup>5456</sup> SDS members surrounded the village while policemen brought all the inhabitants to the community centre and the elementary school in Trnopolje.<sup>5457</sup> The witness stated that the policeman who arrested him was wearing a blue camouflage uniform and forced him to go to the community centre at gunpoint.<sup>5458</sup> Witness RM-047 stated that on 26 May 1992, armed soldiers in a military vehicle and wearing 'the usual Yugoslav military uniform' and helmets with the five-pointed star covered by black scotch tape arrested him at gunpoint and brought him to the camp.<sup>5459</sup> Idriz Merdžanić testified that on the afternoon of 26 May 1992, he and a group of others were forcibly bussed to Trnopolje camp from a small village in Preijedor.<sup>5460</sup> The witness was escorted to the medical clinic by Serb soldiers, while the rest of the civilians were taken to a big hall in the community centre.<sup>5461</sup> Buses carrying mostly women and children kept arriving, and most of them were taken to the big hall.<sup>5462</sup> The witness spent the night at the clinic after soldiers told him not to go anywhere, and heard shooting from outside during the night.<sup>5463</sup>

1274. The commander of Trnopolje camp was Slobodan Kuruzović, who was referred to in the camp as ‘Major’ and wore a military uniform.<sup>5464</sup> Kuruzović stayed in a house very close to the Trnopolje compound, and he was often seen by the detainees accompanied by the Balaban brothers, well known for their brutality.<sup>5465</sup> Nusret Sivac testified that the brothers were military policemen.<sup>5466</sup> Witness RM-060 stated that Kuruzović was in the camp every day and present every time new convoys of buses arrived to transport women and children detainees away towards Kozarac.<sup>5467</sup> Witness RM-023 stated that every second or third day, Kuruzović held meetings behind closed doors in the house he used as camp headquarters, with men in uniforms who arrived from Banja Luka in vehicles displaying Serbian flags.<sup>5468</sup> Merdžanić testified that Kuruzović was assisted by Slavko Puhalić, the deputy commander, who wore a green military camouflage uniform.<sup>5469</sup> Slavko Puhalić testified that he did not have any insignia on his uniform, and wore a white belt only because his friend, a military policeman, had given it to him because he did not have one.<sup>5470</sup> A report on mobilised

1275. The camp guards were all dressed in military rather than police uniforms and were from Prijedor.<sup>5472</sup> Mevludin Sejmenović testified that the camp was supervised by a ‘military organization’, surrounded by barbed wire, and that machine guns were pointed at the only part of the camp that did not have barbed wire.<sup>5473</sup> Sivac testified that the camp was secured by VRS soldiers and that he recognized among the guards two former policemen and some acquaintances of his from Prijedor who had been mobilised into the ‘city battalion’ of the VRS.<sup>5474</sup> Merdžanić testified that camp guards rotated approximately every two weeks.<sup>5475</sup> Predrag Radulović stated that he saw people in camouflage uniforms at the camp, but did not recall if they were military, police, or military police.<sup>5476</sup> Merdžanić testified that the majority of the soldiers at the camp wore green camouflage military uniforms, and occasionally some were dressed in blue camouflage uniforms.<sup>5477</sup> Witness RM-047 stated that he saw Serb police officers enter the camp on several occasions.<sup>5478</sup> Witness RM-060 also saw a police intervention squad, a.k.a. ‘Sarenci’, from Prijedor, dressed in blue and yellow camouflage uniforms worn by the police with Serbian flag insignia on one side and the word ‘militia’ in Cyrillic on the other side.<sup>5479</sup> This ‘Sarenci’ unit was always in the camp when a convoy arrived.<sup>5480</sup>

Detainees at Trnopolje camp

1278. The entire Trnopolje camp was not fenced off deliberately as such, although parts of it were enclosed by a pre-existing wall. However, even if there had been just a line on the ground, no one would have dared to cross it because the camp was guarded on all sides by the army. There were machine-gun nests and well-armed posts pointing their guns towards the camp.<sup>5489</sup> Witness RM-047 stated that he remained there until 1 October 1992.<sup>5490</sup> He stated that there were guards all over the camp so it was not possible to leave.<sup>5491</sup> Merdžanić testified that no one could enter or leave the separate barbed-wire area of the camp without being escorted by the guards and although most persons were brought in, a few dozen people came to the camp after they had been evicted from their houses and had nowhere else to go.<sup>5492</sup> After the ICRC's arrival, some people tried to come to the camp to be registered with them.<sup>5493</sup> Azra Blažević stated that Slobodan Kuruzović told her and others that they were not authorised to leave the camp.<sup>5494</sup> Over 2,000 men were ‘permanently’ detained at the camp. As villages were ‘cleansed,’ families would arrive and after about three days the families were ‘deported’ by freight trains and buses toward central Bosnia-Herzegovina. The witness believed that the camp functioned as a detention facility as well as a transit facility for ‘deportation’.<sup>5495</sup> Witness RM-023 stated that some men tried to escape from Trnopolje camp but were always caught, beaten, and brought back.<sup>5496</sup>

1279. Witness RM-709 stated that those brought to Trnopolje included civilians.<sup>5497</sup> Once all villagers had been rounded up, Muslim TO members, reserve policemen, and SDA activists were separated and detained in the community centre.<sup>5498</sup> Sejmenović testified that after the shelling of Trnopolje Village, some of the men and boys from the village were taken to Trnopolje camp.<sup>5499</sup> Some of the captors wore ‘Martić’s militia’ uniforms which were similar to JNA uniforms, but with a lighter pattern; some wore JNA uniforms; others wore uniforms of the 5th Kozarac Brigade, while others wore civilian clothes.<sup>5500</sup> The witness heard from people in Trnopolje camp that following military attacks on their villages, they had been steered towards Trnopolje by the ‘Serb army’.<sup>5501</sup> Some people came to Trnopolje on their own accord subsequent to the torching of their village, as they had been told it was the only safe place to go to.<sup>5502</sup> Kerim Mešanović stated that on 30 May 1992, Prijedor was attacked and all civilians who had put white signs outside their houses were rounded up in their homes and taken to Trnopolje.<sup>5503</sup>

1280. Witness RM-017 described his transfer to and short stay at Trnopolje camp. He stated that on 26 May 1992, all people from the Kozarac area were ordered to leave and go to Prijedor in order for the army to be able to ‘mop up’ the terrain.<sup>5504</sup> At about 5 p.m. that day, Serb soldiers in a former JNA jeep came to the witness’s house and told him that they were asked to ‘clear the area’.<sup>5505</sup> The entire local population of Kozarac and the surrounding area, almost all of whom were Muslim, left towards Prijedor that day.<sup>5506</sup> The inhabitants of Kozarusi, a village in Prijedor Municipality were, for example, divided into two groups that day and the men were directly bussed to Keraterm, whereas the women, children, and elderly were taken to Trnopolje.<sup>5507</sup> On their way to Prijedor, the witness and his family were stopped at an intersection on the Prijedor-Banja Luka main road by a tank and troops in various kinds of uniforms, such as black, olive-drab, camouflage, and blue police uniforms.<sup>5508</sup> Although the witness and his family were let through to continue their journey to Prijedor, other men were being systematically separated from the women, children, and elderly.<sup>5509</sup> Transportation was organised and all people were eventually transported to their respective destinations by Autotransport and Rudnik Ljubija, both bus companies from Prijedor.<sup>5510</sup> The witness estimated that approximately 10,000 people were transported to Trnopolje, Prijedor, Keraterm, Brezicani, or Omarska on 26 and 27 May 1992.<sup>5511</sup> The witness arrived at Trnopolje with his wife and children at approximately 10 or 11 p.m. on 26 May 1992.<sup>5512</sup> They did not need to register in the camp and people were allowed to move into and within the camp freely.<sup>5513</sup> Men were not allowed to leave the camp but women, children, and elderly were, at least for the first couple of days, once they had asked for prior permission at the Red Cross service of the camp and only if they had relatives in the surrounding villages.<sup>5514</sup> The witness and his family slept in the witness’s car, which he had brought with him.<sup>5515</sup> After two to three days, women,

1281. Some detainees arrived at Trnopolje camp later, in July and August 1992. According to a report on mobilised motor vehicles in Čirkin Polje Logistics Base dated 17 June 1992, troops and equipment were mobilized in the Logistics Staff pursuant the Decision on General and Public Mobilisation of Troops and Material in the Bosnian-Serb Republic, the decision of the Prijedor Crisis Staff, and the orders of Kuruzović.<sup>5518</sup> According to Autotransport Prijedor—a transportation company from Prijedor that carried out services for the needs of the army, the Crisis Staff, and the police—a multitude of buses went to Trnopolje in July 1992, including at least 14 on 23 July 1992 alone.<sup>5519</sup>

1282. Witness RM-060 stated that on 20 July 1992, together with other men from Bišćani, he was bussed to Trnopolje camp.<sup>5520</sup> Among the other detainees, the witness recognised people from Prijedor, Kozarac, and surrounding villages.<sup>5521</sup> People from the surrounding villages were allowed to leave the camp if they left their identification cards at one of the checkpoints.<sup>5522</sup> Witness RM-023 was detained in Trnopolje camp from the end of July 1992 until the beginning of September 1992.<sup>5523</sup> Upon arrival, the witness was registered as a ‘Hambarine extremist’, and was accused by the camp guards of buying and storing arms. The guards called the witness a ‘balija’.<sup>5524</sup> For the first nine days of detention, the witness was kept in the school building.<sup>5525</sup> children to the Dom in Čarakovo where she also saw people from the neighbouring villages gathering. There were altogether about 500 people, predominantly women and children but also some men, both young and old, as well as 60 to 70 soldiers at the Dom. After having waited for about three or four hours, they were all ordered to walk towards an asphalt road which was about one kilometre from the Dom. At the road, there were five buses from 'Autotransport Prijedor' driven by Serbs in uniform. The women, children, and elderly men were ordered onto buses to Trnopolje camp.<sup>5527</sup> She spent only one day in Trnopolje and left the next day in a convoy to Travnik but, in order to be allowed to leave, the guards demanded the valuables from the people in the convoy, saying they needed money for food and weapons for the army, and she heard that some people had to sign documents handing over all their property to the Serbs.<sup>5528</sup>

1284. Witness RM-033 stated that on 3 August 1992 around noon, after having arrived at Trnopolje, the witness saw Zoran Žigić arriving with two or three men.<sup>5529</sup> A guard ordered all the women present to lie down, which they did.<sup>5530</sup> Žigić entered the room and asked for the women, whereupon the guard told him that there were no women, saying 'I am responsible here for these people so, please, Mr Žigić, would you leave this area'.<sup>5531</sup> Witness RM-008 stated that on 5 August 1992, he was transferred from Keraterm camp to Trnopolje camp.<sup>5532</sup> Kuruzović told the men in the camp that they should feel safe, but if anyone attempted to kill one of his soldiers, he would kill 100 of them.<sup>5533</sup>

1285. The Trial Chamber has received evidence of at least two visits to Trnopolje by foreign delegations including members of the ICRC and the media. Witness RM-060 stated that after Omarska camp closed, many foreign delegations came to Trnopolje and during these inspections, signs were put up that gave the impression that the camp was a collection centre, and the wires around the camp were removed.<sup>5534</sup> The guards threatened the witness and others into not giving statements to the ICRC representatives during their visits to the camp.<sup>5535</sup> Merdžanić testified that prior to a visit by international journalists including Penny Marshall on 4 August 1992, the number of detainees was drastically reduced.<sup>5536</sup> The witness believed that the camps at Keraterm and Omarska had to be dismantled prior to the visit and some detainees from there were transferred to Trnopolje.<sup>5537</sup> Kuruzović was in command at the time the journalists visited, and organised the clean-up of the camp prior to the visit.<sup>5538</sup> Kuruzović told many detainees they could leave the camp and return to their homes, and a large number left including the witness's father-in-law, Faruk Risvić.<sup>5539</sup> The camp authorities organised a convoy in which nearly all the women and elderly men left the camp.<sup>5540</sup>

1286. Edward Vulliamy testified that following his visit to Omarska camp on 5 August 1992, he and other journalists were escorted to the camp in Trnopolje.<sup>5541</sup> On approaching the camp in the afternoon, the witness and two journalists from ITN got out of the van and made their way to a barbed-wire fence behind which there was a crowd of men, some in a skeletal state.<sup>5542</sup> The fencing around the camp was not reinforced by barbed wire all the way around and it was difficult to judge where the boundary was; the area where these men were was clearly defined by this fencing, the guards around it, and the wall.<sup>5543</sup> The journalists introduced themselves and spoke to the men behind the fence; the majority of the men had arrived in Trnopolje that day, mainly from Keraterm, and some from Omarska.<sup>5544</sup> The witness spoke to some of these men about the conditions of the camps they had come from as well as at Trnopolje camp, but the men were hesitant to speak because of the presence of armed guards in the camp listening to what was being said.<sup>5545</sup> When asked about the conditions of the camp, one of the men stated that he did not know whether he was allowed to speak and two men were reluctant to talk about whether there were beatings or not.<sup>5546</sup> One man stated that they had been brought to the camp from their homes in surrounding villages.<sup>5547</sup> Another man stated that they lacked food and water.<sup>5548</sup> Video-footage of the men behind the barbed wire fence accompanied by the text of an ITN journalist reflected that the conditions of the camp were appalling, with hundreds of men in hot weather forced to eat and sleep outside, provided only with small rations of some bread and soup.<sup>5549</sup> There were also women and children at Trnopolje camp.<sup>5550</sup>

1287. ITN journalist Penny Marshall spoke to Idriz Merdžanić, who confirmed that he was treating people who had been beaten at other camps.<sup>5551</sup> Merdžanić testified that during the visit, he was not allowed to speak freely because Mico Kobas was present.<sup>5552</sup> When the witness was alone with Marshall, he gave her a camera and film with which he had taken photos.<sup>5553</sup> Vulliamy also spoke to people who were more sparsely spread and situated outside the fenced-off area; these people included men, women, and children who told him that they had come to the camp for a variety of reasons.<sup>5554</sup> Some were marched there under guard from surrounding villages; some went to Trnopolje to flee their villages after their houses were burned, shelled, or shot at; and others had fled from intense fighting in their villages.<sup>5555</sup> In an article dated 7 August 1992, the witness recounted being told by one of the men that ‘they’ had come to the village of Kozarac and bussed the man and others to Keraterm camp, and then to Trnopolje.<sup>5556</sup> The witness got the impression from speaking to the men that in comparison with where they had been, they were relieved to be at Trnopolje.<sup>5557</sup> The witness spoke to people in the area that was not fenced off who told him that they were able to make authorized visits back to their former homes and surrounding villages to search for food or medicine.<sup>5558</sup> A veterinarian the witness spoke to on several occasions over the years told him that she was able to go back to Kozarac to pick up people who had been left behind after the shelling.<sup>5559</sup>

1288. In the article dated 7 August 1992, the witness described Trnopolje camp as 'something between a civilian prison and transit camp'; he explained that the 'civilian prison' referred to the fenced-off area containing the men who had come from Omarska and Keraterm, while the 'transit camp' description was a reference to the area not fenced in.<sup>5560</sup> The witness testified that based on his experience travelling in a convoy towards Travnik and his observations at the camp, including when he returned to the camp on later occasions, he concluded that Trnopolje camp was the point of departure for the majority of people who were being systematically 'deported'.<sup>5561</sup>

1289. Milovan Milutinović testified that he accompanied a group of journalists on a visit to Trnopolje, escorted by the civilian police.<sup>5562</sup> Several hundred Muslims had gathered in the open area around the community centre and the school to take shelter from armed conflict between Muslim extremists and the army at Kozarac.<sup>5563</sup> In 'such a centre' people were allowed to move freely and to go back to their houses to collect things and food for meals. The civilian authorities engaged locals as security in order to protect the people, and they organised the work of the Red Cross so that it could provide the necessary assistance. According to the witness, there was no fence or barbed wire anywhere except around the construction material warehouse where no one was accommodated.<sup>5564</sup> When he was in Trnopolje, he received no complaints from the Muslims as to how they were being treated.<sup>5565</sup> The witness later found out that journalist Penny Marshall and a reporter from The Guardian entered the area of the

1290. Merdžanić testified that after Marshall's first visit, a convoy arrived with men from Omarska, who were put by the wooden store at the front of the camp and treated for lice.<sup>5569</sup> People were also transferred from Keraterm to Trnopolje.<sup>5570</sup> Before Marshall visited a second time around mid-August 1992, the fences at Trnopolje camp were removed, the ICRC arrived and registered the detainees, they received food and medicine to treat patients, people were able to move freely, and family visits were enabled.<sup>5571</sup> According to the witness, there was no more 'torture', and conditions in the camp became safer and better.<sup>5572</sup>

1291. Miloš Šolaja testified that on 7 August 1992, he accompanied a bus carrying about 40 foreign journalists on a visit to Trnopolje, where they were met by Slobodan Kuruzović.<sup>5573</sup> According to the witness, Kuruzović was not a camp commander and there was no camp at Trnopolje.<sup>5574</sup> In the witness's opinion, Kuruzović was instead the Head of the Municipal Red Cross and tasked with providing food to the civilians at Trnopolje, which he could not do due to the blockade of the 'corridor'.<sup>5575</sup> Kuruzović told the witness that the Muslim population voluntarily spent nights at Trnopolje to shelter from combat activities for their own safety, and were able to go home every day to cultivate their crops.<sup>5576</sup> According to the witness, Trnopolje was not enclosed and there was no barbed wire fence, save for a pre-war fence around the village school that was about one metre high and did not enclose the entire school.<sup>5577</sup> There were also no machine gun nests.<sup>5578</sup> The foreign journalists spoke to whomever they wanted and there were no visibly injured people at Trnopolje.<sup>5579</sup> According to a news video clip taken by Penny Marshall on 7 August 1992, the barbed wire fence that surrounded Trnopolje camp was taken down, food was made available, and shelter and clothes were provided by the Serb authorities in advance of the simultaneous arrival of the ICRC and the foreign media.<sup>5580</sup>

1292. Nusret Sivac, who was transferred from Omarska camp to Trnopolje camp on 7 August 1992 and stayed there until the end of August 1992, testified that around 10 August 1992, the detainees were ordered to remove all the wire from the fencing around the camp and Serb guards brought a big board with the words 'collection centre' on it.<sup>5581</sup> Sometime later Željko Mejakić, commander of Omarska camp, brought several foreign TV crews, as well as a TV crew from Pale, to Trnopolje camp.<sup>5582</sup> They were brought there to be shown that there were no more camps in the Prijedor area, only collection centres, where people were not fenced off from the rest of the world and the treatment they were receiving was almost humane.<sup>5583</sup>

1293. Charles McLeod stated that during a meeting on 30 August 1992, Radić, the Mayor of Banja Luka, told the ECMM that the team would visit a camp the following day, which was 'half open' and not a POW camp.<sup>5584</sup> During a meeting on 31 August 1992, Dr. Stakić, the Mayor of Prijedor, told the ECMM that there were around 10,000 Muslims and Croats in the camp, who were in possession of identification papers and not accused of anything, and that a majority of them wished to remain in the camp.<sup>5585</sup>

Stakić confirmed that the Serb army and police had captured several thousand people and put them into Trnopolje camp in order to protect them from the fighting.<sup>5586</sup> At the time McLeod visited on 31 August 1992, there was a sign indicating that it was an open reception centre and there were no fences around the camp.<sup>5587</sup> The Serb military or police who were controlling the camp told the witness that the machine guns pointed at the camp were there for the protection of the people in the camp and to ensure that nobody came in from the outside to beat them up.<sup>5588</sup> Between 1,600 and 4,000 people, mostly men, were at the camp.<sup>5589</sup> People asked the witness how long they would be there and expressed that they wanted to get out of the country and were being kept alive because the ICRC was now providing them with food.<sup>5590</sup>

1294. Jusuf Arifagić, who was transferred from Keraterm to Trnopolje camp on 1 August 1992 and released on 1 October 1992 after which he travelled to Karlovac, Croatia, stated that prior to leaving the camp he had to sign a document stating that he was leaving Prijedor of his own free will.<sup>5591</sup> In the presence of Pero Curguz, the head of the Serbian Red Cross in Prijedor, he signed another document giving away all of his property to the Serb authorities.<sup>5592</sup> Sivac also testified that to leave the centre there were several conditions to be met, including giving money or other valuables.<sup>5593</sup> Kuruzović and Pero Curguz from the Serbian Red Cross signed the release papers.<sup>5594</sup> The witness got release papers through the help of Rade Mutić and Živko Ećimović, who were putting together a report for a TV station from Prijedor.<sup>5595</sup> They saw the witness and told him that the situation in Omarska could not be helped as the release forms there had to be signed by the Crisis Staff or Radmilo Zeljaja, Commander of the

VRS 43rd Motorised Brigade.<sup>5596</sup> Mutić and Ećimović went to the administrative offices in Trnopolje camp and drew up release papers for him, and the witness left the camp and returned to Prijedor.<sup>5597</sup> After his release, he asked Milos Janković who had signed his arrest warrant, and he was told that most often the orders were signed by the Crisis Staff and people like Simo Drljača, Dule Janković, and Rajko Mijić, who were all members of the Prijedor SUP.<sup>5598</sup>

1295. According to a report by the Prijedor, Bosanski Novi, and Sanski Most SJB and the Commission for the Inspection of the Municipalities, dated 18 August 1992, the Trnopolje camp, referred to as 'Open Reception Centre', was established by the Prijedor Crisis Staff to receive and accommodate citizens who did not want to take part in the armed struggle against the VRS.<sup>5599</sup> From 24 May 1992 onwards, a large number of Muslims of all ages and both sexes sought protection in the 'Trnopolje Open Reception Centre' and on 18 August 1992, there were about 1,500 Muslims and Croats in the centre.<sup>5600</sup> These citizens organised themselves with respect to food and accommodation, and there was also a medical clinic at the centre.<sup>5601</sup> According to the report, the camp was not fenced off, citizens were free to leave, and to come and go as they pleased, no questioning took place, and the army provided physical security to protect against extremists.<sup>5602</sup> The report stated that the municipal authorities with assistance of other organs in the Republic and of humanitarian organisations, should undertake measures to improve living conditions with respect to food, accommodation, clothing, and other necessities.<sup>5603</sup> According to a report from the Chief of Banja Luka SJB, Trnopolje was a location where Muslims fleeing from combat operations in the municipality had found shelter.<sup>5604</sup> Security at the camp was provided by the VRS.<sup>5605</sup> According to a document from Simo Drljača, Chief of Prijedor SJB, sent to CSB Banja Luka and dated 9 August 1992, the Trnopolje Reception Centre was for 'citizens who refused to take part in the armed rebellion'.<sup>5606</sup> The document states that Drljača 'asked the legal authorities to protect them from the extremists', that the centre was secured by the VRS, and that no investigation activities were carried out in it.<sup>5607</sup>

1296. Branko Berić testified that the 'Trnopolje Reception Centre' was not a camp, although he believed that Muslims called it a camp in order to gain extra privileges in third countries or when they returned to their places of residence.<sup>5608</sup> The witness held no official position at the Trnopolje Reception Centre, but visited daily until he was sent to the frontline.<sup>5609</sup> According to the witness, Slobodan Kuruzović would spend two to three hours a day at Trnopolje in order to learn about the needs of the centre.<sup>5610</sup> The centre housed around 2,000 civilians, including women, children and elderly, of Muslim ethnicity and 'perhaps' a few Croats.<sup>5611</sup> According to Berić, the Muslims could move about freely during the day and often spent the days at their own houses, and returned to the centre after dusk because they felt safer there.<sup>5612</sup> Berić testified that because conditions in the centre were difficult for small children, he convinced a neighbour of his who was there with her two children to return to their apartment building in Prijedor.<sup>5613</sup>

1297. Also according to the Berić, Muslims came to Trnopolje Reception Centre of their own free will by foot, taxis, or their own vehicles.<sup>5614</sup> The witness remembered one case when Muslims were collected in Sanski Most and brought to Trnopolje Reception Centre with a police or military escort.<sup>5615</sup> From Trnopolje they were sent to third countries.<sup>5616</sup> The witness was aware that the reserve police had orders to take some Muslims from Trnopolje to Omarska for interrogation, and he testified that all of them returned after being interrogated.<sup>5617</sup> The witness later testified that he did not know whether detainees taken away from Trnopolje had returned.<sup>5618</sup>

1298. The municipal authorities tasked the Čirkin Polje Logistics Base with assisting the population at the Trnopolje Reception Centre, together with the Red Cross, by providing food, medical aid, and accommodation.<sup>5619</sup> Food supplies were brought by a Muslim named Nuhić, while the Muslims in the centre organised cooking and established their own medical service.<sup>5620</sup> There were, however, shortages of medicine and fuel for transportation and the sanitary conditions were ‘difficult’.<sup>5621</sup> According to the witness, there was no fence or barbed wire around the centre.<sup>5622</sup> Berić testified that the centre was initially secured by elderly men wearing military reserve uniforms with M-48 rifles who were part of the Čirkin Polje logistics base of the TO and some time later ‘probably’ by the 43rd Motorised Brigade of the VRS.<sup>5623</sup> According to the witness, the security provisions aimed to prevent uncontrolled access to the centre, but, according to an intercept with a daily update of events in Prijedor dated 31 May 1992, orders were given to increase security due to the fear of a break-out.<sup>5624</sup>

1299. According to the witness, the emaciated Muslim man pictured in photographs in Trnopolje which were exploited in the media was already ‘skinny like that’ before the war and the witness had heard that he had tuberculosis.<sup>5625</sup> Berić testified, however, that he did not remember the man’s name, nor exactly where he lived. This man was interrogated and upon his release, he was temporarily accommodated at Trnopolje Reception Centre before going to a third country.<sup>5626</sup>

1300. Puhalić testified that he assisted in the initial establishment of the camp, served as Kuruzović’s driver, helped with procuring food, and was as a link between

Kuruzović and the other soldiers.<sup>5627</sup> Upon arrival at the camp, non-Serb civilians were registered by the ICRC.<sup>5628</sup> According to the witness, the camp was only partially surrounded by a metal fence and non-Serbs could leave after receiving permission from Kuruzović, reporting to a guard, and leaving their identity documents behind.<sup>5629</sup> The witness testified that no one was brought to Trnopolje forcibly, and non-Serb civilians came to the camp for reasons of personal safety.<sup>5630</sup> According to Puhalić, the main purpose of the Trnopolje camp was to remove non-Serb civilians from the combat zone to ensure their safety.<sup>5631</sup> Puhalić testified that when he was at the camp, Muslims from the village of Trnopolje stayed in the village and in the camp.<sup>5632</sup> Puhalić was present at Trnopolje camp the day prior to, and the day after, journalists arrived at the camp.<sup>5633</sup> According to him, no preparations were made for the journalists' arrival.<sup>5634</sup> According to Javorić, many Muslims went voluntarily to the collection centres in Omarska, Keraterm, and Trnopolje after the operations in Hambarine in May 1992, in order to seek protection.<sup>5635</sup>

1301. According to a report of the CSCE Mission regarding places of detention in Bosnia-Herzegovina, most of the 2,000 Muslims held in the centre were civilians driven from their homes in the region by 'Serb forces'.<sup>5636</sup> Their houses had been burned, bombed or occupied by immigrant Serb families.<sup>5637</sup> A large number of detainees lived in 'primitive self-made shelters' and were generally living in terror.<sup>5638</sup>

Conditions at Trnopolje camp

1302. There was no running water at Trnopolje and almost no water to drink because only one pump existed for the whole camp.<sup>5639</sup> There were also limited lavatory facilities.<sup>5640</sup> Merdžanić testified that while he was detained in Trnopolje camp from 26 May until 30 September 1992, living conditions were inhumane, there was no electricity, and the water was dirty and unsuitable to drink.<sup>5641</sup> Witness RM-060 stated that it was extremely hot in the camp, flies and garbage were everywhere, and the detainees only had improvised toilets.<sup>5642</sup> Witness RM-023 stated that the toilets spilled over.<sup>5643</sup> At one time the buildings at Trnopolje proved insufficient to house all inmates, many of whom were forced to camp outdoors in the grounds in makeshift shelters of plastic sheeting and the like.<sup>5644</sup> There were no beds or blankets and detainees had to sleep on the floor or outside.<sup>5645</sup> Witness RM-047 confirmed that detainees had to sleep outside because the camp was so crowded.<sup>5646</sup> Witness RM-023 stated that the school building and the camp were full.<sup>5647</sup>

1303. No food was supplied by the camp authorities to the prisoners.<sup>5648</sup> Puhalić testified that food was distributed to the most destitute.<sup>5649</sup> Witness RM-047 stated that in the beginning, the detainees were given two slices of bread per day and later on food was distributed from a large military pot, but it was so bad that the detainees developed diarrhoea.<sup>5650</sup> Merdžanić added that the amount of food produced was insufficient for the camp.<sup>5651</sup> The acting camp commander agreed to allow local people to bring food into the camp.<sup>5652</sup> Detainees were allowed to come to the clinic, but only if accompanied by soldiers.<sup>5653</sup> Witness RM-047 received food from his friends.<sup>5654</sup>

Merdžanić testified that on 28 or 29 May 1992, the Serbian Red Cross, led by Pero Ćurkuz, set up an office at the camp.<sup>5655</sup> The witness attended a meeting with the Serbian Red Cross to discuss obtaining milk and bread for detainees, and as a result, bread was distributed to those who had paid for it.<sup>5656</sup> Witness RM-060 confirmed that it was possible to buy bread in Trnopolje camp every day, but only with Serbian bank notes.<sup>5657</sup>

1304. Witness RM-017 stated that he spent two days in Trnopolje with his family, during which time they were not provided with any food by the Serbs; only the children were provided with some milk.<sup>5658</sup> Azra Blažević stated that in the beginning of her detention, food was provided by local Muslim families through the Red Cross, but later on the detainees had to look for food on their own.<sup>5659</sup> Witness RM-023 stated that the newly arrived Omarska and Keraterm detainees had diarrhoea when they were fed.<sup>5660</sup> According to the witness the detainees received more food in Trnopolje than in Omarska and Keraterm, however, there was little food and the only dish was a small piece of fat in water.<sup>5661</sup> Detainees were allowed to make a fire and cook their own food. The wives of the men detained in the camp were allowed to bring food to their husbands who gave food to the witness's children. The witness did not eat for five days in a row and only drank water.<sup>5662</sup>

1305. Because of the lack of food and the unsanitary conditions at Trnopolje camp, lice and scabies were rampant and the majority of inmates suffered from dysentery.<sup>5663</sup> Puhalić testified that the camp provided medical assistance.<sup>5664</sup> Witness RM-047 stated that at the camp there was one doctor and one medical student present.<sup>5665</sup> Merdžanić testified that 'Serbian' doctor Duško Ivić and medical technician Mića Kobas, who both wore military uniforms, did not meet most of the witness's requests for medical supplies, and on one occasion Ivić refused to take an epileptic man to hospital, and the witness found him dead the following morning.<sup>5666</sup> Witness RM-047 stated that he saw an old man die beside him, probably due to dysentery and the lack of medical treatment.<sup>5667</sup>

1306. Blažević stated that she and others had to work as medical personnel in the camp.<sup>5668</sup> Merdžanić testified that he treated people in the camp for a wide range of diseases including hepatitis, chronic diarrhoea, and high fevers.<sup>5669</sup> He also removed the teeth of several people using pliers and no anaesthetic.<sup>5670</sup> There were no bathing facilities for detainees, and there was no disinfectant or gloves in the clinic and no way to wash prior to treating patients.<sup>5671</sup> Witness RM-023 stated that some of the wounded had maggots on their wounds.<sup>5672</sup> Merdžanić testified that initially people coming to the clinic had diseases common to civilians; later he examined people who had been beaten up or raped.<sup>5673</sup>

1307. Sejmenović testified that following the attack on Kozarac, and after he had been hiding until the second half of July 1992, he observed Trnopolje camp for two days before sneaking in and out of the camp from his hiding place to see the conditions and to find out what the guards were planning to do to the detainees.<sup>5674</sup> Some non-Serbs were allowed inside the camp to help detainees, including a physician and a female veterinarian.<sup>5675</sup> Most of the time the majority of the detainees looked similar to a detainee in a picture that was shown to the witness, due to starvation, beatings, and constant fear.<sup>5676</sup> Many of the detainees he saw looked exhausted, moved slowly, and had dull eyes.<sup>5677</sup>

Treatment of detainees at Trnopolje camp

1308. Mistreatment was commonplace at Trnopolje camp; Serb soldiers used baseball bats, iron bars, rifle butts, and their hands and feet or whatever they had at their disposal to beat the detainees.<sup>5678</sup> Individuals who were taken out for questioning would often return bruised or injured.<sup>5679</sup> Merdžanić testified that there was an interrogation room next to the medical clinic where men were questioned and beaten.<sup>5680</sup> The witness often saw Serb guards bring detainees into the room.<sup>5681</sup> The room was very close to where the witness slept, and he heard strikes with muted blunt sounds, and could hear people screaming and moaning, and heard Serbs swearing.<sup>5682</sup> He examined detainees after the beatings, and on several occasions a detainee named Mujo was ordered to clean the room, which had blood in it.<sup>5683</sup> The witness took photos of this room covered in blood.<sup>5684</sup> The witness saw guards entering and leaving the interrogation room including Mladen Mitrović and Mirijan Mitrović, a person named Stojanović who was also known as Zemunac, Dragoja Čavić, Dragan Škrbić, and Branko Topola.<sup>5685</sup> On one occasion in August 1992, the witness saw, from the window of the clinic, Žigić, who had come with detainees transferred from Keraterm camp, wearing a camouflage uniform and red beret, beating a man severely with his hands and feet until the man fell down, then kicking him and jumping on him while the guards' commander was present.<sup>5686</sup> To the witness's knowledge no investigation was conducted concerning killings and beatings in the camp.<sup>5687</sup>

1309. Puhalić would often come to the clinic in Trnopolje camp with a list of names of men asking the witness for their whereabouts.<sup>5688</sup> On one occasion, two persons Puhalić called for were at the clinic, Nijaz Gutić and Džemal Zerić, and Puhalić instructed two men in military uniforms to take them to the interrogation room where they beat them and then took them away, and they were never seen by the witness again.<sup>5689</sup> Puhalić testified that he neither conducted any interrogations nor was involved in any beatings.<sup>5690</sup>

1310. Blažević stated that on one occasion Nedžad Jakupović was brought to the medical unit with bruises all over his body and several cuts, including a cross that had been carved into his chest.<sup>5691</sup> The soldiers who beat Jakupović were Mladen Mitrović, Darko Mrđa, 'Mile', and 'Deba', who all came to the camp often.<sup>5692</sup> Another time, she heard how a man was beaten in this room for two days.<sup>5693</sup> A man called Mujkanović was taken into the room and also beaten for two days and nights in a row.<sup>5694</sup> Blažević stated that when the soldiers took a break from the beating, a guard called 'Darko' went outside the building and wiped his boots on the grass saying '[l]ook how this mother fucker was bleeding'.<sup>5695</sup> Puhalić denied that a person named Mustafa Mujkanović was beaten unconscious in his presence.<sup>5696</sup> Later, Blažević saw two bus drivers named Zerić and Gutić being taken into the room and she heard them being beaten for several hours.<sup>5697</sup>

1311. One day, when detainees from Keraterm camp arrived at Trnopolje, a Serb guard called Zoran Žigić shouted a traditional orthodox Serbian greeting at the new detainees, something like '[g]od help you Turks'. The witness then saw Žigić beat up a detainee named Hasan in the camp's yard. The next day, the witness heard from other detainees that Hasan was in a very bad state and that they were afraid he might die.<sup>5698</sup> Ajdin Zenkić was beaten in the municipality office at the camp on several occasions by Dragan Skrbić and Stoja 'Stole' Madzar.<sup>5699</sup> One night, a man called Mehmed Avdić was beaten in the lumber yard.<sup>5700</sup> On several occasions, the witness and other medical staff were threatened with deportation and death by soldiers who came into the medical unit with their weapons.<sup>5701</sup>

1312. Arifagić stated that on his first day at the camp, he saw Zoran Žigić from Keraterm camp enter the wire fenced off area where he and other detainees were being detained. Žigić asked for a man called 'Kum', who had given Žigić his white Mercedes 220, and started to beat him. A number of guards eventually took Žigić away and brought 'Kum' to a doctor.<sup>5702</sup> Witness RM-709 stated that behind the community centre, policemen beat up detainees and that a person named 'Zoka' beat him.<sup>5703</sup> Witness RM-017 stated that he heard from other men who had been interrogated that they were beaten and had to hand over all their money and valuables.<sup>5704</sup> Witness RM-047 learned from Ismet Javor that guards forced detainees to fight with each other, and they would stomp on the detainees who fell down after being beaten.<sup>5705</sup>

1313. Between May and October 1992, many incidents of rape occurred at the camp.<sup>5706</sup> Not all of the perpetrators were camp personnel, as some were allowed to visit the camp from the outside.<sup>5707</sup> One prisoner, Vasif Gutić, who had medical training, was assigned to work in the medical unit at Trnopolje and he often counselled and treated victims of rape, the youngest girl being 12 years old.<sup>5708</sup> In August 1992, Slobodan Kuruzović personally arranged for a Bosnian-Muslim woman to be detained in the same house in which he had his office, and he raped her nearly every night for about a month.<sup>5709</sup> On two occasions, he stabbed her shoulder and her leg with his knife because she resisted being raped.<sup>5710</sup>

1314. The Trial Chamber also considered the evidence of Witness RM-023, which has been placed in the confidential annex in Appendix D.

<sup>5710</sup> Adjudicated Facts I, no. 1076. The Trial Chamber understands Adjudicated Facts numbers 1074-1076 to refer to rape in Trnopolje camp, including Kuruzović's house.

1315. Merdžanić testified that on 27 May 1992, a woman named Marica Olenjuk told him about the rape of several women at a neighbour's house, outside the camp.<sup>5711</sup> The witness then spoke to some of the guards, including the acting camp commander, about the alleged incident.<sup>5712</sup> A Serb guard interrogated him later that day and told him they would 'do away with' him.<sup>5713</sup> In the first half of June 1992, the witness talked to Dr Duško Ivić about examining women who had been raped and Ivić later told the witness that eight or nine women who agreed to be examined were put on a Serbian Red Cross van and taken to Prijedor for examination, and it was confirmed that they had all been raped.<sup>5714</sup> The following day they were put on a convoy to Muslim-held territory.<sup>5715</sup> The witness believed that many of the rapes occurred in June 1992 when the tank crews nicknamed 'El Manijakos' were in Prijedor as he had seen some of them arguing with Kuruzović, asking why he allowed the women to be examined.<sup>5716</sup> Blažević stated that after an incident in which a woman was raped in the camp, an alleged perpetrator was called in for investigation.<sup>5717</sup> He belonged to 'Manijakosi' (maniacs) or 'Manijakos'.<sup>5718</sup> After this, he and other members of his unit came to the camp from the direction of Prijedor. They were cursing and threatening the medical staff. Detainees told the witness that they then drove to the school building and went into the boiler room at the back of the school where they beat up 20 men, one of whom was Nedžad Jakupović. When the witness went to the boiler room to help the beaten men afterwards, she found Jakupović unconscious and in a very bad condition.<sup>5719</sup>

1316. Blažević stated that during one night in mid-June 1992, she saw soldiers enter the camp from the direction of Kozarac, and then go into the cinema hall and the room above the canteen where they selected a total of around 40 women whom they took out of the camp.<sup>5720</sup> After that night, eight mothers came to the medical unit with their eight daughters, and the daughters said that they had been raped during the night.<sup>5721</sup> There were more rapes happening outside the camp premises.<sup>5722</sup> Merdžanić testified that he saw soldiers, mostly from outside the camp, taking women out of the camp at night and heard from his patients that they would enter the rooms with flashlights at night choosing women.<sup>5723</sup> He testified that one rape involved a group of guards continually raping a woman, keeping her for 10 days at checkpoint Orlovac.<sup>5724</sup> This woman visited him at the clinic asking for painkillers, and he tried to assist the woman by telling Lieutenant Cumba, a member of the military police.<sup>5725</sup> Merdžanić stated that there was no point examining the women as it would embarrass them, they had no medicine to give them, and reporting sexual assaults would just endanger the victims.<sup>5726</sup>

1317. Sivac testified that when he arrived he heard from people at the camp who were from the Kozarac area that women and girls were often taken from the camp by Serb soldiers returning from the front line, and that some of them never returned.<sup>5727</sup> Sejmenović testified that rapes occurred within the camp and that women and children were taken from the camp and raped in the area of Ribnjak.<sup>5728</sup> Puhalić testified that he was aware of only one occasion of rape in the camp.<sup>5729</sup> According to him, the victim was provided with medical care and those who had committed the rape were arrested by the military police, but he did not know whether there had been any prosecutions for this crime.<sup>5730</sup>

The Trial Chamber's findings

1318. The Trial Chamber has received evidence from Miloš Šolaja that, in his opinion, the compound at Trnopolje was not a 'camp',<sup>5731</sup> and that Slobodan Kuruzović was not its commander, but was instead tasked with providing food to the civilians there in his capacity as the head of the local Red Cross. This evidence contradicts adjudicated facts including Adjudicated Fact 1063, which states that the ‘commander of Trnopolje camp was Slobodan Kuruzović.’ The Trial Chamber notes, however, that Šolaja was present at the camp with a group of international journalists for only a short time on 7 August 1992, and seems to have formed his opinions about Kuruzović’s position and the purpose of the camp from statements made to this group by Kuruzović. The Chamber considers that Kuruzović, in speaking with Šolaja and this group of journalists, would have had an interest in minimizing his role at the camp as well as portraying the facility in the best possible light. For these reasons, the Trial Chamber finds Šolaja’s evidence on the purpose of the camp and Kuruzović’s position within it to be insufficiently reliable to rebut the adjudicated facts in these respects. Šolaja’s also testified that there were no machinegun nests at the camp. Although this evidence might seem to contradict Adjudicated Fact 1066’s reference to machinegun nests, the Trial Chamber notes that this fact refers to machinegun emplacements located outside the camp. Considering this difference the Trial Chamber finds that his evidence does not contradict Adjudicated Fact 1066.<sup>5732</sup>

1319. The Trial Chamber has also received evidence from Idriz Merdžanić, Witness RM-047, Witness RM-023, Slavko Puhalić, and Jusuf Arifagić that the Trnopolje camp authorities provided food to the detainees. This contradicts Adjudicated Fact 1070 which states that no food was supplied by the camp authorities. Given that these witnesses were present at the camp during the relevant time period and some provided evidence that they personally observed camp authorities providing food to detainees, the Trial Chamber considers their evidence to be sufficiently reliable to rebut the adjudicated fact in this respect. Under these circumstances the Trial Chamber finds that Adjudicated Fact 1070 is rebutted as it relates to food provided to the detainees by the authorities of Trnopolje camp, and will analyse the evidence on this aspect in order to make a determination on the matter.

1320. The Trial Chamber has received differing accounts of the purpose of Trnopolje camp; the functions of its guards; and the arrival, status, treatment, and freedom of movement of the non-Serbs there. Having considered the evidence in its entirety, the Trial Chamber finds that Trnopolje camp was a mixed-purpose facility that served as a detention facility as well as a transit centre for non-Serbs. Some came to the camp independently because their houses had been burned, to escape fighting, or after expulsion by Bosnian-Serb forces. Others were brought to the camp by Bosnian-Serb authorities where they stayed until they were relocated, as set out in chapter 4.10.7. Other non-Serbs, typically able-bodied men, were arrested by members of the Bosnian Serb forces including the VRS 5th Kozarac Brigade and transported to various camps before finally being brought to Trnopolje camp where they were detained against their will. Many of the non-Serbs in the camp were not given a reason for their arrest or detention. Some non-Serbs were allowed to leave the camp after receiving permission and leaving behind their personal identification documents, with some required to give money or other valuables in order to leave. Just as non-Serbs arrived at and left the camp by different methods, their treatment within the camp varied depending on who they were and when they were there. The Trial Chamber also notes the evidence it has received that conditions at the camp improved towards the end of its operation, in part due to media attention and the presence of the ICRC. For all these reasons, the Trial Chamber considers that the differences which exist in the accounts of the camp's purpose and the treatment of non-Serbs there are not necessarily contradictory, but instead relate to different sections of the camp, as well as the different categories of non-Serbs located at the camp, and the differences in the time periods discussed.

1321. The Trial Chamber received conflicting evidence from Branko Berić with regard to whether detainees who were taken out for interrogation ever returned.<sup>5733</sup> For this reason, the Trial Chamber finds Berić's evidence on this point to be unreliable and will not consider it further.

1322. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that Trnopolje camp was in operation from at least 26 May 1992 until the end of September 1992, although some people stayed there longer. From late May to early June 1992, there were approximately 8,000 detainees. By late August 1992, up to 4,000 people were detained at the camp. The detainees were Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat civilians, including women and children. The buildings at Trnopolje were insufficient to house all the detainees, causing many of them to camp outdoors with little or no shelter. There was no electricity, nor were there beds, blankets, or bathing facilities in the camp. There was no running water and the little drinking water that was available was dirty and contaminated. There were very limited lavatory facilities and the camp authorities supplied an insufficient amount of food to the detainees. In some cases food was distributed only to those who could pay for it. Because of the lack of sufficient food as well as the unsanitary and crowded conditions, lice and scabies were rampant and the majority of detainees suffered from dysentery. The detainees also suffered from a wide range of ailments including hepatitis, chronic diarrhoea, and high fevers. There was no disinfectant or gloves in the camp's medical clinic and no way to wash prior to treating patients there. Several detainees had their teeth removed with pliers without the use of anaesthetic. Some of the wounded detainees had maggots in their wounds. Requests for medical supplies and treatments were not met by Duško Ivić and medical technician Mića Kobas, both Serbs who wore military uniforms and worked at the camp. In one instance, Ivić refused to take an epileptic man to the hospital and the man was found dead the next morning.

1323. With regard to the responsibility for the detention and the conditions at the camp, the Trial Chamber finds that Trnopolje camp was established by the Prijedor Crisis Staff and that the camp was initially secured by members of the Prijedor TO and soon afterwards by VRS soldiers. Slobodan Kuruzović was the camp commander and Slavko Puhalić was his deputy. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 3.1.2 that Kuruzović and Puhalić were members of the VRS 43rd Motorised Brigade.

1324. Camp guards frequently and severely beat detainees with baseball bats, irons bars, rifle butts, their hands and feet, or whatever they had at their disposal. Guards including Darko Mrđa, Mladen Mitrović, Mirijan Mitrović, a man named Stojanović a.k.a. Zemunac, Dragoja Čavić, Dragan Škrbić, Stoja Madzar a.k.a. Stole, Branko Topola, and soldiers named Mile and Deba beat detainees including during interrogations. Slavko Puhalić would often appear with a list of names, asking for the whereabouts of certain detainees who were then taken away and beaten, some of them never to return. In August 1992 a Serb guard named Zoran Žigić who came from Keraterm camp, greeted newly arriving detainees by saying '[g]od help you Turks.' In the presence of Kuruzović, Žigić beat a detainee severely and began kicking him and jumping on him after the detainee had fallen down. The guards beat some detainees to death, as set out in chapter 4.10.1 Schedule B.13.5. Guards also forced detainees to fight one another. On several occasions Serb soldiers entered the medical clinic and threatened the Muslim medical staff there with deportation and death. A Bosnian woman who had been detained along with her children and registered as a ‘Hambarine extremist’ upon arrival, was accused by camp guards of buying and storing arms. The guards called her a ‘balija’ and beat her in the presence of her children whom the guards also threatened.

1325. Camp guards and others, including VRS soldiers from outside the camp, raped many women and girls in and around the camp. These guards and soldiers were allowed in the camp to select their victims, the youngest of whom was 12 years old. Kuruzović raped a Bosnian-Muslim woman nearly every night for approximately a month. He also threatened, beat, and stabbed her on multiple occasions when she resisted. During these rapes he told her ‘let’s see how Muslim women fuck’ and threatened to bring in other soldiers to rape her. He also told her that ‘your Muslims are raping our Serbian sisters, so now it is your turn to see how it is’ and that ‘Muslim women must have Serbian children.’

Schedule C.15.5

1327. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the detention, torture, beating, abuse, rape, commission of other acts of sexual violence, and subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to inhumane living conditions in Miška Glava Dom, Prijedor Municipality, between 21 and 25 July 1992.<sup>5734</sup> The Defence argued that there was no VRS presence at the Miška Glava Dom and therefore the Accused was not in command of the facility.<sup>5735</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this detention centre.<sup>5736</sup> It also received evidence from Elvedin Nasić and Nermin Karagić, both Bosnian Muslims

1328. Elvedin Nasić testified that in July 1992, ‘Serb soldiers’, wearing olive-green, grey, or camouflage uniforms captured 114 unarmed men who had been hiding in the forest, after they mistakenly entered the Serb village of Miška Glava.<sup>5739</sup> Some of the men, including the witness, came from Hambarine.<sup>5740</sup> Nermin Karagić described the captors as JNA soldiers and men wearing reserve police uniforms.<sup>5741</sup> Nasić stated that the ‘Serb soldiers’ put the group in four columns, separating older from younger men.<sup>5742</sup> A commander ordered an armed soldier to shoot the detainees if any of them moved.<sup>5743</sup> They were told to empty their pockets and throw everything on the ground.<sup>5744</sup> After a few hours, the ‘Serb soldiers’ took the detainees through the village, into a field, and then to Miška Glava.<sup>5745</sup> The group of 114 people were moved to Miška Glava around 21 July 1992.<sup>5746</sup> Miška Glava Dom was a cultural club which had been transformed into a command post.<sup>5747</sup> It was staffed by the TO.<sup>5748</sup> The detainees’ names were recorded by an officer.<sup>5749</sup> According to Nasić, the officer’s name was Zoran Popović.<sup>5750</sup> The 114 detainees were kept in a small café<sup>5751</sup> Karagić testified that the detainees spent three days and two nights there in very cramped and hot conditions.<sup>5752</sup> They were given a single loaf of bread and a packet of sweets to share, among all 114 detainees, in three days.<sup>5753</sup> They were given water but had to sing songs about Greater Serbia to get it.<sup>5754</sup> The detainees were guarded by what the witness thought were the Miška Glava TO wearing olive-grey JNA uniforms.<sup>5755</sup> Interrogations and beatings occurred at the Miška Glava Dom.<sup>5756</sup> People were regularly called out at the detention unit to be beaten.<sup>5757</sup> Detainees were beaten during interrogations by Bosnian-Serb soldiers with fists and rifle butts.<sup>5758</sup> They suffered concussions, bleeding, and heavy bruising.<sup>5759</sup> The beatings went on for four or five days.<sup>5760</sup>

1329. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that from around 21 July 1992, 114 men were detained at Miška Glava Dom, in a small café in hot conditions for several days. With regard to ethnicity, the Trial Chamber considers that some of the men were from the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat village of Hambarine and that all those detained were unarmed and hiding in the forest and were captured after mistakenly entering a Serb village. Further, it considers that one of the men was separated from the group when he said that his mother was a Serb and the rest were ill-treated while forced to sing songs about Greater Serbia (the Trial Chamber discusses this further in chapter 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.8). The Trial Chamber concludes that the group of men was predominantly Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat. The 114 detainees were provided with a single loaf of bread and a packet of sweets to share for three days and they had to sing songs about Greater Serbia in order to obtain water. The guards were from the Miška Glava TO. During interrogations at the Miška Glava Dom, the detainees were regularly beaten with fists and rifle butts. The Trial Chamber finds that the guards of the Miška Glava TO carried out these beatings. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above in relation to Counts 1 and 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

4.10.3 Destruction of private and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites (including Schedule D)

1330. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the wanton acts of destruction of private property, including homes and business premises, and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites, as listed in Scheduled Incident D.11, in Prijedor Municipality, between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>5761</sup> In particular, the Indictment alleges that the Kozaruša mosque, the Stari Grad mosque, the Čarakovo mosque, the Hambarine old mosque, the Čaršijska and Zagrad mosques in Prijedor Town, the Biščani mosque, the Gornja/Donja Puharska mosque, the Rizvanovići mosque, the Brežičani mosque, the Ališići mosque, the Zecovi mosque, the Čejreci mosque, the Gomjenica mosque, the Kevljani mosque, the Kamičani mosque, the Mutnik mosque in Kozarac as well as the Catholic church in Prijedor Town and the Briševo church were destroyed.<sup>5762</sup> The Indictment, as far as the charge of destruction is concerned, is however not limited to the Scheduled Incidents. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber has also considered evidence falling outside the scope of Schedule D.11. The Defence submitted that the Prosecution's allegation is wholly based on Riedlmayer's report, which employed a flawed and unreliable methodology.<sup>5763</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this charge.<sup>5764</sup> The Trial Chamber further received evidence from Nusret Sivac, a Bosnian-Muslim journalist for TV Sarajevo who covered events in Prijedor and surrounding municipalities;<sup>5765</sup> Mevludin Sejmenović, the Vice-President of the SDA in Prijedor from 1990 to 1992;<sup>5766</sup> Witness RM-017 and Jusuf Arifagić, both Bosnian Muslims from Kozarac in Prijedor Municipality;<sup>5767</sup> Kerim Mešanović, Sead Sušić, Elvedin Nasić, Witness RM-026, Senija Elkasović, Witness RM-047, and Witness RM-023,

Hambarine

1331. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to the attack on Hambarine, which are reviewed in chapters 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.2 and 4.10.7.

1332. Elvedin Nasić stated that in the night of 21 May 1992 a tank shelled Hambarine and mortar rounds were fired.<sup>5780</sup> The next day, starting at around noon, Serb forces shelled Hambarine for three or four hours, targeting in particular the mosque and inflicting damage to houses.<sup>5781</sup> Witness RM-023 stated that Serbs issued an ultimatum on Radio Prijedor demanding the surrender of weapons held by non-Serbs as well as the surrender of a Dr Mujadžić, an SDA official in Hambarine, and a person called Sikirić, and threatened to continue with the shelling in case of non-compliance.<sup>5782</sup> The electricity was cut.<sup>5783</sup> On 24 May 1992, the mosque in Hambarine was shelled during the attack on the town.<sup>5784</sup> Witness RM-023 saw after the attack that the mosque had been fully destroyed.<sup>5785</sup> Another shell had exploded close to the house where the witness had sought refuge, breaking its windows.<sup>5786</sup> According to András

Riedlmayer, Serb forces burnt down the Old Mosque in Hambarine from 22 to 23 May 1992 when they overran the village.<sup>5787</sup> Riedlmayer identified specific damage caused to the building during his July 2002 site visit: the Old mosque's roof and minaret were gone, its interior was gutted, its perimeter walls stood up to the roofline, charred timber and scorch marks on walls signalled destruction by fire, the walls of the entrance portico were scorched and pitted with scattered bullet holes.<sup>5788</sup>

1333. Following restoration of the electricity on 25 May 1992, the Serbs, acting on the authority of the Serbian government in Prijedor, reiterated their ultimatum, demanding additionally the surrender of Besim Mulalić and other persons. The next day, the shelling resumed at 12:24 p.m., and the witness counted 275 heavy artillery shells being fired in five minutes. Shells started to land increasingly closer to the house where the witness had sought refuge. They were first coming from Topić Brdo, where Serb tanks were deployed, and then from the direction of the Prijedor airport. The witness also heard airplanes flying over the village.<sup>5789</sup> At around 3 p.m., the witness fled to the woods with Muslim women, children, and men from the village.<sup>5790</sup> As she was escaping, the witness saw tanks firing shells and Serb soldiers firing Zolja shoulder rockets, resulting in the destruction and burning of lots of houses and of the coffee bar Zora.<sup>5791</sup> The witness saw the infantry firing at the fleeing villagers, wounding one of them.<sup>5792</sup> The villagers offered almost no resistance to the Serbs.<sup>5793</sup>

1334. Witness RM-026 stated that on 10 June 1992, a private home was set on fire in the village. On 11 June 1992, the witness saw five 'Chetniks' arriving in Hambarine in a truck and setting a café and a house on fire. He heard the 'Chetniks' making noise and shooting. On the same day, a group of 'Chetniks', including Jevo Maseldzija and Mlado Jurusić, set a garage on fire after demanding money and jewellery from the people who had sought refuge inside.<sup>5794</sup> The witness heard from an eyewitness that the ‘Chetniks’ opened fire on women and children who ran out of the garage and wounded one of the women.<sup>5795</sup>

1335. Nermin Karagić testified that in late June or early July 1992, he saw a tank fire about 20 shells at a checkpoint in Hambarine.<sup>5796</sup> According to the witness, Hambarine was subsequently taken very quickly.<sup>5797</sup> During the attack, the Hambarine mosque was targeted and fired upon and the Rajkovac mosque was also hit.<sup>5798</sup> The witness saw the shelling from his house in Rizvanovići, which is four kilometres away from Hambarine.<sup>5799</sup>

1336. The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Riedlmayer with regard to the destruction of the new mosque of Hambarine. According to photographs taken after the war in possession of the witness, the roof of the new mosque in Hambarine is gone, its perimeter walls stand up to the roofline, and the wall of the mosque facing the stump of the minaret is seen to be damaged, most likely by the falling minaret.<sup>5800</sup> Serb forces blew up the minaret of the new mosque in Hambarine on or about 23 May 1992 and the damaged mosque was blown up and completely destroyed in October 1996.<sup>5801</sup>

Kozaruša

1337. In mid 1992, the Bosnian-Muslim villages of Bišćani, Kozaruša, Kamičani, Kevljani, Rakovčani, Čarakovo, and Rizvanovići in Prijedor Municipality were destroyed by Bosnian-Serb forces.<sup>5802</sup> The houses were set on fire and looted.<sup>5803</sup> The VRS loaded their trucks with goods belonging to non-Serbs.<sup>5804</sup> The village of Kozaruša was destroyed and only Serb houses remained, for the most part, untouched.<sup>5805</sup> In May

1992, at least 50 houses along the Hambarine-Prijedor road were damaged or destroyed by the Serb armed forces during the attack.<sup>5806</sup> Within the summer months of 1992, the minaret of the mosque in Kozaruša was badly damaged.<sup>5807</sup> Riedlmayer interviewed two eye-witnesses to the events, the Imam of the Kozaruša mosque as well as a local resident of Kozaruša, both of whom told him that the mosque was set on fire around 24 May 1992.<sup>5808</sup> The mekteb was burned down.<sup>5809</sup> According to one of his sources, Serb fighters, wearing JNA uniforms, ‘Tito caps’, and led by Savan Končar, a Serb from Kozaruša, bombarded the mosque and Muslim homes of Kozaruša for 24 hours before setting the mosque on fire and blowing up its minaret and only the outer walls of the mekteb in Kozaruša remained standing at the end of the war.<sup>5810</sup> According to photographs taken after the war in possession of the witness, the Kozaruša mosque is completely burnt out, its roof collapsed, its interior is gutted and open to the sky, and its perimeter walls remain standing up to the roofline.<sup>5811</sup>

June 1992, the mosque in Kamičani was destroyed by Serbs.<sup>5815</sup> Witness RM-054 saw the surrounding area of Kozarac, from the Kamičani region right up to the Kamičani mosque, ablaze while he was hiding on Mount Kozara between 26 May and early June 1992.<sup>5816</sup> Witness RM-047 stated that in the beginning of June 1992, he could see that all houses in Kamičani were burnt down.<sup>5817</sup>

Bišćani

1340. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to the attack on Bišćani on 20 July 1992, which are reviewed above and in chapters 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.6 and 4.10.7.<sup>5818</sup> Muslim houses in Bišćani were destroyed with traces of fire, and on 20 July 1992 the mosque was destroyed.<sup>5819</sup> Witness RM-038 testified that the mosque was burning on that day.<sup>5820</sup> According to Riedlmayer, the Bišćani mosque burnt down on 22 July 1992.<sup>5821</sup> Serb forces unsuccessfully tried to set the Bišćani mosque on fire with a zolja (shoulder launcher firing an incendiary projectile) before calling in the fire brigade which came with a fire truck and burned the mosque down.<sup>5822</sup> Riedlmayer identified specific damage caused to the building during his July 2002 site visit: the Bišćani mosque was completely burned out, its roof and minaret were gone, the interior gutted and open to the sky and the old Muslim cemetery in front of the mosque had been vandalised.<sup>5823</sup>

Čarakovo

1341. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to the attack on Čarakovo, which are reviewed above and in chapters 4.10.1 Schedules A.6.5 and A.6.6 and 4.10.7.<sup>5824</sup>

1342. On 23 July 1992, the Muslim village of Čarakovo suffered extensive damage and destruction and houses were looted.<sup>5825</sup> According to Riedlmayer, Serb forces burnt down the Čarakovo mosque on 23 July 1992 and blew up its minaret.<sup>5826</sup> During his July 2002 site visit, Riedlmayer observed that only the stump of the Čarakovo blown-up minaret and the mosque's foundations remained in situ.<sup>5827</sup>

Kevljani

1343. Within the summer months of 1992, the new mosque in Kevljani was completely destroyed by mines, both the minaret and the mosque blown up with explosives.<sup>5828</sup> With regard to this village, the Trial Chamber also took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact 1083, which is reviewed with regard to Kozaruša Village, and stipulates that Bosnian-Serb forces participated in the attack.

Rakovčani, Rizvanovići, and Ravine

1344. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to the attacks on Rakovčani, Rizvanovići, and Ravine, which are reviewed above and in chapter 4.10.1 Schedules A.6.5 and A.6.6.<sup>5829</sup> Homes were destroyed and personal belongings looted in the attack on Rizvanovići, a predominantly Muslim village.<sup>5830</sup>

Witness RM-038 saw destroyed mosques in Rizvanovići, Rakovčani, and Ravine.<sup>5831</sup> According to Riedlmayer, the Rizvanovići mosque was destroyed on or about 21 July 1992.<sup>5832</sup> Serb paramilitaries of the White Eagles and Red Berets destroyed the Rizvanovići mosque in three stages: they toppled the minaret with a zolja (shoulder-launched projectile), blew up the burned down mosque, and knocked down its ruins with a bulldozer.<sup>5833</sup> During his July 2002 site visit, Riedlmayer observed that only the foundations of the Rizvanovići mosque remained.<sup>5834</sup> The Rakovčani mosque burnt down on 23 May 1992.<sup>5835</sup> The minaret of the old Rakovčani mosque was shot away with a Serb tank firing at close range from the road before the mosque was burnt down and its ruins were destroyed with explosives.<sup>5836</sup> Parts of three of the four perimeter walls of the Rakovčani mosque remain standing up to the roofline, while the fourth wall was reduced to a pile of rubble.<sup>5837</sup> Witness RM-038 testified that all the mosques had been intact in April 1992 but were destroyed by August 1992.<sup>5838</sup>

Prijedor Town, including Stari Grad Mosque, Čaršijka Mosque, Zagrad Mosque, Donja Puharska Mosque, and the Catholic church

1345. Nusret Sivac, who was present during the attack on Prijedor Town, testified that in the early hours of 30 May 1992, large numbers of Serb soldiers, with artillery, encircled Prijedor Town, section by section.<sup>5839</sup> When the fighting broke out that morning there were many brigades there: the 5th Kozarac Brigade, commanded by Pero Colić; the 43rd Motorised Brigade, formerly the 343rd Brigade and commanded by Arsić and Zeljaja; some members of the 6th Krajina Brigade; people from Bosanski

Novi; and a notorious group called the Spare Ribs, known to have committed atrocious crimes on the left bank of the Sava.<sup>5840</sup> These brigades cooperated with the Prijedor police led by Simo Drljača, Dule Janković, Milutin Cadzo, and others.<sup>5841</sup> On 30 May 1992, the old part of Prijedor Town, known as Stari Grad, inhabited mostly by Muslims, was destroyed.<sup>5842</sup> Kerim Mešanović stated that the Serb army cleared the old town and tore down the old town mosque.<sup>5843</sup> In May 1992, the Čaršijska mosque in Prijedor was destroyed by a group of men, including a bodyguard of Simo Drljača, Milorad Vokić, who set it alight.<sup>5844</sup> Sivac testified that he also saw Milenko Milić, a member of Milan Andžić's paramilitary unit, his commander Momčilo Radanović a.k.a. Cigo setting the mosque on fire.<sup>5845</sup> In the same month, the mosque in Zagrad was also destroyed.<sup>5846</sup> Sivac testified that Zagrad was in the Bereg part of the town.<sup>5847</sup>

stood next to the old mosque had been uprooted.<sup>5850</sup> The buildings adjacent to the Čaršijska mosque, the church and the archive and library were in good condition.<sup>5851</sup>

1347. Mešanović testified that while Muslim homes were burnt to the ground, no Serb homes were damaged in Prijedor Town.<sup>5852</sup> Zdjelar stated that Radiša Ljesnjak sent him to Prijedor shortly after the conflict in Prijedor Municipality had started in 1992, where he destroyed Muslim homes in the old area of Prijedor Town and in the broader area of Prijedor. During this time, ten people were present and in possession of a map showing the houses owned by Muslims. The witness was told that the houses he destroyed were previously owned by Muslims but had been bought by the Prijedor Municipality to build a recreation centre.<sup>5853</sup>

1348. According to a decision issued by the Prijedor Municipality Executive Committee on 21 July 1992, it was agreed that a number of buildings would be demolished due to the impossibility of repairing the structures damaged by the recent fighting.<sup>5854</sup> The list of buildings in the old town part of Prijedor comprised 78 residential structures, two residential and business structures, two business structures, one auxiliary structure, one terrace, one catering establishment, one garage, and one place of worship, the mosque at A. Babića Street.<sup>5855</sup>

1349. On 28 August 1992, the Prijedor mosque (Puharska section) was destroyed by Serbs.<sup>5856</sup> In late August 1992, Bosnian-Serb soldiers broke into the Roman Catholic church in Prijedor to plant explosives in it, which detonated destroying the church.<sup>5857</sup> Sivac testified that one night in August 1992 he heard two explosions and he later learned that they destroyed the Roman Catholic church and the mosque in the Puharska section of the town.<sup>5858</sup> Mešanović and Draško Vujić testified that the two explosions were only minutes apart.<sup>5859</sup> Sivac testified that several days later, he saw the remains of the Roman Catholic church and a crane which was being used to raze it completely to the ground.<sup>5860</sup> The witness also saw the remains of the mosque in Puharska which had been razed to the ground.<sup>5861</sup>

1350. The Trial Chamber received further evidence on these incidents from Vujić who testified that in the early morning hours of a day in late August 1992, he heard a strong explosion from the direction of Puharska after which he immediately drove to his command and from there, together with a driver, towards the mosque, which was where he was told the explosion had come from.<sup>5862</sup> Vujić's soldiers, who were on patrol that morning in the immediate vicinity of the mosque, were thrown to the ground as a result of the explosion.<sup>5863</sup> The event was a surprise to them and they had not noticed any suspicious activity around the mosque.<sup>5864</sup> Vujić found the mosque in ruins.<sup>5865</sup> In a house across the mosque, he found an injured Muslim man named Rasim Džafić, who was asking for help, and whom he drove to the hospital.<sup>5866</sup> Džafić, in 1997, gave a statement to the Bosnia-Herzegovina police, stating that in the night of 30 August 1992, he saw a light from his window resembling a lighter's flame and the glow of a cigarette in the mosque.<sup>5867</sup> He could see five to six people, whom he believed to have been 'Chetniks' who intended to destroy it.<sup>5868</sup> As he was looking for a way to flee, he heard whispering in a garden next to his house which led him to believe that there were 'Chetniks' providing security for the group in the mosque. Džafić also saw a truck parked about 50 metres from the mosque. As it was unsafe to flee, Džafić and his family stayed in their house. At about 1 a.m. the mosque exploded, seriously injuring Džafić who lost consciousness thereafter.<sup>5869</sup> Vujić testified that the mosque was completely

Gornja Puharska Mosque outside Prijedor Town

Briševo

1352. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to the attack on Briševo, which are reviewed in chapters 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.9 and 4.10.7.<sup>5875</sup>

would not hand in their weapons.<sup>5877</sup> During the attack, no shells fell on houses even though they were fired at random.<sup>5878</sup>

1354. Atlija also testified about a second attack on the village starting 24 July 1992.<sup>5879</sup> On 24 and 25 July 1992, 68 houses were set alight and burnt down and many others were damaged or destroyed by the shelling.<sup>5880</sup> On 29 July 1992, the Catholic church in Briševo was destroyed.<sup>5881</sup> Atlija testified that it was shelled and set on fire.<sup>5882</sup> In the months after the attack up until November 1992, small groups of ‘Chetniks’ returned to Briševo and destroyed the remaining houses.<sup>5883</sup> Out of the 120 houses in Briševo, not a single one was spared from destruction.<sup>5884</sup>

Kozarac, Hrnići, Jakupovići, Ljubija, Mujkanovići, Koncari, and Jaskići

1357. Witness RM-023 stated that during the attack on Ljubija in July 1992 many houses were burnt.<sup>5893</sup> Only a couple of shells landed and only Muslim houses were damaged.<sup>5894</sup> Serb soldiers forced Muslim villagers to put up a white flag on the windows as a sign of surrender.<sup>5895</sup> Serb soldiers collected money and jewellery from the women.<sup>5896</sup> The soldiers returned later on that day and robbed houses of all valuables.<sup>5897</sup> Serb soldiers would come back every day to plunder houses, mistreat women, and take their valuables.<sup>5898</sup> The witness saw a ring being ripped off a woman's finger along with her skin.<sup>5899</sup> Later that month, the witness and the witness's family fled on foot to Gomjenica.<sup>5900</sup> Atlija testified that all the religious property belonging to non-Serbs in the Ljubija commune was systematically destroyed during the war.<sup>5901</sup> In Ljubija, the church was set on fire and all traces of the mosque were removed.<sup>5902</sup> According to Riedlmayer, Serb forces torched and blew up the minaret of the Donja Ljubija and Brđani mosque in the last week of May 1992.<sup>5903</sup> The Donja Ljubija

mosque's roof is gone, its interior is gutted and open to the sky, its minaret appears to have been blown up and only a three-metre stump remains, and the mosque's perimeter walls appear to have been damaged by the falling minaret.<sup>5904</sup> The buildings adjacent to the Donja Ljubija mosque were in good condition.<sup>5905</sup>

1358. Senija Elkasović stated that her house in Jaskići was intact until around mid-July 1992 when the police 'expelled' her.<sup>5906</sup> The witness identified a photograph of her destroyed house dated 21 February 1996.<sup>5907</sup>

1359. Safet Tači testified that the attack on Hrnići, a village located two kilometres from Kozarac, started on a Saturday, around noon.<sup>5908</sup> The witness saw the shelling coming from the surrounding hills.<sup>5909</sup> Four shells fell around the mosque before it was finally hit by one of the shells.<sup>5910</sup> While the shelling of other villages continued, the shelling of Hrnići stopped.<sup>5911</sup> The shelling continued in other areas on Sunday during the day, but not during the night.<sup>5912</sup> In the evening, the witness only heard rifle shots.<sup>5913</sup>

1360. According to Riedlmayer, the Hrnići mosque was torched and its minaret was blown up in 1992.<sup>5914</sup> The Hrnići mosque's roof is gone, its interior is gutted and open to the sky, its interior walls are covered with soot and its minaret is destroyed by a blast which also blew away the north corner of the building.<sup>5915</sup>

1361. Armed Serbs looted, vandalised, and partly burned the Roman Catholic Parish church of St. Leopold Mandić, located in Ljubija, in July 1992.<sup>5916</sup> The buildings adjacent to the parish church in Ljubija were in good condition.<sup>5917</sup>

1362. Several other mosques were destroyed: the Mujkanovići, the Srednji Jakupovići, the Gornji Jakupovići mosques in 1992.<sup>5918</sup> The Mujkanovići mosque's minaret is gone, leaving only the base intact, the mosque's roof is destroyed, its interior is burnt out, and substantial sections of its perimeter walls were destroyed 'by blast'; the Srednji Jakupovići mosque is burned out, its roof is gone, its interior is gutted and open to the sky, and the upper part of the perimeter wall to the right of the entrance is partly destroyed; the Gornji Jakupovići mosque is burnt out, its roof is collapsed, its interior is gutted and open to the sky, its minaret was destroyed by a blast and toppled onto the mosque, and its perimeter walls remain standing up to the roofline.<sup>5919</sup>

1363. Of the 16 mosques in the Kozarac area before the attack, not a single one was left intact.<sup>5920</sup> By the end of the summer of 1992, the area of Kozarac was desolate, with many of the buildings which had survived the attack undamaged subsequently looted and destroyed.<sup>5921</sup> Eventually the few Serb inhabitants returned and Serbs displaced from other areas moved into Kozarac.<sup>5922</sup> In the attack on Kozarac, care was taken to avoid damage to Serb property; the Serbian Orthodox church, unlike the mosque, survived the attack and subsequent destruction.<sup>5923</sup> Similarly, Serb-dominated villages such as Rajkovići and Podgrade were either not shelled at all or only shelled accidentally.<sup>5924</sup>

Šurkovac

1365. Riedlmayer learned from an interview with a priest that parishioner Franjo Matijević was an eye-witness to the destruction and that he had reported that Serb forces had mined and destroyed the Roman Catholic parish church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus in Šurkovac on or around 26 December 1992.<sup>5926</sup> During his 2002 site visit, Riedlmayer observed that the church's twin steeples were totally destroyed by a blast, the entrance façade of the church had collapsed, and its roof had been partly destroyed.<sup>5927</sup> The adjacent buildings were lightly damaged.<sup>5928</sup>

Other religious buildings in Prijedor Municipality

These buildings were inter alia the following: Brežičani Old Mosque, Gomjenica Mosque, Čejreci Mosque, Ališići Mosque, Zecovi Mosque, Mahmuljini Mosque, Roman Catholic church of Saints Peter and Paul in Donja Ravska, Čela Mosque, Hrustići Mosque, Sivci mekteb, 1367. Throughout Prijedor Municipality, mosques and other religious institutions were targeted for destruction and the property of Muslims and Croats, worth billions of dinar, was taken.<sup>5930</sup> During the attacks on the municipality, the main non-Serb settlements were surrounded, bombarded and invaded; and during these attacks, care was taken not to damage the property of Serbs.<sup>5931</sup>

The Trial Chamber's findings

1368. With regard to the Defence's challenge of Riedlmayer's evidence, which itself is based on the expert report of Gojković, the Trial Chamber refers to its findings with regard to the reliability of Riedlmayer's and Gojković's evidence as set out in Appendix B.

Hambarine

1369. Based on the evidence earlier in this chapter, the Trial Chamber finds that on 21 May 1992, the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village of Hambarine was shelled, following which Bosnian-Serb forces issued an ultimatum on Radio Prijedor demanding, inter alia, the surrender of weapons held by non-Serbs and threatening continued shelling in case of non-compliance. The Trial Chamber finds that there was very little resistance from the local Muslim TO unit which tried to defend the village but retreated to the nearby forest upon the arrival of the VRS. On 23 May 1992, the VRS, including the 5th Kozarac Brigade, again shelled Hambarine indiscriminately, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups. During this second attack, houses were hit by mortar shells and burnt. On 24 May 1992, the perpetrators of the attack shelled and destroyed the old mosque of Hambarine.<sup>5932</sup> The Trial Chamber further finds that on 11 June 1992, several groups of men described as 'Chetniks', including Jevo Maseldzija and Mlado Jursić, set a café, a house, and a garage on fire in Hambarine. Considering that Hambarine was a predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village, the Trial Chamber finds that the owners were Bosnian Muslims.

Duračci Mosque, Brđani Mosque, Hadžići Mosque, Softići Mosque, the Donji Alići mekteb, the Kalate and Dera mosques, the Trnopolje, and the Matrići mekteb.

<sup>5932</sup> The Trial Chamber notes in this regard that the evidence of Nermin Karagić specifies that the mosque was fired upon during the shelling on Hambarine in 'late June or early July 1992'. While the Trial Chamber accepts that the witness did indeed recall that a shelling took place on the town of Hambarine, it will not rely on the timeframe specified by this witness, in light of the fact that he was unsure about the time frame during his testimony and given that the Trial Chamber received reliable evidence clearly specifying that the attack took place in mid-May 1992. The Trial Chamber further understands Witness RM-023's and Elvedin Nasić's evidence to refer to the old mosque in Hambarine.

Kozaruša

1370. In mid-1992, Bosnian-Serb forces set houses in the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village of Kozaruša on fire. Pursuant to instructions received from Radiša Ljesnjak, a member of the Crisis Staff, Radovan Zdjelar destroyed houses belonging to Bosnian Muslims in Kozaruša with his excavator. On 24 May 1992, Serb fighters in JNA uniforms with 'Tito caps', led by Savan Končar, a Serb from Kozaruša set the Kozaruša mosque as well as the Kozaruša mekteb on fire. Only Serb houses, for the most part untouched, remained in the village.

Kamičani

1371. Beginning around 24 to 26 May and continuing until early June 1992, the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, attacked the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village of Kamičani. The perpetrators of the attack torched all houses in the village and burnt down the mosque.

Biščani

1372. On 20 July 1992, the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, attacked the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village of Biščani. The perpetrators of the attack set Muslim houses on fire and burnt down the mosque.

Čarakovo

1373. On 23 July 1992, the VRS, as well as Velimir Đurik a.k.a. Velja, Zoran Babić a.k.a. Babin, and Dragomir Soldat a.k.a. Čiča, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups attacked the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village of Čarakovo.<sup>5933</sup> The perpetrators of the attack set houses on fire. During the attack, the mosque was burnt down and its minaret was blown up.

Kevljani

1374. In mid-1992, Bosnian-Serb forces attacked the predominantly Muslim village of Kevljani. The perpetrators of the attack set houses on fire and destroyed the new mosque with explosives and mines.

Rakovčani, Rizvanovići, Ravine

Prijedor Town, including Stari Grad Mosque, Čaršijka Mosque, Zagrad Mosque, Donja Puharska Mosque, and Catholic church

1376. On 30 May 1992, Bosnian-Serb forces attacked Prijedor Town, including its old part known as ‘Stari Grad’, which was mostly inhabited by Bosnian Muslims. The 5th Kozara Brigade, commanded by Pero Colić, the 43rd Motorized Brigade, commanded by Arsić and Zeljaja, and some members of the 6th Krajina Brigade participated in the attack. These brigades cooperated with the Prijedor police led by Simo Drljača, Dule Janković, Milutin Cadzo, and people from Bosanski Novi. The ‘Spare Ribs’ also took part in the attack. During the attack, a group of men, including Milenko Milić, a member of Milan Andžić’s paramilitary unit, his commander Momčilo Radanović a.k.a. Cigo, and Milorad Vokić, Simo Drljača’s personal bodyguard set the Čaršijka mosque on fire. The perpetrators of the attack also destroyed the old mosque in Stari Grad as well as the Zagrad mosque, in the Bereg part of town. Following its destruction, the Zagrad mosque's rubble, as well as the old Muslim gravestones in the adjacent cemetery were levelled by bulldozer and removed. In addition, during the attack on the town, the archive and library of the Medžlis of the Islamic Community were razed to the ground. The perpetrators of the attack burnt Muslim homes to the ground, but no Serb homes were damaged. Shortly after the conflict in Prijedor had started, Radovan Zdjelar destroyed Muslim homes in the old area of Prijedor Town and in the broader area of Prijedor with his excavator and pursuant to instructions received from Radiša Ljesnjak, a member of the Crisis Staff. In the summer of 1992, members of the Military Police Reconnaissance and Sabotage Company under the command of Mile Jović and Miloš Preradović demolished eight Serb cafés in Prijedor Town. At the end of August 1992, Serbs blew up the Donja Puharska mosque in Prijedor Town.<sup>5935</sup> This explosion destroyed three houses in the immediate vicinity of the mosque and damaged a dozen other houses. Furthermore, after Bosnian-Serb soldiers had planted explosives in the Catholic church in Prijedor Town, the church exploded, only a few minutes after the mosque's explosion. The ruins of these buildings were razed to the ground several days after the explosions.

<sup>5933</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that in addition, Ivo Atlja testified about earlier detonations and burning houses in Čarakovo one day after the attack on Hambarine, which according to Adjudicated Fact number 894 happened on 23 May 1992. Absent any evidence on the perpetrators or circumstances of the destruction, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this evidence.

<sup>5934</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that in addition, Ivo Atlja testified about earlier detonations and burning houses in Rizvanovići one day after the attack on Hambarine, which according to Adjudicated Fact number 894 happened on 23 May 1992. Absent any further evidence on the perpetrators or details of the destruction, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this evidence with regard to the time frame of May 1992.

Kozarac, Hrnići, Jakupovići, Ljubija, Mujkanovići, Koncari, and Jaskići

1377. Between 24 May and July 1992, the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary forces, attacked the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat villages of Kozarac and Ljubija and their surrounding areas, including Hrnići, Jakupovići, and Koncari. The attack started with heavy shelling followed by the arrival of infantry in the villages. Muslim villages and neighbourhoods were shelled indiscriminately, resulting in extensive destruction of houses in particular. After the shelling, armed soldiers entered Kozarac and Ljubija and torched houses. In Kozarac, the medical clinic was hit. The Mutnik mosque was also destroyed during the attack. Care was taken to avoid damage to Serb property and the Serb Orthodox church survived the attack and subsequent destruction. Predominately Serb villages, such as Rajkovići and Podgrade, were either not shelled at all or shelled only accidentally. Between 24 and 26 May, Serb infantry forces razed Koncari to the ground. During the attack on Hrnići, the mosque was hit by a shell. During the attack on Kozarac, large parts of the nearby village of Jakupovići were razed to the ground and the Srednji and Gornji mosques in Jakupovići were destroyed. During the attack on Ljubija in July 1992, many Muslim houses were damaged and the church and the mosque were set on fire.<sup>5936</sup> On or around 10 June 1992, Serb infantry destroyed the village of Mujkanovići and heavily damaged its mosque. By the end of the summer of 1992, the Kozarac area was desolate, and buildings which had survived the attack were subsequently destroyed.

<sup>5935</sup> The Chamber notes a minor discrepancy between Adjudicated Fact 1102, which refers to the date of destruction as having occurred on 28 August 1992 and the police statement of Rasim Džafić, who stated that the mosque was destroyed in the night of 30 August 1992. Given that both sources attest to the destruction of the mosque and that the difference between the dates of destruction is marginal, the Chamber finds that the mosque was destroyed at some time at the end of August 1992.

Briševo

1378. On 27 May 1992, the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, attacked the Bosnian-Croat village of Briševo. Adjudicated Fact 1093 states that over a hundred houses were destroyed during this first attack on Briševo while Ivo Atlija testified that no houses were destroyed on 27 May 1992. The Trial Chamber did not receive further evidence about destruction resulting from this first attack. Given that Ivo Atlija was an eye-witness to the events who gave a detailed and inherently consistent account of the two attacks on the village, the Trial Chamber considers Adjudicated Fact 1093 to be rebutted with respect to the destruction of houses during the first shelling of Briševo and therefore finds that no houses were destroyed on 27 May 1992. However, starting from 24 July 1992 onwards, the Bosnian-Serb military including soldiers in JNA uniforms with red ribbons around their arms, helmets and subara hats, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, launched another attack on Briševo during which they targeted, shelled, and torched houses belonging to Bosnian Croats indiscriminately. Sixty-eight houses burnt down while many others were damaged or destroyed by the shelling. The 5th Kozara Brigade and the 6th Krajina Brigade, led by Basara and Veljko Brajić, took part in the attack. During this second attack, the Catholic church was shelled and set on fire. In the months following the attack up until November 1992, small groups of men described as 'Chetniks' destroyed

Šurkovac Roman Catholic Parish Church

1379. On or around 26 December 1992, Serb forces mined and destroyed the Roman Catholic parish church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus in Šurkovac.

1380. Following the take-over of Prijedor Town and before the take-over of Kozarac, Serbs made continuous references on the radio to the destruction of mosques and all property belonging to Bosnian Muslims, whom they referred to as 'Balijas'. While the main non-Serb settlements were surrounded, bombarded, and invaded, care was taken not to damage the property of Serbs during these attacks.

1381. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Susići, Rajkovac, Gornji Puharska Mosque, a private house in Jaskići, and new mosque in Hambarine

1382. The Trial Chamber finds that the Bosnian-Muslim village of Susići, in the Kozarac area, was burnt around 10 June 1992. It also finds that the Rajkovac mosque was hit during the attack on Hambarine and that the Gornji Puharska mosque was destroyed sometime during the summer of 1992. Given the lack of evidence concerning the perpetrators of the destruction in Susići and of the Gornji Puharska mosque and the lack of evidence on the extent of the destruction, if any, of the Rajkovac mosque, the Trial Chamber will not further consider these incidents in relation to any counts of the Indictment. The Trial Chamber further received evidence on the destruction of a house, belonging to a Bosnian Muslim in the predominantly Muslim village of Jaskići, sometime after July 1992. Absent more precise evidence on the date and circumstances of this destruction, the Trial Chamber will not consider this incident further in relation to any count of the Indictment. With regard to the damage on the new mosque in Hambarine and an incident of 10 June 1992, during which a private house was set on fire in Hambarine, the Trial Chamber has not received any reliable evidence on the perpetrators and therefore will not consider these incidents further in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

1383. In addition, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Riedlmayer on the destruction of a number of other religious buildings in Prijedor Municipality. As explained in Appendix B, the Trial Chamber will not rely on Riedlmayer's evidence with regard to the date and perpetrators of these destructions. Thus, in the absence of additional evidence on the date and perpetrators, the Trial Chamber will not consider these incidents further in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

4.10.4 Appropriation or plunder of property

1384. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the appropriation or plunder of property during and after take-overs, during arrests and detentions, and during or after deportations or forcible transfers in Prijedor Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>5937</sup> The Trial Chamber has taken judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the alleged plunder in Prijedor Municipality.<sup>5938</sup> It further received evidence from Witness RM-074, a Bosnian Muslim from Prijedor Municipality;<sup>5939</sup> Idriz Merdžanić, a Bosnian-Muslim doctor from Kreševo, Sarajevo Municipality;<sup>5940</sup> and Mevludin Sejmenović, the Vice-President of the SDA in Prijedor from 1990 to 1992,<sup>5941</sup> whose evidence is reviewed in chapter 4.10.7, and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>5942</sup> It also received evidence from Nusret Sivac, a Bosnian-Muslim journalist for TV Sarajevo who covered events in Prijedor and surrounding municipalities;<sup>5943</sup> Ivo Atlija, a Croat from the Croat village of Briševo in Prijedor Municipality;<sup>5944</sup> Senija Elkasović, Witness RM-026, Elvedin

Plunder in villages in Prijedor Municipality

1385. In chapter 4.10.3, the Trial Chamber reviewed evidence that Bosnian-Serb forces destroyed the Bosnian-Muslim villages of Bišćani, Kozaruša, Kamičani, Kevljani, Rakovčani, Čarakovo, and Rizvanovići in Prijedor Municipality in mid-1992, that the houses were set on fire and looted, and that the VRS loaded their trucks with goods belonging to non-Serbs.<sup>5947</sup> In chapter 4.10.7, the Trial Chamber reviewed evidence that the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, attacked Bišćani, Kamičani, Čarakovo, and Ljubija between May and July 1992. In chapters 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.6 and 4.10.3, the Trial Chamber also reviewed evidence that Bišćani was attacked on 20 July by the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups. With regard to the attack on Kamičani, it also reviewed evidence in chapters 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.3 and 4.10.3 that beginning around 24 to 26 May and continuing until early June 1992, the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, attacked the village. 4.10.2 Schedules A.6.2 and A.6.5 that on 23 July 1992, the village was attacked by the VRS as well as Velimir Đurik a.k.a Velja, Zoran Babić a.k.a Babin, and Dragomir Soldat a.k.a Čiča, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups. In chapters 4.10.2 Schedules A.6.5 and A.6.6, it reviewed evidence that Rakovčani and Rizvanovići were attacked on 20 July 1992 by Bosnian-Serb forces, consisting of the military and police. After the fall of Prijedor in 1992, Witness RM-023 saw tanks and armoured vehicles, followed by trucks, going from house to house and taking out appliances and goods in the area between Prijedor and Ljubija.<sup>5948</sup> Witness RM-074 stated that Serb soldiers looted houses in Čarakovo in June 1992, saying that the tractors, cars, and cattle they confiscated were required for army duty.<sup>5949</sup> The witness added that at the end of July 1992, Serbs looted anything of value from the village, including tractors, petrol, farming equipment, bicycles, videos, televisions, and other household goods.<sup>5950</sup>

1386. With regard to Hambarine, Elvedin Nasić stated that Serb soldiers robbed the houses of all valuable items and took the cars and tractors after the attack on 22 May 1992.<sup>5951</sup> According to the witness, anything that was worth something was taken.<sup>5952</sup> On 9 June 1992, Witness RM-026 saw four armed men wearing JNA uniforms stepping out of a four-ton Zastava 640 truck in Hambarine, breaking the windows of a store and café owned by a relative, taking possession of the goods inside, and breaking whatever they could not take with them.<sup>5953</sup> The witness was told that the men were from Ljeskare and he recognized Duro and Tijo Vukić among them.<sup>5954</sup> The witness later heard that Duro Vukić, Tijo Vukić, Mićo Vasilević, and Vasilević's three sons Neso, Bajo, and Pedo, ransacked the area.<sup>5955</sup>

1387. With regard to Kozarac and surrounding villages, soldiers looted Kozarac town after it had been cleansed of its inhabitants.<sup>5956</sup> Idriz Merdžanić testified that he observed this looting by Serb soldiers on 26 May 1992.<sup>5957</sup> Jusuf Arifagić stated that during the time he stayed in the forest after the attack of the town at the end of May

1992, he saw many Serb soldiers looting houses and property around Brđani village.<sup>5958</sup> He recognized Zoran Žigić a.k.a. Ziga, who was dressed in a camouflage uniform, wearing a red beret, and carrying an automatic weapon, pistol, knife, and a hand grenade.<sup>5959</sup> He also observed that Serbs were ‘plundering’ the villages on the outskirts of Kozarac. On one occasion, he saw the son of Milenko Žigić and others going from house to house in Softići village and taking cars, tractors, furniture, and electrical goods. If a car or tractor did not start they would blow it up.<sup>5960</sup> Witness RM-017 stated that sometime between May and August 1992, Slavko Puhalić took possession of the car of a Bosnian-Muslim man.<sup>5961</sup> Puhalić made that man’s brother sign a document declaring that the car was ‘voluntarily’ left with Puhalić for the latter to use it.<sup>5962</sup> Puhalić used the car until at least 5 August 1992, presumably to pick up people from other camps and bring them to Omarska camp.<sup>5963</sup> Puhalić also took three trucks from the man’s father and brother in a similar manner.<sup>5964</sup>

1388. On 27 May 1992, during the attack on Briševo soldiers looted various items from the houses of the town.<sup>5965</sup> Ivo Atlija testified that on 25 July 1992, while hiding during an attack on the village, he saw ‘Četnik’ groups and regular soldiers, who either had a star on their helmets or a Serb tri-coloured patch, i.e. red, blue, and white, carrying looted property in cars, small trucks, and carts.<sup>5966</sup> Looted property included cars, agricultural equipment including tractors, and electronic equipment such as televisions and refrigerators.<sup>5967</sup> The ‘Četnik’ groups and regular soldiers were all involved in the looting.<sup>5968</sup> After the initial attack, small groups of ‘Četniks’, bearing distinct insignia and led by Draško Topić, returned to Briševo on a daily basis to loot until November 1992.<sup>5969</sup> They also took cattle.<sup>5970</sup>

1390. Witness RM-038 testified that on 21 July 1992, soldiers entered the village of Čemernica and looted property from the houses.<sup>5973</sup> The soldiers would come in small groups in private cars and fill their cars, leave, and come back again to get more.<sup>5974</sup> Looted property included television sets, gold, and other valuables.<sup>5975</sup> When the witness returned to his house on 24 July 1992, door and window frames had been ripped off and all valuables had been taken.<sup>5976</sup>

Plunder at detention centres in Prijedor Municipality

1392. With regard to Omarska camp, Nusret Sivac testified that during his detention there from 20 June 1992 to 7 August 1992, he observed that Milorad Tadić was tasked with calling out the names of wealthy and distinguished people from Prijedor after which he took them somewhere and pressed them to give him money.<sup>5980</sup> He and a group of guards would then take them somewhere to collect or find the money.<sup>5981</sup> With regard to this camp, the Trial Chamber has also considered the evidence of Witness RM-017 and Witness RM-026, reviewed in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.2.

Witness RM-060 stated that on 20 July 1992 the men living in Bišćani were bussed to Trnopolje camp, while the women were permitted to stay in Bišćani.<sup>5984</sup> Upon arrival at the camp, the men were searched by Serb soldiers<sup>5985</sup> and they had to hand over their valuables.<sup>5986</sup>

1394. On 21 August 1992, while Witness RM-060 and other detainees from Trnopolje camp were bussed in the direction of Banja Luka, one guard on the bus ordered the witness to collect from the men on the bus all of their bank notes and valuables, i.e. watches, gold, and jewellery.<sup>5987</sup> Later that day, after the bus had stopped near a creek, a person wearing a police uniform told the men to put all their valuables in a plastic bag.<sup>5988</sup> The bag was passed around and eventually returned to the man in police uniform.<sup>5989</sup> With regard to the treatment of detainees leaving Trnopolje camp, the Trial Chamber has also considered the evidence of Idriz Merdžanić, Witness RM-074, Nusret Sivac, Jusuf Arifagić, Senija Elkasović, Elvedin Nasić, and Witness RM-023 in chapters 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.5 and 4.10.7.

1395. With regard to Keraterm camp, the Trial Chamber has considered the evidence of Jusuf Arifagić and Witness RM-033, reviewed in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.3.

The Trial Chamber's findings

1396. Based on the above, the Trial Chamber finds that in mid-1992, during the attacks on the villages of Bišćani, Kozaruša, Kamičani, Kevljani, Rakovčani, Čarakovo, and Rizvanovići, all located in Prijedor Municipality, members of the VRS looted houses belonging to non-Serbs. Considering that these villages were Bosnian Muslim, the Trial Chamber finds that the looted property belonged to the Bosnian-Muslim inhabitants of the villages. Looted goods included tractors, cars, cattle, farming equipment, and household goods.

1397. With regard to Hambarine, the Trial Chamber recalls its finding set out in chapter 4.10.3 that on 21 May 1992, Hambarine was shelled by Bosnian-Serb forces and that on 23 May 1992, the VRS, including the 5th Kozara Brigade, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, again shelled Hambarine. The Trial Chamber finds those involved in the attack of Hambarine looted property, including valuables, cars, and tractors after it was attacked on 21 May 1992. Considering that Hambarine was a predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village, the Trial Chamber finds that the property looted belonged to the Bosnian-Muslim inhabitants of the village. Additionally, the Trial Chamber finds that on 9 June 1992, four armed men wearing JNA uniforms looted goods from a café in Hambarine that was owned by a Bosnian Muslim.

1398. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.1 that between 24 until around 26 May 1992, VRS units of the Banja Luka Corps, commanded by Talić, including the 343rd Mechanised Brigade, later known as the 43rd Motorized Brigade commanded by Vladimir Arsić together with Radmilo Zeljaja, described as the commander of the 'Prijeđor army', attacked Kozarac. It further recalls that in addition, Duško Tadić, Andžić's paramilitaries, members of the 5th Kozara Brigade, the 6th Krajina Brigade commanded by Branko Basara including a platoon under the command of Macola, as well as the Crni Đorđe intervention platoon, a scouts platoon and a police platoon and the Serb police from Prijeđor, headed by Simo Drljača, participated in the attack. The Trial Chamber finds that those involved in the attack on Kozarac, looted houses in and around Kozarac after it was attacked at the end of May 1992. Considering that Kozarac was a predominantly Bosnian-Muslim town, the Trial Chamber finds that some, if not all of the property looted belonged to the Bosnian-Muslim inhabitants of the town. They took cars, tractors, furniture, and electrical goods.

1399. With respect to the incident involving a Bosnian-Muslim man's car, the Trial Chamber finds that sometime between the end of May and August 1992, Slavko Puhalić took the man's car in Prijeđor Municipality and made the brother of that man sign a document declaring that the car was voluntarily left to Puhalić. During the same time-period, Puhalić also took three trucks that belonged to the man's father and brother. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 3.1.2 that Puhalić was a member of the VRS 43rd Motorised Brigade.

1400. With regard to Briševo village, the Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.10.3 that on 27 May 1992, the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, attacked the village. The Trial Chamber finds that those involved in this first attack on Briševo, looted houses. The Trial Chamber further recalls its finding in chapter 4.10.3 that starting from 24 July onwards, the Bosnian-Serb military, including the 5th Kozarac Brigade and the 6th Krajina Brigade, led by Branko Basara and Veljko Brajić, soldiers in JNA uniforms with red ribbons around their arms, helmets, and subara hats, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups, launched a second attack on Briševo. The Trial Chamber finds that on 25 July 1992, during the second attack on the village, those involved in the second attack looted property, including cars, agricultural equipment, and electronic equipment. After the attack on 25 July until at least November 1992, small groups of ‘Chetniks’ led by Draško Topić returned to Briševo on a daily basis to loot. Considering that Briševo was inhabited mainly by Bosnian Croats, the Trial Chamber finds that the property looted belonged to the Bosnian-Croat inhabitants of the village.

1401. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.10.3 that on 30 May 1992, Bosnian-Serb forces attacked Prijedor Town and that the following groups and persons were involved in the attack: the 5th Kozara Brigade, commanded by Pero Colić, the 43rd Motorized Brigade, commanded by Arsić and Zeljaja, some members of the 6th Krajina Brigade, the Prijedor police led by Simo Drljača, Dule Janković, Milutin Cadzo, people from Bosanski Novi, the ‘Spare Ribs’, a group of men, including Milenko Milić, a member of Milan Andžić’s paramilitary unit, his commander Momčilo Radanović a.k.a. Cigo, and Milorad Vokić, Simo Drljača’s personal bodyguard. The Trial Chamber finds that on 30 May 1992, those involved in the attack took goods from apartments owned by Bosnian Muslims in Prijedor Town.

1402. In relation to Čemernica village, the Trial Chamber finds that after entering the village on 21 July 1992, sometime between 21 and 24 July 1992, soldiers repeatedly came in small groups by car to take household appliances and valuables from houses. Considering that Čemernica was exclusively inhabited by Bosnian Muslims, the Trial Chamber finds that the property taken belonged to the Bosnian-Muslim inhabitants of the village.

1403. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.10.3 that between 24 May and July 1992, the VRS, acting jointly with the police and paramilitary forces, attacked

Ljubija. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that in July 1992, after the attack on Ljubija, over the course of several days those involved in the attack took money and jewellery from Bosnian-Muslim women and valuables from Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat houses in the village.

1404. Furthermore, the Trial Chamber finds that Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat<sup>5990</sup> villagers forced to leave Prijedor Municipality had to sign over their property to either the ARK or the Bosnian-Serb Republic pursuant to a law passed by the Crisis Staff. Real property certificates were issued initially in order to justify the confiscations, but this practice was later discontinued.

1405. In relation to Omarska camp, the Trial Chamber finds that between May and August 1992, during their detention, detainees in the camp were forced to hand over valuables and money to Serb guards, the police, as found in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.2.

1406. In relation to Keraterm camp, the Trial Chamber finds that on 14 June 1992, Serb soldiers under the command of Draze Mitrović forced a group of 43 men that had been arrested to hand over money and valuables as they were being walked in the direction of Omarska along the Prijedor-Banja Luka highway, before being transferred to the camp. The Trial Chamber also finds that on 14 July 1992, upon arrival at Keraterm camp two Bosnian-Muslim women and a number of men were forced to remove all of their jewellery and valuables by Duško Sikirica, the camp commander of Keraterm.

1407. In relation to Trnopolje camp, the Trial Chamber finds that on 26 May 1992, men from Kuruzović's unit took valuables, cash, and personal effects from detainees held in the camp.<sup>5991</sup> On 20 July 1992, Serb soldiers forced newly arrived detainees to hand over their valuables. Since this happened at the camp, the Trial Chamber finds that the Serb soldiers were guards at Trnopolje camp, members of the TO and VRS as found in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.4.

<sup>5990</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that the evidence refers to non-Serbs. Considering that the population of Prijedor Municipality was largely composed of Bosnian Serbs, Bosnian Muslims, and Bosnian Croats (see P2788 (Ewa Tabeau, Demography report, Annex B), p. 25), the Trial Chamber understands that non-Serbs, for the purposes of Prijedor Municipality, refers to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.

<sup>5991</sup> Witness RM-709 testified that detainees were held at the hall in the old school and in the community hall of Trnopolje. Adjudicated Fact 1062 states that Trnopolje camp consisted of a former school building and what had been a municipal centre. Thus, the Trial Chamber considers that Witness RM-709 was in fact referring to detainees held at Trnopolje camp.

1408. The Trial Chamber further finds that on several occasions between late May and September 1992, detainees from Trnopolje and Omarska camps were allowed to leave the municipality in bus convoys, on the condition that they handed over their money and valuables to the camp guards, members of the police, TO, and VRS as found in chapter 4.10.2 Schedules C.15.2 and C.15.4, or signed a form stating that they voluntarily transferred all of their real and personal property to the Serb authorities or the Serbs. During this same period, while being bussed from Trnopolje and Omarska camps, detainees were forced to hand over money and valuables to the guards at both camps, to Serb soldiers, to a man wearing a police uniform, to Serb soldiers from the Special Task Force, and to the military police.

1409. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1410. With regard to several incidents concerning mosques and a church, the Trial Chamber finds that the Čaršijska mosque located in Prijedor Town, the Ćela mosque, the Hadžići mosque, and the Roman Catholic parish church of St. Leopold Mandić located in Ljubija were looted. The Trial Chamber notes that it did not receive evidence concerning the date on which the Hadžići mosque was looted or on the identity or affiliation of the perpetrators. As explained in Appendix B, the Trial Chamber will not rely on evidence provided by Riedlmayer if it was not specified how his sources had obtained their information or the methods they had used to compile the written information he ultimately relied on. It will therefore not rely on his evidence on alleged perpetrators and dates. Consequently, the Trial Chamber is unable to establish the date and perpetrators of the looting of the Čaršijska, Ćela, and Hadžići mosques or of the Roman Catholic parish church of St Leopold Mandić. Therefore, it will not further consider these incidents in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

4.10.5 Forced labour and human shields

1411. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Prijedor Municipality to forced labour and using them as human shields between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>5992</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this allegation, which are set out in chapters 4.10.1 Schedules A.6.5 and B.13.2 and 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.2. It also received evidence from Witness RM-704, Witness RM-038, Witness RM-026, Nermin Karagić, Nusret Sivac, Azra Blažević, Safet Tači, Jusuf Arifagić, and Witness RM-047. All the mentioned witnesses are Bosnian Muslims from Prijedor Municipality. The Trial Chamber finds this evidence to be consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>5993</sup> The Trial Chamber received further evidence from Witness RM-384, a driver mobilised into the JNA on 5 May 1992;<sup>5994</sup> Witness RM-383, a Serb truck driver who lived in Prijedor;<sup>5995</sup> Witness RM-385, a Serb from Prijedor;<sup>5996</sup> Witness RM-023, a Muslim residing in Prijedor Municipality in 1991 and 1992;<sup>5997</sup> as well as Mevludin Sejmenović, the Vice President of the SDA in Prijedor from 1990-1992.<sup>5998</sup> The Adjudicated Facts and evidence deal with forced labour incidents in Omarska, Trnopolje and Keraterm camps, as well as elsewhere in Prijedor Municipality.

1412. With regard to the alleged forced labour in Prijedor following Schedule Incidents A.6.5 and A.6.6, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact no. 904, and recalls the evidence of Witness RM-038, Witness RM-383, Witness RM-384 and Witness RM-704, reviewed in chapter 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.5.

1413. With regard to the alleged forced labour in Prijedor following Scheduled Incident A.6.8, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts nos 912 and 913, and recalls the evidence of Nermin Karagić reviewed in chapter 4.10.1 Schedule A.6.8 that detainees at the Ljubija football stadium were ordered to load dead bodies onto a bus.

1414. With regard to the alleged forced labour in Omarska camp, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts nos 946, 947, 1012, 1015, and 1016, and recalls the evidence of Witness RM-026, reviewed in chapters 4.10.1 Schedule B.13.2 and 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.2 that detainees were forced to clean up the rooms after the beatings in the white house at Omarska camp, and to load dead bodies onto trucks.

1415. With regard to the alleged forced labour in Trnopolje camp, Azra Blažević stated that detainees were taken out of Trnopolje camp and forced to dig graves and bury bodies in the surrounding area of the camp.<sup>5999</sup> Safet Tači testified that the detainees in Trnopolje were often called for forced labour, but the witness never participated.<sup>6000</sup> The Trial Chamber also recalls the evidence of Azra Blažević, Nusret Sivac, Witness RM-047, and Mevludin Sejmenović, reviewed in chapters 4.10.1 Schedule B.13.5 and 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.4.

1416. With regard to the alleged forced labour in Keraterm camp, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts nos 1053 and 1054, and recalls the evidence of Jusuf Arifagić, Witness RM-023, Safet Tači, and Witness RM-385, reviewed in chapter 4.10.1 Schedule B.13.1.

1417. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that in July 1992, members of the VRS ordered Bosnian Muslims, including Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat detainees from the Ljubija stadium to collect approximately 300 to 400 corpses in Prijedor Municipality, which they loaded onto buses and military trucks.

1418. The Trial Chamber also finds that some time between 25 May and late August 1992, guards, the police as found in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.2, made detainees in Omarska camp load and unload corpses onto and from trucks, as well as clean the white and red houses after detainees were beaten there. In relation to the ethnicity of the detainees at Omarska camp, the Trial Chamber further found in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule

C.15.2 that approximately 3,300 Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were detained at Omarska, as well as a few Bosnian Serbs.

1419. The Trial Chamber also finds that from mid-July 1992, guards selected Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat detainees at Trnopolje camp, including women and children, to perform labour, including the burial of corpses in the area surrounding the camp, and around 10 August 1992, some detainees were ordered by guards to remove wire from the fencing around the camp. With regard to the affiliation of the guards, the Trial Chamber found in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.4 that Trnopolje camp was initially secured by members of the Prijedor TO and soon afterwards by VRS soldiers.

1420. The Trial Chamber further finds that on or around 25 July 1992, guards, members of the SJB and VRS as found in chapter 4.10.2 Schedule C.15.3, made detainees in Keraterm camp load and unload corpses onto a truck, clean Room 3 and the surrounding area where detainees were murdered, as well as wash the truck in which the corpses were being transported. In respect of the ethnicity of Keraterm camp detainees, the Trial Chamber found in chapter 4.10.1 Schedule B.13.1 that they were primarily Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, with a small number of Albanians and at least one Bosnian Serb.

1421. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.10.6 Imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures

1422. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures on Bosnian Muslims and/or Bosnian Croats in Prijedor Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>6001</sup> The Defence argued that all measures taken by both VRS and civilian authorities were not discriminatory as they were enacted for legitimate and security reasons.<sup>6002</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this charge.<sup>6003</sup> Further, it received evidence from witnesses Sead Sučić, a 1423. Upon its formation in May 1992, the Prijedor Crisis Staff implemented restrictive measures against non-Serbs, who were fired from their jobs, and whose children were barred from attending primary and secondary schools.<sup>6014</sup> Non-Serbs no longer qualified for leadership positions in Prijedor and were eventually forced to leave almost all positions.<sup>6015</sup> Mevludin Sejmenović testified that shortly after the take-over of Prijedor, non-Serbs were denied access to banks and to the municipal building.<sup>6016</sup> The conclusions of the ARK Crisis Staff of 11 May 1992 were that classes in all elementary and secondary schools were to finish by 20 May 1992, and that '[o]nly persons who are absolutely loyal to the Serbian Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina can be placed in the management positions in enterprises'.<sup>6017</sup> On 22 June 1992, the ARK Crisis Staff decided that 'all executive posts, posts involving a likely flow of information, posts involving the protection of public property, that is, all posts of importance to the functioning of the economy may only be held by personnel of Serbian nationality'.<sup>6018</sup> On 2 July 1992, the Prijedor Crisis Staff ordered all organs, enterprises and communities to terminate the employment of workers who had participated in the armed rebellion, and who were in Omarska and Keraterm. Information about those workers was to be submitted by the Prijedor SJB. The SJB and the competent Municipal Inspection Service were to be responsible for the execution of the order.<sup>6019</sup>

1424. The control over movement of non-Serbs in Prijedor Municipality extended as far as private residences through the use of registers in which Muslims and Croats had to record the movements of individuals within apartment buildings and daily searches were conducted in almost every apartment inhabited by Muslims and Croats.<sup>6020</sup>

1425. Witness RM-065 stated that from late May 1992, Serbs forced Muslim inhabitants to register on the ground floor before entering their apartment buildings in Prijedor and every evening give the list to a Serb living in the building.<sup>6021</sup> Additional restrictions suffered by non-Serbs included the blocking of telephone lines and the partial shut-down of electricity.<sup>6022</sup> After the take-over of Prijedor, non-Serbs were prevented from travelling outside the municipality, and within the municipality travel was severely restricted by means of a curfew and checkpoints.<sup>6023</sup> Nusret Sivac specified that between 20 April 1992 and 20 May 1992, the Prijedor Crisis Staff issued directives, ultimatums, and instructions to Prijedor Municipality inhabitants: a curfew was imposed, media was controlled, there was a general call-up for the Serb population, non-Serbs had to hand over their weapons, all economic activity had to cease by 20 May and workers were to go home, and all schools and kindergartens had to close before 20 May.<sup>6024</sup> Idriz Merdžanić testified that in April 1992, a Serb military unit set up checkpoints in Prijedor Town.<sup>6025</sup> Elvedin Nasić stated that Serbs set up checkpoints in Prijedor Town after 31 May 1992.<sup>6026</sup> Sead Sušić stated that in early July 1992, there was a checkpoint between Čarakovo and Tukovi, manned by police wearing an insignia saying 'Srpska Krajina'.<sup>6027</sup> On 26 June 1992, another checkpoint was established at the Žeger bridge by Janjo Stijepić who wore an SMB uniform.<sup>6028</sup> Inhabitants needed to carry papers to get through the checkpoints.<sup>6029</sup> Witness RM-023 had to show an identity card to pass through a checkpoint on the way to Prijedor.<sup>6030</sup>

1426. After the take-over of Prijedor tension developed between the new Serb authorities and Kozarac, which contained a large concentration of the Muslim population of the Prijedor Municipality: approximately 27,000 non-Serb individuals lived in the larger Kozarac area and of the 4,000 inhabitants of Kozarac town, 90 per cent were Muslim.<sup>6031</sup> As a result of this tension ethnically mixed checkpoints were supplemented with, and eventually replaced by, Serb checkpoints which were erected in various locations throughout the Kozarac area, as well as unofficial guard posts established by armed Muslim citizens.<sup>6032</sup> On 22 May 1992, telephone lines were disconnected and a blockade of Kozarac was instituted, rendering movement into and out of Kozarac extremely difficult.<sup>6033</sup> An ultimatum was addressed to the TO in Kozarac, requiring the Kozarac TO and police to pledge their loyalty and recognise their subordination to the new authorities in Srpska Prijedor Municipality, as well as to surrender all weapons.<sup>6034</sup>

1427. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that upon its formation in May 1992, from 12 May 1992 onwards members of the Prijedor Crisis Staff dismissed Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the municipality.<sup>6035</sup> Between the end of May and end of June 1992, Serbs limited the freedom of movement of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in the municipality by requiring them to register their movements. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment. Although the Adjudicated Facts and the evidence indicate that the freedom of movement in the municipality was additionally restricted by curfew and checkpoints, the Trial Chamber is not convinced that these measures were directed only against non-Serbs. In this respect, the Trial Chamber has in particular considered D422 and the evidence of Nusret Sivac, which appears to be referring to a general curfew. The Trial Chamber will not consider this further.

1428. According to Adjudicated Fact 929, the Prijedor Crisis Staff upon its formation in May 1992 implemented measures to bar Bosnian-Croat and Bosnian-Muslim children from attending primary and secondary schools. However, the Trial Chamber has also received evidence that all elementary and secondary schools were to close by 20 May 1992 and that enrolment in Krajina secondary schools was to be postponed until the beginning of August. The Trial Chamber will therefore not consider this incident further.

1429. With regard to the disconnection of telephone lines, shut-down of electricity, and denial of access to the municipal building and banks, the Trial Chamber considers that there is insufficient evidence as to who imposed these measures. With regard to the denial of access to the municipal building and banks the Trial Chamber further considers that since the evidence suggests that this was done shortly after the takeover of Prijedor around late April 1992, this does not fall within the temporal scope of the Indictment in relation to Count 3. The Trial Chamber will therefore not consider these incidents further.

<sup>6035</sup> This finding is based on Adjudicated Facts and evidence that referred to non-Serbs. Considering that the population of Prijedor Municipality was predominantly Bosnian Muslim, Bosnian Serb, and Bosnian-Croat (see Adjudicated Facts I, no. 839), the Trial Chamber understands that non-Serbs for the purposes for Prijedor Municipality refers to Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.

4.10.7 Forcible transfer and deportation

1430. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the forcible transfer and deportation of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Prijedor Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>6036</sup> The forcible transfers and deportations were implemented by the imposition of restrictive and discriminatory measures, arbitrary arrest and detention; harassment; torture; rape and other acts of sexual violence; killing; the destruction of houses, cultural monuments, and sacred sites; and the threat of further such acts - all targeting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. Others were physically driven out.<sup>6037</sup> The Defence argued that many residents had left Prijedor Municipality at the end of 1991, before the outbreak of the conflict, resulting in a noticeable decrease of the Bosnian-Muslim population in Prijedor Municipality.<sup>6038</sup> The Defence argued that the reasons for the shift in the ethnic makeup of the Prijedor area were twofold: (i) a large part of the Bosnian-Muslim population voluntarily left the municipality in order to get away from the conflict and violence; and (ii) the region of Prijedor was overwhelmed by an influx of Bosnian-Serb refugees who had chosen to relocate to Prijedor from Croatia and other areas in Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>6039</sup> The Defence also argued that the Bosnian-Serb authorities even tried to stop the departure of non-Serbs by offering temporary accommodation in places where the houses were in better condition.<sup>6040</sup>

Events prior to 12 May 1992

1432. Before the takeover on 30 April 1992, Prijedor Municipality was ethnically a relatively mixed area: in 1991 Muslims were the majority in the municipality; out of a total population of 112,000, 49,700 (44 per cent) were Muslims and about 40,000 (42.5 per cent) Serbs, with the remainder made up of Croats (5.6 per cent), Yugoslavs (5.7 per cent), and others (2.2 per cent).<sup>6052</sup>

1434. In the night of 29 to 30 April 1992, employees of the SJB and reserve police gathered in Čirkin Polje, part of the town of Prijedor.<sup>6057</sup> Only Serbs were present and some of them were wearing military uniforms.<sup>6058</sup> The actual takeover was conducted in the early hours of the morning when armed Serbs took up positions at checkpoints all over Prijedor, with soldiers and snipers on the roofs of the main buildings.<sup>6059</sup> JNA soldiers, wearing a variety of uniforms, occupied all of the prominent institutions such as the radio station, medical centre, and bank.<sup>6060</sup> The JNA soldiers entered buildings, declared that they had taken power and announced their decision to rename opština Prijedor ‘Srpska opština Prijedor’.<sup>6061</sup> Witness RM-065 stated that on the morning of 30 April, on his way to work, he saw a Serbian flag on the Municipal Assembly building.<sup>6062</sup> The witness recognised soldiers at Radio Prijedor as Serbs from Prijedor and some from surrounding villages.<sup>6063</sup> He also recognized Milomir Stakić, Vice-President of the Prijedor Municipal Assembly, among the soldiers.<sup>6064</sup> Calls were also made at that time for the surrender of weapons which, although addressed to the population at large, were only enforced with respect to Muslims and Croats, most of whom complied out of fear of punishment.<sup>6065</sup> A declaration on the takeover prepared by the SDS was read out on Radio Prijedor the day after the takeover and was repeated throughout the day.<sup>6066</sup> Witness RM-065 stated that the declaration confirmed that the Serbs would not put their army in Muslim areas, but would instead control the areas they considered to be theirs, as well as all the important buildings in Prijedor.<sup>6067</sup> After the takeover of the town of Prijedor and before the attack on Kozarac, continuous references were made by Serbs on the police radio about destroying mosques and everything that belonged to the ‘balijas’, as well as the need to destroy the ‘balijas’ themselves.<sup>6068</sup> Witness RM-065 stated that in the first five or six days after the takeover, he saw that some of the soldiers in town wore regular JNA uniforms, with the five-pointed Yugoslav star. The witness saw ‘Knindza’ and ‘Marticevci’ soldiers with red berets. He observed insignia which he had not seen before.<sup>6069</sup> With regard to Hambarine, by May 1992, many of the inhabitants had already fled to other Muslim or Croat-dominated areas, heading north to other villages or south to a forested area which was shelled.<sup>6070</sup>

Events after 12 May 1992

1435. Between May and July 1992, the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat inhabited areas and villages of Hambarine, Kozarac, Kamičani, Biščani, Čarakovo, Briševo, and Ljubija were attacked by the VRS acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups.<sup>6071</sup> These attacks mostly started after the expiry of a deadline for non-Serbs to surrender their weapons.<sup>6072</sup> Sometimes an incident caused by non-Serbs would be used as a pretext.<sup>6073</sup> Attacks were conducted by intensive shelling with heavy army weaponry. Houses in Muslim villages and neighbourhoods were targeted and shelled indiscriminately, resulting in extensive destruction and civilian casualties. Many of the survivors fled the villages and sought shelter in the surrounding forests.<sup>6074</sup> After the shelling, armed soldiers entered the villages, looted and torched houses, and expelled or killed some of the villagers who remained behind.<sup>6075</sup> In some instances, women were raped.<sup>6076</sup> The Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat population of Prijedor municipality was not able to set up any efficient resistance to these armed attacks by the Bosnian-Serb army acting jointly with the police and paramilitary groups.<sup>6077</sup> They were not adequately organised and they did not have sufficient weapons with which they could oppose the attackers.<sup>6078</sup>

1436. Witness RM-065 stated that the attack on Hambarine began in the evening of 22 May 1992.<sup>6079</sup> Just before the start of the attack, an announcement was made on Radio Prijedor saying that a Serb had been killed in Hambarine, following an altercation with Muslim guards concerning a Serb patrol.<sup>6080</sup> The witness stated that in almost all Muslim villages just before an attack a Serb soldier would be found dead, and suggested that this provided a justification for the attack.<sup>6081</sup> Elvedin Nasić stated that he and the rest of the local Muslim TO unit tried to evacuate the villagers and to defend the village.<sup>6082</sup> With the arrival of Serb infantry and tanks, however, the TO abandoned the village and retreated to the forest.<sup>6083</sup> Witness RM-026 stated that all houses of the village as well as the two mosques were shelled.<sup>6084</sup> The homes located in the centre of the village were damaged the most. After the shelling stopped, the witness heard shooting from the checkpoints. When people started to withdraw from the main checkpoint towards the other one, the witness and his family left the village along with other villagers.<sup>6085</sup> Witness RM-065 stated that after the attack on Hambarine, open ‘propaganda’ against Muslims and Croats was transmitted, often using derogatory terms to characterise Muslims.<sup>6086</sup> A number of the residents of Hambarine eventually returned to the village, by then under Serb control.<sup>6087</sup> The return of residents was only temporary because on 20 July 1992 the last major cleansing in the municipality occurred with the removal of approximately 20,000 non-Serbs in Hambarine and nearby Ljubija.<sup>6088</sup>

1437. Elvedin Nasić stated that there were around 500 ‘civilians’ hiding in the forest between 22 May 1992 and 21 July 1992.<sup>6089</sup> Women and children stayed in the forest for two or three days before going to other villages.<sup>6090</sup> From 26 July 1992, the witness took refuge in the woods and, along with other people, in different villages.<sup>6091</sup> The witness was told that there would be a convoy, accompanied by UNPROFOR soldiers and the Red Cross, leaving from Tukovi and going to Travnik.<sup>6092</sup> On the basis of this information, the witness went to a collection centre in Tukovi where he saw a large number of ‘civilians’.<sup>6093</sup> On 21 August 1992, at around 10:30 a.m., trucks and buses started to arrive in Tukovi.<sup>6094</sup> The witness boarded a truck and helped his cousin with his small child.<sup>6095</sup> On the same day, at 11 a.m., the convoy left for the Trnopolje camp where a large number of detainees boarded the trucks and the buses.<sup>6096</sup> The convoy made additional stops at Omarska and Skender Vakuf. At that point, Serb military police asked those onboard the vehicles to hand over their money and other valuables. The convoy reached Smet from which point the witness and the rest of the people walked towards and reached Travnik and Novi Travnik.<sup>6097</sup> At Travnik, a list was created of all persons who had arrived from Tukovi.<sup>6098</sup>

1438. Shortly after the attack on Hambarine, there was an attack on the Kozarac area, with the most violent part of the attack targeting Kozaruse village.<sup>6099</sup> Radio Prijedor reported the incident, stating that 13 or 14 policemen had been captured and liquidated.<sup>6100</sup> The inhabitants from Kozarac fled to Prijedor Town, where Serb soldiers placed them in a sports hall in the centre of town near the secondary school building.<sup>6101</sup> In an interview with a reporter, Milomir Stakić, President of the Prijedor Municipal Crisis Staff, stated that the entire municipality of Prijedor was under their control after the takeover of Kozarac and added that ‘in Kozarac itself, the operation “cleaning”, as the military call it, is still ongoing because those who have now stayed behind are the most extreme ones and the professionals’.<sup>6102</sup>

1439. Many people from Prijedor Municipality were taken to the Trnopolje camp after their villages had been attacked by the Bosnian-Serb forces and others came to the camp on their own initiative, from where they were driven out of the area in convoys of buses.<sup>6103</sup> Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were gathered in the camp for their further transfer to other locations.<sup>6104</sup> The Trnopolje camp became a transfer facility for the expulsion of the non-Serb population from the Bosnian Krajina.<sup>6105</sup> Azra Blažević stated that people were being brought to Doboju, Tuzla, and Gračanica in freight trains and later on, in buses and trucks.<sup>6106</sup> She stated that camp detainees were being released in large numbers in convoys.<sup>6107</sup>

1440. Security was provided by the Commander of the SJB, the Bosnian-Serb police and military for a number of convoys that transported people from the Trnopolje camp to Travnik prior to 21 August 1992.<sup>6108</sup> A number of witnesses provided further details about their transport from the Trnopolje camp. Senija Elkasović stated that one old man died during the bus ride and was left by the road.<sup>6109</sup> The ‘army’ stopped the bus several times and during one of the inspections, one soldier cursed Kuruzović’s mother, saying:

‘Why is he letting those through? We kill individuals like this’.<sup>6110</sup> People on the bus were given a small bag in which they had to place their money and jewellery.<sup>6111</sup> The bus stopped at a garbage yard, the detainees were told to get off the bus and go towards barricades nearby; ‘[d]own there are your folk, Alija, Tudjman, are awaiting you’.<sup>6112</sup> The detainees continued on foot and when they reached the stone barricades, they heard gunfire.<sup>6113</sup> One soldier said ‘[d]on’t be afraid. We are yours’ and suggested that further on they should split into smaller groups and to move as fast as they could because the Serb soldiers could shell and kill them.<sup>6114</sup> The groups of the women and children had to walk approximately 40 to 50 kilometres before they arrived at a school in Stari Travnik while several of the elderly remained on the road and were later picked up by the ABiH military at nightfall.<sup>6115</sup> Only a few of the detainees who left the Trnopolje camp that morning had water with them, while the others left the camp without any supplies.<sup>6116</sup>

1441. Safet Tači testified that when the bus from Trnopolje camp stopped at Kozarac, he saw other people in buses and trucks arriving from the direction of Prijedor Town.<sup>6117</sup> Two soldiers entered the witness’s bus and ordered the passengers to board a truck because the bus was overcrowded.<sup>6118</sup> By hiding behind the women and the seats, the witness managed to stay on the bus.<sup>6119</sup> His brother-in-law, Safet Sivac, left the bus. After 30 minutes, the witness saw the men lined up outside, two-by-two, as the bus drove away. Soon after, the witness was ordered to leave the bus to walk towards the ‘federation territory’. The witness never saw Safet Sivac again.<sup>6120</sup>

1442. Sead Sušić stated that he lived in the forest for 41 days with approximately ten other men following the Serb attack on Čarakovo in the early morning of 23 July 1992.<sup>6121</sup> After three days, he told his wife to move because women in the village were being raped.<sup>6122</sup> Following the attack on Čarakovo, people from the village were taken to Trnopolje, and then to Travnik by Bosnian-Serb forces.<sup>6123</sup>

1443. Nermin Karagić testified that on 21 August 1992, he joined a convoy in Tukovi which went to Smetovi, where he reached ‘free territory’.<sup>6124</sup> Witness RM-038 testified that he and his family left the Prijedor area on 22 August 1992 on a packed bus and truck convoy to Banja Luka through Vlasić, Turbet, and Travnik.<sup>6125</sup>

1444. The Trial Chamber recalls the evidence of Witness RM-023 in relation to scheduled incident C.15.4, which has been placed in the confidential annex in Appendix D. The Trial chamber considered additional evidence of Witness RM-023 on the transportation from Trnopolje camp, which has also been placed in the confidential annex. Witness RM-023 stated that the convoy was stopped at the Kozarac crossroads where Serb soldiers from the special task forces wearing blue camouflage uniforms told them to wait for more trucks with women and children from Prijedor.<sup>6126</sup> One of the soldiers threw a hand grenade near one of the buses.<sup>6127</sup> Another soldier entered each bus to collect money and valuables from the detainees.<sup>6128</sup> The passengers were asked to keep their heads down but the witness saw the soldiers beat and take things from people and heard people shouting.<sup>6129</sup> The soldiers were distributing the stolen goods among themselves.<sup>6130</sup> Then, two special task policemen entered each bus and the convoy departed for Vlašić Mountain.<sup>6131</sup> Buses often stopped and passengers were asked to get off and were beaten.<sup>6132</sup> The convoy stopped at the top of a plateau dotted with rocket launchers firing at houses in a valley.<sup>6133</sup> The convoy departed an hour later and headed towards a clearing in the Mount Vlašić area. One bus was missing. ‘Chetniks’ came out of the woods, armed with rifles, wearing sleeveless lamb coats, tall fur hats, traditional badges, long beards, and 'kokarda'. The 'Chetniks' rolled large boulders down a hill towards the detainees, injuring some as they were walking away from the buses, and then told them to walk faster.<sup>6134</sup> The detainees continued on to Travnik while the Serbs were shelling them heavily.<sup>6135</sup> Many of them were killed.<sup>6136</sup> The witness fled Bosnia-Herzegovina on 16 October 1992.<sup>6137</sup>

1445. Those Muslims and Croats from the Trnopolje camp who were not killed at the Omarska or Keraterm camps were deported from Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>6138</sup> Witness RM-385 stated that three trips were made transporting refugees from Prijedor to Turbe next to Travnik: two from Tukovi and one from Trnopolje after the camp was disbanded. The refugees were Muslims and Croats who left because they feared for their lives. Prijedor police were present on the convoy escorting the refugees.<sup>6139</sup>

1446. Over 30,000 of the Muslim and Croat population of Prijedor Municipality moved out of the municipality in the period from the beginning of the conflict in April through August 1992 out of fear or due to unbearable circumstances.<sup>6140</sup> Mevludin Sejmenović testified that the non-Serb population was made to leave Prijedor Municipality. The Crisis Staff passed a law requiring non-Serbs to sign a declaration giving up their property and stating that they were leaving the municipality permanently.<sup>6141</sup> Idriz Merdžanić testified that before allowing him on the bus, just like all the detainees at the Trnopolje camp, he had to sign a form stating that he voluntarily transferred all of his real and personal property to the Serbs.<sup>6142</sup>

1447. Charles McLeod stated that during a meeting on 31 August 1992, Milomir Stakić commented that Croats or Muslims had not left the territory and that the Bosnian-Serb authorities did not have the intention to 'kick them out'.<sup>6143</sup> According to Stakić, some of the Muslims and Croats held appointments in the town and in the forces.<sup>6144</sup> ECMM had seen large numbers of Muslims being bussed from Northern Bosnia to Croatia.<sup>6145</sup> Stakić told the witness that Muslim extremists had brought women and children to the frontlines and that the Serb army and police put them on buses and took them to safety.<sup>6146</sup> On 1 October 1992, people from Trnopolje were taken in Serbian buses by the ICRC to the border and told to walk to the Croatian side.<sup>6147</sup>

1448. Based on the Adjudicated Facts and the evidence reviewed above, the Trial Chamber finds that after the SDS takeover of the municipal institutions in Prijedor Town with the aid of the military and police forces on 30 April 1992, VRS soldiers changed the name of the town to ‘Serbian Prijedor’ and occupied all of the prominent institutions such as the radio station, medical centre, and bank. A Serbian flag was raised over the Municipal Assembly building. Sometime before the attack on Prijedor, the President of the ARK Crisis Staff, Radoslav Brđanin, said on television that ‘non-Serbs would not need wood for the winter’, which among the non-Serb population was understood as a concealed threat and caused fear and panic. The Trial Chamber also finds that by May 1992, many of the inhabitants of Hambarine, a predominantly Bosnian Muslim village in Prijedor Municipality, had already fled to other Muslim or Croat-controlled areas. The Trial Chamber understands therefore that many left before 12 May 1992.

1449. During the SDS takeover of the municipality between May and July 1992, and in particular following the attacks on the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim and Bosnian-Croat inhabited areas and villages of Hambarine, Kozarac, Kamičani, Bišćani, Čarakovo, Briševo, and Ljubija, many survivors fled the villages, seeking shelter in the surrounding forests. The Trial Chamber recalls its findings in chapter 4.10.3 with respect to the attacks on the villages. After the attacks in Prijedor Municipality, non-Serbs were made to leave the municipality, some with the involvement of the police and local civilian authorities. The Crisis Staff passed a law requiring non-Serbs to sign a declaration giving up their property and stating that they were leaving permanently. With regard to these people leaving the municipality, the Trial Chamber finds that beginning in late May 1992, Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Prijedor

Municipality were gathered in Tukovi and in Trnopolje camp, having been taken there by Bosnian-Serb forces or arriving on their own after fleeing attacks on their villages and fearing for their lives. Until November 1992, Trnopolje camp was used as a transfer facility for the expulsion of the non-Serb population from the Bosnian Krajina to Travnik, Turbe, Doboj, Banja Luka, Tuzla, and Gračanica. Some detainees had to sign a document stating that they were leaving Prijedor of their own free will before being released from Trnopolje. People were transferred from Trnopolje using freight trains, trucks, and bus convoys organized and secured by Simo Drljača, the Commander of the SJB, as well as by the Bosnian Serb police and military. In early October 1992, detainees from Trnopolje were transferred to Croatia while others were taken as far as the border, some in Serbian buses by the ICRC, and then told to walk to the Croatian side. On one occasion, passengers of these convoys were ordered to disembark and continue on foot across the border to ABiH-controlled territory, and on at least one occasion were subjected to heavy shelling by Bosnian-Serb forces. From 12 May through August 1992, tens of thousands Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Prijedor were either physically removed from the municipality or left their homes due to the unbearable living conditions imposed on them or fearing for their lives.

1450. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above incidents in relation to Counts 3 and 7 to 8 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.11 Rogatica Municipality

4.11.1 Murder

Schedule B.14.1

1451. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of men taken from Veljko Vlahović Secondary School in Rogatica Municipality between June and September 1992.<sup>6148</sup> The Defence argued that there is no direct evidence that killings occurred ‘in the school’, and that the Prosecution failed to identify both the men taken from the school and the individuals that allegedly killed them.<sup>6149</sup> Based on the evidence received, the Trial Chamber has structured the incident into two smaller incidents: first, the alleged killing of a number of men taken out of the school; and second, the alleged killing of Mujo Bešlija.

1452. On some occasions between June and September 1992, male detainees were taken out of Veljko Vlahović Secondary School in Rogatica town and killed.<sup>6150</sup> Witness RM-081, a Bosnian Muslim from Rogatica municipality,<sup>6151</sup> and Elvir Pašić, a Bosnian Muslim from Rogatica,<sup>6152</sup> were detainees at the school, as discussed in chapters 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 and 4.11.5. Witness RM-081 testified that he did not directly observe any killings there, but on various occasions he saw men taken out to an area behind the school, followed by the sound of shooting, with the men never returning.<sup>6153</sup> While Pašić was detained at the school, one person taken for interrogation was never returned.<sup>6154</sup> In this respect, the Trial Chamber has also considered other evidence by Witness RM-081 concerning his detention at the school, including the ethnicity of the detainees, as discussed in chapters 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 and 4.11.5. In addition, the Trial Chamber considered other Adjudicated Facts related to the detention centre in the school, including in relation to the number of detainees, as discussed in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1.

1453. Based on un rebutted Adjudicated Fact number 1135 and Witness RM-081’s and Elvir Pašić’s evidence, the Trial Chamber finds that between June and September 1992, at least three men were taken out of Veljko Vlahović School in Rogatica and killed behind it. Neither the evidence nor the Adjudicated Facts refer to any perpetrators in relation to this crime. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 that local Serbs under Rajko Kušić, civilian police, Serb TO, and paramilitary unit members guarded the camp. The Trial Chamber finds that members of these groups killed the detainees. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding that the detainees at Veljko Vlahović Secondary School were mostly Bosnian-Muslim and therefore cannot exclude the reasonable possibility that those killed were of another ethnicity. The Trial Chamber will therefore not further consider this incident.

1454. With regard to the second incident, Witness RM-081 testified that he saw Mujo Bešlija, a Bosnian-Muslim detainee, ordered out of a classroom by a soldier named Radisav 'Pjano' Ljubinac and brought to Dragan a.k.a. Macola, who was waiting in a car.<sup>6155</sup> According to the witness, Macola was the commander of the camp and a paramilitary belonging to 'Arkan's men'. Ljubinac told Bešlija not to take any clothes as he would not be needing anything. Bešlija never returned. The witness later learned from Ljubinac that Macola had killed Bešlija.<sup>6156</sup> Elvir Pašić testified that he last saw Mujo Bešlija on 27 June 1992, when Bešlija and others remained behind at the school while around 280 detainees including Pašić were transferred away.<sup>6157</sup> According to Pašić, Bešlija was possibly left behind because he was educated and a dentist.<sup>6158</sup> According to a missing person certificate, Mustafa Bešlija disappeared on 2 August 1992.<sup>6159</sup>

1456. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of at least 24 men taken from the detention facilities at Rasadnik in Rogatica Municipality on 15 August 1992.<sup>6161</sup> The Defence argued that Dragoje Paunović, who would have ordered the killings, acted on his own initiative and outside the scope of his duties, thus in contravention of SRK's or the Accused's orders.<sup>6162</sup> The Prosecution, however, contends that the Brigade Command took no action against those involved, albeit it learned of the crime immediately.<sup>6163</sup> The Defence further submits that activities of the Rogatica Brigade were subjected to the justice system.<sup>6164</sup> The Chamber received evidence from Witness RM-037, a Bosnian Muslim from the Muslim village of Kozadre in Rogatica Municipality;<sup>6165</sup> Armin Baždar, a Bosnian Muslim from Seljani in Rogatica Municipality who was 15 years old in 1992;<sup>6166</sup> Alija Isaković, a Bosnian Muslim from Rogatica;<sup>6167</sup> Šefik Hurko, a Bosnian Muslim who was detained in the Rasadnik camp from August 1992 through April 1994;<sup>6168</sup> Mile Ujić, the President of the Executive Committee of the Rogatica Municipality from 1990 until March 1992 and the Chief and acting Chief of Staff of the Rogatica Brigade from the beginning of May 1992 until the end of 1992;<sup>6169</sup> Witness RM-081, a Bosnian Muslim from Rogatica Municipality;<sup>6170</sup> and Ewa Tabeau, a demographer and statistician,<sup>6171</sup> as well as documentary evidence.

1457. On 15 August 1992, Witness RM-037, Armin Baždar, and 25 other persons detained in the Rasadnik prison were taken to the front-line by Radisav Ljubinac a.k.a. 'Pjano', Nada Rajak, Mile Đerić, and others, on the order of Rajko Kušić.<sup>6172</sup> There, Baždar saw about 50 armed 'Chetniks' wearing caps with Serb insignia depicting a two-headed eagle.<sup>6173</sup> Witness RM-037 saw 'Chetniks' wearing yellow shoulder straps.<sup>6174</sup> He also saw 10-15 Serb soldiers, and recognized among them Zoran Rajak, Duško Štica, Ratko Nešković, Vojo Nešković, Dragan Bojević, and Uglješa Pečenica.<sup>6175</sup> Some soldiers were wearing olive-grey uniforms and others camouflage uniforms.<sup>6176</sup> A Serb soldier named Dragoje Paunović, a.k.a. Špiro, ordered other soldiers to tie the hands of the detainees behind their backs.<sup>6177</sup> Then, some of the detainees were ordered to walk down an alley two by two in order to be used as human shields.<sup>6178</sup> According to Baždar, two of the detainees, Mustafa Tanković and Hamdija Jašarević, were injured as a result.<sup>6179</sup> According to Witness RM-037, also a third detainee was injured during this incident.<sup>6180</sup> When the detainees who had been taken to the front-line returned, Paunović ordered a Serb soldier to take them in the opposite direction from the front-line and, after approximately 50 metres, the detainees were taken off the road and ordered to stop.<sup>6181</sup>

1458. Paunović and two 'Chetniks' then lined up the detainees and opened fire at them.<sup>6182</sup> Witness RM-037 immediately fell to the ground pretending to be dead.<sup>6183</sup> Baždar was shot in the arm.<sup>6184</sup> On Paunović's order, the soldiers fired pistols at the potential survivors to ensure that they were all dead.<sup>6185</sup> Baždar overheard a radio conversation during which Rajko Kušić (who mentioned his own name) was asking who was shooting and Paunović answered that it was him.<sup>6186</sup> The soldiers then left the area.<sup>6187</sup> Nedžad Kazić survived the shooting and Serb soldiers who arrived shortly afterwards and said ‘look there’s one sitting’, killed him.<sup>6188</sup> These soldiers also left and Baždar then noticed that, besides himself, two other detainees, Ago Kapo and Vahudin Čatić, were still alive.<sup>6189</sup> Kapo left them, and when another group of ‘Chetniks’ came towards them Baždar also left Čatić, who could not walk.<sup>6190</sup> After having been chased by Serb soldiers for a while, Baždar wandered around the forest for 18 hours before reaching the Bosnia-Herzegovina TO.<sup>6191</sup> Witness RM-037 hid in the forest, where he met Kapo and the next day they reached Brčigovo.<sup>6192</sup> Twenty-four Muslim male civilians were executed in the incident, while three survived.<sup>6193</sup> In September 1998, Witness RM-037 went to the area of the killings with the BCMP and identified the area as a field called Vranica, in the village of Duljevac.<sup>6194</sup> The bodies of the 24 detainees were exhumed at this location and were identified.<sup>6195</sup>

left the witness heard intense infantry fire in the direction where it had left, and a Serb soldier who was with them instructed them not to look that direction.<sup>6198</sup> Afterwards, a person called Krsmanović told the soldier, ‘We killed all the balijas.’<sup>6199</sup> Later that day another soldier told the witness, ‘I killed 30 balijas today; if you don’t obey, you’ll be the next.’<sup>6200</sup> Witness RM-081 provided mainly hearsay evidence with regard to the incident.<sup>6201</sup>

1460. Mile Ujić also provided hearsay evidence with regard to the incident. He heard that in August 1992 Ljubinac brought a group of 25 people detained in Rasadnik to Paunović, who was the Commander of the Kozići unit of the Rogatica Brigade.<sup>6202</sup> The witness further heard that Paunović had killed them.<sup>6203</sup> He overheard Paunović mentioning during a conversation that these people were needed as human shields.<sup>6204</sup> On 26 May 2006, the Court of Bosnia-Herzegovina convicted Paunović, with regards to the events described in this chapter, of the crime of persecution of Bosniak civilians by murder and other inhuman acts committed between May and September 1992.<sup>6205</sup>

1462. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 15 August 1992, Radisav Ljubinac took a number of detainees from the detention facilities in Rasadnik, and brought them to Duljevac in a bus, where several uniformed Serb soldiers, wearing caps with Serb insignia depicting a two-headed eagle, were present. There, some of the detainees were used as human shields, which incident has been dealt with in chapter 4.11.5. The Trial Chamber recalls its findings concerning this incident. Following this, they were lined up and Dragoje Paunović and two soldiers opened fire at them. Twenty-four Muslim males were killed; 22 of them instantly whereas two were killed later by soldiers who returned to kill any survivors. Four of the victims were under the age of 18. After the killings a soldier said to a detainee that he killed balijas. Based on the evidence reviewed above and elsewhere in chapter 4.11, the Trial Chamber finds that Paunović was the Commander of the Kozići unit of the VRS Rogatica Brigade (with regard to this brigade, see chapter 3.1.2). The Trial Chamber will address the merits of both Defence's and Prosecution's arguments on whether the killings occurred outside the scope of the Accused's effective control in chapter 9.3. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Rasadnik camp (Schedule C.16.3)

1464. With regard to alleged murders committed in Rasadnik camp, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Šefik Hurko and Alija Isaković, Bosnian Muslims from Rogatica who were detained in Rasadnik camp from August 1992 through April 1994 and from 5 August 1992 to 16 March 1993, respectively.<sup>6215</sup>

1465. Alija Isaković testified that one evening, between 5 August 1992 and 1 November 1992, he heard noise and screams coming from the room next to the room where he was detained.<sup>6216</sup> The screams continued almost all night.<sup>6217</sup> The next morning, a member of the Serb police, Radisav Ljubinac, a.k.a. 'Pjano', ordered the witness and another detainee, Enes Vatreš, to dig a grave.<sup>6218</sup> Mišo Vojinović, a guard in the camp, then told them to take a corpse from the room where they beat prisoners, and bury it in the grave.<sup>6219</sup> When the witness entered the room, he saw two detainees who had been beaten to the point of being unrecognizable.<sup>6220</sup> One, who was wearing trousers worn by the reserve police, was already dead, and the other died from the beating the next day.<sup>6221</sup> After 1 December 1992, Bojić beat a detainee called Himzo Branković so severely and mercilessly every day that Branković died after some 20 days.<sup>6222</sup> Bojić had been told that Branković's son was a member of the ABiH.<sup>6223</sup>

1466. Šefik Hurko testified that on 21 March 1993, Edina Mušović, a detainee who distributed food to the detainees at the camp, told him that a detainee named Bećir Čutahija had been taken to the office of the warden of the camp, Vinko Bojić.<sup>6224</sup> The witness could hear the sounds of beatings through the walls of the office for a long time, and, that night, Čutahija was not brought back to the room where the detainees were kept.<sup>6225</sup> In the morning, Bojić summoned a detainee, Suljo Kustura.<sup>6226</sup> Kustura later told the witness that he buried Ćutahija's body, which had been cut to pieces.<sup>6227</sup> One evening, another detainee, Ibro Karaman, who suffered from asthma, was taken out.<sup>6228</sup> The same night, he was brought back severely beaten, and the witness and other detainees found him dead the next morning.<sup>6229</sup> On 29 March 1993, a detainee, Adil Mušović, was taken to Bojić.<sup>6230</sup> The witness could hear the sounds of beating followed by a gunshot, and Adil Mušović never returned to his room.<sup>6231</sup> Another detainee, Nail Mušović, was called out on 1 April 1993.<sup>6232</sup> The witness could hear the sounds of beating followed by a shot, and the witness did not see Nail Mušović again.<sup>6233</sup>

1467. On 9 July 1993, Bojić took twelve detainees, including Šefik Hurko and Mirsad Omanović, a captured member of the ABiH, to the village of Starčići, where they were ordered to recover the bodies of 17 Serb soldiers in a mined area.<sup>6234</sup> Mirsad Omanović was ordered to lead the group, as he was supposed to know where the mines were located.<sup>6235</sup> In the process of recovering the bodies, a young man who was supervising the detainees hit a land mine, which blew off his leg.<sup>6236</sup> In retaliation, Bojić stabbed Omanović in the side and threatened the other detainees with a rifle, cursing their 'Balija' mothers.<sup>6237</sup> The witness heard seven to ten gunshots and then saw Omanović lying in blood with his neck cut and his chest riddled with bullets.<sup>6238</sup> Bojić ordered the witness and another man to bury Omanović in a 50 to 60 centimetre-deep grave.<sup>6239</sup> The witness and the remaining ten detainees spent three days searching for the bodies of the fallen Serb soldiers.<sup>6240</sup>

1468. On 18 December 1993, Sejfo Mirvić, a detainee from the solitary cell, was killed.<sup>6241</sup> According to Šefik Hurko, his death was confirmed by a doctor and Bojić told the detainees that Mirvić had been killed while trying to escape.<sup>6242</sup> On 27 April 1994, Bojić killed a man called Alija, a captured member of the ABiH, in the presence of

Edina Mušović.<sup>6243</sup> Alija's body was thrown in a manhole, which was then filled by Hurko's father and other men.<sup>6244</sup> The witness further testified that during the beatings or killing incidents he witnessed, the perpetrators were cursing 'Balija mothers', 'Balijas', 'Ustašas', and saying 'where is Alija for you' and 'who did you vote for'.<sup>6245</sup>

1469. Alija Isaković and Šefik Hurko, who were both detainees in Rasadnik camp, provided a detailed account of several killing incidents, which took place in and around Rasadnik camp, and in particular with regard to the above-mentioned incidents.<sup>6246</sup> In particular, Hurko saw detainees being taken away, some to Vinko Bojić's office, and heard detainees being severely beaten; he found detainees dead, in the room in which he was detained, following beatings; and he saw Bojić kill a detainee.<sup>6247</sup> Isaković provided a reliable account of the killing of three other detainees in the camp. With regard to these incidents, the Trial Chamber has not identified any inconsistencies in their respective evidence and finds their evidence to be reliable.

1470. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on one occasion between 5 August and 1 November 1992, camp guards beat to death two detainees, one of whom was wearing trousers of the reserve police, in Rasadnik camp. The Trial Chamber recalls its findings in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3 that between June and October 1992, members of the SJB and the VRS acted as camp guards. Radisav Ljubinac, also called 'Pjano', a member of the Serb police, and Mišo Vojinović, a guard, were involved in the burial of the bodies. Considering that all those detained at Rasadnik camp were Bosnian Muslims, other than Serb soldiers who were kept separately, the Trial Chamber finds that those killed were Bosnian Muslims. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Counts 3-6 of the Indictment.

1471. Furthermore, between December 1992 and April 1994, Vinko Bojić killed several detainees in and around Rasadnik camp: he beat to death Himzo Branković after being informed his son was a member of the ABiH; and killed Alija and Mirsad Omanović, two captured members of the ABiH detained at the camp. In particular, Bojić stabbed and shot Omanović numerous times, killing him in retaliation for the injury incurred by a young man supervising a group of detainees. Considering that all those detained at Rasadnik camp were Bosnian Muslims, other than Serb soldiers who were kept separately, the Trial Chamber finds that those killed were Bosnian Muslims. Based on the evidence reviewed above and elsewhere in chapter 4.11, the Trial Chamber finds that Bojić was the warden of Rasadnik camp and a member of the VRS Rogatica Brigade (with regard to this brigade, see chapter 3.1.2). The Trial Chamber further finds that on 18 December 1993 and around March and April 1993, guards killed five Bosnian-Muslim detainees. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3 that after October 1992, members of the VRS acted as guards at Rasadnik detention facility. During the killings of Omanović, Alija, and others, the detainees were called ‘Balijas’, ‘Ustašas’, and were otherwise cursed at. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Counts 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1472. With regard to alleged murders committed in Rogatica Town, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Witness RM-081, and Elvir Pašić, Bosnian Muslims from Rogatica Municipality and Rogatica, respectively.<sup>6248</sup>

1473. Elvir Pašić testified that he was arrested on 7 June 1992 in the apartment building where he lived in Rogatica by around 30 uniformed and masked personnel, who were wearing olive green-grey camouflage JNA uniforms or grey-blue uniforms.<sup>6249</sup> At the time of the arrest, there were already two groups of people from the same apartment building who had been arrested.<sup>6250</sup> Approximately 25 men were separated from the same number of women.<sup>6251</sup> The witness and the other men were beaten, kicked, and cursed at.<sup>6252</sup> Slaviša Vukojčić threatened to cut the witness’s throat.<sup>6253</sup> Then Vlado Marković, a former regular policeman, reminded Vukojčić that he was in charge.<sup>6254</sup> The witness last saw the following men alive lying outside his apartment building with their hands tied with wire: Ferid Nuredini, Fehim Gušić, Jasmin Pezo, Sulejman Džaferović, Teufik Behlulović, Adonis Mladenović, Suad Đezo, Nihad Čengić, Galib Hasečić, Salko Kukavica, and the witness's uncle Abdulah Krajina who was subsequently found in a mass grave in Paklenik.<sup>6255</sup> To the witness's knowledge, none of these individuals were involved in any military activity in Rogatica.<sup>6256</sup> The remains of four of these individuals were also identified in a mass grave in Paklenik.<sup>6257</sup> One of them, Asim Neuredini, whom the witness knew as the brother of Ferid Nuredini went to hide with his wife and child in the witness's apartment building in Rogatica.<sup>6258</sup> A few days before Pašić's arrest, Asim left the apartment building to bring milk to his child.<sup>6259</sup> He was shot dead on the way.<sup>6260</sup> His body was found by one of the neighbours who went out to look for him.<sup>6261</sup> Asim was buried in his garden.<sup>6262</sup>

1474. Witness RM-081 testified that around the end of August 1992, he walked through a part of Rogatica called Krušućica where there were numerous decomposed bodies, some of which the witness recognised to be of Muslim civilians.<sup>6263</sup> The witness also testified that during his detention at the Veljko Vlahović secondary school, the detainees could peer through a row of windows looking out onto the street and the hills where the artillery positions were located, including Ptičjak hill from which a cannon fired at Goražde. One day, the detainees saw a fire emitting yellow-golden smoke, and this flame continued burning for around a month. The witness later learned from a drunk guard named Cerović that the fire was the result of bodies being burned after a mass grave in Donje Polje was no longer used.<sup>6264</sup> This guard also told the witness that the bodies were the remains of a large group of Muslim men, including Sakib Čolić, who were killed in Ptičjak.<sup>6265</sup> According to a missing person certificate, Sakib Čolić disappeared on 19 June 1992 in Rogatica.<sup>6266</sup>

1475. Based on the above, the Trial Chamber finds that around 7 June 1992, a man was shot and killed on the street in Rogatica Town. However, the Trial Chamber has received no evidence regarding the ethnicity of the man or the alleged perpetrator(s) of the killing. Similarly, the Trial Chamber has received no evidence on the alleged perpetrator(s) of the killing of the eleven men Pašić saw in Rogatica. Therefore, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this incident in relation to any Counts of the Indictment.

1476. Concerning Witness RM-081's evidence on the presence of decomposed bodies, including the bodies of some Muslim civilians, in the Krušućica area of Rogatica and on the killing of Muslim men in Ptičjak around 1992, the Trial Chamber has received no evidence regarding the circumstances of the killings or the alleged perpetrators and will not further consider these incidents in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

set with landmines.<sup>6279</sup> Elvir Pašić testified that when he was detained at the school for 20 days in June 1992, there were approximately 300 elderly men, women, and children there.<sup>6280</sup> Witness RM-081 testified that he and his family surrendered at the school sometime after 19 July 1992 and that all the detainees were Muslim, except for a Serb family with three sons who did not want to fight in the army, and two Serb women married to Muslims.<sup>6281</sup> For the first month of the witness's detention the school held about 400 people, mostly women and children, with only 70-90 men, but the population eventually grew to 1,100 people.<sup>6282</sup> Armin Baždar stated that when he was held at the school on 4 and 5 August 1992, he saw about 90 people, mostly women and children, detained there.<sup>6283</sup> Šefik Hurko testified that on 14 August 1992, Rajko Kušić took him and his parents to the school.<sup>6284</sup> On arrival, the witness saw between 35-40 Muslim men, women, and children there.<sup>6285</sup>

Muslims.<sup>6290</sup> The witness never entered the school; he passed by the school once in late May 1992 and saw people playing football in the school's courtyard.<sup>6291</sup>

1480. Milenko Janković testified that he was told by those securing the school that people of all ethnicities were accommodated there to be protected from the combat in Rogatica.<sup>6292</sup> According to the witness, the purpose of securing the facility was solely to prevent anyone coming in, but everyone was free to leave the facility at any time.<sup>6293</sup> However, the witness never visited the school himself.<sup>6294</sup> According to Milorad Sokolović, the Veljko Vlahović Secondary School was a place where Serbs, Muslims, and Croats could find shelter.<sup>6295</sup> The witness never went to the school himself.<sup>6296</sup> Mile Ujić testified that Serbian and Croatian families as well as unarmed Muslims and their families, and others who were unarmed and afraid of the war, took shelter in the school following an ultimatum from the Rogatica Serb TO demanding that Muslims surrender their weapons and threats that the municipality would be attacked in case of non-compliance.<sup>6297</sup> Rajko Kušić invited unarmed people to go to the school due to an impending war operation in Rogatica.<sup>6298</sup> Around 15 people were escorted to the school by armed soldiers through Gracanica, a part of the town still under Muslim control.<sup>6299</sup> According to the witness, at first the school was a safe house offering shelter to Muslims, Serbs, and Croats, including women and children, to protect them from war operations and separate unarmed from armed individuals.<sup>6300</sup>

1481. With regard to the conditions of detention at the school, Witness RM-081 testified that when he and his family arrived at the school, sometime after 19 July 1992, they had to sign papers stating that they had voluntarily converted to the Serbian Orthodox religion.<sup>6301</sup> On this occasion, Radisav 'Pjano' Ljubinac and a man called

'Macola' stole their jewellery.<sup>6302</sup> Food and washing facilities at the school were inadequate, and there were no sleeping quarters. Forty-seven detainees, including the witness, women, and children, slept in the same room. For days the detainees had nothing to eat, and then on other days the Serb army would deliver some food, for example five or six sacks of potatoes, cooking oil, and pasta. On one of these occasions, the witness's family received three potatoes and three or four thin pieces of pasta for a period approximately 21 days.<sup>6303</sup> There was also very limited water; the witness was only able to partially wash himself once during the three and a half months he and his family were detained in the school.<sup>6304</sup> The Serb detainees were treated in the same way as the Muslim detainees.<sup>6305</sup> Pašić testified that the detainees were held in classrooms, where they slept on the floor.<sup>6306</sup> There were 17 detainees in the classroom in which the witness was detained, and for the first few days, they each received a can of fish.<sup>6307</sup> The detainees were then permitted to obtain three stoves from neighbouring houses, but they only found one which then had to be used to prepare food for the 300 detainees at the school.<sup>6308</sup> Each family cooked for itself, with female detainees being permitted to leave the school for a certain period of time to search neighbouring houses for food.<sup>6309</sup> Drinking water was available.<sup>6310</sup>

1482. Ujić testified that the detainees were treated equally and, like in Rasadnik, were given the same food as the soldiers.<sup>6311</sup> During a visit to the school in late July 1992 or early August 1992, the witness heard no complaints about the clothing, food, and the conduct of the police guarding the facility.<sup>6312</sup> Janković testified that the people at the school received the same food as the members of the Rogatica TO and there was a water supply to the school throughout the whole period.<sup>6313</sup> There were sanitation and other equipment in the school.<sup>6314</sup>

1483. With regard to who was guarding the school, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of two Adjudicated Facts and received evidence from numerous witnesses. According to Adjudicated Fact number 1134, Serb forces detained the people at the school.<sup>6315</sup> Adjudicated Fact number 1130 provides that these forces included local Serbs under the authority of Rajko Kušić.<sup>6316</sup> Witness RM-081 testified that a Serb soldier named Macola told the witness that he had replaced Kušić as camp commander, although the witness got the impression that Kušić remained the chief commander, and Macola was subordinated to him.<sup>6317</sup> The witness saw Kušić at the school a total of 10-15 times.<sup>6318</sup>

1484. The evidence of numerous witnesses indicates that different groups were involved in guarding the school. Pašić testified that the Serb guards were members of the Bosnian-Serb police.<sup>6319</sup> Milenko Rajak testified that the school was under the control of the civilian authorities, i.e. the police.<sup>6320</sup> The witness was never present himself and learned this after 1993.<sup>6321</sup> Hurko testified that on 16 August 1992 a person named Kojić from the Bosnian-Serb MUP ordered that all 'loyal' Muslims be released, and everyone else taken to the Rasadnik camp.<sup>6322</sup> Ujić testified that civilian police and later 'the army' guarded the school.<sup>6323</sup> Witness RM-081 testified that the school was guarded by Serb police and soldiers, along with paramilitary unit members.<sup>6324</sup> One of Arkan's soldiers in the school was nicknamed 'Noka' and was from Pančevo.<sup>6325</sup> He was not the only paramilitary at the camp, there were many others who came to the camp, and one knew who they were by sight; they were under Kušić's control.<sup>6326</sup> Janković testified that Serb TO soldiers were securing the school.<sup>6327</sup>

tortured the Muslim detainees.<sup>6328</sup> Witness RM-081 specified that he was beaten, raped, and verbally abused as a Muslim by, among others, ‘Noka’ from Pančevo; Mandžo; Mirko Planojević; Mišo Planojević, a.k.a. Mekenzi; Danko Nerić, Ozren Planojević, and Feđa Planinčić.<sup>6329</sup> The witness suffered from post-traumatic stress disorder from the violence and suffering he and his family underwent and witnessed throughout their ordeal.<sup>6330</sup> Women and girls as young as 13 were taken out randomly on an almost nightly basis and brought to apartments to be raped.<sup>6331</sup> The people removing them were all soldiers or policemen, including Mladen Kojić; Zlatko Nešković; Vlado Marković; Dragomir Cerović; Ljuban Kojić; Danko Nerić; Feđa Planinčić; Zoran Perović; Milenko ‘Miko’ Ikonić; Radisav ‘Pjano’ Ljubinac; a man called Dragan or ‘Macola’; and Nebojša Motka.<sup>6332</sup> The soldiers competed with one another in relation to the number of rapes they could commit, referring to all Muslim girls and women as ‘Bula’, a religious Muslim woman who prays for, and washes, a dead body to prepare it for burial.<sup>6333</sup> Ujić testified that a woman told him that the police had raped several Muslim and Serbian women.<sup>6334</sup> Following his demand to punish the perpetrators, the witness received death threats from Mladen Kojić and Mladen Vasiljević, the police station commander, and was transferred to another position.<sup>6335</sup> He was told that human lives meant nothing and that he should not get involved.<sup>6336</sup>

1486. The Trial Chamber received evidence from Milenko Janković, Sveto Veselinović, and Milorad Sokolović disputing that the people at the secondary school were detained against their will. For example, according to Janković, people of all ethnicities sheltered there from the war and were given the same food as the Rogatica TO and the water was provided throughout the whole period. The Trial Chamber notes that the evidence of the three witnesses is, in this respect, in stark contrast to the Adjudicated Facts. However, considering that they never visited the school and provided no basis for their knowledge, the Trial Chamber finds that their evidence is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts.

1487. Novica Andrić's evidence also challenged the fact that the detainees were detained against their will, in that he conveyed that the secondary school was a collection centre for civilians and families, held by armed Muslims. The witness did not clarify which time period he was referring to. Even if his evidence in this regard relates to the time period for this scheduled incident, the Trial Chamber notes that it is based on unsourced hearsay, and therefore finds that the evidence, in this respect, is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts.

1488. The Trial Chamber received evidence from Mile Ujić that the Veljko Vlahović Secondary School was a safe-house for Muslims, Serbs, and Croats where they were treated equally with the soldiers, and were provided with the same food. The Trial Chamber notes that this evidence is in stark contrast to the Adjudicated Facts as to whether people were detained at the school against their will, and as to the conditions at the school. However, Ujić was only sporadically present at the school and his evidence that he heard no complaints about the conditions is internally inconsistent with his evidence that he received a complaint regarding rapes at the school. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Ujić's evidence, in this respect, is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts.

1489. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that in the period of at least June to August 1992, several hundred civilians, including elderly men, women, and children, all Bosnian Muslims, with the exception of a Serb family and two Serb women married to Bosnian-Muslim men, were detained at Veljko Vlahović Secondary School. They were kept in unhygienic, cramped conditions, with very little food or water. There were no sleeping quarters and the detainees slept on the floor; in one instance 47 detainees slept in one room. Rajko Kušić was camp commander, and the camp was guarded by local Serbs under his authority, civilian police, Serb TO, and paramilitary unit members. Guards and machine-gun nests were posted around the school and the detainees were informed that the surrounding area had been set with landmines. Bosnian-Muslim detainees, including Witness RM-081, were beaten, tortured, raped, and verbally abused during June, July, and August 1992 by the guards. Guards raped women at the Secondary School and women and girls as young as 13, were taken from the school by soldiers or policemen and raped elsewhere. These women and girls were referred to by derogatory names such as 'Bula', meaning a religious Muslim woman who prays for, and washes, a dead body to prepare it for burial. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Schedule C.16.3

1490. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for unlawful detention, torture, beating, abuse, rape, other acts of sexual violence, and subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to inhumane living conditions in the Rasadnik detention facility, Rogatica Municipality at least between August 1992 and October 1994.<sup>6337</sup> The Defence argued that Rasadnik was both (i) a prison in which Serb and Muslim soldiers were detained for reasons such as failing to respond to mobilization and; (ii) a reception center for civilians who were only designated as POWs on exchange lists in order to assist their departure from the center.<sup>6338</sup> It submitted that detainees were not separated on ethnic grounds.<sup>6339</sup> It further argued that although the commander of the center was from the Rogatica Brigade, various parts of the centre were under the authority of different organs.<sup>6340</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence from four witnesses who were detained at Rasadnik: Šefik Hurko, a Bosnian Muslim who was detained in the camp from August 1992 through April 1994,<sup>6341</sup> as well as Alija Isaković, Witness RM-037, and Armin Baždar, all Bosnian Muslims from Rogatica.<sup>6342</sup> Further, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Mile Ujić, the President of the Executive Committee of the Rogatica Municipality from 1990 until March 1992 and Chief and acting Chief of Staff of the Rogatica Brigade from the beginning of May 1992 until the end of 1992;<sup>6343</sup> Novica Andrić, a Serb member of the Serbian TO of Rogatica as of 20 April 1992;<sup>6344</sup> Milenko Rajak, at first a member of the Rogatica Serb TO and later of the Rogatica

1491. Four witnesses, who were detained at Rasadnik in 1992 and 1993, provided evidence about their experiences at the facility. Šefik Hurko testified that on 15 August 1992, his father was taken to Rasadnik camp from the secondary school centre in Rogatica, where the witness and his family were held.<sup>6349</sup> Hurko and his mother were taken to the camp the next day and, upon arrival, the women and men were separated.<sup>6350</sup> The witness was taken to a room that held ten men, including his father.<sup>6351</sup> His father informed him that detainees were beaten at the camp.<sup>6352</sup> The witness estimated that there were about 100 Muslim detainees, aged new-born to 80 years old, at the Rasadnik camp, including those who had been taken from the school.<sup>6353</sup> They were given 200-gram portions of food with a slice of bread twice a day and there were no medical supplies or medicines at the camp.<sup>6354</sup> On 1 September 1992, the witness's father was brought to warden Mišo Vojinović's office and the witness could hear sounds of beating through the wall.<sup>6355</sup> After that, the witness was taken to Vojinović's office, where he was questioned by Vojinović and severely beaten by a guard named Despot, nicknamed Buce.<sup>6356</sup> On another occasion, during two days all detainees recently brought to the camp, as well as the witness himself, were beaten by Vojinović and a guard called Šolaja.<sup>6357</sup>

1492. When the witness arrived at the camp, it was guarded by the civilian police from Rogatica, but later the military police took over security.<sup>6358</sup> Mile Bojat was appointed warden in October 1992.<sup>6359</sup> Shortly after, Vinko Bojić took charge of the camp on Kušić's orders.<sup>6360</sup> According to the witness, detainees were often brought to Bojić's office by a guard named Brano Planojević and returned cruelly beaten.<sup>6361</sup> The violence in the camp was usually accompanied by cursing detainees 'Balija mothers', calling them 'Balijas' or 'Ustašas', or asking whom they voted for, or: 'Where is Alija for you?'<sup>6362</sup> The witness himself was summoned to Bojić's office and cruelly beaten around 10 June 1993 in the presence of Mladen Vasiljević, the chief of the police station in Rogatica, and his deputy, a man called Mrki.<sup>6363</sup> Around three days after a visit of the ICRC, which took place on 28 July 1993, Bojić severely beat and mistreated the witness, e.g. by extinguishing cigarettes on him and forcing him to eat the cigarettes; he also broke one of the witness's ribs with a knife handle.<sup>6364</sup> Bojić then beat the witness's father in front of him, and ordered the witness to beat his father himself.<sup>6365</sup> During the beating Bojić was referring to the information the witness and his father had revealed to the ICRC, including the insufficient amount of food.<sup>6366</sup>

1493. Women were frequently taken out at night and Bojić forced them to strip naked and to perform sexual acts with elderly detainees, after which Bojić would take them to another room.<sup>6367</sup> According to the witness, several Muslim women said that Bojić raped them, whereas male detainees were forced to perform 'unnatural sexual acts'.<sup>6368</sup> One day in February 1993, a guard called Planojević took five male detainees, including the witness, to Bojić's office where they found four Muslim women undressing, one of them aged around 65. Five Serb soldiers, wearing hats with skull insignia, were sitting in his office. Bojić ordered the Muslim men and women to undress completely and to

1494. According to the witness, Rajko Kušić visited the Rasadnik camp on several occasions in 1992 and 1993 and the witness saw him there seven or eight times.<sup>6370</sup> The witness was under the impression that Kušić had complete control over the camp based on his ability to order detainee transfers and organise a humanitarian visit by the Red Cross.<sup>6371</sup> The witness also saw Jadranko Vuković, Mile Ujić, Radomir Furtula, Razdoljac a.k.a. Đoko, Zoran Ćarkić, and Stojan Perković visit the camp.<sup>6372</sup>

1497. Witness RM-037 was held at Rasadnik for a relatively short period of time in August 1992. On 10 August 1992, a group of 'Chetniks', including two locals called Radomir Lalović a.k.a. Duca and Mihajlo Vučković, took the witness and 12 other men to Rogatica and detained them in the Rasadnik farm.<sup>6385</sup> They stayed there for six days during which Novak Džida, dressed in civilian clothes, interrogated them and Radmir Lalović and Dragomir Kanostrevac, among others, beat them with rifle butts.<sup>6386</sup> The men were detained in a small room while 22 other detainees were held in two other rooms, and some additional people in a fourth room.<sup>6387</sup> They did not have access to running water or toilets.<sup>6388</sup> The detention facility was controlled by the 'Serb army' and the witness heard that the warden at that time was Miloš Vojinović.<sup>6389</sup> The witness also saw Milorad Bojat at the camp and heard from other detainees that he later became a warden.<sup>6390</sup> According to a document titled 'Official Record' by the Rogatica SJB and dated 17 June 2004, the 'building of the former Nursery-garden' was within the competence of the police and the VRS in the period 'most probably' from mid-June

1499. Sveto Veselinović testified that, while a member of the municipal Crisis Staff, he worked in the Sladara building in Rogatica Municipality on a daily basis during May and June 1992, and, on his way home, he used to pass by Rasadnik, in Rogatica Municipality.<sup>6402</sup> The witness learned from his brother that both Serb soldiers and Muslim ‘prisoners’ were detained at Rasadnik.<sup>6403</sup> In late 1992, the witness’s brother, a judge, became engaged in investigations concerning this detention facility, and conducted interviews with both Serbs and Muslims for crimes committed in the municipality.<sup>6404</sup> Milovan Lelek testified that he visited the detention facility in Rasadnik on several occasions to interview members of his brigade detained there with Muslims because of discipline violations.<sup>6405</sup> The witness had no knowledge of any torture of detainees and testified that civilians who had not committed crimes were accommodated in Rasadnik, not detained.<sup>6406</sup> According to the witness, Rasadnik consisted of two buildings, a military remand prison building for the detention of soldiers, and a longer, bigger, reception centre building for civilians and elderly.<sup>6407</sup> The witness acknowledged that he never entered either of these buildings, and that the people he went to interview were brought out.<sup>6408</sup>

1500. Novica Andrić testified that he found out about the Rasadnik detention facility when he arrived in Rogatica in October 1992 to join the Rogatica Brigade.<sup>6409</sup> He served as a policeman/driver in the Rogatica Brigade and sometimes he drove soldiers who had violated military discipline to Rasadnik.<sup>6410</sup> By then, Rasadnik was the only detention facility in Rogatica for Muslims and Serbs.<sup>6411</sup> The warden was Vinko Bojić, a.k.a. 'Vili'.<sup>6412</sup> Until October 1992, security was provided by the MUP and in October security was provided jointly with, or exclusively by, the military police.<sup>6413</sup>

1501. According to the witness, there were two separate facilities at Rasadnik, a military remand detention and a collection centre, which had been moved from the Veljko Vlahović Secondary School to Rasadnik.<sup>6414</sup> When he was at Rasadnik, he could see the civilians, who were not locked up as opposed to the soldiers held in detention, moving in front of the pavilion in the courtyard.<sup>6415</sup> The POWs and the civilians were kept in different 'pavilions' but were, in the summer of 1993, included on the same lists of detainees to be exchanged.<sup>6416</sup> On 1 February 1993, the DK Command issued a list of POWs at the Rasadnik facility, which contained names of female Muslims; one woman being born, as stated in the column 'year of birth', in 1892.<sup>6417</sup> On 10 April 1993, the DK issued a larger list of 'captured persons of Muslim ethnicity' containing the same female Muslim names.<sup>6418</sup> According to the witness, the people at the Rasadnik facility were free to go but felt safer at the facility.<sup>6419</sup> During his few visits, he personally saw that the detainees were given the same food as the detention facility staff and the soldiers of the brigade.<sup>6420</sup> According to the witness, the conditions were the same for all individuals, regardless of age and ethnicity.<sup>6421</sup> The detainees mainly chopped wood for the kitchen and worked in the barn.<sup>6422</sup>

1502. The Trial Chamber notes that Novica Andrić and Milovan Lelek testified that Rasadnik included a collection or reception centre for civilians. They emphasised that civilians were not detained there. Similarly, Milenko Janković only referred to Serb and Muslim soldiers being detained at Rasadnik. This evidence is in stark contrast with the first-hand evidence from four former detainees that civilians were kept at Rasadnik against their will. The Trial Chamber considers that Andrić's evidence in this respect is only based on what he saw during a few visits, and how he interpreted what he saw. While Lelek and Janković claimed to have visited Rasadnik on several occasions, they acknowledged that they never visited the area or entered the buildings where people were kept. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber will rely on the consistent evidence of the four former detainees in this respect.

1503. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that between at least August 1992 and April 1994, Bosnian-Muslim male and female detainees of all ages were held at the Rasadnik detention facility for periods ranging from a few days to over a year. Although the Trial Chamber has not received any evidence on the total number of detainees, it finds that in August 1992, there were approximately 100 Muslims at the facility. The Trial Chamber notes that there were also Serb soldiers held separately at the facility, including Serb soldiers detained there for disciplinary violations. The Trial Chamber finds that the detainees had no access to running water, toilets, medical care, and had insufficient food.

1504. The building of the Rasadnik detention facility was within the competence of the police and the VRS as of June 1992, although the guards were members of the civilian police from Rogatica until October 1992. For at least part of the period until October 1992, Miloš Vojinović was the warden. Sometime in October or November 1992, the VRS took charge of the detention facility and it was guarded by members of the military police. Milorad 'Mile' Bojat was appointed warden in October 1992. In late 1992 he was replaced by Vinko Bojić a.k.a. 'Vili', a member of the VRS Rogatica Brigade (see the Trial Chamber's finding in chapter 4.11.1 Schedule C and unscheduled murder incidents; with regard to the VRS Rogatica Bigade, see chapter 3.1.2). The Trial Chamber finds accordingly that between June and October 1992, the SJB and the VRS, and after October 1992, the VRS detained people at Rasadnik detention facility and were responsible for the conditions at the facility.

1506. The beatings continued after the takeover by the VRS and worsened under Vinko Bojić. During the beatings, Bojić was assisted by his brother; and guards Branko Planojević; and 'Sorak,' all from the military police. Sometimes the beatings continued for days and were so severe that some detainees had to be carried back to their rooms and suffered permanent damage as a consequence. Bojić mistreated some of his victims with cigarettes and a hunting knife, broke their bones, pulled their teeth, jumped on them, made them swallow bullets, and ordered some of them to beat their own relatives. Assisted by Planojević, Bojić frequently raped female detainees and forced male and female detainees to perform sexual acts. The violence in the detention facility was often accompanied by the perpetrators shouting 'balijas', 'balija mothers', or 'ustašas'.

1507. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Unscheduled incidents

1508. In addition to Scheduled Incidents C.16.1 and C.16.3 discussed above, according to the Indictment the Accused is responsible for unlawful detention, torture, beating, abuse, rape, other acts of sexual violence, and subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to inhumane living conditions in other detention facilities in Rogatica Municipality.<sup>6423</sup> With respect to these allegations, the Trial Chamber has received evidence from Šefik Hurko, a Bosnian Muslim who was detained in the Rasadnik camp, Rogatica Municipality,<sup>6424</sup> about alleged detention at the Rogatica police station; documentary evidence as well as evidence from Mile Ujić, the President of the Executive Committee of the Rogatica Municipality from 1990 until March 1992 and Chief and acting Chief of Staff of the Rogatica Brigade from the beginning of May 1992 until the end of 1992,<sup>6425</sup> and Milorad Sokolović, President of the Rogatica Crisis Staff from April 1992 until 25 June 1992 and President of the Executive Board of the Rogatica Municipality from May 1992 until October 1993,<sup>6426</sup> and Sveto Veselinović, member of the SDS, and of the Crisis Staff of Rogatica Municipality,<sup>6427</sup> about alleged detention at the Sladara factory in Rogatica; and evidence from Đoko Razdoljac, Assistant Commander for logistics in the VRS Rogatica Brigade from the end of 1992 until the end of 1995,<sup>6428</sup> as well as documentary evidence about alleged detention at the Rogatica military reception centre.

1510. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 2 September 1992, Šefik Hurko's father, a Muslim detained in Rasadnik as found in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3, was held at the Rogatica police station. During his detention, several policemen, including Željko Bogdanović, and a former policeman, named Anđelko, questioned and beat him so severely that he could not move for 15 days. Hurko's father was brought back to Rasadnik camp on the same day. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Sladara factory

1511. Mile Ujić testified that Mehmed Agić, the commander of the joint TO before the war and the commander of the Muslim TO during the war, was detained at the Sladara factory.<sup>6437</sup> On 23 June 1992, Rajko Kušić, the Commander of the Rogatica Brigade, informed the SRK Command that Mehmed Agić, one of the founders of the TO, had been captured in Vragolovi.<sup>6438</sup> During a visit to the Sladara factory, Ujić saw that Agić was lying on the ground, blindfolded, and with his hands tied.<sup>6439</sup> Shortly thereafter, Kušić came into the room and told the witness to leave.<sup>6440</sup> Milorad Sokolović testified that the headquarters of the Rogatica Crisis Staff were in the Sladara malt factory.<sup>6441</sup> According to the witness, neither Mehmed Agić nor other people were ever detained or mistreated in the part of the factory where the Crisis Staff was headquartered.<sup>6442</sup> According to Sokolović, it was possible that Agić was kept in other parts of the building.<sup>6443</sup> Sveto Veselinović testified that when he was a member of the Rogatica Crisis Staff he worked in the Sladara building every day.<sup>6444</sup>

1512. The Trial Chamber finds that the evidence of Mile Ujić, with respect to Agić's detention at the Sladara factory, is not contradicted by Milorad Sokolović's evidence, as, according to Sokolović, Agić was not detained in the part of the factory where the Crisis Staff was headquartered. However, in accordance with Sokolović's evidence, it is possible that Agić was detained in other parts of the building. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that sometime after 23 June 1992, Mehmed Agić, the commander of the Muslim Rogatica TO during the war, was detained at the Sladara factory in Rogatica, under the authority of Rajko Kušić, the Commander of the VRS Rogatica Brigade (with regard to this brigade, see chapter 3.1.2). On at least one occasion, Agić was blindfolded and had his hands tied. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1514. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that from 28 July 1995 onward, 44 Muslims, including, referred to as ‘POWs’ by the VRS 1st Mountain Brigade, were held at the Rogatica military reception centre under the authority of the VRS 1st Mountain Brigade. The detainees included an imam and former president of the Žepa War Presidency, an electrical engineer and former president of the municipal executive committee, and a forestry engineer and former commander of civilian protection staff. The detainees were fed three times a day, had access to medical care, could use a field toilet, were registered by the ICRC, and the imam was allowed to pray. 4.11.3 Destruction of private and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites

1515. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for wanton acts of destruction of private property, including homes and business premises, and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites, listed in Scheduled Incident D.12, in Rogatica Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>6451</sup> In particular, the Indictment sets out that the Arnaudija and the Čaršija mosques, in Rogatica Town, and three mosques in the area of Vragolovi were destroyed at least between June and December 1992.<sup>6452</sup> The Defence argued that ‘Muslim extremists’ set on fire flats and houses during the initial departure of Bosnian Serbs from the municipality.<sup>6453</sup> The Defence further argued that the evidence points to the mosques of the municipality being destroyed while the territory of the municipality was under Muslim control, including two in Rogatica Town which were used for military purposes and destroyed during combat.<sup>6454</sup> The Defence also argued that the evidence does not establish that the VRS intended to destroy Rogatica’s non-Serb religious and cultural sites.<sup>6455</sup> The Trial Chamber will address the latter in its related finding in chapter 8. The Indictment, as far as the charge of destruction is concerned, is however not limited to the Scheduled Incidents.<sup>6456</sup> Accordingly, the Trial Chamber has not disregarded evidence falling outside the scope of Scheduled Incident D.12. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts 1136 and 1137 in relation to this charge. The Trial Chamber further received evidence from Witness RM-081, Alija Isaković, Witness RM-037, Elvir Pašić, and Armin Baždar, Bosnian Muslims from Rogatica Municipality;<sup>6457</sup> Šefik Hurko, a Bosnian Muslim who was detained in the Rasadnik camp from August 1992 through April 1994;<sup>6458</sup> Milenko Janković, a former member

1517. Witness RM-037 stated that from 22 May until at least August 1992 all of the Muslim houses in the villages around Rogatica Town, were burnt down without justification.<sup>6467</sup> According to the witness, the destruction of the Muslim villages was systematic and without justification because there were no Muslim military installations and no military resistance in the municipality.<sup>6468</sup> The TO had been disarmed, and the Muslims did not have weapons to organize resistance.<sup>6469</sup>

1518. By the end of 1992, more than ten mosques in Rogatica Municipality were destroyed by mines.<sup>6470</sup> They included the Rogatica Town mosque, the Arnaudija mosque, and three mosques in the Vragolovi area west of Rogatica Town, including the mosque in Vragalovi.<sup>6471</sup>

1519. With regard to the Arnaudija mosque in Rogatica Town, Witness RM-081 specified that it was destroyed at the end of June or the beginning of July 1992.<sup>6472</sup> While he was detained at the Veljko Vlahović school, the witness saw Danko Nerić, who wore a drab olive JNA uniform, and his brother passing by the school in a tank moving in the direction of one of the mosques, and then heard a couple of blows or knocks. Ten minutes later, the witness saw the tank return. In the afternoon, the brothers talked to a few people in the hall of the school. The witness's wife, who was present in the hall, told the witness that she heard that the mosque was partially destroyed. The next day, other people came to complete the destruction of the mosque.<sup>6473</sup> The witness assumed that the Čaršija mosque was destroyed when its district was cleansed in the latter part of July 1992.<sup>6474</sup> Isaković stated that the Serbs bulldozed the mosques in Rogatica Town to the ground.<sup>6475</sup> According to András Riedlmayer, the Arnaudija Mosque and the Čaršijska Mosque burned down, and their ruins were razed.<sup>6476</sup>

1520. Three witnesses provided additional evidence about the circumstances of destruction of the mosques in Rogatica Town. Milovan Lelek testified that these mosques were used for military purposes and that fire was opened from them. Muslim forces had a sniper nest on one mosque, where the Green Berets were formed. This mosque was destroyed by tank fire during fighting. Next to another mosque there was a machine-gun nest. This mosque was used by Muslim forces for storing mines and was destroyed by mortar fire when the machine-gun nest was targeted during fighting.<sup>6477</sup> Sveto Veselinović testified that on 29 or 30 July 1992, five or six days after the ‘armed Muslims’ left Rogatica, he entered the town and saw a machine-gun nest placed on the roof of a residential building 30 metres away from one of the mosques.<sup>6478</sup> Milenko Janković testified that a mosque, which was destroyed on 24 June 1992, was located in a part of Rogatica Town where the Serbian forces were not in control.<sup>6479</sup>

1521. With regard to the destruction of other religious monuments as well as private and public property in Rogatica Town, Witness RM-037 stated that the Muslim cemetery in Rogatica was destroyed during the war.<sup>6480</sup> Riedlmayer testified that the building hosting the chancery, historical archive, and library of the Rogatica Islamic community was burned in June 1992, resulting in the destruction of the entire library.<sup>6481</sup> According to the witness, the adjacent buildings were in good condition.<sup>6482</sup> According to Witness RM-081, the only Catholic church in Rogatica, which was located opposite the Veljko Vlahović school, remained intact.<sup>6483</sup> Mile Ujić testified that the church was located in Serb-controlled territory.<sup>6484</sup> He also testified that, when he entered the town on 23 July 1992, the synagogue was razed to the ground and burned.<sup>6485</sup> Ujić added that after the Serbs left Rogatica, Muslim extremists torched many private houses and flats, two cafés, a hotel, and the transformer station in Rogatica.<sup>6486</sup>

1522. With regard to Seljani village, Armin Baždar stated that, in the days following 3 June 1992, armed Serb soldiers in camouflage uniforms and SDS insignia, along with members of the White Eagles, came to the village and placed the witness and about 20 other inhabitants, who were mostly children, under house arrest until August 1992.<sup>6487</sup> The witness could tell from their accent that the members of the White Eagles were from Serbia.<sup>6488</sup> Some Muslim houses in the village were set on fire from May to August 1992.<sup>6489</sup>

1523. According to Riedlmayer, the Vezir Jusuf Mosque in Žepa was blown up on or after 25 July 1995.<sup>6490</sup> Đoko Razdoljac stated that he saw a VRS sapper unit blow up the mosque after the fall of the enclave.<sup>6491</sup> Houses in Žepa were burned.<sup>6492</sup>

1524. Concerning Mile Ujić's evidence on the perpetrators of the destruction of private and public property in Rogatica Town, the Trial Chamber finds his evidence to be vague and that he does not identify a basis of knowledge for his conclusions, in particular since it is unknown if he was present in the town at the time of these destructions. With regard to Milovan Lelek's evidence that the mosques in Rogatica Town were used for military purposes and that fire was opened from them, the Trial Chamber considers that this evidence lacks a basis of knowledge. Moreover, the Trial Chamber finds that his evidence is contradicted by the reliable testimony of Witness RM-037 and Witness RM-081, who were both present in the municipality during the take-over and who testified that there was no resistance or military installations in the municipality at the time. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber finds the evidence of Witness RM-037 and Witness RM-081 to be reliable with regard to the absence of resistance and military installations in the municipality during the take-over and has not relied on the evidence of Mile Ujić and Milovan Lelek in this respect.

1525. The Trial Chamber has considered Janković's evidence that Serb forces were not in control of the part of Rogatica Town where a mosque was destroyed. However, it considers that this is not determinative as to the perpetrator of the destruction, particularly considering that the reliable testimony of Witness RM-081 and an operative report of the Rogatica Brigade Command, in evidence as P312, indicate that there was no armed resistance in town.

1526. Consequently, the Trial Chamber rejects the Defence's arguments that Muslim extremists set on fire flats and houses and that some of the mosques were destroyed during armed fights.

1527. Based on the above, the Trial Chamber finds that from 21 May until August 1992, Serb forces targeted and burned down Muslim houses using flame-throwers and fired at shops, using tanks and APCs, in Rogatica Town. Serb areas of the town were left unscathed. Kušić's detachment, the VRS, and volunteer units from Pančevo and Zrenjanin, destroyed a house in town in July 1992. The Trial Chamber further finds that on 2 August 1992, Serb infantry set houses on fire in the Muslim village of Kozadre.

1528. The Trial Chamber further finds that Serb forces destroyed the Čaršija and the Arnaudija mosques in Rogatica Town, around the end of June and the end of July 1992, and three mosques in the Vragolovi area. Danko Nerić, a soldier wearing a JNA uniform, destroyed the Arnaudija mosque. Based on the Adjudicated Facts and the evidence, the Trial Chamber finds that these mosques were destroyed using different modes of destruction, including mining. The Trial Chamber further finds that Serb forces burned the building hosting the archives, the chancery, and the library of the Islamic community in Rogatica Town.

1529. The Trial Chamber also finds that a VRS sapper unit blew up the Žepa mosque after the fall of the enclave.

1530. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1531. The Trial Chamber finds that other mosques as well as Muslim houses and villages in the municipality, including in Tičijak, Mala Žepa, Biljino Polje, Pašić Kula, and Seljani, were burnt down or otherwise destroyed. The Trial Chamber has not received evidence concerning the perpetrators of these destructions and will therefore not consider these incidents further in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

1532. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for appropriation or plunder of property during and after take-overs, during arrests and detentions, and during or after deportations or forcible transfers of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Rogatica Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>6493</sup> The Defence argued that (i) paramilitaries, whose objective was looting, were active and problematic in Rogatica and deserted Muslim property was unfortunately plundered; (ii) there is no evidence as to who committed the appropriation or plunder of property and due to the departure of the alleged perpetrators from the area, it was impossible to follow up and discipline the individuals; and (iii) the Accused did not have any control over the alleged perpetrators due to the fact that they did not form part of the VRS structure.<sup>6494</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence from Witness RM-037, a Bosnian Muslim from the Muslim village of Kozadre in Rogatica Municipality;<sup>6495</sup> Šefik Hurko, a Bosnian Muslim who was detained in the Rasadnik camp, Rogatica Municipality, from August 1992 through April 1994;<sup>6496</sup> Alija Isaković, a Bosnian Muslim from Rogatica;<sup>6497</sup> Armin Baždar, a Bosnian Muslim from Seljani in Rogatica Municipality who was 15 years old in 1992;<sup>6498</sup> and Witness RM-081, a Bosnian Muslim from Rogatica Municipality.<sup>6499</sup> This evidence is reviewed in chapters 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 and 4.11.5.

1533. In addition, Witness RM-037 provided evidence about one specific incident. He stated that on 15 August 1992, he and other detainees were gathered into a room of the post office in a settlement called Gračanica. Radisav Ljubinac and another man, who was introduced by Ljubinac as a Serb from Zagreb and was called Macola, were present. Macola ordered the witness to undress, searched his pockets, and took all his money and valuables. According to the witness, Macola and Ljubinac also took things from the other detainees but he did not know what and how much. The detainees were also told that they should declare themselves loyal to the Serb state.<sup>6500</sup> from detainees. On this occasion, the detainees were also forced to sign papers stating that they had voluntarily converted to the Serbian Orthodox religion. The Trial Chamber will consider this incident in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1535. Between 9 or 10 June and 5 August 1992, the Muslim Alija Isaković and other detainees at the high school of Veljko Vlahović were ordered, by guards at the school to remove goods from apartments in Rogatica and load them onto trucks. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 that local Serbs under Rajko Kušić, civilian police, Serb TO, and paramilitary unit members guarded the camp. The evidence does not indicate the ethnicity of the owners of the goods. The Trial Chamber will therefore not further consider this incident in relation to any count of the Indictment.

1536. The Trial Chamber further finds that on 15 August 1992, in a room at the post office in Gračanica in Rogatica Municipality, 'Macola', in the presence of Radisav Ljubinac, took money and valuables from Witness RM-037, a Bosnian-Muslim civilian who was detained at Rasadnik at the time. On the same occasion, 'Macola' and Ljubinac also took unidentified items from other detainees of the Rasadnik camp. The Trial Chamber also finds that between August and September 1992, detainees from the Rasadnik camp, including the Bosnian Muslims Šefik Hurko and Armin Baždar, were forced by guards at the camp to take objects, including furniture, from Bosnian-Muslim houses in Rogatica, load them onto lorries, and unload them in Serb houses and flats. The Trial Chamber recalls its findings in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3 that between June and October 1992, members of the SJB and the VRS acted as camp guards. The Trial Chamber will consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.11.5 Forced labour and human shields

1537. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Rogatica municipality to forced labour, including digging graves and trenches and other forms of forced labour at front lines, and using them as human shields between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>6501</sup> The Trial

Chamber received evidence from four Bosnian Muslims from the Rogatica Municipality: Witness RM-037, from Kozadre;<sup>6502</sup> Witness RM-081,<sup>6503</sup> Armin Baždar, from Seljani who was 15 years old in 1992;<sup>6504</sup> and Alija Isaković, from Rogatica town.<sup>6505</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Mile Ujić, the President of the Executive Committee of the Rogatica Municipality from 1990 until March 1992 and Chief and acting Chief of Staff of the Rogatica Brigade from the beginning of May 1992 until the end of 1992,<sup>6506</sup> Milenko Janković, a former member of a Rogatica TO unit in Pješevica and former VRS soldier;<sup>6507</sup> Šefik Hurko, a Bosnian Muslim who was detained in the Rasadnik camp, Rogatica Municipality, from August 1992 through April 1994,<sup>6508</sup> and documentary evidence. Some of this evidence has been reviewed in chapters 4.11.1 Schedule B.14.2 and Schedule C and unscheduled murder incidents and 4.11.4.

1538. The Trial Chamber has received evidence with regard to detainees at two detention centres in Rogatica Municipality being forced to perform labour of different kinds. These detention centres are the Rasadnik camp and the Veljko Vlahović School. The Trial Chamber has dealt with them in chapter 4.11.2 Schedules C.16.1 and C.16.3. With regard to Rasadnik camp, Armin Baždar stated that during his ten-day detention, in the beginning of August 1992, Serb soldiers forced him and other men to carry out labour.<sup>6509</sup> The witness had to clean Muslim apartments in order to prepare them for Serbs moving into them.<sup>6510</sup> He also had to take furniture and belongings from Muslim apartments and bring them to Serb houses.<sup>6511</sup>

1539. Witness RM-037 stated that during his detention at the camp for six days in mid-August 1992, Radisav Ljubinac a.k.a. Pjano, who was dressed in a camouflage uniform, took him and other detainees to Rogatica Town to clean up shelling debris every day.<sup>6512</sup> On 15 August 1992, the witness and two other detainees named Asim Kapo and Edin Ćatić were taken to the Sladara factory, where they were ordered to unload a lorry full of cooking oil and sponges.<sup>6513</sup> The events of this day are described in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3.

1540. Šefik Hurko testified that the detainees at the camp were taken to work on a daily basis at least between 17 or 18 August and mid-September 1992.<sup>6514</sup> Usually the detainees would be taken to the main centre in Rogatica where they would be made to sweep the main street or take furniture from Muslim houses and load it onto lorries, which they would later unload in 'Serbian' houses and flats.<sup>6515</sup> They were also made to clear two mosques that had been razed to the ground.<sup>6516</sup>

1541. Hurko further testified that on 21 March 1993 the detainees of the Rasadnik camp were made to dig trenches in Trnovo, a village in the vicinity of Rogatica.<sup>6517</sup> In July 1993, he and ten other detainees were forced to search for bodies of fallen Serb soldiers during a period of three days. This incident is described in more detail in chapter 4.11.1 Schedule C and unscheduled murder incidents. Hurko testified that on 9 July 1993, Bojić took twelve detainees, including Šefik Hurko and Mirsad Omanović, a captured member of the ABiH, to the village of Starčići, where they were supposed to recover bodies of 17 Serb soldiers in a mined area.<sup>6518</sup> Bojić threatened the other detainees with a rifle, cursing their 'Balija' mothers.<sup>6519</sup> The detainees spent three days searching for the bodies of the fallen Serb soldiers.<sup>6520</sup> On 28 July 1993 he informed the ICRC that they were being taken to the confrontation line.<sup>6521</sup> From 1 April 1994 to 17 or 18 April 1994, the witness and other detainees were taken to Trovrh Hill where they were made to bring ammunition, food, and supplies up the hill and the injured down the hill.<sup>6522</sup> The witness estimated that hundreds of Muslims were working there.<sup>6523</sup> The witness further described when he and other detainees were brought to Gnila Hill to work in the forest.. Hurko further testified that sometime between 17 April and 27 April 1994, 10-15 detainees from the camp, including the witness, were brought to Gnila hill and instructed by Bojić to work in the forest.<sup>6524</sup>

1542. Armin Baždar and Šefik Hurko, as well as numerous witnesses, also provided evidence about the murder of a number of detainees from Rasadnik camp, shortly after some of these detainees had been used as human shields. The relevant evidence regarding these incidents has been reviewed in chapter 4.11.1 Schedule B.14.2. The alleged murder incident has been dealt with in that chapter and the alleged human shield incident will be dealt with below.

1543. With regard to the Veljko Vlahović School, Alija Isaković stated that during his detention there between 9 or 10 June 1992 and 5 August 1992, he and other detainees were ordered by ‘Chetniks’ to clean the streets of Rogatica, to clean the apartments of ‘Chetniks’, and to remove ‘stolen goods’ out of apartments and load them on trucks.<sup>6525</sup> Younger men were ordered to arrange sandbags for machine-gun nests on tall buildings.<sup>6526</sup> The Serbs took away men to be used as human shields.<sup>6527</sup> The witness believed that they were to be used to rescue a damaged Serb tank.<sup>6528</sup>

1544. Witness RM-081, who was detained at the school with his family for approximately three and a half months after 19 July 1992, testified that the detainees including the witness’s wife and his 13-year-old son, were ordered to carry out ‘forced’ labour for the ‘Serbian Army’: digging trenches for the Serb forces, carrying ammunition, arranging sandbags to make machine-gun nests, burying corpses, collecting garbage, etc.<sup>6529</sup> If the detainees did not work fast enough or did not carry out the work satisfactorily, they would be beaten, verbally abused, and threatened that they would be killed.<sup>6530</sup> The witness could not work due to the injuries he suffered from his beatings.<sup>6531</sup> Rajko Kušić, collected four or five Muslim detainees from the school and used them as a human shield to extract dead and wounded soldiers from a tank that had struck a mine.<sup>6532</sup>

1545. Milenko Janković testified in general terms that detainees collected firewood or worked on private farms in Rogatica and also worked about 200 metres away from the defence line. According to the witness, the detainees volunteered to work in order to receive clothes, cigarettes, and better food.<sup>6533</sup>

1546. With regard to Milenko Janković's evidence that detainees 'volunteered' to work in order to receive clothes, cigarettes, and better food, the Trial Chamber notes that it is not linked to a specific place or date. The Trial Chamber did not receive any further evidence on voluntary work by detainees in Rogatica Municipality. On the contrary, the Trial Chamber received reliable evidence from former detainees that they were ordered to work, and that they were beaten, threatened, and insulted before and during the work. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber will not rely on Janković's evidence in this respect.

1547. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that between the beginning of August and mid September 1992, detainees from Rasadnik camp were ordered to clean apartments and move furniture from Muslim into Serb homes. In the first two weeks of August 1992, the detainees were brought to Rogatica by Radisav Ljubinac to clean up shelling debris on a daily basis. On 15 August 1992, detainees were told by Ljubinac, Sinan Ćatić, and a Serb called 'Macola', to declare their loyalty to the Serb state. Later that day, three detainees from Rasadnik had to unload a lorry at the Sladara Factory. These and other detainees, in total at least 24 Muslim males, were brought by Ljubinac to the front-line in Duljevac, where Serb soldiers were present, their hands were tied behind their backs and they were used as a human shield by Dragoje Paunović, the Commander of the Kozići unit of the VRS Rogatica Brigade (see the Trial Chamber's finding in chapter 4.11.1 Schedule B.14.2; with regard to the VRS Rogatica Brigade, see chapter 3.1.2). At least two of the detainees were wounded.

1548. The Trial Chamber further finds that on 21 March 1993, detainees from Rasadnik camp were ordered to dig trenches in Trnovo, near Rogatica by guards. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3 that after October 1992, members of the VRS acted as guards at Rasadnik detention facility. Between 9 and 11 July 1993, twelve detainees, including one captured combatant, were taken out by Vinko Bojić, the warden of Rasadnik camp and a member of the VRS Rogatica Brigade (see the Trial Chamber's finding in chapter 4.11.1 Schedule C and unscheduled murder incidents; with regard to the VRS Rogatica Brigade, see chapter 3.1.2), and ordered to recover the bodies of 17 Serb soldiers in a mined area in Starčići. Bojić antagonised the detainees by calling their mothers 'Balija'. During the offensive on Goražde between 1 and 17 April 1994, more than 100 Muslim detainees were ordered to carry food and ammunition up Trovrh Hill. Between 17 and 27 April 1994, 10-15 detainees were instructed by Bojić to work in the forest at Gnila Hill.

1549. With regard to the incidents involving detainees from Rasadnik, the Trial Chamber also recalls its findings in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3 concerning the conditions of detention.

1550. The Trial Chamber finds that between 9 or 10 June and the end of October 1992, detainees at the Veljko Vlahović School were ordered to perform several different types of manual labour. The detainees, including a woman and a 13-year-old boy, dug trenches, carried ammunition, arranged sandbags for machine-gun nests, buried corpses, and cleaned streets and apartments. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 that local Serbs under Rajko Kušić, civilian police, Serb TO, and paramilitary unit members guarded the camp. Detainees whose work was not carried out to a satisfactory standard would be beaten and threatened with death. Between July and the end of October 1992, Rajko Kušić used four or five Muslim detainees as human shields in order to extract dead and wounded soldiers. In this respect, the Trial Chamber also recalls its findings in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 concerning the conditions of detention.

1551. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.11.6 Imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures

1552. The Trial Chamber finds that the Prosecution has presented insufficient evidence to prove this charge.

4.11.7 Forcible transfer and deportation

1553. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for forcible transfer and deportation of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Rogatica Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>6534</sup> The forcible transfers and deportations were implemented by the imposition of restrictive and discriminatory measures, arbitrary arrest and detention, harassment, torture, rape and other acts of sexual violence, killing, the destruction of houses and cultural monuments and sacred sites, and the threat of further such acts - all targeted at Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. Others were physically driven out.<sup>6535</sup> The Defence argued that in May 1992, many Serbs and Muslims moved out of Rogatica Town to its suburbs due to growing insecurity and shootings in the streets.<sup>6536</sup> It further submitted that members of the TO, the VRS, and the civilian police did not carry out forcible removal of Bosnian Muslims.<sup>6537</sup> It also submitted that Muslim civilians were given the choice to leave in the areas under the control of the VRS or to stay.<sup>6538</sup> Furthermore, the Defence argued that the individuals who reported to collection centres did so voluntarily and were escorted out of the municipality by the police for their safety.<sup>6539</sup> The arguments about the forcible nature of the displacement and departure of Bosnian-Muslims will be addressed more particularly in chapter 8.5.2. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this charge. It also received evidence from Alija Isaković, Witness RM-081, and Elvir Pašić, Bosnian Muslims from Rogatica;<sup>6540</sup> Mile Ujić, the President of the Executive Committee of the Rogatica Municipality from 1990 until March 1992 and the Chief and acting Chief of Staff of the Rogatica Brigade from the beginning of May 1992 until the end of 1992;<sup>6541</sup> Milenko Janković, a former member of a Rogatica TO unit in Pješevica and former VRS

1554. According to census data, in 1991 Rogatica had a total population of 21,976 people, of which 13,209 were Muslims and 8,391 were Serbs.<sup>6556</sup> Witness RM-098 stated that Rogatica Municipality was an area of strategic importance with significant roads between Serbia and Sarajevo.<sup>6557</sup> He also stated that Rajko Kušić accelerated the division of Muslims and Serbs in the municipality by issuing ultimatums to Muslim villages.<sup>6558</sup> He told them that if they handed over their weapons, they would be able to live there and their safety would be guaranteed.<sup>6559</sup> All those who failed to turn in their weapons would be expelled, arrested, or suffer the worst consequences.<sup>6560</sup> During March, April, right up until the first half of May and later on until 1 June 1992, Kušić disarmed Muslims in some villages of the municipality.<sup>6561</sup> Novica Andrić testified that in May 1992, during a meeting with the SDA representative, Ramiz Alajbegović, the Serb TO command requested in particular that the three Muslim villages of Mader, Kozići, Kopljevići, hand over their weapons to the Serb authorities.<sup>6562</sup> As Alajbegović refused, the TO command decided to carry out an attack on these villages.<sup>6563</sup> According to the witness, the villagers were warned beforehand by ‘Serbs’ and withdrew towards Pokrivenik and Kopljevići.<sup>6564</sup> Concerning the Muslim villages of Kozadre and Kramer Selo, Mile Ujić testified that he coordinated the artillery attacks on these villages, which he considered legitimate military targets as the villagers had failed to comply with the ultimatum asking them to surrender their weapons.<sup>6565</sup>

1555. According to Milorad Sokolović, already before the conflict broke out in Rogatica in May 1992, Muslims were leaving Rogatica in an organised manner and in large numbers, concentrating around the Kozići and Stijenice villages.<sup>6566</sup> Witness RM-098 stated that the civilian authority of Rogatica escaped to Kozići and formed a defence line there.<sup>6567</sup> Sokolović testified that in April 1992, the Muslims organized transportation to Sarajevo en masse using buses and passenger vehicles.<sup>6568</sup> He estimated that about 2,500 to 3,000 Muslims left Rogatica in this manner and of their own free will before 21 May 1992.<sup>6569</sup> After the conflict began, the small number of Muslims who had remained in Rogatica, organized by their own leadership, left towards Žepa and Goražde, among other locations.<sup>6570</sup> Ujić testified that some Muslims, residing in villages who had surrendered their weapons such as Šatorovići, stayed in their home and did not go to collection centres.<sup>6571</sup> The Crisis Staff provided them with the same quantity of food per capita as a person of Serb ethnicity.<sup>6572</sup> According to a New York Times article, Serb authorities put the remaining Muslim inhabitants of Šatorovići onto buses departing to Sarajevo in 1994.<sup>6573</sup> Milovan Lelek testified that the inhabitants of the village of Zahum asked Radivoje Planojević to contact the Municipal Assembly of Rogatica to have transportation provided for them as they were threatened by a neighboring Muslim village due to their loyalty to the Serbs. A bus was sent and they were taken to the collection centre in Rogatica.

1556. Ujić testified that following the killing of a Serb on 22 May 1992, clashes occurred on a daily basis in Rogatica.<sup>6574</sup> Both sides had several barricades, functioning as checkpoints, in Rogatica around 22 May 1992.<sup>6575</sup> Beginning on 22 May and for approximately seven days, Serb forces – including the VRS, Kušić’s men, and volunteer forces – shelled and, finally, took control of Rogatica Town and the surrounding villages.<sup>6576</sup> Witness RM-081 testified that the shelling of the town began without warning.<sup>6577</sup> Alija Isaković, who had received military training, testified that the firing involved mortars, anti-aircraft guns, tanks, artillery, and heavy machine guns.<sup>6578</sup> At the time, the Serb forces met resistance from only about 50 Muslims armed with light weapons.<sup>6579</sup> Elvir Pašić testified that there was no organized resistance in Rogatica but the Serb forces shelled the town continuously for about two days.<sup>6580</sup> Another witness, Witness RM-081 testified that there was no defence from the inhabitants of Rogatica, all of whom were unarmed.<sup>6581</sup> On 26 May 1992, Pašić heard bombing from aircraft targeting the villages located outside Rogatica in the direction of Višegrad where local Muslims had sought refuge.<sup>6582</sup>

1557. After the shelling, the Serbs ordered the Muslims to gather in the Rogatica Town’s central square.<sup>6583</sup> Serb police and others in olive-green camouflage uniform removed from their homes those who did not comply with the orders to go to the secondary school, proceeding to separate the men from the women and then beating the men.<sup>6584</sup> Isaković stated that the Muslim residents of the town hid in cellars in order to avoid death and capture.<sup>6585</sup> Serb tanks fired into the cellars and used dogs to force people out.<sup>6586</sup> The witness saw Serb soldiers carrying large liquid containers on their backs, with which they sprayed chemical into buildings, ignited it with incendiary rounds, and then captured the people escaping the flames.<sup>6587</sup> On one occasion, an earthquake, described as powerful by the witness, made the population leave their shelters, and as they gathered on the streets, the Serb firing and shelling intensified.<sup>6588</sup> The witness saw a young boy being killed and others being wounded.<sup>6589</sup> According to the witness, the visibility was clear and the crowd could not have been mistaken for a military target.<sup>6590</sup> Anyone pulling a trigger would have been able to see that they were firing at unarmed civilians, including women and children.<sup>6591</sup> Soldiers in JNA uniform, including a reserve JNA captain, demanded that the Muslim population sign a loyalty oath to surrender and move to the Veljko Vlahović secondary school, under the threat of being killed if they did not comply.<sup>6592</sup> The ‘Chetniks’ were also announcing that those Muslims who would come out of their hiding places would not be harmed.<sup>6593</sup> Pašić testified that a Serb announcement stated that the Serbs intended to ‘cleanse’ Rogatica of Muslim extremists and so-called Green Berets, allegedly consisting of 4,000 people.<sup>6594</sup> According to the witness, who was a former policeman in Rogatica, there were no Muslim military organizations or extremists in the area.<sup>6595</sup> After the shelling, a total of 2,500-3,000 Muslims assembled in the town square.<sup>6596</sup>

tanks and APCs fired at Muslim houses, shops, and mosques in Rogatica on a daily basis.<sup>6600</sup> Witness RM-081 testified that Serb forces would throw hand grenades into a house, then break down the door, and fire their automatic rifles and machine guns, killing anyone inside.<sup>6601</sup> Any survivors would be detained, and then the house would be set on fire by specialists with flame throwers.<sup>6602</sup> In particular, Kušić's detachment, the VRS, and volunteer units from Pančevo and Zrenjanin destroyed a house in July 1992.<sup>6603</sup>

1559. In May 1992 a group of 1,500-2,000 Muslims left Rogatica Town due to the intensified shelling. When the group arrived at the village of Vragolovi in Rogatica Municipality, there were approximately 5,000-6,000 displaced Muslims and refugees. In July 1992, 1,500 of these Muslims escaped to Goražde when Serb forces shelled Vragolovi. In August 1992, all but ten of the remaining refugees left the village for Goražde after having received a warning about another Serb attack.<sup>6604</sup>

1560. Sveto Veselinović testified that in May 1992, both Serbs and Muslims left the town and moved to its suburbs and 'further away', due to growing insecurity in the town and shooting in the streets.<sup>6605</sup> By the end of the war, there were almost no Muslims left in the municipality.<sup>6606</sup> Lelek testified that the Serb population and part of the Muslim population of Rogatica were evacuated towards Kopljevići, Koprivenik, and Goražde around 23 to 24 May.<sup>6607</sup>

1561. According to a combat report addressed to the Supreme Command of the Bosnian-Serb Republic, dated 23 May 1992, on 22 May 1992, a battalion of the Rogatica Municipal Assembly commanded by Rajko Kušić, together with the Military Police Company, conducted armed operations against enemy strongholds in the villages of Dub, Pokrivenik, Kopljevići, Kozići, and Čadovi, as well as against Pašić Kula, Rajs

Laze, and Rudo 2 settlement, and that the ‘enemy was crushed’.<sup>6608</sup> Šefik Hurko testified that Kopljevići and Rudo 2, a neighbourhood in Rogatica Town, were civilian Muslim areas.<sup>6609</sup> From May through August 1992, a police unit, under the command of Ramiz Alajbegović, operated in several Muslim villages of the municipality.<sup>6610</sup> According to Isaković, the Muslim villages surrounding Rogatica Town, among them Tičijak, Mala Žepa, Biljino Polje, and Pašić Kula, were burned down.<sup>6611</sup> A man from Pašić Kula told the witness that he saw ‘Chetniks’ burn down his house by spraying it with fluids and firing incendiary bullets at it.<sup>6612</sup>

1563. Pašić testified that on 22 June 1992, Rajko Kušić announced that Veljko Vlahović secondary school detainees with relatives in the ‘free zone’ would be transported there. On 27 June 1992, the people who had signed up to be transferred, with the exception of doctors, engineers, and mechanics, were put on buses and a few civilian trucks driven by individuals in military uniform and escorted by guards in military vehicles and were told that they would be transferred to Muslim-held territory. Approximately 280 detainees were transferred while about 50 remained in the camp.<sup>6617</sup> At around one kilometre away from the school, the convoy was stopped and men aged 18-60 were requested to get off the vehicles.<sup>6618</sup> Twenty-eight men, including the witness, left the vehicles and the witness heard that the remaining group was taken to Olovo, which was Muslim-controlled.<sup>6619</sup> Lelek testified that around 20 to 25 June 1992, the mostly Muslim civilian population was safely evacuated.<sup>6620</sup>

1564. Witness RM-081 testified that the cleansing operation conducted in Muslim areas of the town resulted in the destruction of a house in July 1992, which prompted him to flee to the centre of the town.<sup>6621</sup> On the way to the centre, he saw APCs and tanks, and heard announcements broadcast over a loudspeaker by Živojin Novaković, on behalf of the VRS Command, directing the Muslim residents of Rogatica without weapons to surrender themselves to the Veljko Vlahović School.<sup>6622</sup> Novaković told him that the school was too small to accommodate all the Muslims. Novaković was asked to let the Muslims go as the Serbs already had control of the town. He replied that he would ask command if this were possible, but later said that it would not be possible. Novaković further said that the town would be cleansed and anyone found in the town would be killed.<sup>6623</sup> Novaković added that the Muslims would have to stay in the school for only two to three days until the situation calmed down.<sup>6624</sup> The witness testified that he and his family left Rogatica in August or September 1993.<sup>6625</sup> With the help of a Serb friend, they hid for nine days and eventually managed to escape from Rogatica and reach Plužine in Montenegro.<sup>6626</sup> The Serb inhabitants started to return to Rogatica in March 1993.<sup>6627</sup>

1565. Ujić testified that on 23 July 1992, the Serbs entered Rogatica and pushed the Muslims out of the centre.<sup>6628</sup> On 1 August 1992, the Sokolac TO, then placed under the command of the SRK, fired at enemy firing groups in the mixed village Rakitnica.<sup>6629</sup> On 2 August 1992, a column of Muslims from Rakitnica withdrew from the mixed village of Borovsko under fire.<sup>6630</sup> They were under fire and accompanied by members of an ABiH unit returning fire.<sup>6631</sup> The Serb artillery, while not able to see the column, fired 82-millimetre mortars wounding two or three children subsequently left behind by the column and treated by the Serb military.<sup>6632</sup>

1566. Witness RM-037 stated that on 2 August 1992, Kozadre and the neighbouring predominantly Muslim villages of Kramer Selo, Dobrašina, and Borovsko were shelled.<sup>6633</sup> In the afternoon of the same day, Serb ‘infantry’ attacked Kozadre and houses were set on fire. The witness and his family, along with 30 women, children, and elderly people, consequently took shelter in the forest called Rudine. The attackers looted and burned the houses.<sup>6634</sup> The witness was later told that the ‘Chetniks’ killed a number of people during the attack of Kozadre.<sup>6635</sup>

1567. Milan Tupajić stated that around late May-July 1992, columns of Muslim ‘refugees’, mainly from the Drina valley, Rogatica, and Višegrad passed through Sokolac in buses.<sup>6636</sup> Once in Sokolac, those heading to Olovo were escorted by members of the Sokolac police station.<sup>6637</sup>

1568. Several witnesses provided evidence about exchange of detainees from Rasadnik camp. Isaković stated that after his wife had been separated from him on 5 August 1992 at the Veljko Vlahović School detention facility, he learned that she had been exchanged in Sarajevo.<sup>6638</sup> The witness further stated that at some point during his detention at the Rasadnik detention facility, Lazar Veselinović, a Serb investigating judge in the prison, informed him that he would be exchanged.<sup>6639</sup> From that moment, the witness's status had changed: he was examined by a doctor, his hair was cut by a barber, and he received a clean set of clothes.<sup>6640</sup> On 16 March 1993, the witness was exchanged for Danko Knežević near Bristol hotel in Grbavica.<sup>6641</sup> On the 'Chetnik' side, the exchange was carried out by a uniformed man who held the rank of a captain.<sup>6642</sup> Šefik Hurko testified that on 30 April 1994, he, alongside 11 other Rasadnik camp detainees and a large number of women and children, was transported to Kula to be exchanged.<sup>6643</sup> On 6 October 1994 he was exchanged at the Bratstva i Jedinstva bridge in Sarajevo.<sup>6644</sup>

1569. Novica Andrić testified that in the summer of 1993, he, together with the Rasadnik warden and Captain Zoran Čarkić, escorted a bus of civilians of Muslim ethnicity, including one man who had appeared on the 10 April 1993 list of 'captured persons' from Rasadnik to Zvornik where they were handed over by the latter.<sup>6645</sup> According to the witness, nobody forced them to go on the bus.<sup>6646</sup> The civilians and 'others' were supposed to be exchanged from Zvornik to Tuzla and let go to the Muslim controlled territory.<sup>6647</sup> 'Muslim authorities' did not allow the people to enter the Muslim-controlled territory and some people were sent back to Rogatica one or two days later.<sup>6648</sup>

1570. Milenko Rajak testified that some of the detainees from Rasadnik (see chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3) were later exchanged in Sarajevo following the approval of Rajko Kušić.<sup>6649</sup>

1571. The Trial Chamber has reviewed the evidence of Armin Baždar concerning scheduled incident B.14.2 in chapter 4.11.1 Schedule B.14.2. The witness stated that two days after reaching Bosnia-Herzegovina TO, following his survival of this incident, a Muslim soldier took him to Kopači, where he stayed with his uncle for two months.<sup>6650</sup> On 7 January 1993, he finally reached Sarajevo and joined his family there.<sup>6651</sup> The Trial Chamber has also reviewed the evidence of Armin Baždar concerning the incidents of forced labour in chapter 4.11.5.

1572. The Trial Chamber also received evidence of the transfer of people from Žepa in 1995. Milovan Milutinović testified that sometime in July 1995, he attended talks between Mladić, Muslim representatives of Žepa, and the Commander of the Ukrainian Battalion of UNPROFOR.<sup>6652</sup> VRS Main Staff Assistant Commander for Intelligence and Security, General Zdravko Tolimir, was also present.<sup>6653</sup> Upon a request from the Muslim representatives, it was agreed to organise the transport and departure from Žepa of the entire population and of the members of the brigade in Žepa.<sup>6654</sup> The Ukrainian Battalion Commander conveyed that the population of Žepa requested, upon their own free will, to be transported out of Žepa.<sup>6655</sup> They were guaranteed safe transport to the Federation of Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>6656</sup> On 13 July 1995, Tolimir informed the VRS Main Staff, and Mladić personally, as well as other VRS units that the ‘representatives’ from Žepa informed large number of the civilian population and soldiers that they would be allowed to leave or to stay in the Žepa area, if they surrendered their weapons and recognize the ‘Serbian authority’.<sup>6657</sup> Tolimir added that the VRS informed the Žepa leadership through UNPROFOR that the process of evacuation and the weapons surrender had to start at 9 a.m. on 15 July 1995 and that in case of non-compliance the VRS was planning to start with combat activities.<sup>6658</sup> On 14 July 1995, Tolimir informed the VRS Main Staff that the Muslim leadership in Sarajevo did not approve the evacuation from Žepa and that according to UNPROFOR intelligence the ABiH was ‘at the front’ and civilians were taking refuge outside the populated area.<sup>6659</sup> Tolimir

1573. Upon Mladić's request, the witness, dressed in uniform, was present in Žepa while preparations for the evacuation were taking place.<sup>6661</sup> The witness felt no ill will from the people, and nothing unpleasant happened.<sup>6662</sup> The witness worked with Captain Guduras, security officer of the 1KK, in using loudspeakers in Žepa to broadcast messages to the Muslim population, so that they would not put up resistance, and so that they would assemble in certain areas.<sup>6663</sup> According to the witness, when the population, escorted by UNPROFOR members, was leaving Žepa, Mladić entered a large number of buses, greeting the people and telling them that they had no reason to be afraid.<sup>6664</sup>

1574. Đoko Razdoljac stated that he had been tasked to secure, with the assistance of other municipalities, 50 to 60 buses and trucks for the evacuation.<sup>6665</sup> According to an order from the logistics sector of the VRS Main Staff to the assistant commander for logistics of the Rogatica Brigade, on 20 July 1995, 50 buses were to be secured for the transport of women and children, and one bus for the sick and wounded.<sup>6666</sup> The order further tasked the command of the Rogatica Brigade, assisted by units of the Drina Corps, to set up a team to collect and store assets and cattle, and record them as material assets obtained through regular supply and to report to the VRS Main Staff.<sup>6667</sup> Colonel Milisav Jovanović was in charge of the collection and pull out of the war booty on behalf of the VRS Main Staff.<sup>6668</sup> According to a request for mobilisation of motor vehicles from the DK command to sections of the MoD in nine municipalities, including

Vlasenica, Sokolac, Pale, and Rogatica, General Krstić requested the mobilisation of 21 trucks and 50 buses and ordered the concerned municipal organs to report with the vehicles 20 kilometre north-east of Rogatica on 20 July 1995.<sup>6669</sup> On 24 July 1995, an agreement was signed between Rajko Kušić and Hamdija Torlak and certified by Mladić about the disarmament of the able-bodied population in the enclave of Žepa.<sup>6670</sup> The agreement stated inter alia that: there be an immediate cease-fire; Avdo Palić would issue an order to his soldiers to move with the displaced population to ‘settled places’ to try to illegally cross over the territory of the Bosnian-Serb Republic; the civilian population of Žepa was to be enabled to freely choose their place of residence and the UNPROFOR, ICRC, and other international organisations, in cooperation with the VRS enable their transport to territory under the control of ABiH or to third countries of their choice; the able-bodied population of Žepa would be registered and accommodated in a holding centre under the control of the VRS and the ICRC up to the liberation of all VRS and Serbian detainees held in prisons in territory controlled by the ABiH under the command of Rasim Delić.<sup>6671</sup> Further, the agreement stated that all UNPROFOR members in Žepa were to be immediately released and ‘deblocked’ and that all weapons and equipment be returned to them so that they can act as intermediaries in the implementation of the agreement.<sup>6672</sup>

1576. To Milutinović's knowledge, all inhabitants and members of the brigade were transferred to the Federation of Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>6675</sup> Razdoljac stated that, as far as he knew, the negotiations resulted in the departure of people, in several buses, from Žepa to Sarajevo in July 1995.<sup>6676</sup> Following the evacuation of women and children, the ABiH remained in the Žepa area.<sup>6677</sup>

1577. On 27 July 1995, Jovica Karanović informed inter alia, Tolimir, and the Drina Corps Intelligence Department about the 'intentions of the Muslim forces in the Žepa enclave' and namely that they intercepted conversations referring to the 'first 30 buses with the Žepa Muslims on board went to Zenica'. Karanović further stated that the Muslims were very cautious with evacuation because they have no confidence in the agreement they made with the VRS. He added that the ABiH hoped to pull out all the civilians by 28 July 1995 and that after, they expected to evacuate members of the 1st Žepa Brigade of the ABiH.<sup>6678</sup>

1579. According to a letter from the security and intelligence organ of the Rogatica Brigade command addressed to the security administration of the VRS Main Staff and to the security department of the DK command, during the evacuation of the 'civilian' population from Žepa and separation of the Muslim military conscripts on 28 July 1995, men under the command of Lieutenant Matić seized money from Muslims during a 1580. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that in May 1992, due to intensified shelling, between 1,500 and 2,000 Muslims left Rogatica Town for Vragolovi, where there were already approximately 5,000 to 6,000 Muslims. By August, almost all of the Muslims in Vragolovi had left for Goražde due to shelling by Serb forces and a threat about another Serb attack (see the Trial Chamber's findings in chapter 4.11.3). Further, between 12 May and August 1992, Muslims left Rogatica Town and villages of the municipality, due to shooting, the shelling of Rogatica Town on 19 June 1992, and growing insecurity, stemming in part from Serb attacks on the Muslim villages of Mader, Kozići, and Kopljevići as well as on the villages of Borovsko, Kozadre, Kramer Selo, and Dobrašina. Some Muslims left for Pokrivenik and Kopljevići while others took shelter in a forest called Rudine. Around 26 May 1992, a Serb announcement stated that the Serbs intended to 'cleanse' Rogatica of Muslim extremists and so-called Green Berets, allegedly consisting of 4,000 people. Once the Serb forces had taken over Rogatica Town, Živojin Novaković said the town would be cleansed and that anyone found in the town would be killed.

1581. The Trial Chamber also finds that from late May to July 1992, Muslims, including some from Rogatica Town, were transported by bus to Olovo in Muslim-held territory under the escort of members of the Sokolac police station. In particular, on 27 June 1992, guards at Veljko Vlahović Secondary School in military vehicles escorted approximately 280 Muslims held at the school (see the Trial Chamber's findings chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1), with the exception of the able-bodied men, to Olovo. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1 that local Serbs under Rajko Kušić, civilian police, Serb TO, and paramilitary unit members guarded the camp. On 22 June 1992, Rajko Kušić had announced that the Muslims held at Veljko Vlahović Secondary School with relatives in the 'free zone' would be transported there.

1582. The Trial Chamber finds that, after his escape from Rasadnik camp in August 1992, one Bosnian Muslim from Rogatica Municipality stayed in Kopači for two months and eventually reached Sarajevo on 7 January 1993 to join his family. The Trial

Chamber also finds that in August or September 1993, following attacks on Rogatica Town and detention at Veljko Vlahović Secondary School (see the Trial Chamber's findings in chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.1), one Bosnian Muslim, together with his family, left Rogatica for Montenegro by his own means.

1583. The Trial Chamber finds that between March 1993 and April 1994, Bosnian Muslim male and female detainees at Rasadnik Camp were exchanged in Sarajevo. Some were exchanged for Serb detainees or transported to Zvornik, including some following the approval of Rajko Kušić. In the summer of 1993, the Rasadnik camp warden and Captain Zoran Čarkić escorted a bus transporting detainees to Zvornik. All of these exchanges were carried out by the VRS, in charge of Rasadnik between March 1993 and April 1994 (see chapter 4.11.2 Schedule C.16.3).

1584. The Trial Chamber finds that on 21 July 1993, one Bosnian-Muslim detainee from Batković camp, originating from Rogatica Municipality, was exchanged and taken to Croatia with the assistance of the Red Cross. This exchange was carried out by the VRS, in charge of Batković camp at the time (see the Trial Chamber's findings in chapter 4.2.2 Schedule C.2.1).

1585. The Trial Chamber finds that at the end of July 1995, Muslim women and children were transported from Žepa to Sarajevo by bus, upon a request from the Muslim representatives and following an agreement reached during talks with the VRS and UNPROFOR. Despite the existence of the agreement, the Muslim representatives requested from the VRS guarantees that, inter alia, the civilians would not be killed during their transportation out of Žepa. The transport was facilitated by the VRS and Mladić was present during the evacuation.

1586. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above incidents in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment.

1587. With regard to the evidence on the exchange and transfer to Croatia of 40 detainees and the transfer of 350 detainees to Tuzla, all from Batković Camp, on 21 July 1993, the Trial Chamber has not received evidence on their municipality of origin. Thus, the Trial Chamber will not consider this incident further in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

1588. The Trial Chamber will review the evidence related to the alleged Overarching JCE and, in particular, the Accused's alleged responsibility and his presence in Rogatica Municipality (some of which has been reviewed above) in chapters 9.2.2 and 9.3.

4.12 Sanski Most Municipality

4.12.1 Murder

Schedule A.7.1

1589. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of about 28 men between Begiči and Vrhpolje Bridge in Sanski Most Municipality on or about 31 May 1992.<sup>6685</sup> The Defence argued that (i) the alleged killings were committed by a ‘spontaneously formed disparate group of Bosnian-Serb individuals’; (ii) the Adjudicated Facts associated with this incident have been rebutted<sup>6686</sup>; and (iii) while there is evidence that a VRS officer was a perpetrator, he was not acting in accordance with any formal orders or within an organized military unit and therefore his actions were not foreseeable by the VRS chain of command.<sup>6687</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this Scheduled Incident. The Trial Chamber further received evidence from Adem Seferović, Rajif Begić, and Ahmet Zulić, all Bosnian Muslims from Sanski Most Municipality;<sup>6688</sup> Witness RM-015, a Bosnian Serb from Sanski Most;<sup>6689</sup> Witness RM-016, a Bosnian Serb from Banja Luka;<sup>6690</sup> Branko Basara, commander of the 6th Krajina Brigade from 29 October 1991 to mid-December 1992;<sup>6691</sup> Branko Predojević, a VRS officer;<sup>6692</sup> and Ewa Tabeau, a demographer and statistician;<sup>6693</sup> as well as forensic documentary evidence, and finds that this evidence does not rebut the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>6694</sup>

<sup>6686</sup> The Defence refers in particular to Adjudicated Facts nos 1143, 1165-1169, and 1190. The Trial Chamber notes that Adjudicated Facts nos 1143 and 1190 are not relevant to this finding and did not address the Defence’s argument in this regard.

1591. Rajif Begić testified that on 31 May 1992, soldiers, a few of whom the witness recognized as coming from the Kljevci area and who did not appear to be members of 'regular army forces', entered Kljevci.<sup>6697</sup> In particular, Bosnian-Serb soldiers entered Begići and rounded up its inhabitants.<sup>6698</sup> According to Begić, Begići was one of the hamlets that formed Kljevci village.<sup>6699</sup> Locals from Dizdarevici and Donji Begići were also rounded up and brought to Gornji Begići.<sup>6700</sup> Men were separated from women and children, and 20 to 30 of them were later taken towards the Vrhpolje Bridge, which spans the Sana River, where they were supposed to be put on buses.<sup>6701</sup> Begić testified that among the group taken to the bridge, two men were approximately 70 years old and one person was a child between 15 and 16 years old.<sup>6702</sup> Jadranko Palija, who was in charge of leading the column of men from Begići to the bridge, killed four Muslim men on the way there.<sup>6703</sup> Upon arrival, the other members of the group were ordered to take off their clothes and line up.<sup>6704</sup> They were also searched.<sup>6705</sup>

1592. Many Bosnian-Serb soldiers in different uniforms were present at the bridge.<sup>6706</sup> Begić testified that he recognized some of them.<sup>6707</sup> Some of the soldiers wore camouflage uniforms, some wore blue uniforms, some had 'Chetnik' insignia, and some wore regular waistcoats and jackets.<sup>6708</sup> The witness heard a man, whom he identified as Nenad Kaurin, say that they had to kill 70 Muslims that day because seven Serb soldiers had been killed in that area.<sup>6709</sup> The witness knew Nenad Kaurin to be a member of the reserve police force and he wore a blue police uniform with a blue cap.<sup>6710</sup> One soldier asked the members of the group who was good at jumping into the water and another Serb soldier, Marinko Ačimović, pointed at Midhet Cerić.<sup>6711</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that a paramilitary formation from Tomina, commanded by Živko Čeranić, was also present at the bridge.<sup>6712</sup>

1593. The Bosnian-Muslim men were beaten and ordered to jump off the bridge into the river one by one.<sup>6713</sup> Begić testified that, in particular, Nenad Kaurin ordered one man to jump in the water.<sup>6714</sup> Once in the water, the soldiers opened fire upon them killing at least 28 of them.<sup>6715</sup> Begić was ordered to open his mouth and Jadranko Palija put his automatic gun in it. The witness heard another soldier asking Palija not to kill him on the bridge so as to not make it dirty and that the witness should jump. The witness then jumped into the water and managed to climb out of the water under the bridge.<sup>6716</sup> When he heard the soldiers looking for him, he took his white shirt off and threw it into the river.<sup>6717</sup> As soon as the soldiers noticed the white shirt they started to shoot at it.<sup>6718</sup> The witness dived under the water and reached the bank 50-150 metres down the river, and hid in the bushes.<sup>6719</sup> From there, he could hear people groaning as the beatings continued.<sup>6720</sup> The bodies of the members of the group he last saw on the bridge were found in several locations, some in a grave under the bridge.<sup>6721</sup>

1594. Seferović stated that on his way to to the bridge, he heard shooting coming from the direction of it and upon his arrival, he saw many bodies lying in the river and the river banks.<sup>6722</sup> According to the witness, there were soldiers present.<sup>6723</sup> The commander of the 6th Krajina Brigade, Branko Basara, said that a group of 20 men, which Seferović was part of, was to be taken to Sanski Most police station.<sup>6724</sup> With regard to the other men, Seferović recalled Captain Kličković, a member of the TO, telling soldiers to ‘finish these’.<sup>6725</sup> Seferović stated that he knew the names of the high-ranking officers through his work in TO communications prior to the war.<sup>6726</sup>

1595. Witness RM-015 specified that the military police of the 6th Krajina Brigade, including Jadranko Palija, forced the Muslims to jump off the bridge and fired at them.<sup>6727</sup> He was not present at the bridge but did talk to some of those who had been present.<sup>6728</sup> Branko Basara testified that the killings were carried out by eight uniformed armed members of a paramilitary unit.<sup>6729</sup> The eight members of the paramilitary unit escaped towards the other side of the bridge in the direction of Ključ when they heard somebody shout that Basara was approaching the bridge.<sup>6730</sup> He recognized two people on the bridge, a person with the last name Mutić and a person with the first name Ilja, both escorts of Major Brajić and members of the 6th Krajina Brigade, but testified that he did not have any grounds for arresting them as he saw that both had their weapons on their shoulders.<sup>6731</sup> There was also a checkpoint near the bridge that was manned by armed men wearing either blue or camouflage uniforms.<sup>6732</sup> According to the witness, these men were not involved in the shooting at the bridge, they were in the shelters when the witness got out of his vehicle and ran towards the bridge.<sup>6733</sup>

1596. Branko Predojević testified that he recalled a big, dark-haired man named Jadranko Palija, 'not older than 25', who according to a certificate from the Sanski Most military post had been a member of a war unit of the 6th Krajina Brigade between 13 November 1991 and 13 July 1993.<sup>6734</sup> The witness indicated that Jadranko Palija was not amongst the soldiers who joined his unit on 7 April 1993 from SOS forces.<sup>6735</sup> According to the certificate from the Sanski Most military post, no criminal proceedings were being conducted against Jadranko Palija on 24 June 1994.<sup>6736</sup> Also, the witness did not recall the involvement of Jadranko Palija or his subsequent prosecution and sentencing to 28 years imprisonment by the Bosnia-Herzegovina state court in 2008 for his role in an attack conducted by VRS soldiers against the village of Kljevci in the hamlet of Begići and in the murder of 19 civilians, as part of the Vrhpolje bridge massacre, on 31 May 1992, as stated in a press release from the court of Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>6737</sup>

1597. According to Witness RM-015, in June 1992 every armed Serb in Sanski Most Municipality was directly or indirectly under the command of Colonel Basara. Those who were not directly under his control were directly under the control of his subordinate officers.<sup>6738</sup>

1598. According to Ewa Tabeau and forensic evidence, the remains of 29 bodies were exhumed from four sites in Sanski Most Municipality and subsequently identified.<sup>6739</sup>

1599. In relation to the Defence argument that the Adjudicated Facts relevant to this Scheduled Incident have been rebutted, the Trial Chamber notes that it received evidence identifying the specific perpetrators of the Scheduled Incident and considers that this evidence does not contradict the Adjudicated Facts and therefore rejects the Defence argument.

1600. With regard to the evidence of Witness RM-015 that every armed Serb in Sanski Most was under the command of Basara, without any further specific evidence, the Trial Chamber understands this to mean that Basara was the highest military commander in the area but not that every armed Serb was within the formal command structure.

1601. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on or about 31 May 1992, inhabitants of the village of Kljevci, including the hamlets of Donji and Gornji Begići, and of Dizdarevići were rounded up and men were separated from women and children. Men, commanded by Jadranko Palija escorted approximately 20 to 30 Bosnian Muslims towards the Vrhpolje Bridge. Jadranko Palija killed four of them on the way to the bridge. Upon arrival at the bridge, the Bosnian Muslims were ordered to take their clothes off, line up, then were searched and beaten. More men, wearing various uniforms, including blue and camouflage uniforms as well as men with insignia referred to as 'chetnik' were present at the bridge. The Bosnian Muslims were forced to jump off the bridge into the Sana river one by one. Once in the water, men on the bridge opened fire, killing at least 28 of the Bosnian Muslims, all male, and including a minor and two elderly people.

1602. With regard to the perpetrators of the killings, the Trial Chamber will not rely on Witness RM-015's evidence since he was not present at the bridge and his knowledge of the incident stems from a source he could not reveal. Branko Basara's testimony indicates that the Muslim men were killed by paramilitaries. He also acknowledged, however, the presence of members of the 6th Krajina Brigade on the bridge. The Adjudicated Facts do not specify the perpetrators of the killings of the men who were forced to jump from the bridge. Rajif Begić was an eye-witness to the crimes and named two of the alleged perpetrators: Nenad Kaurin and Jadranko Palija. As Basara was not present at the time of the incident, the Trial Chamber attaches less weight to his evidence on the perpetrators compared to that of Begić. The Trial Chamber finds that Nenad Kaurin and Jadranko Palija were among the perpetrators of the killings. Palija was a member of the military police of the VRS 6th Krajina Brigade and Kaurin was a member of the reserve police. Kaurin said that, prior to the killings, they were told that they had to kill 70 Muslims on that day because seven Serb soldiers had been killed in that area.

1604. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of a number of people in Hrustovo village on or about 31 May 1992.<sup>6744</sup> The Defence argued that it is impossible to conclude that the perpetrators were VRS members only on the basis of Witness RM-042's evidence.<sup>6745</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts numbers 1171 and 1177 in relation to this incident. It received

1605. Witness RM-015 testified that on 3 April 1992 the 6th Light Partisan Brigade returned to Sanski Most from Croatia and prepared the way for the takeover of the municipalities of Sanski Most and Ključ, which included ‘clearing’ the villages of Hrustovo and Vrhpolje.<sup>6750</sup> Witness RM-706 stated that Hrustovo surrendered all rifles and pistols on 30 May 1992, following a Sanski Most radio announcement made on behalf of ‘the Serbian republic’.<sup>6751</sup> Members of Witness RM-015’s unit, including 30 men under the command of Pero Vujković, were ordered by Captain Čolić, Commander of the 3rd Battalion of the 6th Krajina Brigade, to participate in combat operations on 30 and 31 May 1992 in Hrustovo and Vrhpolje.<sup>6752</sup> The following units were ordered to participate in these combat operations: the entire 6th Krajina Brigade, the paramilitary formations located in Lušci Palanka, Dabar, Klejevci, Tomina, Kozica, Podlug, and

Tramošinja, all subordinated to Colonel Basara for this attack.<sup>6753</sup> At this point, Colonel Basara's command post had been established at the Donja Tramošinja village which overlooked Hrustovo.<sup>6754</sup> After the members of Witness RM-015's unit returned from Hrustovo and Vrhpolje, Witness RM-015 learned from them that they were driven to a location called the 'tunnel' above Hrustovo and their task was to close the circle around Hrustovo and block the exit out of the village.<sup>6755</sup>

1606. Branko Basara testified that when the battalion commander entered Hrustovo village with his unit on 31 May 1992 he saw that two VRS soldiers had been killed at the entrance of the village and notified the witness immediately.<sup>6756</sup> The battalion did not know how many Muslim fighters were in that village but they had information that there was a Green Berets training centre in the Golaja woods.<sup>6757</sup> The VRS launched combat operations to enter the village after giving civilians a two-hour evacuation period.<sup>6758</sup> The witness testified that 'those who remained in Hrustovo would be the ones who wished to fight'.<sup>6759</sup>

1607. On 31 May 1992, as people from 21 households were forced to leave Jelečevići, a Muslim hamlet in the area of Hrustovo, about 30 women and children and one man took refuge inside a garage. Eight to ten Serb soldiers in camouflage uniform came to the garage.<sup>6760</sup> Witness RM-042 stated that through the garage's windows and its door, which was sometimes open, she heard the soldiers, who were searching houses in the village, speaking in a Bosnian dialect.<sup>6761</sup> Witness RM-706 stated that the soldiers in the village referred to themselves as 'the Serbian army'.<sup>6762</sup> Witness RM-042 heard shooting in the village and then soldiers started shooting at the garage door.<sup>6763</sup> The soldiers ordered the Muslims out. A man who tried to mediate was shot.<sup>6764</sup> Witness RM-042 stated that the man who was shot, Husein Merdanović, was unarmed and approximately 50 to 60 years of age. After being told about the shootings, Mitra was speechless. Mitra told them to remain there and went to the garage to see if there were any other survivors. He then came back with an infant and said that everybody else was dead.<sup>6769</sup> Witness RM-706 stated that on 1 June 1992, he found Nahid Keranović severely injured in front of a barn next to a house and Muharema Keranović as well as her two young daughters, Almina and Sabina, in front of a garage, all shot in the back and killed.<sup>6770</sup> Then he found that 27 people had been killed in the garage, either by shooting or by hand grenades.<sup>6771</sup> The witness took Nahid Keranović to his home, where he died.<sup>6772</sup>

1609. Witness RM-015 testified that, following the attack on Hrustovo, members of his unit entered the village and did not find any armed people or resistance; there were only women, children and a few men.<sup>6776</sup> Hidajet Dudić, whose son, Sejad, was killed during the operations, was arrested by Captain Čolić.<sup>6777</sup> According to the witness, the SDS had spread false rumours that the Muslims had multiple rocket-launchers in Hrustovo owned by Dudić.<sup>6778</sup> Witness RM-015 heard that members of the 6th Light Partisan Brigade, including Žarko Utješanović, a.k.a. ‘Pilot’, and Darko Cicić, perpetrated the ‘Hrustovo garage massacre’.<sup>6779</sup> Branko Basara testified that members of the Muslim armed forces, who were dressed in civilian clothing, died during combat and were later on buried without their weapons.<sup>6780</sup> Although the witness excluded the possibility that anyone who died during these events did not take part in combat activities, he acknowledged that he heard later on that there were people killed in the Merdanović garage in Hrustovo during these operations, among them women and children.<sup>6781</sup>

1610. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 31 May 1992, people from 21 households of Jelečevići, a Bosnian-Muslim hamlet in the area of Hrustovo, left their village in a group and approximately 30 Bosnian-Muslim women and children, and one man, Husein Merdanović, from this group took refuge inside a garage. Eight to ten soldiers came to the garage and ordered the people out. These soldiers were either part of the VRS’s 6th Krajina Brigade or a paramilitary formation, all under the command of Colonel Basara, commander of the VRS 6th Krajina Brigade. The paramilitary formations were located in Lušci Palanka, Dabar, Klejevci, Tomina, Kozica, Podlug, and Tramošinja. The Trial Chamber understands that the paramilitary group from Lušci Palanka was the one headed by Mićo ‘Kudra’ Praštalo (see chapter 4.12.1 Schedule

1611. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of approximately 18 men from Kenjari in the hamlet of Blaževići in Sanski Most municipality on or about 27 June 1992.<sup>6782</sup> The Defence argued that the killings were perpetrated by local Serb reservists.<sup>6783</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this incident. It also received evidence from Witness RM-028, a Bosnian Muslim from Hrustovo in Sanski Most municipality,<sup>6784</sup> Ewa Tabeau, a demographer and statistician,<sup>6785</sup> as well as documentary evidence, and finds that this evidence does not rebut the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>6786</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Witness RM-015, a Bosnian Serb from Sanski Most,<sup>6787</sup> Branko Basara, Commander of the 6th Krajina Brigade from 29 October 1991 to mid-December 1992,<sup>6788</sup> and Rajif Begić, a Bosnian Muslim from the village of Kljevci in Sanski Most municipality.<sup>6789</sup>

1613. According to Ewa Tabeau and forensic evidence, as the bones of the victims were only partly preserved, forensic experts could not give their opinion as to the direct causes of death except that all bones had been exposed to high temperatures.<sup>6808</sup> Three victims were under the age of 18 and three of the victims were older than 60 years old in 1992.<sup>6809</sup>

1614. Witness RM-015 testified that in June 1992, in Kenjari, the paramilitary force from Kljevci locked 19 Muslims up in a wooden barn in Kenjari, threw fire bombs into the barn and burned them to death.<sup>6810</sup> One of the perpetrators was Željko Karanović, while Milan Klepić was a witness but not an active participant.<sup>6811</sup> Branko Basara testified that four soldiers, after hearing that two soldiers had been killed during the attack on Hrustovo on 31 May 1992, carried out a crime near Kenjari. These soldiers executed 17 out of 18 Muslim men, who had earlier approached members of the 1st Battalion and said that they wanted to join them as combatants, and who were then held by the soldiers in a house near Kenjari under the order of the Commander of the 1st Battalion, Lieutenant Ranko Brajić.<sup>6812</sup> The witness testified that when Brajić found out about this crime, the four soldiers were arrested and handed over for further proceedings.<sup>6813</sup> The witness was not aware of what happened after these men were arrested.<sup>6814</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that Captain Ranko Brajić commanded battalions within the 6th Krajina Brigade.<sup>6815</sup>

1615. The Trial Chamber notes that Adjudicated Fact 1178 states that the individuals who carried out the killings were ‘local Serb reservists in olive-grey uniforms’ whereas Adjudicated Fact 1179 makes reference to ‘soldiers’. Witnesses RM-028 and RM-015 provided clarificatory evidence that the killings were perpetrated by Serb men from Kljevcı and that they were individuals, reservists, or paramilitaries who were under the command of Milorad Mijatović. These individuals were dressed in various uniforms including some with the ‘insignia of Serb army’ and some with the ‘uniform of reservists’. The Trial Chamber, therefore, considers given the differing uniforms of the individuals alleged to have carried out the killings and the fact that they were all commanded by Milorad Mijatović – who was in turn subordinated to the 6th Krajina Brigade under Branko Basara – that references to Serb soldiers, paramilitaries, or reservists is not inconsistent.

1616. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on or about 27 June 1992, Serbs from Kljevcı wearing olive-grey, camouflage uniforms and civilian clothing, who were under the command of Milorad Mijatović, including Željko Karanović, Nikola Balać, Miško Erak, and two Damjanović brothers, arrested approximately 20 Bosnian-Muslim men from the Bosnian-Muslim hamlet of Kenjari. Milorad Mijatović and his men from Kljevcı were subordinated to the 6th Krajina Brigade commanded by Branko Basara. The detained Bosnian-Muslim men had earlier approached members of the 1st Battalion to join them as combatants. The men under Mijatović took them before Vlado Vrkeš, the president of the SDS in Sanski Most, who told them that they had nothing to fear and that they would probably be exchanged. Mijatović’s men as well as Milutin (a.k.a. Mićo) Đukić and Rade Đukić, Željko Karanović, under the order of the Commander of the 1st Battalion of the 6th Krajina Brigade, Lieutenant Ranko Brajić took and held the Bosnian-Muslim men in a house near Kenjari in the Blaževići hamlet. Mijatović’s men, Milutin (a.k.a. Mićo) Đukić and Rade Đukić, Željko Karanović then killed at least 17 of the 20 Bosnian-Muslim men taken from Kenjari inside and outside the house using explosives and gunfire. After the killings, they moved the bodies of the victims killed outside back into the house and set the house on fire. When Lieutenant Captain Ranko Brajić found out about this crime, four soldiers were arrested and handed over for further proceedings. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 1 and 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Schedule A.7.4

1617. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of a number of people from the hamlet of Budin<sup>6816</sup>, Lukavica village in Sanski Most Municipality on or about 1 August 1992.<sup>6817</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of two Adjudicated Facts in relation to this incident.<sup>6818</sup> It also received evidence from Witness RM-001, a Bosnian Muslim from Lukavica in Sanski Most Municipality;<sup>6819</sup> and Ewa Tabeau, a demographer and statistician,<sup>6820</sup> as well as forensic documentary evidence, and finds that this evidence is partly consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>6821</sup> The Trial Chamber will further consider this evidence below. The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Witness RM-015, a Bosnian Serb from Sanski Most,<sup>6822</sup> Branko Basara, Commander of the 6th Krajina Brigade from 29 October 1991 to mid-December 1992.<sup>6823</sup>

1618. On 1 August 1992, a group of soldiers in olive-coloured uniforms with a red stripe pinned to their epaulettes came to Budim and broke into several houses.<sup>6824</sup> Budim was a hamlet of Lukavica which before 1992 was nicknamed ‘Alibegović’ because the majority of its Bosnian-Muslim inhabitants shared that surname.<sup>6825</sup> Witness RM-001 stated that there were about 200 soldiers and that they were commanded by a person called Mićo Praštalo, a.k.a. Kudra.<sup>6826</sup> He knew four of the soldiers to be from Palanka in Sanski Most Municipality.<sup>6827</sup> They led away 14 civilian

men.<sup>6828</sup> When the witness asked the soldiers if they would all be killed or beaten, they told him to go home and proceeded to walk towards the brook with the other men.<sup>6829</sup> The witness tried to seek refuge in a Serb neighbour's house but the man refused to give him shelter claiming they would both be killed if the army were to find them.<sup>6830</sup> As the witness was hiding in a bush, Kudra stopped in front of Simo Ševo's house and asked Ševo if 'everything was done'.<sup>6831</sup> The witness heard Ševo say yes.<sup>6832</sup> Later in the afternoon, the witness learned that the Serbs had shot and killed the 14 men that they had led towards the brook.<sup>6833</sup> When a Bosnian-Muslim villager asked to move the bodies to the cemetery, Dragan Praštalo gave him permission to do so but told him to wait until the next morning for the burial pending the approval of 'the command of the Crisis Staff in Fajtovci'.<sup>6834</sup> The witness further learned that the killings had been perpetrated by 'Chetniks' whom he did not know.<sup>6835</sup> The following day, Lučić conveyed to the villager the command's authorization to bury the dead in the presence of a local Serb, Branko Vukojević.<sup>6836</sup> The bodies of 13 of the men were found with bullet holes and severe wounds; one of the men survived.<sup>6837</sup> Five men moved the bodies with tractors and one noticed that the bodies, located in a concealed place along a brook, were black, were lying on top of one another in one location, and all had been shot.<sup>6838</sup> He also saw cartridges from automatic weapons.<sup>6839</sup> The belongings of the men had been taken away and their personal documents were missing.<sup>6840</sup> Lazo Ževo brought empty wallets and the personal documents of the victims to Dragan Praštalo and claimed they were dropped behind his house.<sup>6841</sup> The bodies were all buried in one grave and later exhumed by Bosnian authorities, monitored by the UNPROFOR.<sup>6842</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that Mićo 'Kudra' Praštalo was the commander of a paramilitary unit from Lušci Palanka.<sup>6843</sup>

1620. According to Witness RM-015, in June 1992 every armed Serb in Sanski Most Municipality was directly or indirectly under the command of Colonel Basara. Those who were not directly under his control were directly under the control of his subordinate officers.<sup>6846</sup>

1621. According to Ewa Tabeau and forensic evidence, the remains of 14 bodies were exhumed from the Lukavice mass grave in Sanski Most Municipality on 2 June 1997, and subsequently identified.<sup>6847</sup> The cause of death for all 14 victims was found to be from gunshot injuries.<sup>6848</sup> Adjudicated Fact no. 1183 states that the victims were between 22 and 60 years old.<sup>6849</sup> However, according to Ewa Tabeau and forensic evidence, five victims were older than 60 years of age in 1992.<sup>6850</sup>

1622. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.12.1 Schedule A.7.1 in relation to Witness RM-015's evidence that every armed Serb in Sanski Most was under the command of Basara.

1623. The Trial Chamber finds that Adjudicated Fact number 1183 is inconsistent with the evidence the Trial Chamber has received in relation to the number of victims and their ages. The Trial Chamber finds the evidence of Witness RM-001, Ewa Tabeau, and the forensic evidence to be sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts in this respect.

1625. With regard to the perpetrators of the killings, the Trial Chamber finds, based on evidence provided by Witness RM-015, that Mićo 'Kudra' Praštalo was the commander of the paramilitary unit from Lušci Palanka. The Trial Chamber found the reference by Witness RM-001 to 'soldiers' from Palanka under Praštalo's command to be consistent with this conclusion and accords with the first hand information Witness RM-015 had about Praštalo and his activities. The Trial Chamber did not rely on Branko Basara's evidence that the paramilitaries were from Budim Japra given the clear, detailed, and consistent information provided by Witnesses RM-015 and RM-001; Basara's basis of knowledge about the paramilitaries was not provided, he made no connection made between their activities and the killings in Budim, and he did not refer to the role of Mićo 'Kudra' Praštalo in the killings.

1626. The Trial Chamber will further consider the incident in relation to Counts 1 and 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1627. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of approximately seven men near the village of Škrļjevitā on or about 2 November 1992.<sup>6851</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts related to this incident. It received evidence from Grgo Stojić, a Croat from Škrļjevitā in Sanski Most municipality,<sup>6852</sup> and Nenad Davidović, the Chief of Medical Service in the 6th Krajina Brigade from June 1992 until the end of the war,<sup>6853</sup> as well as documentary evidence with regard to this incident, and finds that it is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>6854</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Tomislav Delić, a member of the 6th Krajina Brigade,<sup>6855</sup> and documentary evidence and finds this evidence to be partially consistent with the Adjudicated Facts and will address this evidence below.<sup>6856</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Branko Basara, commander of the 6th Krajina Brigade from 29 October 1991 to mid-December 1992,<sup>6857</sup> and Witness RM-016, a Bosnian Serb from Banja Luka.<sup>6858</sup>

1628. and the witness was hit by a bullet in his left upper arm and another in his hip, and he fell to the ground.<sup>6872</sup> He heard the shooting stop and then a call amongst the captors to run away, followed by the sounds of running.<sup>6873</sup> According to the witness, on 2 November 1992 there were no military operations in Škrleževita or in the area where the execution took place, nor any tanks or military vehicles close to the execution site.<sup>6874</sup> According to the minutes of a meeting of the executive committee of the Sanski Most Municipal Assembly of 10 November 1992, those killed were not extremists and the motive for killing them was said to be retaliation for fallen soldiers from Krihare.<sup>6875</sup> According to an SJB report of 30 November 1992 on the security situation in Sanski Most Municipality, ethnic vengeance was the most probable motive for the crime.<sup>6876</sup>

1630. According to Witness RM-015, in June 1992 every armed Serb in Sanski Most Municipality was directly or indirectly under the command of Colonel Basara. Those who were not directly under his control were directly under the control of his subordinate officers.<sup>6877</sup>

1631. The Trial Chamber received extensive documentary evidence concerning this incident. According to some of this documentary evidence, on 2 November 1992, Miloš Maksimović; Tode Vokić; Goran Vukojević, and Daniluška, a.k.a. Dane, Kajtez took part in a mass murder of Croats.<sup>6878</sup> The group set off for Glamošnica, the pass for Škrleževita village in Sanski Most Municipality.<sup>6879</sup> Kajtez had asked Vukojević to bring a weapon with him so that they would not be attacked.<sup>6880</sup> Kajtez and Vokić also carried

1632. A 6th Krajina Brigade Military Police Report of 7 December 1992 provides that Croatian villagers were ‘mass murdered’ in the village of Škrlejevita on 2 November 1992 by Daniluško Kajtez, Goran Vukojević (born in 1975), Miloš Maksimović, and Tode Bokić (born in 1977).<sup>6896</sup> An empty cartridge found at the crime site was found to match the light-machine gun taken from Kajtez.<sup>6897</sup> Branko Basara testified that his unit was not in the village of Škrlejevita but that a paramilitary unit would go from municipality to municipality.<sup>6898</sup> However, the witness signed a criminal report addressed to the Office of the Military Prosecutor about Daniluško Kajtez, nicknamed ‘Dane’, who he reported, among others, to have committed the crime of murder.<sup>6899</sup>

1633. On 7 December 1992, a Banja Luka Military Court Investigating Judge ordered that Daniluško Kajtez and Miloš Maksimović be detained.<sup>6900</sup> The ruling was based upon Kajtez and Maksimović admitting to having committed the crime of murder.<sup>6901</sup> Witness RM-016 testified that Kajtez, a soldier from the 6th Krajina Brigade, and Miloš Maksimović were placed in custody in relation to the killing.<sup>6902</sup> On 9 December 1992, the investigating judge of the Banja Luka military court in the case against four accused (Kajtez, Maksimović, Vukojević, and Vokić) regarding the killing severed the case against Goran Vukojević (17 years old at the time of the crime) and Todo Vokić (15 years old at the time of the crime) and passed the files relating to these two accused onto a judge for minors of the Sanski Most lower court for special proceedings.<sup>6903</sup> Witness RM-016 testified that units of the 6th Krajina Brigade, the 6th Krajina Brigade Command, and Vrkeš exercised pressure on the Banja Luka Military Court to release Kajtez from pre-trial detention.<sup>6904</sup> Kajtez was released back to his unit.<sup>6905</sup> Since the crime for which he was charged carried a minimum sentence of ten years or longer, Kajtez should have been required to remain in pre-trial detention.<sup>6906</sup>

1634. According to an indictment dated 2 June 1993, issued by the 1KK Military Prosecutor, Daniluško Kajtez and Miloš Maksimović were charged with the murders in Glamošnica on 2 November 1992.<sup>6907</sup> Stojić confirmed that during the trial he was not able to identify Daniluško Kajtez and Miloš Maksimović and they were acquitted on 13 December 2007.<sup>6908</sup>

1635. The Trial Chamber observes that Adjudicated Facts 1186-1187 states that Daniluško Kajtez was among the Bosnian-Serb paramilitaries claiming to belong to 'Šešelj's Army' who together executed the Bosnian Croats. Exhibit P369, a Banja Luka Military Court indictment against Kajtez and exhibit P373, a Banja Luka Military Court decision, and testimony from Witness RM-016, however, specified that Kajtez was a member of the 6th Krajina Brigade. The Trial Chamber finds the two exhibits and Witness RM-016's testimony to be clear, detailed, and consistent. The Trial Chamber finds that the Adjudicated Facts have been rebutted insofar as they relate to Daniluško Kajtez's affiliation. Further, the cited evidence provides a strong basis from which to conclude that Kajtez was a member of the 6th Krajina Brigade.

1636. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.12.1 Schedule A.7.1 in relation to Witness RM-015's evidence that every armed Serb in Sanski Most was under the command of Basara.

1637. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 2 November 1992, Bosnian-Serb forces claiming to belong to 'Šešelj's Army' searched, interrogated, and severely beat Bosnian Croats at the Glamošnica forest close to Škrljevitica in Sanski Most Municipality. Based on the forensic evidence that nine victims were found at the same location, the Škrljevitica forest, and killed on or about the same time, the Trial Chambers finds that nine victims were killed on 2 November 1992. All of the nine victims were Bosnian Croats and wore civilian clothing at the time of their deaths. The Trial Chamber further finds that there were four perpetrators and that Daniluško Kajtez and Miloš Maksimović, members of the 6th Krajina Brigade, were two of them. The Trial

Chamber finds that the second and third perpetrators were Todo Vokić and Goran Vukojević, who were minors at the time of the incident. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 1 and 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.12.2 Unlawful detention and cruel or inhumane treatment in detention facilities

1638. The Trial Chamber finds that the Prosecution has presented insufficient evidence to prove this charge.

4.12.3 Destruction of private and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites

1639. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for wanton acts of destruction of private property, including homes and business premises, and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites as set out in Scheduled Incident D.13, in Sanski Most Municipality between at least 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>6909</sup> In particular, the Indictment sets out that the following were destroyed between at least 12 May and December 1992: the Sanski Most Town mosque, the Pobjriježje mosque, the old and new mosques at Hrustovo-Kukavice, the Vrhpolje mosque, the Šehovci mosque, the Trnova mosque, the Stari Majdan (Palanka) mosque, the Stari Majdan (Utriška) mosque, the Dževar mosque, the Husimovci mosque, the Donji Kamengrad mosque, the Skucani Vakuf mosque, the Lukavice mosque, the Tomina mosque, the Čaplje mosque, and the Sanski Most Town Catholic church.<sup>6910</sup> Scheduled Incident D.13 is limited to the destruction of the aforementioned sites. The charge of destruction is, however, not limited to the Scheduled Incidents.<sup>6911</sup> Accordingly, the Trial Chamber has considered evidence falling outside the scope of Scheduled Incident D.13. The Defence argued that Adjudicated Facts 1161, 1188, and 1191 are rebutted.<sup>6912</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this charge.<sup>6913</sup> It also received evidence from Ahmet

1641. Ahmet Zulić stated that in May 1992, various units were present in and passed through the municipality.<sup>6929</sup> There were the SOS, the White Eagles, 'Šešelj's Chetniks', the military reservists as well as regular JNA forces.<sup>6930</sup> The SOS was in charge in Sanski Most; they were easily distinguishable from the other groups as they drove around in an old LADA car and wore olive-grey/olive-drab SMB uniforms without any specific insignia, in addition to a 'Chetnik' badge on their caps.<sup>6931</sup> Its members were mostly local Serbs and members of the SDS and they were commanded by Dušan Šaović, a.k.a. 1642. Zulić also knew that the 6th Krajina Brigade was operating in that area.<sup>6935</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that Colonel Basara strictly followed his chain of command and on this basis, the witness concluded that General Talić had authorised the attacks in Sanski Most and was familiar with the outcome of the attack.<sup>6936</sup> On 29 May 1992, the 1KK Command issued a report, signed by General Talić, to the VRS Main Staff concerning the combat situation which, according to Witness RM-015, demonstrates that regular VRS army units were engaged in the activities of 26-27 May and that General Talić was aware of them and may have authorised them.<sup>6937</sup> The report also states that ‘cooperation with the Bosnian-Serb MUP in mopping-up the terrain and confiscating weapons from illegal formations in the area of Prijedor, Sanski Most, and Ključ continues.’<sup>6938</sup>

1643. Witness RM-016 testified that in 1992, the civilian police and military authorities in Sanski Most were working in close cooperation.<sup>6939</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that on 20 May 1992, the Sanski Most Crisis Staff ordered the Serb TO staff to prepare an operation to disarm non-Serb paramilitary formations in Sanski Most Municipality.<sup>6940</sup> The Serb paramilitary formation in Podlug, received similar orders from the 6th Krajina Brigade.<sup>6941</sup> Witness RM-015 thus concluded that the Sanski Most Crisis Staff and 6th Brigade were cooperating in disarming non-Serbs, based also on the fact that Colonel Basara and Colonel Aničić were both members of the Crisis Staff.<sup>6942</sup> No efforts were made to disarm the Serb civilians.<sup>6943</sup>

1644. On or about 23 May 1992, Serbs threw a hand grenade into Bekir Delić's house.<sup>6944</sup> Delić reported the incident to the police, but no investigation was undertaken.<sup>6945</sup> On 24 May 1992, there were several explosions of non-Serb owned property around Sanski Most.<sup>6946</sup> The majority of the explosions occurred during curfew hours when only persons with permission were allowed out.<sup>6947</sup>

Destruction in Sanski Most Town

1645. In the evening of 25 May 1992, Sanski Most Town was shelled by Serb forces.<sup>6948</sup> In late May 1992, the town mosque in Sanski Most<sup>6949</sup> was destroyed by members of the 6th Krajina Brigade, and a parking lot was laid out on top of the mosque's cemetery.<sup>6950</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that Majkić and his squad blew up this mosque, once at the beginning of the conflict and then at a later time, laying mines under it so as to completely destroy it.<sup>6951</sup> András Riedlmayer testified that the site of the Town mosque was levelled and its rubble taken away in late 1992.<sup>6952</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence about the destruction of other religious buildings in Sanski Most Town. Riedlmayer testified that the chancery and archives of the Medžlis of the Islamic community of Sanski Most, as well as the Islamic library, all hosted in the vakuf located next to the Town mosque, were destroyed with the mosque.<sup>6953</sup> Prior to its destruction, in July 1992 the Roman Catholic church was vandalised and damaged by machine-gun fire.<sup>6954</sup> Serb forces razed the ruins of the church at the time of its

Destruction in Begići, Hrustovo, Vrhpolje, and Okreč

1646. At the end of May 1992, after calls for disarmament had been made, attacks were launched by Bosnian-Serb forces on the Bosnian-Muslim neighbourhoods and villages of Begići, Hrustovo, Vrhpolje, and some other small villages, including the hamlet of Okreč, which was predominantly Muslim.<sup>6960</sup> These attacks were planned well in advance by the army and the municipal crisis staff, and were carried out by the army acting jointly with the SOS.<sup>6961</sup> Heavy shelling from outside the targeted neighbourhoods or villages caused severe damage and killed people, forcing the inhabitants of these villages to flee.<sup>6962</sup> After the troops had entered the villages, a number of people who had not fled were killed.<sup>6963</sup> Houses were looted and people fleeing were dispossessed [sic] of the valuables that they were carrying with them.<sup>6964</sup> On 31 May 1992, soldiers arrived in the village of Begići, looting homes and setting houses and barns on fire.<sup>6965</sup> With regard to Hrustovo, Witness RM-706 specified that while soldiers searched the houses in Hrustovo on 31 May 1992, he saw the old mosque of Kukavice, a hamlet in Hrustovo, burning.<sup>6966</sup> Rajif Begić testified that as he approached the Hrustovo station on 31 May 1992, he noticed that all the houses were burning, the shooting was still going on, and some soldiers were resting, drinking, and cursing.<sup>6967</sup> Witness RM-028 stated that on his way from Blaževići to Tomina on 29 or 30 June 1992, he observed houses that had been burned down in the Muslim hamlet of Handanovići.<sup>6968</sup> The mosque in Hrustovo was destroyed in 1992 by the Bosnian-Serb forces.<sup>6969</sup>

1647. On 1 June 1992, the 1KK Command's daily combat report indicated that the units of the 1KK controlled Prijedor, Ključ and Sanski Most, although mopping up was still being carried out in some Muslim populated villages in Ključ and Sanski Most.<sup>6970</sup> Until 3 June, the only area that was not under Serb control was the Golaja forest in Vrhpolje village where there were approximately 180 armed Muslims.<sup>6971</sup> Witness RM-016 testified that Muslims from Vrhpolje were well-armed and had established their own military units.<sup>6972</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that on 8 June 1992 the Sanski Most Crisis Staff tasked the Civil Defence Staff, Nenad Davidović, and the 6th Krajina Brigade with the 'clearing up' of the Vrhpolje-Hrustovo theatre of operations and with the mopping-up any remaining Muslim groups or forces in the area.<sup>6973</sup> The VRS was ultimately in command of this operation under the command of Colonel Basara. A Serb paramilitary unit from Podlug was involved in the operation. The units were driven in civilian buses to the bridge over the river Sana and were each told by Captain Milovan Lazić which sectors they were to mop-up. The units were instructed to send any Muslim survivors to the check-point on the Vrhpolje Bridge. One unit was assigned the sector along the bank of the river Sana, and ordered that wherever they found one empty bullet case, they were to burn the house down. The commander of that unit did not convey this from the 6th Brigade, after artillery preparations, ‘in order to cause the enemy great human, material and technical losses’.<sup>6983</sup> The order asserted that the Croatian Defence forces, National Guard Corps, and Green Berets had joined up with ‘hostile villages and towns’ in Sanski Most municipality.<sup>6984</sup> Witness RM-015 believed this to be pure propaganda used to justify the attacks. According to him, Croatian Defence forces and National Guard Corps were not present in Sanski Most in 1992 and the ABiH had not even been formed in this area. The only Muslim forces operating were the Patriotic League who were not in Sanski Most, but primarily in Ključ. If armed groups were in existence, they were villagers trying to defend themselves. The witness testified that the second part of the order, namely that the Serbs managed to maintain control of the territory and organized the defence of Serb populated areas, was true.<sup>6985</sup>

On or around 25 May 1992, the 6th Krajina Brigade and the TO launched an artillery attack on the Muslim settlements of Mahala, Muhići, and Otoka.<sup>6986</sup> Branko Davidović testified that the SOS was also involved in the ‘mopping up’ operations in Mahala.<sup>6987</sup> Serb soldiers forced Mahala residents to gather at a training ground and then shelled the village and partially destroyed houses and the local mosque.<sup>6988</sup> Ahmet Zulić stated that some houses in Mahala started burning immediately after the launch of the attack.<sup>6989</sup> According to him, there were no legitimate military targets in Mahala.<sup>6990</sup> Witness RM-016 testified that Muslims from Mahala were poorly armed and were only in possession of hunting rifles and side arms.<sup>6991</sup> According to Davidović, there were no civilian casualties in Mahala, because there was no fighting, apart from some sporadic rifle fire in passing through and during the search of the area, which was finished in a few hours.<sup>6992</sup> Sakib Muhić stated that save for two streets, the entire settlement was

1651. On 26 May 1992, as stated by Ahmet Zulić, Serb forces attacked Pobrježje, a village located about two kilometres northwest of Sanski Most.<sup>6998</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that Pobrježje was a predominantly Muslim village.<sup>6999</sup> Zulić testified that after two shells were fired on private houses, the attack was announced on the radio.<sup>7000</sup> In mid-July 1992, there was again concentrated shelling on Pobrježje.<sup>7001</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that the Pobrje mosque was destroyed by Nikica Dobrijević and some 'drunken friends'.<sup>7002</sup> Riedlmayer testified that the Pobrježje mosque was destroyed in August 1992.<sup>7003</sup> Photographs taken after the war show that the ruins of the Pobrježje mosque were razed and the site levelled, except for the stump of the minaret destroyed by a blast.<sup>7004</sup>

Destruction in Čirkići, Skucani Vakuf, Trnova, and Šehovci

1652. Zulić testified that the Muslim villages of Čirkići, Skucani Vakuf, and Trnova were also attacked at the end of May 1992.<sup>7005</sup> Trnova was shelled from Đedovača, from the garbage dump, and from the stadium in Podlug.<sup>7006</sup> There was no response from the villagers, as they simply had nothing with which to fire back after they had surrendered all their weapons.<sup>7007</sup> More particularly, Riedlmayer testified that Serb forces mined and blew up the Čirkići mosque in August 1992, that the Skucani Vakuf mosque and its minaret were destroyed by a blast in 1992, and that the Trnova mosque burned in the summer of 1992.<sup>7008</sup> Photographs taken after the war show that the Čirkići mosque's minaret was shattered and toppled, a perimeter wall had partly collapsed, the mosque's façade had numerous projectile impacts and its interior was gutted and open to the sky.<sup>7009</sup> The Trnova mosque's roof and wooden minaret were gone, its interior gutted and open to the sky, and the front façade contained projectile impacts.<sup>7010</sup> The Imam's house next to the Čirkići mosque burned down.<sup>7011</sup>

1653. According to an SJB Report on the security situation in Sanski Most Municipality, during October and November 1992, there were armed attacks on the Muslim villages of Trnova, Šehovci, Skucani Vakuf, and Stari Majdan.<sup>7012</sup> The attacks were perpetrated by groups composed of six to 30 reservists, using infantry weapons, heavy equipment, such as 60 millimetres mortars, hand-held rocket launchers, grenades, and explosives.<sup>7013</sup> Bombs were thrown in the yards of houses belonging to Muslims and, on three occasions, explosive devices were planted in houses and facilities belonging to Serbs.<sup>7014</sup> In Trnova, explosives were thrown at homes belonging to

Muslims.<sup>7015</sup> Three mosques in Šehovci, Trnova, and Skucani Vakuf and a Catholic church in Stara Rijeka were blown up with a very large amount of explosives and mine.<sup>7016</sup> Some of the perpetrators, among whom were officers, were known to the SJB who recommended that the competent military organs and command deal with this matter.<sup>7017</sup> The operations were carried out to expel the Muslims from these densely populated villages.<sup>7018</sup> According to the report, some operations were carried out by local groups.<sup>7019</sup> The SJB patrols in the settlements could not prevent these attacks.<sup>7020</sup>

1654. Jakov Marić stated that when he passed through Šehovci on 29 June 1992, he saw that the town's mosque and most of the houses were destroyed.<sup>7021</sup> Riedlmayer testified that Serb forces destroyed the Šehovci mosque in October 1992.<sup>7022</sup> Photographs taken after the war show the roof of the Šehovci mosque had collapsed, its interior was gutted and open to the sky, the perimeter walls remained standing up to the roofline, and the base of the minaret, split apart by a blast, remained at the site.<sup>7023</sup> According to Riedlmayer, the buildings adjacent to the Šehovci mosque were in good condition.<sup>7024</sup>

Destruction in Čaplje, Lukavice, Kamengrad, and Tomina

forces.<sup>7025</sup> Riedlmayer specified that the Čaplje mosque was burned and its minaret blown up.<sup>7026</sup> In mid-1992, the SDS ordered the destruction of the Donji Kamengrad mosque.<sup>7027</sup> Mladen Majkić, a military engineer, was ordered by a member of the SDS to set explosives in the mosque.<sup>7028</sup> Witness RM-015 learned that Colonel Aničić, a member of the Sanski Most Crisis Staff, former JNA officer and Chief of the TO, had ordered Majkić, who was trained in the use of explosives, to set explosives at the Donji Kamengrad mosque. In mid-1992, Majkić destroyed the mosque with a team of Serbs who at that time were not part of the 6th Krajina Brigade and directly responsible to Colonel Aničić and the TO Staff. After the destruction of this mosque, Colonel Basara wanted to find the perpetrators and ‘bring them to justice’, which displeased the SDS.<sup>7029</sup> According to Riedlmayer, the new mosque in Donji Kamengrad was blown up.<sup>7030</sup> Photographs taken after the war show the Donji Kamengrad new mosque had collapsed, its roof and all but one perimeter wall were crushed, and only part of the damaged entrance façade and the domes on top of the collapsed roof remained.<sup>7031</sup> The Tomina mosque, as well as its minaret, was destroyed by a blast in July 1992.<sup>7032</sup> According to Riedlmayer, the buildings adjacent to the Tomina mosque were lightly damaged.<sup>7033</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that Čaplje and Kamengrad were predominantly Muslim villages.<sup>7034</sup>

Destruction in Kerani, Sasina, and Poljak

1656. On 1 June 1992, Witness RM-706 observed the mosque in Kerani partly damaged due to shelling.<sup>7035</sup> Marić stated that he heard that the Sasina Catholic church was blown up at the end of 1992.<sup>7036</sup> According to Witness RM-016, the Catholic church in the settlement of Poljak was destroyed, and no investigation took place.<sup>7037</sup>

Destruction of other religious buildings and sacred sites in the municipality

1657. The Trial Chamber received further evidence on the destruction of religious buildings and sacred sites from Riedlmayer. He testified that the Catholic church of St. Michael the Archangel in Kljevci was destroyed with explosives in September 1992, and that ‘Serb troops’ commanded by the VRS 6th Krajina Brigade commander, Branko Basara, mined the Roman Catholic Parish Church of Saint Anthony the Hermit in Stara Rijeka on 11 November 1992.<sup>7038</sup> Photographs taken after the war show the damage caused to these buildings: the Kljevci church’s perimeter walls were damaged, the gables had collapsed, and its interior was gutted and filled with rubble; the Stara Rijeka church’s steeple was destroyed and large holes could be seen in two of its façades.<sup>7039</sup>

1658. With regard to the perpetrators of some of the destruction, Witness RM-015 learned that Majkić and his team destroyed 14 mosques in Sanski Most Municipality, including the Šehovci mosque with TNT obtained from the JNA, under orders from Colonel Aničić.<sup>7040</sup> According to the witness, 18 mosques were destroyed in Sanski Most Municipality.<sup>7041</sup> Four other mosques were destroyed by ‘freelancers’.<sup>7042</sup> Branko Basara testified that all other mosques in the villages he came through had been knocked down except for the old mosque in Kamengrad, which was still standing, whereas the new mosque there had also been destroyed.<sup>7043</sup> Although the witness testified that he did not know who destroyed the mosques in Sanski Most, other than the mosque in Mahala, he testified that he knew that the perpetrators put masks on their heads, were equipped with machine guns and explosives, and would arrive in groups of 15 to 20 men and overpower the four guards the witness had appointed to secure the mosques at night.<sup>7044</sup> According to the witness, the religious facilities in the municipality were destroyed in agreement between politicians and the SOS forces.<sup>7045</sup>

1659. Witness RM-015 testified that on 27 May 1992, Kljevci was attacked by Mićo ‘Kudra’ Praštalo’s paramilitary unit from Lušci Palanka in cooperation with the battalions commanded by Captain Ranko Brajić of the 6th Krajina Brigade.<sup>7046</sup> In May or early June 1992, following a battle between the 6th Krajina Brigade and the Muslim forces at Golaja, Colonel Basara negotiated with the Muslim Captain Mir Avdić for the safe passage of 180 Muslim fighters. The SDS was furious with Colonel Basara for having let the Muslims go to Bihać instead of killing them. Colonel Aničić of the Sanski Most Crisis Staff ordered Mićo ‘Kudra’ Praštalo, the commander of the paramilitary unit from Lušci Palanka, to set up an ambush for the buses carrying the Muslim resistance fighters travelling on the road between Lušci Palanka and Bosansja Krupa and to kill them as they were being escorted by the Serbs.<sup>7047</sup>

The Trial Chamber’s findings

1660. In addition to the evidence discussed above, the Trial Chamber also received evidence from Riedlmayer on the destruction of other religious buildings in Sanski Most Municipality during the Indictment period.<sup>7048</sup> With regard to that evidence, Riedlmayer identified the perpetrators of some of the destruction, referring to them as ‘Serb forces’ or ‘Serb troops’. The Trial Chamber notes that Riedlmayer obtained his evidence for the dates and perpetrators of destruction from Husein-efendića Kovačević,

Head Imam of Sanski Most; Don Ivica Božinović, Chancellor of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Banja Luka; Izet Veletanjić, member of the board of the Islamic community of Bosanski Novi; and the Medžlis of the Islamic Community of Sanski Most. However, Riedlmayer's report and its annexes, including the database, do not contain information on how these persons and the Medžlis obtained this information and, consequently, whether there was a solid basis for the conclusions presented to Riedlmayer. For these reasons, the Trial Chamber has not relied on his evidence concerning the date of destruction and perpetrators of the destruction of these other religious buildings in the municipality.

1661. Concerning Witness RM-015's testimony on Mladen Majkić's involvement in the destruction of the Sanski Most Town mosque, Donji Kamengrad mosque, Šehovci mosque and the Roman Catholic parish church, the Trial Chamber finds it to be consistent with evidence received from witnesses Ahmet Zulić, Jakov Marić, Sakib Muhić, Witness RM-016, and Branko Basara. The Trial Chamber will therefore rely on Witness RM-015's evidence in this respect. With regard to Witness RM-015's evidence on the destruction of other mosques in the municipality, the Trial Chamber finds that it is vague in comparison to the other detailed evidence he provided on the destruction of religious buildings in the municipality. In particular, the witness does not identify the other mosques that he refers to as being destroyed. While the witness refers to four mosques being destroyed by 'freelancers', he does not list them all. He also states that 14 mosques were destroyed by Majkić and his team, bringing the number of destroyed mosques in the municipality to 18, which according to the witness was the total number of mosques in the municipality at the time. However, when calculating the number of mosques in the municipality on the basis of the evidence reviewed, the Trial Chamber found a higher number than the one provided by Witness RM-015. The evidence of the witness with regard to the destruction of the other 14 mosques is unclear and leaves considerable doubt as to which mosques the witness is referring. Therefore, the Trial Chamber finds that Witness RM-015's evidence is not reliable enough, as far as these other destructions are concerned, and will not rely on it in this respect.

1662. While Adjudicated Fact 1188 states that private property belonging to Bosnian Muslims were destroyed during the attack on Mahala, Basara testified that the burning and destruction of private property took place after the attack and the withdrawal of the 6th Krajina Brigade (see chapter 4.12.7). The Trial Chamber notes that Basara's testimony on this course of events contains internal inconsistencies. In particular, Basara testified that upon being fired at by mortars fire during the attack, the brigade's unit used all available weapons at their disposal and added that the village was shelled during the attack. Thus, the Trial Chamber finds Basara's testimony on the course of events described in Adjudicated Fact 1188 to be unreliable and not rebutting the latter. Therefore, it rejects the Defence's argument in this regard.

1663. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that at the end of May 1992, after calls for disarmament had been made, some by Dragan Praštalo, attacks were launched by Bosnian-Serb forces on the Bosnian-Muslim neighbourhoods and villages of Mahala, Muhići, Begići, Hrustovo, Vrhpolje, Čirkići, Lukavice, Otoka, and its hamlets and other small villages within the municipality. These attacks were planned well in advance by the VRS and the municipal crisis staff and were carried out by the 6th Krajina Brigade, commanded by Colonel Basara, acting jointly with the SOS. The attacks against Hrustovo and Vrhpolje were carried out in cooperation with paramilitary units subordinated to Basara; while the attacks against Mahala, Muhići, and Otoka were carried out in cooperation with the TO. Heavy shelling from outside the targeted neighbourhoods and villages caused severe damage, destroying some houses. Until 3 June 1992, at least, approximately 180 armed Muslims were in the Golaja woods near Hrustovo and Vrhpolje.

1664. Following the departure of the population of Mahala in late May 1992, the local police and the SOS set houses on fire. The perpetrators of the attack blew up houses in Vrhpolje and set houses on fire in Hrustovo. On 31 May 1992, they also set houses and barns on fire in Begići. Furthermore, on the same day, the perpetrators of the attack destroyed two mosques located in hamlets of Hrustovo: the old mosque in Kukavice burned and the Kerani mosque was shelled. They also destroyed the Lukavice mosque, shelled the new Hrustovo-Kukavice mosque, burned the Okreč mosque, and blew up the Mahala and Vrhpolje mosques. Due to discrepancies in Basara's evidence on the perpetrator of the destruction of the Mahala mosque whereby he attributed the destruction of the mosque to different perpetrators in a statement to the Prosecution and in court, the Trial Chamber will not rely on his evidence in this respect. Therefore, the Trial Chamber rejects the Defence's argument concerning the rebuttal of Adjudicated Fact 1161. The Trial Chamber will also not rely on Seferović's evidence of a mosque burning while he was in Merdanovići, as it is unclear as to which mosque he is referring. The Trial Chamber further finds that the Čirkići mosque was mined and blown up and the Imam's house next to the mosque burned down.

1665. On 26 May 1992, Serb forces including Nikita Dobrijević attacked the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim village of Pobrježje. Shells were fired on houses, and in particular one owned by a Muslim. Around that date, Nikita Dobrijević participated in the destruction of the Pobrježje mosque, after which the ruins of the mosque were razed.

1666. In 1992, Bosnian-Serb forces destroyed mosques in the predominantly Bosnian-Muslim villages of Čaplje and Kamengrad as well as in Tomina. The Čaplje mosque was burned and its minaret was blown up, and the Tomina mosque was destroyed with explosives.

1667. With respect to the destruction of a mosque in Kamengrad, the Trial Chamber finds that in mid-1992, Mladen Majkić and his team from the TO blew up the new Donji Kamengrad mosque pursuant to an order from Colonel Aničić, a member of the Sanski Most Crisis Staff and chief of the TO.

1668. From 12 May until late May 1992, members of the SOS, commanded by Dušan Saović a.k.a. Nunja, blew up properties and businesses owned by non-Serbs in Sanski Most Town. While Adjudicated Fact 1191 states that members of the 6th Krajina Brigade destroyed the Sanski Most Town Mosque, Witness RM-015 testified that Mladen Majkić and his TO unit were responsible for its destruction. The Trial Chamber finds Adjudicated Fact 1191 to be rebutted with respect to the perpetrator of the destruction of Sanski Most Town Mosque. The Trial Chamber will therefore consider the evidence it received concerning the destruction of that mosque, namely Witness RM-015's evidence. With regard to Witness RM-015's evidence on the destruction of the Sanski Most Town mosque, the Trial Chamber considered the witness's source of knowledge and refers to the confidential annex in Appendix D for more specific reasoning in this respect. Considering that Witness RM-015 testified before the Trial Chamber, that the Defence had the opportunity to cross-examine him, and that his testimony, as far as this incident is concerned, does not contain any internal inconsistencies, the Trial Chamber finds the witness's evidence reliable with respect to the perpetrators of its destruction. Thus, the Trial Chamber finds that in late May 1992, Mladen Majkić and his team from the TO blew up the Sanski Most Town mosque.

1669. With regard to the destruction of the Catholic church in Sanski Most Town, the Trial Chamber received divergent information from Jakov Marić, Ahmet Zulić, and Witness RM-015 with respect to the perpetrators and the date of the alleged destruction. The Trial Chamber will not rely on Marić's evidence on the date of destruction of the church as his knowledge is based on second hand information from an unidentified source. Furthermore, the Trial Chamber will not rely on Zulić's evidence on the alleged perpetrators of destruction in Sanski Most Town in 1992 with regard to this specific incident. The information he provided goes to the destruction of the town itself, and not the church. Concerning Witness RM-015, the Trial Chamber notes that the witness testified before the Trial Chamber, that the Defence had the opportunity to cross-examine him, and that his testimony, as far as this incident is concerned, does not contain any internal inconsistencies. Thus, the Trial Chamber finds the witness's evidence to be reliable with respect to the perpetrators of the destruction of this church and finds that Mladen Majkić and his TO unit destroyed the Catholic church in 1993 or 1994, after the attack on Sanski Most Town.

1670. In October or November 1992, a group composed of 6 to 30 reservists attacked the Muslim villages of Trnova and Skucani Vakuf. The Trial Chamber finds that the perpetrators of the attacks threw bombs in the yards of houses belonging to Muslims and, on three occasions, planted explosive devices in buildings belonging to Serbs. Furthermore, in Trnova, the perpetrators of the attack threw explosives at homes belonging to Muslims and blew up the Skucani Vakuf and the Trnova mosques. The perpetrators also blew up the Stara Rijeka Catholic church with explosives and mines.

1671. With regard to the Šehovci mosque, an SJB report, in evidence as exhibit P2506, mentioned that a group of reservists blew up the mosque while Witness RM-015 testified that Mladen Majkić and his TO unit destroyed the mosque. The Trial Chamber finds that the evidence of Witness RM-015 does not contradict the evidence in P2506 in so far as the TO units may have been referred to as reservists. Thus, the Trial Chamber finds that Mladen Majkić and his TO unit, pursuant to orders from Colonel Aničić, destroyed the Šehovci mosque with explosives in October or November 1992.<sup>7049</sup>

1672. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1673. With regard to Riedlmayer's evidence on the destruction of other mosques and Muslim and Catholic religious buildings in Sanski Most Municipality<sup>7050</sup>, and as explained previously, the Trial Chamber will not rely on the witness's evidence with regard to the date and perpetrators of these destructions. Furthermore, with regard to Witness RM-016's evidence on the destruction of the Poljak Catholic church, the Trial Chamber has not received any evidence on the date and perpetrators of the alleged destruction and will not consider it further. Thus, in the absence of additional evidence on the date and alleged perpetrators, the Trial Chamber will not further consider these incidents in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

4.12.4 Appropriation or plunder of property

1674. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the appropriation or plunder of property during and after take-overs, during arrests and detentions, and during or after deportations or forcible transfers of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Sanski Most Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7051</sup> The Defence argued that Adjudicated Fact 1188 is rebutted because the burning and looting of Mahala village in Sanski Most was committed after the VRS had left the area.<sup>7052</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts numbers 1143, 1188 and 1190 (reviewed in chapter 4.12.3). It also received evidence from Witness RM-015, a Bosnian Serb from Sanski Most;<sup>7053</sup> Ahmet Zulić, a Bosnian Muslim from the village of Pobriježje near Sanski Most;<sup>7054</sup> Witness RM-042, a Bosnian Muslim from Sanski Most Municipality;<sup>7055</sup> Witness RM-016, a Bosnian Serb from Banja

1675. Witness RM-015 testified that on 30 May 1992, the Sanski Most Crisis Staff ordered the TO to block the Mahala region for everyone except the authorized persons working on the cleaning of the area.<sup>7059</sup> The witness ‘learned later’ that Mahala had been looted and that this looting ‘was done under the command of’ non-commissioned officer Dobrivoje Ribić of the first company of the 1st Battalion.<sup>7060</sup> Ahmet Zulić stated that on or about 1 June 1992_all property in the village of Mahala that had not been damaged by the shelling was looted and taken away.<sup>7061</sup> Tomislav Delić testified that he saw ‘criminals’ from Banja Luka in SOS uniforms looting the deserted Muslim houses in Mahala.<sup>7062</sup> At the time of the fall of Sanski Most, the witness saw Arkan’s men in town.<sup>7063</sup> Arkan’s men robbed the Muslims of Sanski Most of their jewellery, money, automobiles, trucks, and other domestic appliances.<sup>7064</sup>

1676. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 31 May 1992, Bosnian-Serb forces entered the village of Begići and looted houses there. Considering that Begići was a Bosnian-Muslim village, the Trial Chamber finds that the property looted belonged to the Bosnian-Muslim inhabitants of the village. That same day, in Kljevci, about 100 Serb soldiers in olive grey-green uniforms and camouflage uniforms with red scarves and black armbands robbed 120 Bosnian-Muslim villagers they had taken to Kukavice of their jewellery and other valuables. The Trial Chamber understands from Witness RM-042’s evidence that the soldiers took these items, and that they were not returned to the villagers. The soldiers told the villagers that this was for their own safety so that no one could commit suicide. The Trial Chamber further finds that from 12 May through June 1992, the neighbourhood of Mahala was looted by the local police and the

Some looting was carried out under the command of non-commissioned officer Dobrivoje Ribić of the first company of the 1st Battalion. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.12.5 Forced labour and human shields

1677. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Sanski Most municipality to forced labour, including digging graves and trenches and other forms of forced labour at front lines between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7066</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence from Jakov Marić, a Catholic Bosnian Croat from Sasina in Sanski Most Municipality,<sup>7067</sup> which is reviewed in chapter 4.12.7, and Boro Tadić, Commander of the 1st Battalion of the 6th Krajina Brigade in 1992.<sup>7068</sup>

1678. Boro Tadić testified that he selected from the non-Serb population in Sanski Most those considered to be fit for various jobs and handed them over to, among others, the VRS.<sup>7069</sup> They were then used by the VRS to perform tasks at the front lines, which included digging trenches, carrying and delivering food and water, and chopping wood.<sup>7070</sup> From early September 1993 until October 1994, over a hundred Muslims were mobilised into ‘work obligation units’ and deployed to the battlefield.<sup>7071</sup>

<sup>7065</sup> In light of the Trial Chamber’s finding that the perpetrators of the plunder in Mahala were members of the local police and the Sanski Most SOS, the Trial Chamber will not further consider the Defence argument that the plunder in Mahala was not committed by members of VRS.

1680. With regard to Marić's evidence that in May 1992, non-Serb inhabitants of Sanski Most Municipality were required to perform various tasks without receiving any payment, the Trial Chamber has not received any evidence on who required the non-Serbs to carry out the labour in that period, and therefore will not further consider it in relation to any count of the Indictment.

4.12.6 Imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures

1681. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures on Bosnian Muslims and/or Bosnian Croats in Sanski Most Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7072</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this charge. It also received evidence from Witness RM-015, a Bosnian Serb from Sanski Most;<sup>7073</sup> Witness RM-028, a Bosnian Muslim from Hrustovo;<sup>7074</sup> Witness RM-016, a Bosnian Serb from Banja Luka;<sup>7075</sup> Ahmet Zulić, a Bosnian Muslim from the village of Pobježje near Sanski Most;<sup>7076</sup> Adil Draganović, a Muslim Judge, President of the Sanski Most Municipal Court, who was and detained in Manjača camp from 17 June 1992 to 14 December 1992;<sup>7077</sup> and Grgo Stojić, a Croat from Škrljevit, <sup>7078</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>7079</sup> The Trial Chamber further received evidence from Witness RM-001, a Bosnian

1682. In March and April 1992, Serb forces, including soldiers of the JNA 6th Krajina Brigade, and Serb police, erected checkpoints in the town of Sanski Most and around non-Serb villages where armed Serb forces checked the Muslims who went through.<sup>7082</sup> The crisis staff established a curfew prohibiting movement at night.<sup>7083</sup> Ahmet Zulić stated that as of April 1992, the checkpoints were manned by Serb members of the military police and that there were no longer any Muslims among them.<sup>7084</sup> At these checkpoints, Muslims were stopped and checked, while Serbs were allowed to pass without being checked.<sup>7085</sup> One checkpoint towards the Stari Majdan, on the Sanski Most-Prijedor road, was manned by the White Eagles or 'Šešelj's chetniks'.<sup>7086</sup> Witness RM-028 stated that only Muslims were checked.<sup>7087</sup> Zulić stated that during the second half of May 1992, the freedom of movement of Muslim inhabitants of Sanski Most was more and more restricted and they could not pass through the checkpoints.<sup>7088</sup> Witness RM-001 specified that at the end of May 1992, 'local Serbs' established four checkpoints on the main roads around the predominantly Muslim village of Lukavica, thereby preventing the villagers from leaving the village.<sup>7089</sup> These checkpoints were manned by 'local Serbs' and 'Martić's men', all wearing olive-grey or olive-green camouflage uniforms.<sup>7090</sup> In order to leave the village, Muslims had to obtain permission from Dragan Praštalo, who would then issue a certificate or assign a Serb soldier as an escort.<sup>7091</sup>

centre; others were put off from going to work by the treatment they received there, and were replaced with Serbs.<sup>7092</sup> Serb managers who had allowed Croats and Muslims to work in their companies were also dismissed.<sup>7093</sup> Witness RM-015 testified that this happened in April and May 1992 and that the municipal crisis staff in this respect implemented decisions of the ARK Crisis Staff.<sup>7094</sup> SDS president Vrkeš, accompanied by SOS members and the Serb police, forced out the Croat director of the municipal SDK, appointing a Serb in her place.<sup>7095</sup> Witness RM-016 testified that the dismissal of non-Serbs in the municipality continued during the summer of 1992.<sup>7096</sup>

1684. On 11 April 1992, Adil Draganović, the Muslim President of the Sanski Most Municipal Court, received a threatening letter signed by members of the White Eagles stating that he and the municipal deputy prosecutor, Enver Cerić, also a Muslim, were to leave Sanski Most by 15 May 1992 or their families would be harmed.<sup>7097</sup> Draganović stated that around 30 April 1992, the Muslim staff of the Sanski Most Municipal Court, including the witness, was not permitted to enter the court.<sup>7098</sup> A few days before 15 May 1992 offices of non-Serbs working at the courthouse were searched.<sup>7099</sup> On 15 May 1992, armed soldiers barricaded the courthouse and forced non-Serb employees, including the witness, out of their offices onto the streets.<sup>7100</sup> On the same day, the Muslim employees of the court were informed by the Serb police that they had to take mandatory leave.<sup>7101</sup> Vlado Vrkeš and a Serb judge read out a decision from the Serb Crisis Staff mentioning that they had to take the judicial authorities by force.<sup>7102</sup> Witness RM-016 heard that Vlado Vrkeš had said, at a meeting held in Sanski Most, that only loyal Serbs could be employed in the court in Sanski Most.<sup>7103</sup> Draganović was dismissed from his post and the judicial authority was transferred to the Serbs, upon

On 14 July 1992,<sup>2</sup> the Sanski Most War Presidency decided that Croat and Muslim pensioners, who did not have a certificate confirming their permanent residence in Sanski Most, would not receive their pensions until further notice.<sup>7107</sup> Croat and Muslim employees, whose war assignments did not envisage that they remained at their work posts in their companies, were considered to be on unpaid leave, whereas Serb employees were considered to be on paid leave.<sup>7108</sup>

1686. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that from 12 May to the end of May 1992, soldiers of the 6th Krajina Brigade; Serb policemen; local Serbs from Lukavica and persons described as Martić's men, both of whom wore olive-grey or olive-green camouflage uniforms; the White Eagles; and persons described as Šešelj's Chetniks, maintained checkpoints in and around the town of Sanski Most and around non-Serb villages. Only Bosnian Muslims were checked and during the second half of 1992 Bosnian-Muslim inhabitants of the municipality could no longer pass through the checkpoints, at least not without a special permission from Dragan Praštalo or with a Serb soldier as an escort.

1687. The Trial Chamber further finds that on 15 May 1992, the Sanski Most Crisis Staff implemented decisions from the ARK Crisis Staff and dismissed Muslim employees of the municipal court, including its president, and transferred judicial authority to the Serbs.

4.12.7 Forcible transfer and deportation

1689. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the forcible transfer and deportation of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Sanski Most Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7109</sup> The forcible transfers and deportations were implemented by the imposition of restrictive and discriminatory measures, arbitrary arrest and detention, harassment, torture, rape and other acts of sexual violence, killing, the destruction of houses and cultural monuments and sacred sites, and the threat of further such acts, which caused Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to flee in fear.<sup>7110</sup> Others were physically driven out.<sup>7111</sup> The Defence argued that: (i) the perpetrators of these alleged crimes were insufficiently identified and, in particular, that the VRS bears no responsibility; (ii) there was no evidence indicating that displaced persons were forcibly moved or moved across national borders and that evidence shows that some civilians were moved for their own safety; (iii) the displacement of the population was not intended to be permanent; (iv) people left the municipality voluntarily in fear of the general circumstances relating to the war; and (v) Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were extended as much protection as possible by the Sanski Most Municipality authorities and the VRS.<sup>7112</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts related to this charge.<sup>7113</sup> It received evidence from Witness RM-015, a Bosnian Serb from Sanski Most;<sup>7114</sup> Adil Draganović, a Muslim Judge, President of the Sanski Most Municipal Court, who was detained in Manjača camp from 17 June 1992 to 14 December 1992;<sup>7115</sup> Witness RM-042, a Bosnian Muslim from Sanski Most Municipality;<sup>7116</sup> Witness RM-016, a Bosnian Serb from Banja Luka;<sup>7117</sup> Jakov Marić, a Bosnian Croat from Sasina in Sanski Most Municipality;<sup>7118</sup> Edward Vulliamy, a journalist for the Guardian who 1690. According to the 1991 census in Bosnia-Herzegovina, the ethnic composition of Sanski Most Municipality was 28,136 (47 per cent) Muslims, 25,363 (42 per cent) Serbs, 4,322 (7 per cent) Croats, 1,247 Yugoslavs, and 1,239 persons of other or unknown ethnicity.<sup>7135</sup> Adil Draganović stated that the town of Sanski Most had a slight Muslim majority.<sup>7136</sup>

1691. In May or June 1992, Bosnian-Serb police were seen forcing people out of their homes in a Muslim area of Sanski Most.<sup>7137</sup> Witness RM-016 testified that around June 1992, Serb military police took out people from their homes in the Muslim neighbourhoods of Sanski Most and drove them away.<sup>7138</sup> Specifically with regard to Sasina, Jakov Marić stated that in May 1992 the inhabitants were not permitted to leave their village, all roads were closed, and Serbs had formed checkpoints above the village.<sup>7139</sup> The municipal assembly in Sanski Most allowed non-Serbs to leave if they could provide a written guarantee from their relatives or friends outside of Bosnia-Herzegovina. Those that were allowed to leave were required to sign a document that stated that they were leaving voluntarily and that their property was ‘signed off’. The ‘Serbs’ organized convoys which took people to different places. Those inhabitants who remained in Sanski Most Municipality had to carry out, and carried out, unpaid work for the ‘Serbs’. Such work included wood cutting, trench digging, carrying of ammunition,

1692. Branko Basara testified that on 26 May 1992, the 6th Krajina Brigade launched a disarming operation against Mahala after the inhabitants had been told that those who did not wish to fight should leave Mahala during a three-hour evacuation period.<sup>7141</sup> According to the witness, those who evacuated, including women, children, elderly people, and able-bodied men, were protected by the army and not mistreated.<sup>7142</sup> The witness claimed that after the evacuation, the Green Berets and forces from Golaja (see chapter 4.12.1 Schedule A.7.2) remained in Mahala. The units of the 6th Krajina Brigade were fired at and then the attack on Mahala began. The brigade used all weapons available to them and charged forward.<sup>7143</sup> The brigade shelled the village and as a consequence, civilians in Mahala died.<sup>7144</sup> During the night after the attack and after the troops of the 6th Krajina Brigade had withdrawn, private property in Mahala was burned and looted.<sup>7145</sup> The witness was sure that no one from his brigade engaged in the burning and looting of private property in Mahala.<sup>7146</sup>

1693. Witness RM-016 testified that the populations of Mahala and of the neighbouring Muslim area, Muhići, were ‘forcibly expelled’.<sup>7147</sup> According to Adil Draganović, people from the Mahala, Muhići, and Otoke neighbourhoods were expelled.<sup>7148</sup> Men were taken in different groups to Manjača camp.<sup>7149</sup> Ahmet Zulić stated that on 27 May 1992, he heard on the radio that the ‘regular army and reservists’ gathered the population of Mahala and Muhići at a soccer field located in Krkojevći and at a driving school training ground on the road to Ključ, respectively.<sup>7150</sup> On 29 May 1992, about 1,200 ‘refugees’ comprising women, children, and elderly people from

Mahala started to arrive in Pobrje. <sup>7151</sup> The Serb police used loud speakers to inform the refugees where they were supposed to go. <sup>7152</sup> On the same day, the Serb police escorted about 700 'refugees' to Stari Majdan, namely women, children, and elderly, as there was no space left anymore to shelter them in Pobrje. <sup>7153</sup> In Pobrje, the Serb police informed the 'refugees', using speakers, that they should gather near the cultural centre and that they would go to Jajce. They went to Jajce and were then brought back again; some to Pobrje and others to Stari Majdan. After three days, the Serb police made another announcement that the refugees should gather in Pobrje so that they could be taken to Velika Kladuša. Once, however, the refugees realized that they were to be 'expelled' they did not want to leave. The Serb police had organized buses and soldiers went from house to house, forcing the refugees out. Once the buses were full, the remaining refugees were chased across the river to the Krings company where new buses would arrive and take them to Velika Kladuša. According to the witness, the soldiers had five-coronet stars and were reservists and he knew that the 6th Krajina Brigade was operating in that area. <sup>7154</sup>

1694. On 27 May 1992, between 50 and 100 Serb soldiers surrounded the majority-Muslim village of Lukavica and ordered the village be evacuated for the purpose of searching the houses for weapons. <sup>7155</sup>

1695. Witness RM-042 stated that Hrustovo was composed of the following hamlets: Merdanovići, Keranovići, Jelečevići, Kukavice, Handanovići, and Zukići. <sup>7156</sup> Basara testified that as resistance was expected in Hrustovo, the 6th Krajina Brigade disarmed Muslims there on 31 May 1992, while the other villages adjacent to Sanski Most had already been disarmed by the TO and security services. <sup>7157</sup> In May 1992, after the shelling of Hrustovo, between 50 and 100 Serb soldiers escorted the survivors and around 200 inhabitants of neighbouring villages to the hamlet of Kljevci, where their valuables were confiscated. <sup>7158</sup> Witness RM-042 stated that the shelling happened on

31 May 1992.<sup>7159</sup> The survivors of the shelling included Muslim women and children.<sup>7160</sup> The witness, along with other survivors, fled to Kukavice.<sup>7161</sup> Upon arrival, the witness saw that all of the villagers had been gathered at a school and that the men were separated from the women and children. The Serb soldiers were dressed in olive grey-green uniforms or camouflage uniforms with red scarves or wearing black armbands. The witness heard shooting coming from other villages. On the way, the Serb soldiers said that they wanted to take women and girls from the group to rape them and that there was no use for them to be alive.<sup>7162</sup> Also on the way, the witness saw a mosque burning in Kukavice. The minaret was still standing. The witness heard gunfire around the mosque.<sup>7163</sup> In Kljevci, the 200 women, children, infants, elderly people, and the disabled persons were ordered to sit in a field where they were guarded by soldiers.<sup>7164</sup> The Serb soldiers told those who were in good condition to go to the church while the weak ones would be driven by trucks to Sanski Most.<sup>7165</sup> At the church, a soldier asked the group of 120 people to remove their jewellery and other valuables, and that this was for their own safety so that no one could commit suicide.<sup>7166</sup> Serb soldiers detained the villagers at various locations before transporting them by bus and train to Dobož, where they were ordered to find their way to Muslim-held territory.<sup>7167</sup> In Gračanica they were met by Muslim soldiers.<sup>7168</sup> About 15 days later, Witness RM-042 left Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>7169</sup>

1697. Nenad Davidović testified that between 20 and 24 May 1992, the Sanski Most Crisis Staff decided to guarantee safety only to ‘loyal citizens’.<sup>7173</sup> Around 24 May 1992, Colonel Basara issued a decree calling for Muslim and Croat citizens in Sanski Most to be expelled from the municipality forever.<sup>7174</sup>

1698. On 27 May 1992, Radio Sanski Most broadcast announcements stating that the departure of Muslims and Croats from Sanski Most Municipality would be made possible and asking interested persons to report to the municipality building on 1 June 1992.<sup>7175</sup> Another announcement mentioned that most women and children had fled Sanski Most.<sup>7176</sup> Another one indicated that the Sanski Most authorities would assist Muslims and Croats to move to another part of Bosnian-Herzegovina or a state of their choice, ‘where there would be no inter-ethnic division in order for all the three peoples to feel safe and secure in their areas’.<sup>7177</sup> Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were asked to move to a state they could be loyal to, as living with mutual hatred was ‘impossible’.<sup>7178</sup> ‘Refugees’ housed in various neighbourhoods of Sanski Most were asked to report with their belongings to Narodni Front Elementary School to be transported to new accommodations in Pobrježje and Stari Majdan.<sup>7179</sup> An announcement broadcasted on 27 or 28 May 1992 on Radio Sanski Most called on Muslims temporarily housed in Stari Majdan, Pobrježje, and Zdena to gather at the

1700. Davidović testified that the Sanski Most Municipal Assembly’s conclusion on moving the Muslim and Croat population was discussed in a Crisis Staff meeting on 8 June 1992 and subsequently issued by the Sanski Most Municipal Assembly on 14 August 1992.<sup>7186</sup> It stated that all persons who had expressed a wish to move out voluntarily would be allowed to do so as long as they had the required documentation, i.e. a telex guaranteeing them accommodation.<sup>7187</sup> It added that the first group of about 3,000 people was expected to leave on 18 August 1992 and Sanatrans was in charge of providing buses.<sup>7188</sup> Each departing household had to pay 1,000 dinars into the Sana Sanski Most solidarity fund giro account.<sup>7189</sup>

1701. Witness RM-016 testified that meetings of the ARK Crisis Staff in Banja Luka, which were attended by Rašula concerned, inter alia, ‘population issues’, including the expulsions of the non-Serb population.<sup>7190</sup> On 22 June 1992, the Sanski Most Municipality Crisis Staff was informed about the ARK Crisis Staff’s decision that every municipality in the region was to appoint a person responsible for matters relating to the removal and exchange of populations and prisoners, and that this person was to report to Vojo Kuprešanin of the ARK.<sup>7191</sup> The Crisis Staff of Sanski Most Municipality appointed Vlado Vrkeš for this purpose and established a five-member committee for population migration.<sup>7192</sup> On 2 July 1992, the Crisis Staff of Sanski Most Municipality decided that departure from the municipality would be granted to persons who had given a statement to the municipal authority that they were permanently leaving the municipality and who had exchanged their immovable property or surrendered it to the municipality.<sup>7193</sup>

1702. Between June and August 1992, in Sanski Most Municipality, Bosnian-Muslim representatives met with Bosnian-Serb municipal authorities and representatives of the SDS on several occasions, during which they requested that the Bosnian-Serb municipal authorities organize convoys so that Bosnian Muslims could safely leave the area.<sup>7194</sup> In June 1992, Besim Islamčević, a Muslim from Podbriježje, organized a meeting attended by Vrkeš during which a procedure for the departure of the Muslims was discussed.<sup>7195</sup> Muslims wishing to stay had to sign an oath of loyalty to the Serb authorities in the municipality.<sup>7196</sup> Duško Čorokalo testified that he was aware of civilian and military organs in Sanski Most launching an initiative in August 1992 that required Muslims and Croats who wished to stay in the municipality to provide a written request and a declaration of loyalty.<sup>7197</sup>

1703. Kirudja stated that on 19 August 1992, UNHCR and 'Civil Affairs' received a delegation of nine representatives, comprising both Serbs and Muslims from Bosanska Krupa, Prijedor, and Sanski Most, including: Vrkeš, the SDS President in Sanski Most; Dragan Majkić, the Police Chief of Sanski Most; and Besim Islamčević, the representative of Muslims and Croats willing to leave Sanski Most.<sup>7198</sup> According to Kirudja, the delegation intended to convince the UN to assist in the evacuation of up to

11,000 mostly Muslim people from Sanski Most and 8,000 from Prijedor.<sup>7199</sup> They handed over a printed list detailing 7,782 names of people allegedly ready to leave voluntarily.<sup>7200</sup> Islamčević said that those requesting evacuation did not want to be moved to another part of Bosnia-Herzegovina and that the Serb authorities were treating them fairly.<sup>7201</sup> Vrkeš claimed that non-Serbs feared ‘forcible developments’ and effects of war.<sup>7202</sup> He further explained that the Sanski Most authorities offered those people who wished to leave the possibility to sign a declaration, which stated that the signatories were leaving the area voluntarily, that they had no wish to come back to the area, and that they were leaving their property to the authorities.<sup>7203</sup> The process of offering such declaration for the people to sign was identical to the process employed in Bosanski Novi.<sup>7204</sup> He also claimed that historically, Muslims were not part of the region of Sanski Most. According to Kirudja, Vrkeš felt that Muslims and Croats posed a danger to Serbs. This feeling was consistent with the 30 July 1992 Decision from the Executive Committee of the Sanski Most Municipal Assembly which stated that there were currently 18,000 Muslims and Croats in Sanski Most Municipality and that ‘in order to avoid a danger to the Serbian people it is necessary to organise their voluntary resettlement.’<sup>7205</sup> During the 19 August 1992 meeting, the UNHCR representative specifically mentioned that the UNHCR would not assist with the removal of people but would rather assist people in the location of their present residence.<sup>7206</sup> These offers of assistance to help the people to stay in Bosnia-Herzegovina were ignored.<sup>7207</sup> Kirudja stated that the systematic nature of the whole process of ethnic cleansing was clear and that the population was not leaving voluntarily.<sup>7208</sup>

1704. Between the end of May and August 1992, around 3,000 Muslims and Croats left the municipality, and as of 16 August 1992 the SJB had approved the applications of

12,000 people, mostly Muslims, who wished to leave the municipality but had not been able to do so.<sup>7209</sup> According to a report by the Prijedor, Bosanski Novi, and Sanski Most SJB and the Commission for the Inspection of the Municipalities from 18 August 1992, about 3,000 persons had moved away from the municipality since the beginning of the armed conflict without applying to the SJB to ‘de-register’ their permanent residence in the municipality.<sup>7210</sup> In the last 20 days preceding 18 August 1992, about 12,000 persons, mainly Muslims but also Croats, had applied to Sanski Most SJB to ‘de-register’ their place of residence.<sup>7211</sup> Mirzet Karabeg stated that in 1992, non-Serbs who wanted to remain in Sanski Most or Banja Luka had to sign a ‘statement of loyalty’, or would otherwise be threatened.<sup>7212</sup> No one left the municipality ‘voluntarily’; the pressure to leave was great, whoever refused to sign over their property received threats that their homes would be blown up or that hand grenades would be thrown at them.<sup>7213</sup> On 2 July 1992, the Crisis Staff of Sanski Most Municipality issued a decision which stated that voluntary departure from Sanski Most was to be permitted to persons who gave a ‘statement’ to the municipal administrative body leaving their immovable property at the disposal of the municipality.<sup>7214</sup>

1705. Witness RM-016, Bekir Delić, Witness RM-001, Edward Vulliamy, Kirudja, Marić, and Karabeg provided evidence about convoys leaving the municipality during this period.

1706. Witness RM-016 testified that at a certain time, people were asked to report to the municipal authorities and register their intention to leave, and transportation to Travnik and Zenica was organized.<sup>7215</sup> Croats and Muslims left following the release of perpetrators of crimes against non-Serbs.<sup>7216</sup> Vrkeš told the witness that Muslims needed to be resettled away from Sanski Most so that the town could become a purely Serb town.<sup>7217</sup>

1707. Delić stated that two or three days prior to 5 or 7 June 1992, when he was released from his detention in the sports hall of the Sanski Most school, he saw a convoy of 12 buses, led by Nemanja Tripković, wearing a uniform, transporting hundreds of non-Serb ‘civilians’ out of Sanski Most to be exchanged in Jajce.<sup>7218</sup>

1708. In a meeting at the local Red Cross headquarters in Velika Kladuša on 19 June 1992 held between local UN representatives, the local Red Cross, and representatives of the displaced persons from Sanski Most, a representative of 850 displaced persons from Sanski Most mentioned that on 11 June 1992 in Sanski Most, guards under the direction of Davidović, the Commander of the Serb Crisis Committee of Banja Luka, forced a group of 850 Muslim women, children, and men above 60 years to get on buses, while threatening them with heavy guns. The buses travelled to Bosanska Krupa, where the people were forced to get off the buses and local authorities arranged further transport. On 12 June 1992, the group arrived in Velika Kladuša.<sup>7219</sup> The representative explained that all of the 850 people from Sanski Most wanted to return to their houses or, alternatively, be evacuated to Croatia.<sup>7220</sup>

1709. On 3 August 1992, Pero Maličević informed the 6th Krajina Brigade Command that ‘[t]he Muslim and Croatian populations are moving out on a massive scale. This, in our opinion, should be done selectively, in accordance with set criteria. There is a potential threat coming from those who are combat ready and likely to join the enemy’s ranks’<sup>7221</sup> Bosnian-Serb municipal authorities organised a convoy of approximately 2,000 Muslim men, women, children, and elderly that left for Travnik at the beginning of August 1992.<sup>7222</sup>

1710. Witness RM-001 was one of those leaving with the convoys. He testified that on 3 August 1992, one villager asked Dragan Praštalo if the women and children from the hamlet of Alibegovići could move to another village but Praštalo told him to stay in the hamlet until the next day.<sup>7223</sup> At night, Praštalo, Lučić and other men shelled Hajrudin Alibegović’s house, which was empty at the time.<sup>7224</sup> The witness and women and children from Alibegovići were allowed to go to the hamlets of Okrač and Došći two

1711. Vulliamy testified that on 17 August 1992 he saw a convoy in Prijedor Municipality.<sup>7231</sup> The convoy was escorted by armed guards he believed to be police units in light blue uniforms, with some wearing jackets of a darker blue colour.<sup>7232</sup> The people whom he spoke with in this convoy told him that they were from Sanski Most Town, south of Prijedor, and that they had been told to leave the town early that morning.<sup>7233</sup> Most of the people the witness spoke to did not know where they were going; it became clear to some people later in the day that the convoy was heading to Travnik.<sup>7234</sup> Based on his conversations with between 20 and 30 people in the convoy during that day and night, the witness believed that the people travelling in the convoy were not doing so voluntarily.<sup>7235</sup> The witness estimated that there were about 1,600 people in the convoy, travelling in 58 cars and approximately eight buses and trucks.<sup>7236</sup> The convoy moved through Banja Luka, took a turn off the main road into a hillier terrain, and passed by the town of Skender Vakuf.<sup>7237</sup> On the way, the witness observed several Serb 'gun positions' on hilltops, as well as trucks and people giving the Serb salute, spitting and shouting at the convoy.<sup>7238</sup> Passing the town of Vitovlje, he observed people running across the fields towards the column shouting something which he was told meant 'slaughter them', and using a term which applied to animals.<sup>7239</sup> As dusk fell,

they heard shooting over the top of the convoy.<sup>7240</sup> The convoy was stopped and the units accompanying the convoy to that point, which he believed to be police, went through the convoy taking property.<sup>7241</sup> The shooting increased as the convoy moved towards the front line at Smet.<sup>7242</sup> There, the police units left.<sup>7243</sup> The convoy then fell into the hands of what the witness described as ‘a different lot of people, some irregulars, and others in a sort of paramilitary uniform’, or ‘a fairly rough lot’ in ‘military, khaki camouflage’ uniforms.<sup>7244</sup> These groups pulled the people in the convoy out of their cars at gunpoint and drove the cars away.<sup>7245</sup> At this stage, the convoy consisted only of a few cars with the rest of the people travelling on foot.<sup>7246</sup> The convoy crossed the demarcation point marking the front line, and entered the village of Kozice, which was being shelled.<sup>7247</sup> The witness observed recently-shed blood on the road and stepped on a body part, which he believed was the result of mortar fire.<sup>7248</sup> Because of the heavy fighting in the valley into which the convoy had moved, they were told to move up Mount Vlašić.<sup>7249</sup> Across Mount Vlašić, the convoy was met by members of the ABiH who told them that they had arranged for buses to take them the rest of the way, welcoming them to Travnik.<sup>7250</sup> Facilities had been arranged for the arrival of the people from the convoy; these facilities were already packed with people the witness identified as civilians, including elderly people and children, and there was little space left.<sup>7251</sup> On the basis of the number of people gathered in Travnik, and the facilities that had been arranged for their arrival, the witness concluded that the arrival of convoys in Travnik had been a matter of regularity.<sup>7252</sup> The witness was told that at this point, there were already approximately 36,000 refugees in Travnik.<sup>7253</sup>

1712. During September 1992, convoys of thousands of Muslims left the municipality and they were forced to surrender their property to the municipality.<sup>7254</sup> Bosnian-Serb civilian and military police escorted a Travnik-bound convoy of approximately 2,500 Bosnian-Muslim men, women, children and elderly on 2 and 3 September 1992.<sup>7255</sup> Kirudja stated that well into September 1992, people seeking refuge from Prijedor and Sanski Most arrived daily in Dvor and that the UN estimated that between 30 and 50 people crossed the border into Dvor each day during this period.<sup>7256</sup> In September 1992, the witness still received reports from 'refugees' regarding 'ethnic cleansing' taking place in these municipalities.<sup>7257</sup> On 26 September 1992, the witness reported that the flow of small groups of refugees from Bosnia-Herzegovina had continued unabated.<sup>7258</sup>

1713. Marić stated that at the end of 1992, the Municipal Assembly in Sanski Most allowed non-Serbs to leave if they could provide a written guarantee from their relatives or friends outside of Bosnia-Herzegovina. Those who were allowed to leave were required to sign a document stating that they were leaving voluntarily and that their property was 'signed off'. The Serbs organized convoys which took people to different places. Inhabitants remaining in Sanski Most had to carry out unpaid work for the Serbs. Such work included wood cutting, trench digging, carrying of ammunition, and any other work required.<sup>7259</sup>

1714. Grgo Stojić testified that sometime after the first attack against Sanski Most Municipality around 27 to 29 May 1992, he heard announcements over the Serb radio in Sanski Most advising people to go to Room 26 in the municipality building if they wanted to leave the municipality.<sup>7260</sup> Those who stayed needed a permanent permit of residence which, according to the witness, was rumoured to protect that person from harm.<sup>7261</sup> The witness, his brother, and his mother received permission to leave on 21 September 1992, however they remained in Škrljevitica because their local representative was unable to organise a convoy.<sup>7262</sup> On 11 November 1992, the Croatian Office for

1715. Zulić stated that in December 1992, his wife decided to leave the municipality to ensure a safer life for their four children. In order to be allowed to leave, she first had to sign-off their house, its contents, their land, car and machinery, to the Serb resettlement authorities in Sanski Most. After she had paid 22,500 dinars for bureau expenditures and 175,000 dinars for transport costs, on top of the bus fare, the witness's family was allowed to 'resettle'.<sup>7265</sup>

1716. In 1992 almost all Muslims had left Sanski Most Municipality.<sup>7266</sup> Karabeg stated that from the end of 1992 until March 1995, people in four to five convoys consisting of five to ten buses each, were exchanged on an annual basis from Travnik to Turbe.<sup>7267</sup> Karabeg, in his capacity as President of the 'War Presidency', received these convoys himself and it was from the people in these convoys that he learned the details of the situation in Sanski Most.<sup>7268</sup> On 13 October 1995 only 575 non-Serbs remained in the municipality.<sup>7269</sup> Vinko Nikolić estimated that more than 8,000 Muslims and Croats continued to live in Sanski Most Municipality during the war.<sup>7270</sup> Boro Tadić testified that Muslims and Croats from all municipalities moved to areas controlled by their armies and where their ethnicities were in the majority.<sup>7271</sup> The people moved because of fear of the ensuing conflicts, the worsening of the general security situation, and the economic and social conditions.<sup>7272</sup> By February 1995, the MUP estimated that some 3,350 Bosnian Muslims and 1,050 Bosnian Croats remained in the municipality.<sup>7273</sup>

1717. Radoslav Daničić stated that considerable number of Muslims stayed in Sanski Most throughout the war.<sup>7274</sup>

1718. The Trial Chamber also received evidence about a number of people from Sanski Most Municipality who left, following their detention in facilities in the municipality or elsewhere, such as in Manjača camp in Banja Luka Municipality. For example, Karabeg, who was detained at Manjača camp, stated that on 31 October 1992, he was part of a convoy of detainees sent from Manjača camp to Travnik as part of an exchange.<sup>7275</sup> Sakib Muhić stated that detainees born prior to 1953, including himself, were released from Manjača camp already in November while others were released one month later.<sup>7276</sup> The witness left for Karlovac and then abroad.<sup>7277</sup> Enis Šabanović stated that as many as 1,400 detainees, including himself, were released from Manjača on 24 November 1992 and transferred to Karlovac.<sup>7278</sup> After a few days, he went abroad and only returned permanently to Sanski Most after 20 June 1996.<sup>7279</sup> Draganović, who also had been detained at Manjača camp, stated that the camp was closed on 16 December 1992 after international pressure.<sup>7280</sup> He travelled to Germany on 25 December 1992.<sup>7281</sup> Rajif Begić testified that together with others from his area, he was transferred from Krings camp in Sanski Most to Manjača camp in July 1992.<sup>7282</sup> Before that, his mother and youngest brother had been transferred from Krings camp to central Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>7283</sup> The Sanski Most SJB was responsible for the transportation of ‘POWs’ from Betonirka facility, Krings factory, and the sports hall to Manjača camp, and provided security and escorts for resettlement transports going to other areas.<sup>7284</sup> Around 18 August 1992, the Sanski Most SJB also provided security and escorts for the transport of people resettling in other areas.<sup>7285</sup> Begić stayed at Manjača camp until 16 December 1992, when he was released as the camp was disbanded and went to Karlovac with other detainees.<sup>7286</sup>

The Trial Chamber's findings

1720. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact 1207 which states that by the end of 1992 almost all Bosnian Muslims had left Sanski Most. The Trial Chamber received evidence from Daničić that a considerable number of Muslims stayed in Sanski Most Municipality throughout the war which contradicts Adjudicated Fact 1207. The Trial Chamber notes that: (a) Daničić's assertion about a 'considerable number' of Bosnian Muslims remaining in Sanski Most is ambiguous; and (b) in view of the proportion of Bosnian Muslims to the population of Sanski Most as a whole, the Trial Chamber is unable to assess, without further details, how many Bosnian Muslims would have been sufficient to constitute a 'considerable number' overall. Therefore, the Trial Chamber does not consider Daničić's evidence sufficiently reliable in this respect to rebut the Adjudicated Fact. The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Vinko Nikolić that some 8,000 Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats remained in the municipality during the war. The Trial Chamber notes that the witness: (a) could not provide any details, when cross examined, as to how many of those 8,000 were Bosnian Muslims; (b) had no basis for this figure other than it was a 'free estimate' that he had come up with 'spontaneously'; (c) was unable to justify the figure in light of other evidence presented to him indicating that the figure was significantly lower than he claimed. Therefore, the Trial Chamber does not consider Nikolić's evidence sufficiently reliable in this respect to rebut the Adjudicated Fact.

Policies of the Sanski Most Crisis Staff and actions of the VRS

1721. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that decisions of the civilian and military organs operating in Sanski Most from 20 May 1992 onwards called for the departure of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Sanski Most Municipality as demonstrated below and specifically as indicated by the decree of 24 May 1992 signed by Branko Basara as well as decisions and directions, such as requirements for oaths of loyalty, issued by the Sanski Most Crisis Staff.

1722. Vrkeš, President of the local SDS with responsibility for the removal and exchange of populations and detainees, stated that Muslims were historically not part of the Sanski Most region and needed to be resettled away from Sanski Most so that the town could become a purely Serb town. Announcements were broadcast on Sanski Most Radio declaring that the departure of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Sanski Most Municipality would be made possible and that interested persons were to report to the municipal authorities to register their intention to leave. The Trial Chamber recalls its findings in chapter 4.1.7 relating to the decisions of the ARK Crisis Staff in respect of the moving of people from the ARK territory. On 29 May 1992, the ARK Crisis Staff adopted a ‘family for family’ principle allowing Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to move out of the ARK on the condition that Serbs from outside ‘Serbian autonomous districts and regions’ were allowed to move into the ARK and the Bosnian-Serb Republic. The Sanski Most Crisis Staff required non-Serbs to pay, including fees or outstanding bills, or sign declarations handing over their movable and immovable property to the Bosnian-Serb Republic in order to leave the municipality. Those who were allowed to leave were required to sign a document that stated that they were leaving permanently and voluntarily.

1723. The Trial Chamber recalls its findings on destruction in the municipality (see chapter 4.12.3) with regard to the actions of the military organs operating in Sanski Most Municipality. The Trial Chamber finds that the VRS 6th Krajina Brigade, along with the TO and paramilitary groups including the SOS, carried out attacks and shelling campaigns in order to ‘mop up’ predominantly Muslim villages and hamlets pursuant to policies of the Crisis Staff and the SDS. The 6th Krajina Brigade, the TO, and paramilitaries carried out transfers and evacuations.<sup>7288</sup> Furthermore, heavy shelling from outside the targeted neighbourhoods and villages caused severe damage and killed people, forcing the inhabitants to flee.

<sup>7288</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence from Branko Basara that ‘expulsions and arrests’ of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats were carried out by paramilitary groups and the municipal authorities, and that the VRS did not take part. The Trial Chamber, however, received a large amount of reliable evidence demonstrating that the VRS was involved in a number of actions including transfers and evacuations. Therefore, the Trial Chamber does not consider Basara’s evidence, in this respect, to be persuasive and will not consider it further.

1724. The Trial Chamber also recalls its findings on murders, unlawful detention, destruction, appropriation or plunder of property and the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures in the municipality in chapters 4.12.1, 4.12.2, 4.12.3, 4.12.4, and 4.12.6.

Specific attacks in Sanski Most Municipality

1725. The Trial Chamber recalls its findings on the attacks on Mahala, Muhići, and Otoka, all Bosnian-Muslim neighbourhoods of Sanski Most Town, on 26 and 27 May 1992 (see chapter 4.12.3) and finds that the 6th Krajina Brigade made inhabitants of these neighbourhoods leave their homes. The Trial Chamber finds that the inhabitants of Mahala were told by the 6th Krajina Brigade that those who did not wish to fight should leave the neighbourhood during a three-hour evacuation period before the 6th Krajina Brigade attacked. The 6th Krajina Brigade, after gathering them in Krkojevći, evacuated women, children, the elderly and able-bodied men; first to Pobrjeđe on 29 May 1992. Around 2 June 1992, they were later all rounded up and transferred in buses to Velika Kladuša.

1726. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding on the attack on the Bosnian-Muslim village of Hrustovo in chapters 4.12.1 Schedule A.7.2, 4.12.3, and 4.12.4 and finds that the perpetrators of this attack made the surviving inhabitants of the village, along with approximately 200 inhabitants of neighbouring villages, go to Doboj from where they followed an order by Serb soldiers to find their way to Muslim-held territory, which they did.

1727. The Trial Chamber also recalls its finding on the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures in the municipality in chapter 4.12.6 and finds that one Bosnian Croat from Sanski Most obtained permission to leave the municipality on 21 September 1992, following the imposition of the measures specified in chapter 4.12.6 and the broadcasting of announcements informing non-Serbs what to do in order to leave the municipality. The Trial Chamber finds that he went to Croatia in December 1992.

Specific convoys leaving Sanski Most Municipality

1728. The Trial Chamber finds that on 19 May 1992, Boško Banjac, a member of the Sanski Most Crisis Staff, arranged for the departure of part of a group of Bosnian Muslims<sup>7289</sup> from the municipality. These people were transported by truck to Bihać Municipality at the end of May under escort from Serb soldiers.

1729. The Trial Chamber further finds that in May and June 1992, at least two convoys of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats left Sanski Most Municipality for Velika Kladuša. The first convoy was made up of approximately 1,200 women, children, and elderly people from Mahala, who were escorted out of the town against their will by the Bosnian-Serb police in May 1992. The second convoy, which left on 11 June 1992, contained 850 Bosnian Muslims who were threatened at gunpoint and forced into buses by guards under the direction of Davidović, the Commander of the Serb Crisis Committee of Banja Luka.

1730. The Trial Chamber also finds that in August and September 1992, at least three convoys organized by the Bosnian-Serb municipal authorities and escorted by Bosnian-Serb civilian and military police, transported a total of at least 6,100 Bosnian Muslims from Sanski Most Municipality to Travnik. The Trial Chamber understands that the above reference to 'Bosnian-Serb municipal authorities' refers to the Sanski Most Crisis Staff and the SDS. The Trial Chamber makes this inference on the basis of evidence that has been led demonstrating their specific role in organizing convoys during this period. One of the three convoys, which left on 17 August 1992, was made up of at least 1,600 people from Sanski Most Town who had been ordered to leave the town early that morning. One of the Bosnian Muslims who went to Travnik in the August convoy with the permission of the municipal authorities left due to threats and the shelling of houses in Lukavica.

1731. The Trial Chamber additionally finds that in July 1992, 'Mitra' and another soldier took one Bosnian-Muslim woman from Hrustovo to Tomina along with her children, following the attack on Hrustovo (see chapters 4.12.3 and 4.12.4). Two weeks later, the Serb soldiers instructed them to walk to Muslim-held territory.

<sup>7289</sup> The Trial Chamber notes the group comprised 3,000 Muslims, an undetermined number of whom originated from Sanski Most Municipality.

1732. The Trial Chamber received evidence that, every year from the end of 1992 until March 1995, four to five convoys from Sanski Most Municipality, consisting of five to ten buses each, were exchanged in Turbe. These convoys included one on 3 September 1994, in which 500 non-Serbs, the majority of whom were Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, and some of whom were from Sanski Most, were made to leave Sanski Most Municipality and arrived in Turbe.<sup>7290</sup> Given the reliable evidence on the organisation of the transport of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from the municipality to destinations both inside and outside Bosnia-Herzegovina by the Sanski Most Crisis Staff and the SDS from May 1992 until September 1992, the Trial Chamber infers that the Sanski Most Crisis Staff and the SDS organized the transport of people to Turbe.

The Trial Chamber's conclusion concerning departures from Sanski Most Municipality

1733. In conclusion, the Trial Chamber finds that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats left Sanski Most Municipality following the implementation of decisions of the Crisis Staff and SDS and actions of VRS units, TO, MUP, and paramilitary groups operating in the municipality which included threats, shelling, burning of private property, killings, and arrests (see the Trial Chamber's findings in chapters 8.3 and 8.9), as well as transferrals via convoys, as further specified above. Between 27 May 1992 and 13 October 1995, almost all Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats left Sanski Most Municipality. In particular, the vast majority of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Sanski Most Municipality had left the municipality by the end of 1992.

1734. The Trial Chamber will further consider the incidents, as set out in further details in the previous sections above, in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Exchanges and departures from detention facilities

1735. The Trial Chamber finds that on 31 October 1992, a Bosnian Muslim from Sanski Most Municipality, detained in Manjača camp, was sent to Travnik as part of an exchange. In November and December 1992, three Bosnian Muslim detainees from

<sup>7290</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that it received evidence that some non-Serbs, including Bosnian Muslims, from Sanski Most Municipality were part of the 3 September 1994 convoy.

Sanski Most Municipality, who had been detained at Manjača camp, went to Karlovac in Croatia. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapters 4.1.2 Schedule C.1.2 and 4.1.7 and finds that the authorities at Manjača camp exchanged the four detainees.<sup>7291</sup>

1736. The Trial Chamber finds that on 20 July 1993, one Bosnian Croat from Sanski Most Municipality, who had been detained in Batković camp, was exchanged at Čelebići, near Livno. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.2.2 Schedule C.2.1 and finds that the authorities at Batković camp exchanged this detainee.

1737. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above incidents in relation to Counts 3 and 7 to 8 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1738. The Trial Chamber received evidence about the exchange of detainees from Manjača camp to Travnik on 31 October 1992, the exchange of 60 Catholics detained in Batković camp on 20 July 1993, and the departure of approximately 1,400 detainees from Manjača camp to Croatia in November and December 1992. The Trial Chamber, however, has not received evidence regarding the municipalities of origin of these detainees.<sup>7292</sup> Therefore, the Trial Chamber will not further consider these incidents in relation to any count of the Indictment.

4.13 Sokolac Municipality

4.13.1 Murder

Schedule A.8.1

1739. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of at least 40 men in the village of Novoseoci in Sokolac Municipality on or about 22 September 1992.<sup>7293</sup> The charge of murder is however not limited to the Scheduled Incidents.<sup>7294</sup> Accordingly, the Trial Chamber has not disregarded evidence falling outside the scope of Scheduled Incident A.8.1. The Defence argued that the evidence presented by the Prosecution is insufficient to establish that the perpetrators of this incident were VRS soldiers.<sup>7295</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts 1237 and 1238 with regard to this incident. Further, it received evidence from Munira Selmanović, a Bosnian Muslim from the Muslim village Novoseoci in Sokolac Municipality;<sup>7296</sup> Milan Tupajić, President of the Sokolac Municipal Assembly from 1991 and President of the Sokolac Crisis Staff from April 1992 until 1996;<sup>7297</sup> John Clark, a forensic pathologist;<sup>7298</sup> Ewa Tabeau, a demographer and statistician;<sup>7299</sup> as well as documentary evidence and finds that this evidence does not rebut the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>7300</sup>

1740. On 14 September 1992, Galić issued an operational order to all units of the SRK instructing inter alia that the 2nd Romanija Brigade '[c]reate conditions and extend operations with the aim of taking Olovo'.<sup>7301</sup> On 20 September 1992, Krstić, Commander of the 2nd Romanija Brigade, ordered that an attack along the Kruševo-Olovo-Paklenik-Grabovica axis in Sokolac Municipality be extended by applying various offensive combat actions.<sup>7302</sup> The combat operations were to be carried out by the 1st Motorised Battalion, the 5th Motorised Battalion, the Armoured Battalion, and the Brigade Artillery Group within four to five days.<sup>7303</sup>

1741. On 22 September 1992, members of the VRS 2nd Romanija Brigade surrounded the village of Novoseoci and, despite there being no armed resistance, killed 40 to 45 Muslim civilian men, and put the women and children on buses and transported them to Sarajevo.<sup>7304</sup> Munira Selmanović testified that Momčilo Pajić, a Serb from Sokolac who had often visited Novoseoci, appeared to be the one in charge of those surrounding the village.<sup>7305</sup> Before the killings, Pajić told the villagers that he was waiting on 'orders from Sokolac'.<sup>7306</sup> At a certain time before the killings, Pajić sent Devla Karić to get her husband, Nail Karić, who was not among the detained villagers in Metaljka, which was an area located close to Novoseoci.<sup>7307</sup> The witness heard two gun shots from the direction in which Devla Karić had gone, and when Nail Karić later joined the villagers he told them that he had seen the body of his dead wife on the way from Pavičići to Metaljka.<sup>7308</sup> Nail Karić told them that she had been shot and her throat cut.<sup>7309</sup> According to an entry in the logbook of the Stari Grad SJB, on 22 or 23 September 1992, 'a refugee named Delva Karić' was killed by 'Chetniks' when refugees were passing from Novoseoci to Hrešo.<sup>7310</sup> General Krstić informed the VRS Main Staff on

22 September 1992 that ‘during the day, the village of Novoseoci was cleansed’.<sup>7311</sup> Milan Tupajić stated that he was informed of the killings in Novoseoci on the evening of 22 September 1992.<sup>7312</sup>

1742. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 22 September 1992, members of the VRS 2nd Romanija Brigade, including Momčilo Pajić, surrounded the Bosnian-Muslim village of Novoseoci and, despite there being no armed resistance, killed 40 to 45 Bosnian-Muslim civilian men. One woman, Devla Karić, had previously been sent by Pajić to get her husband. After she left, gunshots were heard and her husband found her body. Based on the fact that the VRS 2nd Romanija Brigade had surrounded the village and proceeded to kill 40-45 men there, the Trial Chamber finds that Devla Karić was also killed by a member of this unit. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Counts 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.13.2 Unlawful detention and cruel or inhumane treatment in detention facilities

1743. Scheduled Incidents C.18.1 and C.18.2 are not part of the Indictment, as a result of the decision pursuant to Rule 73bis (D) of 2 December 2011. The Prosecution has not presented evidence with regard to any detention centres in Sokolac Municipality. The Trial Chamber therefore finds that the charges in relation to detention in this municipality have not been proven.

4.13.3 Destruction of private and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites

1744. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for wanton acts of destruction of private property, including homes and business premises, and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites, listed in Scheduled Incident D.14, in Sokolac Municipality, between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995..<sup>7313</sup> In particular, the Indictment sets out that the Kruševci, Knežina, Kaljina, Novoseoci, and

Koštica mosques were destroyed between at least August and September 1992.<sup>7314</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact number 1239 in relation to this charge. It further received evidence from Milan Tupajić, President of the Sokolac Municipal Assembly in 1991 and President of the Sokolac Crisis Staff from April 1992 until 1996;<sup>7315</sup> and András Riedlmayer, bibliographer and art documentation specialist,<sup>7316</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Fact.<sup>7317</sup>

1745. In the period from the end of July to the end of September 1992, the VRS 2nd Romanija Brigade attacked and destroyed several Muslim villages in Sokolac Municipality, including Pihlice, Kaljina, Šahbegovići, Mangurići, and Meljine.<sup>7318</sup> Milan Tupajić added that clashes occurred between the brigade and locals in the village of Donje Babine and that the villages of Šaševci, Pridvorica, Grabenice, Išerić Brdo, and Ivazovići were burned and destroyed.<sup>7319</sup> Attacks began with artillery fire, followed by infantry incursions and lastly, the villages were burnt.<sup>7320</sup> Tupajić specified that after the villages were hit by artillery fire, the inhabitants withdrew and the infantry therefore met little resistance.<sup>7321</sup> The witness also specified that engineers from the brigade blew up the Novoseoci mosque.<sup>7322</sup> All five mosques in Sokolac Municipality, namely in Knežina, Kruševci, Kaljina, Novoseoci, and Košutica, were blown up or destroyed during these attacks.<sup>7323</sup> According to András Riedlmayer, the buildings adjacent to the Knežina mosque remained in good condition.<sup>7324</sup>

1746. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that from the end of July to the end of September 1992, engineers of the VRS's 2nd Motorised Romanija Brigade attacked and destroyed several Muslim villages in Sokolac Municipality, including Pihlice, Kaljina, Šahbegovići, Mangurići, and Meljine, as well as the villages of Šaševci, Pridvorica, Grabenice, Išerić Brdo, and Ivazovići. Attacks began with artillery fire after which the inhabitants withdrew and the infantry arrived, encountering little resistance. The villages were then burnt. During these attacks, the members of the brigade also destroyed the Knežina, Kruševci, Kaljina, Novoseoci, and Košutica mosques.<sup>7325</sup> The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.13.4 Appropriation or plunder of property

1747. The Trial Chamber finds that the Prosecution has presented insufficient evidence to prove this charge.

4.13.5 Forced labour and human shields

1748. The Trial Chamber finds that the Prosecution has presented insufficient evidence to prove this charge.

4.13.6 Imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures

1749. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures on Bosnian Muslims and/or Bosnian Croats in Sokolac Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7326</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence from Milan Tupajić, President of the Sokolac Municipal Assembly from 1991 and President of the Sokolac Crisis Staff from April 1992 until 1996,<sup>7327</sup> and documentary evidence in relation to this charge.

1750. According to the minutes of a meeting of the Sokolac Crisis Staff on 15 May 1992, Dragan Podinić informed the Sokolac Crisis Staff that the SDS Sokolac Municipal Board had formed a personnel commission to nominate candidates for ‘certain managerial positions in the economy and elsewhere’, and that the Municipal

Board had decided that ethnic Muslim workers ‘may work and receive tasks’.<sup>7328</sup> It was noted at the meeting that the crisis staff of the Romanija wood processing company had decided that Muslim workers should not come to work but that the company ‘should have better co-ordination with the authorities’ and was obliged to implement the decisions of the Sokolac Crisis Staff, rather than acting alone.<sup>7329</sup> Milan Tupajić stated that there were groups of ‘Serb workers’ that were harassing Muslim workers, trying to prevent them from coming to work, but that the Sokolac Crisis Staff tried to eliminate such incidents.<sup>7330</sup>

1751. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that the crisis staff of the Romanija wood processing company in Sokolac Municipality decided that Muslim workers should not come to work. However, the Trial Chamber does not consider that the evidence establishes that Muslim workers were actually dismissed from their employment, especially considering that the Sokolac Crisis Staff took steps to counter the company crisis staff’s decision. Therefore, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this incident in relation to any count of the Indictment.

4.13.7 Forcible transfer and deportation

1752. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for forcible transfer and deportation of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Sokolac Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7331</sup> The forcible transfers and deportations were implemented through the imposition of restrictive and discriminatory measures, arbitrary arrest and detention, harassment, torture, rape and other acts of sexual violence, killing, the destruction of houses and cultural monuments and sacred sites, and the threat of further such acts – all aimed at Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats. Others were physically driven out.<sup>7332</sup> The Defence submitted that forcible transfer of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats was not evidenced in Sokolac as the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats themselves requested to be ‘deported’ and that, therefore, they were transferred voluntarily.<sup>7333</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. Further, it received evidence from Safet Gagula, a Bosnian Muslim from Knežina, Sokolac Municipality (also reviewed in chapter 4.2.2 Schedule C.2.1 and 4.4.2 Schedule C.8.1);<sup>7334</sup> Milan Tupajić, President of the Sokolac Municipal Assembly from 1991 and President of the Sokolac Crisis Staff from April 1992 until 1996;<sup>7335</sup> and Munira Selmanović, a Bosnian Muslim from Novoseoci, a Muslim village in Sokolac Municipality;<sup>7336</sup> as well as documentary evidence in relation to alleged forcible transfer and deportation from Sokolac Municipality and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>7337</sup>

1753. Safet Gagula stated that Sokolac Municipality was predominantly Serb and the village of Knežina was a predominantly Muslim settlement of around 2,000 people.<sup>7338</sup> In March 1992, barricades were set up in Sokolac and some local Serbs began appearing in JNA and camouflage uniforms carrying automatic weapons.<sup>7339</sup> During April 1992, several paramilitary units including Arkan's men, the White Eagles, and some local groups, based themselves in Sokolac town and its surrounding villages.<sup>7340</sup> The threat of violence felt by the Muslim population in the town of Sokolac and the village of Knežina, and the lack of protection from the municipal authorities, forced them to leave their homes from May 1992 onwards.<sup>7341</sup> Gagula confirmed that many Muslims left Knežina in the second half of May 1992 which became more pronounced at the end of June 1992.<sup>7342</sup> Most Muslims from the town of Sokolac left for Olovo by the end of May 1992 while most Muslims from the surrounding villages stayed.<sup>7343</sup> At the end of May or early June 1992, a meeting was held between Muslims and Serbs at the elementary school in Knežina, called by the local community office and military command of Sokolac, in which the Serb representatives stated that they would protect the Muslim population of Knežina from the paramilitaries stationed there.<sup>7344</sup> The witness did not believe that they would be protected but thought that the Serb representatives wanted Muslims to stay to perform agricultural work.<sup>7345</sup> On one occasion, the witness met the President of the municipality, Milan Tupajić, and when he mentioned that Muslims were scared and leaving the municipality, Tupajić said ‘Let leave to wherever they want to. If you ever try anything against us, we will destroy you.’<sup>7346</sup> Milan Tupajić stated that in 1992, all Muslim villagers left the village of Knežina, except for two elderly infirm women, who were later taken to the village of Burate, situated between the municipalities of Sokolac and Rogatica, where Muslims were still present.<sup>7347</sup> He also stated that, as President of the Sokolac Crisis Staff and despite formal executive authority, he had little influence or control over the security of Muslim civilians. They could have been endangered as a result of actions of the Sokolac municipal police prior to 21 May 1992 and of the 2nd Motorised Romanija Brigade and state security of the VRS as of this date.<sup>7348</sup> Muslim civilians could also have been endangered by some 4,000 Serb refugees who had arrived in Sokolac in mid-May 1992 who were harassing Muslims.<sup>7349</sup> On 5 August 1992, Radislav Krstić, Commander of the 2nd Romanija Motorised Brigade, instructed the 4th Motorised Battalion Command to take charge of and escort a bus carrying ‘Muslim people’ and ‘deport’ them from Parževići in Sokolac Municipality to Sarajevo.<sup>7350</sup> According to Krstić, the people were being ‘deported’ at the explicit request of the Muslims.<sup>7351</sup> Gagula stated that, following detention in various places (for further details, see chapters 4.2.2 Schedule C.2.1 and 4.4.2 Schedule C.8.1), he was exchanged on 20 August 1993 at Sarajevo airport.<sup>7352</sup> during April 1992, several paramilitary units based themselves in Sokolac town and its surrounding villages. From mid-May 1992, many Muslims were leaving Sokolac town and by the end of May 1992, most had left for Olovo. Specifically in relation to Knežina, in late May or early June 1992, Serb representatives stated that they would protect the Muslim population from the paramilitaries stationed there. When Safet Gagula, a Bosnian Muslim, however, met Milan Tupajić and explained that Muslims were scared and leaving the municipality, Tupajić said, 'Let [them] leave to wherever they want to. If you ever try anything against us, we will destroy you.' He also claimed that he had no way of protecting Muslim civilians. The Muslim villagers of Knežina began to leave in May and June 1992, and all Muslims left this village in 1992. Therefore, the Trial Chamber finds that the threat of violence perceived by the Muslim population in the town of Sokolac and the village of Knežina, and the lack of protection from the municipal authorities including the Crisis Staff and its President, Milan Tupajić, led them to leave their homes from 12 May 1992 onwards. Concerning the Defence's argument that Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats themselves requested to be 'deported', the Trial Chamber considers that this is merely based on a 5 August 1992 2nd Romanija Brigade order and only concerns an incident in Parževići. This evidence does not affect the Trial Chamber's findings above.

1755. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding that on 22 September 1992, members of the VRS 2nd Romanija Brigade, including Momčilo Pajić, surrounded the Muslim village of Novoseoci, and further finds that the members put the women and children on buses and transported them to Sarajevo.

1756. With regard to Safet Gagula, a Bosnian Muslim from Knežina, the Trial Chamber finds that he was arrested in July 1992 and detained in various detention centres until 15 March 1993 when he was transferred to the Batković camp near Bijeljina and later, on 23 June 1993, to the Kula prison. He was finally exchanged on 20 August 1993 at Sarajevo airport.

1757. The Trial Chamber will consider these incidents further in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment, in chapter 8 below.

interrogated and beaten for approximately 15 minutes before being executed by the police officers from SJB Vlasenica. The witness saw the execution from 20 to 30 metres away.<sup>7372</sup> The witness also saw three other Muslim men being killed by members of the special police platoon, following Kraljević's orders.<sup>7373</sup>

1762. During the operation, they met no organized or significant resistance and soon after entering Gradina they started to torch the houses.<sup>7374</sup> Many Muslim houses in Gradina and the surrounding villages, including Barice, were burnt down.<sup>7375</sup> Witness RM-066 personally set fire to five or six houses and his group burned almost 50 with the operational objective to destroy as much Muslim property as possible in order to prevent the Muslims from returning to their homes.<sup>7376</sup> In Piskavice, which was a mixed Serb and Muslim village, they only torched the Muslim houses and the Serbs continued to live in theirs.<sup>7377</sup> Almost all the Muslim houses in the area were destroyed.<sup>7378</sup> Mainly Muslim women and elderly were captured during the operation, as well as 20 unarmed Muslim men who were detained in the prison behind the courthouse.<sup>7379</sup> All together 500 Muslims were captured and taken to either Sušica camp or transported to the Vlasenica bus station of the football field before they were taken to Kladanj.<sup>7380</sup> In addition, many corpses were scattered around the villages in the Gradina area that day.<sup>7381</sup> The witness testified that as his unit continued to take over villages they 'basically killed everything that moved'.<sup>7382</sup>

1763. Early in the morning on 2 June 1992, Serb soldiers supported by an APC with a machine gun, attacked the predominantly Muslim hamlet of Drum near the town of Vlasenica.<sup>7383</sup> Kraljević's unit had been split into groups of 10-12 men and the group that went in the direction of Drum had the support of VRS members.<sup>7384</sup> Witness RM-004 stated that after the soldiers had arrived in Drum, the arrival of the APC acted as a

1764. While detained in a prison in Vlasenica Municipality, uniformed Serbs from the prison took Ibro Osmanović to Drum on or about 2 June 1992.<sup>7391</sup> There, he had to bury 22 male bodies, which he estimated to be between the ages of 20 and 60, and all had a single gunshot wound between the eyes except for one who was shot in the chest.<sup>7392</sup> The bodies, wearing civilian clothes, were placed next to each other in front of the local bar.<sup>7393</sup> It appeared to the witness from their dirty clothing, which was ripped at the back, as if they had been dragged to the bar.<sup>7394</sup> The witness loaded the bodies onto a tractor and drove to the Rakite cemetery behind the Boksit stadium in Vlasenica.<sup>7395</sup> At the cemetery, the guards Zoran Obrenović, Zoran Stupar, Dragan Pečenica, and 'Simo' were present. The guards asked the witness to search the bodies and to take all valuables and documents before placing them in a hole that had already been dug. They poured lime on the bodies, put some soil on top and then used a large motorized vehicle for digging to cover the bodies.<sup>7396</sup> According to Ewa Tabeau and forensic evidence, the remains of 13 bodies, associated with this incident, were exhumed from two sites in Vlasenica Municipality and subsequently identified.<sup>7397</sup> Five 1765. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 2 June 1992, a unit under the command of Mićo Kraljević, the TO, the SJB Milići, as well as local Serbs from Piskavice participated in an operation covering a large area, including the Bosnian-Muslim village of Drum.<sup>7400</sup> The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.7 and the evidence of Witness RM-066 above that on 2 June 1992 Kraljević's unit was operationally under the command of SJB Vlasenica and working from the SJB Vlasenica building from at least mid-May 1992. Based on the evidence of Mane Đurić, Mićo Kraljević's unit was under TO command until later in June when it was formally attached to the SJB.

1766. Kraljević ordered his unit to clean the territory from Muslims and to kill fleeing persons. Kraljević also told his unit in respect of an operation in the Gradina area that the territory had to be '100 per cent clean' without any Muslims remaining in the area. In a meeting Kraljević made it clear that there was no intention to take prisoners but instead to kill any Bosnian-Muslim men from the area who did not manage to escape. Kraljević's unit was split into different groups and the one heading for Drum was supported by VRS members. In Drum, members of Kraljević's unit or the VRS members fired automatic weapons and dragged people out of their houses. They killed at least 20 Bosnian-Muslim males, almost all with a single gunshot to the head. All victims wore civilian clothes. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 1 and 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

With regard to perpetrators, the Trial Chamber has relied on other evidence, in particular Witness RM-066.

1767. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of approximately nine men from Sušica camp between June and August 1992.<sup>7401</sup> The Defence argued that the police rather the VRS had control over the camp and that therefore, the killings alleged cannot be attributed to the Accused.<sup>7402</sup> The Defence further argued that the killings were motivated by personal reasons and that two of the alleged victims died as a result of heart attacks rather than beatings.<sup>7403</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of two Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. It further received evidence from Witness RM-066, a Serb from Vlasenica;<sup>7404</sup> Witness RM-030, Witness RM-004, and Ibro Osmanović, all Bosnian Muslims from Vlasenica;<sup>7405</sup> Witness RM-088, a Bosnian Muslim from Šekovići Municipality;<sup>7406</sup> Ewa Tabeau, a demographer and statistician;<sup>7407</sup> and John Clark, a forensic pathologist who worked for the Prosecution as the Chief Pathologist for Bosnia-Herzegovina Exhumations from 1999-2001;<sup>7408</sup> as well as documentary evidence, and finds that the evidence does not rebut the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>7409</sup>

1768. Nine detainees in Sušica camp were killed by camp guards or died from mistreatment.<sup>7410</sup> Specifically, Witness RM-066, Witness RM-088, and Ibro Osmanović testified that one evening on or about 22 June 1992, Dragan Nikolić and other camp guards subjected Durmo Handžić and Asim Zildžić to severe physical abuse for over 45 minutes, which resulted in the death of both detainees shortly thereafter.<sup>7411</sup> Witness RM-030 specified that he saw both Dragan Nikolić and Goran Tešić, a.k.a. Musa, outside, where Tešić shot him dead after interrogating him and accusing him of killing a Serb.<sup>7416</sup> Witness RM-066 and Witness RM-030 testified that on the same night, Nikolić, Tešić, and some local policemen entered the hangar, picked out Rašid Ferhatbegović, took him outside, and shot him.<sup>7417</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that during the first and second week of July 1992, Dragan Nikolić severely beat Ismet Dedić, Mevludin Hatunić, and Galib Musić, a 59-year-old

1769. Ibro Osmanović testified that all detainees who had been killed or mistreated in the Sušica camp were of Muslim ethnicity.<sup>7423</sup> According to Ewa Tabeau, John Clark, and forensic evidence, five of the victims associated with this incident wore civilian clothing when they were exhumed from Sušica and Rakita Groblje, both in Vlasenica Municipality.<sup>7424</sup> The victims were between 29 and 59 years old in 1992.<sup>7425</sup>

1770. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that in June and July 1992, Dragan Nikolić and Goran Tešić, both members of the Bosnian-Serb MUP and Kraljević's unit, killed eight Muslim detainees in the Sušica camp, either through shooting or severe mistreatment. Nikolić and Tešić were permanently stationed at the camp under orders from Kraljević from 15-18 June to September 1992 when Sušica camp was closed. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 that Dragan Nikolić was directly accountable to Kraljević and was subordinate to him. One of the victims was shot dead after Tešić accused him of killing a Serb. On the night of 23-24 June 1992, Nikolić, Tešić, or some local policemen killed a ninth Muslim civilian detainee at the camp. The detainees were between 29 and 59 years old and five of them wore civilian clothing when exhumed. With regard to the status of the victims, the Trial Chamber has also considered its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3

concerning the detainees at Sušica camp. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 with respect to the conditions in which the detainees were kept. 1771. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for the killing of up to 140 detainees in Sušica camp on or about 30 September 1992.<sup>7426</sup> The Defence argued that the killings cannot be attributed to the Accused because the camp was not under the control of the VRS and the VRS had no knowledge of the killings.<sup>7427</sup> The Trial Chamber understands Scheduled Incident B.16.2 as referring to the alleged killing of up to 140 persons in relation to their detention in Sušica camp, and thus not limited to killings inside the camp. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. It also received evidence from Witness RM-066, a Serb from Vlasenica,<sup>7428</sup> and Ewa Tabeau, a demographer and statistician,<sup>7429</sup> as well as documentary evidence and finds that the evidence does not rebut the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>7430</sup>

1772. On 30 September 1992, a public burial of more than 20 Serb soldiers killed in an ambush by the ABiH was held in Vlasenica town.<sup>7431</sup> After concerns about the safety of the detainees of Sušica camp had been raised with Mane Đurić and it had been recommended to him that they be transferred somewhere else until things calmed down, he promised to send vehicles to have the detainees transferred.<sup>7432</sup> During the night, three MUP officers arrived at the Sušica camp with a bus.<sup>7433</sup> According to Witness RM-066, the MUP officers were from SJB Vlasenica, and included a man nicknamed ‘Chetnik’, a man called Garić, and Pedrag Bastah, and they arrived with an order from Đurić that the detainees were to be removed as soon as possible.<sup>7434</sup> The MUP officers removed all 140-150 inmates in four loads and killed them.<sup>7435</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that the last group of detainees was loaded onto a small bus owned by the Birać company and escorted by a police car carrying Bastah, Garić, and ‘Chetnik’.<sup>7436</sup> A number of Serbs wearing military and police uniforms were on the bus.<sup>7437</sup> The last group consisted mostly of local Muslims from Vlasenica town.<sup>7438</sup> Soon after the police took away the last group, a group of soldiers arrived at the camp and demanded to know where the Muslims were.<sup>7439</sup> The massacre was reported to the Vlasenica crisis staff members, who took no action except to order the dismantling of the camp and the concealment of its traces.<sup>7440</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that a member of Kraljević’s unit was told to quickly remove all traces of the camp, destroy any documents, knock 1773. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on the evening of 30 September 1992, Serb MUP officers from the SJB Vlasenica arrived at Sušica camp and, on the order of Mane Đurić, removed 140-150 non-Serb detainees in four trips. Serbs wearing military uniforms were also present when the last group of detainees was removed by the MUP officers. The MUP officers killed all the detainees. Considering that Sušica camp comprised only Bosnian-Muslim detainees, the Trial Chamber finds that those killed were Bosnian Muslims. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 with respect to the conditions in which the detainees were kept at Sušica camp. The Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 1 and 3-6 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Establishment and security at Sušica camp

1775. On 31 May 1992, Sušica camp was established in Vlasenica Municipality by order of Svetozar Andrić, Commander of the Birač Brigade, and pursuant to a decision of the Birač SAO which regulated the moving out of the Muslim population from the territory of Birač.<sup>7459</sup> Andrić's order specified that the camp was to be organised and secured in the spirit of international law.<sup>7460</sup> Andrić testified that the camp pre-existed his order, which only referred to the organization and not to the establishment of the camp.<sup>7461</sup> Mane Đurić testified that the camp fell under the control of the Birač Brigade.<sup>7462</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that although the military was responsible for the administration of the camp, in fact the Vlasenica SJB determined how the camp was run.<sup>7463</sup> Detainees could be released, transferred or exchanged via a written order from Mane Đurić, Branislav Sokanović, Risto Vidović, Veljko Bašić, and Mićo Kraljević.<sup>7464</sup>

The Serb municipal crisis staff, led by Milenko Stanić, also made decisions concerning the camp and its detainees, such as decisions on release, visits, and exchanges.<sup>7465</sup> The local MUP and the crisis staff received regular reports on the situation at Sušica camp.<sup>7466</sup> Andrić ordered the security organ of the 4th Battalion to conduct interviews with detainees in order to provide information to the Chief of the Security Services in the Command.<sup>7467</sup> The Chief of Security and related officials took detainees out of the camp for these interviews.<sup>7468</sup>

1777. Approximately 2,000 to 2,500 Muslims of both genders and all ages passed through Sušica camp, which remained operational for four months, from June to September 1992.<sup>7483</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that in June and July 1992 approximately 50 to 60 per cent of the detainees were men.<sup>7484</sup> This percentage increased to approximately 70 per cent in September 1992, and 98 per cent during the second half of September.<sup>7485</sup> Mujo Ramić stated that the camp housed many civilians.<sup>7486</sup> Ibro Osmanović testified that he was never given an explanation for his detention at the camp.<sup>7487</sup>

1778. The Trial Chamber has further taken judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts and received evidence concerning the number of detainees held at Sušica camp in the first days of its existence, as well as concerning the transfer of detainees to and from the camp. In the first days of its existence, over 1,000 persons were detained at the camp.<sup>7488</sup> A few days later, Serb officials allowed the great majority of the women, more than 800, to leave, after they were stripped of their valuables and had signed a declaration that they were leaving the municipality voluntarily.<sup>7489</sup> Witness RM-030 stated that on 2 June 1992, a man called Anđelko and Zoran Deurić a.k.a. Gehura, who was a member of the 'Serbian Army' in Vlasenica, arrested him, along with his family and some of their neighbours, took them to the camp, and ordered the adult men to place their hands behind their heads so that the 'Serbian police' (dressed in JNA uniforms)

1779. Witness RM-066 testified that upon the establishment of the camp, approximately 300 people that the VRS had temporarily detained in a Vlasenica high school gym and who originated from Šekovići Municipality were brought there.<sup>7492</sup> Soon after this, the VRS and the Serb police began bringing more Muslims from Vlasenica Municipality.<sup>7493</sup> Ramić stated that he was among approximately 150 Muslims who had been previously detained at the Vlasenica secondary school gym and transferred to Sušica camp on about 7 or 8 June 1992.<sup>7494</sup> Tahir Ferhatbegović stated that on 8 June 1992, Veljko Bašić told him and the other men held in the school that they were to be transferred.<sup>7495</sup> Most of the men were transferred to Sušica camp where they arrived that day at about 3 p.m.<sup>7496</sup>

1780. Mirsad Kuralić stated that on 15 June 1992, Veljko Bašić brought him to the prison in Vlasenica.<sup>7497</sup> Ferhatbegović stated that on 27 June 1992, buses arrived and took about 450 men, including the witness, to Batković camp.<sup>7498</sup> Witness RM-004 stated that on 28 June 1992, a group composed of approximately 200 Muslims from Kalejisa Municipality was transferred from the camp to Batković.<sup>7499</sup> The witness recalled that on the day he was taken from Sušica to Batković, there were five buses loaded with Muslims.<sup>7500</sup> Every bus, including the bus he was on, was accompanied by a man wearing a camouflage outfit.<sup>7501</sup> Andrić testified that on 12 and 17 June, respectively, Mladić ordered the Eastern Bosnia Corps Command that the ‘question [of POWs] be resolved urgently and that POWs be relocated’, after which, on 1 July, 400

Conditions at Sušica camp

1781. Detainees at Sušica camp were insufficiently fed, water was very scarce, sanitary conditions were poor, and medical care was not provided.<sup>7503</sup> Witness RM-066 specified that there were no beds.<sup>7504</sup> According to a CSCE mission report, mattresses and blankets were available at the camp.<sup>7505</sup> According to Deurić, the detainees and the guards in charge of the security of the premises received the same food, prepared by a local company, and all detainees who were at the camp were fed.<sup>7506</sup> However, the witness did not observe when food was served, as the food was distributed outside, and also did not know whether the detainees who were out to perform work were fed.<sup>7507</sup> According to Andrić, there was not enough food in the municipality.<sup>7508</sup> With regard to the provision of medical care, on two occasions, Deurić saw from a distance of 20 to 30 metres a doctor and two nurses examining some detainees at the camp.<sup>7509</sup> The witness heard from the guards and the detainees that the detainees complained about stomach problems.<sup>7510</sup> The witness did not know who the doctor examining the detainees was.<sup>7511</sup> According to the CSCE report, the organization was told that a physician provided medical care but did not observe any clinic in the centre.<sup>7512</sup> On two occasions, members of international organizations visited Sušica camp, and on both visits, Nikolić managed to conceal many detainees and the true state of the conditions of detention.<sup>7513</sup> According to a VRS assessment report on security at Sušica Camp, recording devices, interviews, visits and extensive movement were to be prohibited in order to prevent the public from becoming aware of the prisoners' living conditions.<sup>7514</sup>

Treatment of detainees at Sušica camp

1782. Ramić described the conditions at Sušica camp as atrocious and Dragan Nikolić as 'particularly evil'.<sup>7515</sup> Nikolić told the detainees that he was 'God and the law', and subjected them to all kinds of mistreatment, including frequent beatings.<sup>7516</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that Nikolić tortured a number of non-Serb detainees at Sušica camp in June and July 1992.<sup>7517</sup> Ramić added that women were raped and some detainees were taken out, never to return.<sup>7518</sup> Witness RM-088 observed that every night, usually after 10 p.m., young women and girls were taken out and brought back after half an hour in a pitiful state, with creased clothes and bruises.<sup>7519</sup> The witness was later told by the families of these women and girls that they had been raped.<sup>7520</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that between June and September 1992, Nikolić provided Serb guards, soldiers, and other men access to non-Serb female detainees at the camp, in order to commit rape and other acts of sexual violence.<sup>7521</sup> According to an excerpt of a judgment from the Court of Bosnia-Herzegovina, on 4 February 2010 Goran Višković was convicted of raping, including with a foreign object, in the presence of several guards, a female detainee from Sušica camp in the guard house in the first half of June 1992.<sup>7522</sup>

a Croatian flag on his car.<sup>7525</sup> Witness RM-030 stated that a man called Đuro, who was not a guard but came to the camp from Vlasenica together with others every night, would beat the last ones to return from the toilet.<sup>7526</sup> The witness saw Nikolić physically assault detainees and scare them by putting a knife in their mouths if they asked questions.<sup>7527</sup> Osmanović described how Nikolić beat ‘Cice’ Arnaut; on one occasion he came into the hangar and told him to put his hands behind his head, kneel down on the floor and tilt his head back.<sup>7528</sup> Nikolić then put a bayonet in Arnaut’s mouth so that he was coughing and spitting blood afterwards.<sup>7529</sup> Elvir Pašić testified that Nikolić<sup>7530</sup> lined up the witness’s group from Rogatica consisting of 29 men and two women and together with two guards struck and kicked each of the men, including the witness. Some were assaulted with rifle butts. Nikolić and the two guards returned later on and took away young women.<sup>7531</sup> The next morning, the witness’s entire group was transferred to Batković camp.<sup>7532</sup>

1784. Witness RM-030 saw Goran Tešić and Đuro tie people up and heard Nikolić order people to be tied up – detainees would have their thumbs tied together behind their backs with wire and were then tied to rain spouts at the warehouse entrance.<sup>7533</sup> They would also have to kneel and remain in that position all day.<sup>7534</sup> A man called Goran, a.k.a. Vjetar, beat the detainees and referred to them as ‘Balija’s mother’.<sup>7535</sup> Deurić testified that there was no discipline at the camp as the guards, including Nikolić, were often drunk.<sup>7536</sup>

The issue of detention at Sušica camp

1785. According to a VRS assessment report on security at Sušica camp, POWs were detained at the camp.<sup>7537</sup> On 25 June 1992, Mladić reported in his notebook that Milenko Stanić had informed him about problems in Vlasenica caused by the detention of over 800 prisoners, 200 of whom were women and children.<sup>7538</sup>

1786. Some witnesses addressed specifically whether people were held against their will at Sušica camp. In this respect, Milenko Stanić testified that when the military operations started in the villages surrounding Vlasenica, a large number of Muslims poured into Vlasenica Town, the majority of whom were housed in the ‘holding centre’ in Sušica.<sup>7539</sup> The centre was ‘owned’ by the JNA and served, in the beginning, as a reception centre.<sup>7540</sup> According to the witness, the municipal organs did not receive any further information about what went on in the centre.<sup>7541</sup> Muslim civilians from Kalesija, on the frontline, were also brought to the centre and Serbs ‘expelled’ from Goražde spent some time there as well.<sup>7542</sup> Deurić testified that in early May 1992, one of the two TO depots in Sušica was used as a reception centre to accommodate Serb refugees from Muslim villages from Vlasenica Municipality and from other municipalities, pending their relocation in the municipality, facilitated by the local authorities, or their departure to Serbia.<sup>7543</sup> The depot was secured by the police before the army took control of the facility, sometime in May 1992.<sup>7544</sup> According to the witness, starting May 1992, ‘POWs’ were detained at Sušica.<sup>7545</sup> There were also civilians and soldiers wearing civilian clothing detained at the camp.<sup>7546</sup> According to the witness, there were instances where some Muslim families stayed overnight of their own will until transport to Kladanj or Tuzla was arranged for them.<sup>7547</sup> Once there were a lot of people in the camp, they would be ‘sent for an exchange’.<sup>7548</sup> The witness was present at Sušica only during the day and spent most of the time at the premises where he was providing security, where there were no detainees.<sup>7549</sup> Tomislav Savkić testified that after the TO entered Vlasenica on 21 April 1992, some Muslims came to the municipality and police buildings requesting transport to Tuzla and Kladanj - while waiting for transport they would be put up in the Sušica camp.<sup>7550</sup> Several families would come to the TO facilities in Sušica every day in order to depart for the Muslim territory while others would come to spend the night at the facility because they felt safer there.<sup>7551</sup> These individuals would then return home the following morning.<sup>7552</sup> Organised transport was provided to Tuzla and Kladanj on a daily basis.<sup>7553</sup> ‘Serb’ refugees were also temporarily placed in the Sušica camp while waiting for accommodation in Vlasenica.<sup>7554</sup> The witness heard ‘from a Muslim’ that a number of Muslim soldiers, who had been detained near Zelina, were also held in the Sušica camp, and were later moved to the Batković camp in Bijeljina.<sup>7555</sup> Đurić testified that Sušica was not a camp but a reception centre offering shelter to Muslims, Serbs, and Croats, pending their departure from Vlasenica, their installation in the municipality, or for the night.<sup>7556</sup> However, the witness never visited the camp himself.<sup>7557</sup> Andrić testified that the women and children held at the camp were not prisoners.<sup>7558</sup> However, the witness had also never visited the camp himself.<sup>7559</sup> According to a CSCE mission report, the CSCE was told that the camp was used to hold and document prisoners as well as Serb ‘refugees’ for several days.<sup>7560</sup> The ‘Serbian’ authorities categorized the centre as a transfer site rather than a place of detention.<sup>7561</sup>

The Trial Chamber's findings

1787. The Trial Chamber received evidence from Mane Đurić and Svetozar Andrić disputing that the people at Sušica camp were detained against their will, which is in contrast to the Adjudicated Facts related to this charge. According to Đurić, Sušica was a reception centre, rather than a camp, offering temporary shelter to Muslims, Serbs, and Croats. However, the Trial Chamber notes that Đurić never visited the camp himself. Furthermore, his testimony on this issue is internally inconsistent, as he testified that pursuant to Andrić's order dated 31 May 1992, Sušica was defined as a camp.<sup>7562</sup> According to Andrić, the women and children held at the camp were not prisoners, but the witness could not give a plausible explanation why contemporary documents, some of which bear his signature, referred to them as such.<sup>7563</sup> Additionally, the Trial Chamber notes that Andrić had also never visited the camp. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that the evidence of these two witnesses in this respect is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts related to this charge.

1788. The Trial Chamber further received evidence from Momir Deurić and Tomislav Savkić that some Muslim families stayed overnight at Sušica camp of their own will, until transport to different locations was arranged for them. The Trial Chamber notes that Savkić also testified that he was told by a Muslim that Muslim soldiers were being detained at the camp. The Trial Chamber finds that while there may have been instances where some Muslims voluntarily spent the night at the camp, this does not mean that others could come and go according to their own free will. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Deurić and Tomislav's evidence does not contradict the Adjudicated Facts according to which people were detained at Sušica camp.

1789. The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Milenko Stanić, disputing that the people at Sušica camp were held against their will, as well as stating that the municipal organs did not receive information about the situation at Sušica. The Trial Chamber notes that Stanić's evidence is internally inconsistent in this respect, given that he admitted knowing in late May and June 1992 that the number of Muslims detained in Vlasenica Municipality, including at Sušica, was becoming a problem.<sup>7564</sup> The Trial Chamber therefore finds that this evidence is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts according to which people were held at the camp against their will and according to which the Serb municipal crisis staff received reports on the situation at the camp.

1790. The Trial Chamber further received evidence from Deurić that after May 1992, the police were no longer involved in providing security at the camp, which contradicts Adjudicated Fact number 1255, according to which the guards were members of the MUP and the VRS. Given that the witness provided security at the building storing military equipment and not at the camp itself and returned home at night, his knowledge of activities at the camp is limited. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that his evidence in this respect is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact number 1255.

1791. Deurić also provided evidence that the detainees in Sušica camp were fed and received the same food as the guards. The witness's evidence, to the extent that it suggests that detainees were not insufficiently fed, contradicts part of Adjudicated Fact number 1262. The Trial Chamber notes however that Deurić provided no basis for his knowledge, as he did not personally observe when food was distributed, and did not know whether the detainees who were out to perform work were fed. Therefore, the Trial Chamber finds that his evidence in this respect is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact number 1262.

1792. The Trial Chamber further received evidence from Deurić that on two occasions he saw a doctor and two nurses examining some of the detainees, which contradicts part of Adjudicated Fact number 1262. Given that Deurić was, at least sporadically, present at the camp during the day, the Trial Chamber finds his evidence in this respect sufficiently reliable to rebut a part of the Adjudicated Fact. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Adjudicated Fact number 1262 is rebutted with respect to no medical care having been provided at Sušica camp. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber reviewed the evidence before it in order to make a determination on the matter.

1793. The Trial Chamber received evidence from Mane Đurić that Veljko Bašić was a former policeman mobilized into the TO. It also received evidence from Witness RM-066 that Veljko Bašić was a former policeman mobilized into the 'police force'. The Trial Chamber received evidence in chapter 4.14.1 Schedules A.9.1 and B.16.1 that members of the TO in Vlasenica were incorporated into the SJB Vlasenica in or around May 1992, such as Mićo Kraljević and Dragan Nikolić. The Trial Chamber observes that the evidence regarding Bašić's affiliation is not necessarily contradictory. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 that Veljko Bašić wore a blue police uniform. It also received evidence that Veljko Bašić relayed detailed information of prisoners daily to the SJB Vlasenica while at Sušica camp. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that Veljko Bašić was a member of the SJB Vlasenica during his time at Sušica camp.

1794. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that between 2,000 and 2,500 Bosnian Muslims of both genders and all ages, including civilians, were detained at Sušica camp. In June and July 1992, approximately half of the detainees were women. The detainees were kept in unhygienic conditions. There were no beds but mattresses and blankets were available. Water was scarce and the detainees were insufficiently fed. With respect to the provision of medical care, on two occasions, a doctor and two nurses examined some of the detainees at the camp.

1795. With regard to the responsibility for the camp, the Trial Chamber finds that Sušica camp was established on 31 May 1992, by order of Svetozar Andrić, Commander of the VRS Birač Brigade, pursuant to a decision of the Birač SAO.<sup>7565</sup> The camp was operational until 30 September 1992. The camp commanders included Veljko Bašić, a former policeman mobilized into SJB Vlasenica, and, from sometime in mid-June 1992, Dragan Nikolić, who was appointed by Mićo Kraljević. The Trial Chamber recalls that on 2 June 1992, Kraljević's unit was operationally under the command of SJB Vlasenica from at least mid-May 1992 (see chapter 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1). The Trial Chamber also recalls from chapter 4.14.1 Schedule B.16.1 that Dragan Nikolić was a member of the Bosnian-Serb MUP and Kraljević's unit. The Trial Chamber finds that Nikolić was the camp commander in charge of security and daily operations. Nikolić was directly accountable to Kraljević and was subordinate to him and was given instructions to take whatever security measures he felt were necessary. With regard to the authorities in charge of the camp, the Trial Chamber has considered the Adjudicated Fact stating that the Serb municipal crisis staff made decisions concerning the camp and its detainees, the evidence of Andrić that the VRS made decisions about taking detainees out of the camp for questioning and about transferring detainees to Batković and the evidence of RM-066 that the VRS, the SJB, the police, and the special police platoon had the authority to release, transfer or exchange detainees. It has further considered the Adjudicated Fact stating that members of the MUP and the VRS served as camp guards. The Trial Chamber finds that the Vlasenica crisis staff and guards, consisting of members of the VRS and the MUP, kept individuals detained at Sušica camp and were responsible for the conditions at the camp.

1796. Nikolić and camp guards, including Goran Tešić, a.k.a. Goce, a member of the Bosnian-Serb MUP and Kraljević's unit (see the Trial Chamber's finding in chapter 4.14.1 Schedule B.16.1), and other police officers, who were often drunk, frequently and severely beat several detainees, including during interrogations, and subjected them to mistreatment, such as scaring them by putting a knife in their mouths if they asked questions; tying the detainees' thumbs together behind their backs with wire and then tying them to rain spouts at the warehouse entrance; forcing them to remain in a kneeling position all day; and stabbing them in the mouth.<sup>7566</sup> Others beating the detainees were Goran a.k.a. Vjetar and Đuro. Vjetar referred to the detainees as 'Balija's mother'. One of the detainees who was frequently beaten had been accused by Nikolić of having a Croatian flag on his car. The guards and people coming from outside the camp also raped female detainees.

1797. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above in relation to Counts 1 and 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Other detention incidents – Vlasenica secondary school

1798. In addition to Scheduled Incident C.19.3, discussed above, the Indictment also includes that the Accused is responsible for unlawful detention, torture, beating, abuse, rape, other acts of sexual violence, and subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats to inhumane living conditions in other detention centres in Vlasenica Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7567</sup> The Defence generally submitted that the VRS was not involved in any of the Serbs' activities in Vlasenica and that Mladić had warned the then President of the Municipal Assembly to protect Bosnian

Muslims and Bosnian Croats.<sup>7568</sup> In this respect, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Tahir Ferhatbegović and Witness RM-088, both Bosnian Muslims from Papraća in Šekovići Municipality,<sup>7569</sup> about their detention at the Vlasenica secondary school,<sup>7570</sup> as well as Mujo Ramić, a Muslim school teacher from Šeher, Osmaci Municipality,<sup>7571</sup> and Witness RM-066, a Serb from Vlasenica.<sup>7572</sup>

1799. Witness RM-088 testified that on 31 May 1992, he was arrested by Serb soldiers from the village of Željeznik, who entered through the backyard of his house in the village of Odžaci, informed him that he would be exchanged for Serb soldiers, and took him to the town centre where he joined his Muslim neighbours.<sup>7573</sup> The Serb soldiers did not allow the witness to take anything with him.<sup>7574</sup> The Serb army platoon commander, Lieutenant Ćirković from Šekovići, was present and in charge of arresting and cleansing the Muslims.<sup>7575</sup> Men and women were separated and the men were taken to the Papraća primary school gym.<sup>7576</sup> While at the gym, the witness heard Predrag Bunijevac, who introduced himself as the commander, ordered the guards to register the detainees and to take away all of their identification and personal property.<sup>7577</sup> The witness also testified that Veljko Bašić came to the school and introduced himself as the commander of all detention centres in Vlasenica, including the school.<sup>7578</sup> The second time Bašić came, he was accompanied by Dragan Nikolić, who asked Bašić: ‘Are there any bad ones here for me?’ and then he heard Nikolić state to the detainees: ‘Veljko is the head of all the prisons.’<sup>7579</sup> Ferhatbegović stated that Bašić wore a blue police uniform.<sup>7580</sup> Witness RM-088 testified that they remained at the school only for a few hours after which Aleksandar Vukašinić and the White Eagles loaded the detainees onto buses and took them to the Vlasenica secondary school gym.<sup>7581</sup> The women and the children were transferred from Papraća to Kladanj.<sup>7582</sup> Ferhatbegović stated that on 31 May 1992, he and the other men, aged between 13 and 87 years, Muslims from Papraća, as well as a Roma man and his wife detained at the Papraća primary school were loaded on three buses and driven to Vlasenica secondary school.<sup>7583</sup> On the bus, the witness saw only one Serb soldier with a weapon.<sup>7584</sup> The detainees were not allowed to take any personal belongings, as they were told that they ‘would not need them’.<sup>7585</sup> When the bus passed a checkpoint, the witness heard soldiers saying, ‘[L]et’s kill them all; why are we protecting the Ustaša’. Upon arrival at the school, the men were forced to sit on the floor in the gym with their legs out in front and heads down. People from the villages of Osmaci, Borogovo, Matkovac, and Kusonje were also at the gym.<sup>7586</sup> According to census data, in 1991 the villages of Osmaci, Borogovo, Matkovac, and Kusonje were in Kalesija Municipality.<sup>7587</sup> Osmaci and Borogovo were composed of 798 Bosnian Serbs out of 844 inhabitants and 275 Bosnian Serbs out of 276 inhabitants, respectively.<sup>7588</sup> Matkovac was composed of 278 Bosnian Muslims and 213 Bosnian Serbs.<sup>7589</sup> Kusonje was composed of 371 Bosnian Muslims and 42 Bosnian Serbs.<sup>7590</sup>

1800. The witness recalled several occasions on which men were taken out of the gym and beaten severely; some of them did not return. Emin Kuduzović was beaten because he was found smoking in the toilet. Nusret Hodžić was also beaten. The witness stated that he heard the beating and the screams of the men. A soldier said to Hodžić, ‘[I]f you don’t lick this blood by the time I return, I will cut your throats.’ Hodžić then started licking his blood. The guards put cigarettes out on the hands of Mirsad Kuralić. At times the detainees had to sing ‘Chetnik’ songs and if they refused, they were beaten. The about 160 men in the school received two litres of water per day. They were fed a

Witness RM-066 stated that there was no functioning lavatories at the school and described the condition of the detainees as ‘horrible’.<sup>7592</sup>

1801. The guards in the school wore camouflage uniforms and white masks over their noses and mouths.<sup>7593</sup> Among the guards were, Vojin Grabovica, a person called Zoran, Milorad Petrović and Dragan Lukić.<sup>7594</sup> On one occasion, Dragan Nikolić, who the witness recognized from having seen him in bars before, came to the school and asked, ‘[W]hen are those to come to me?’<sup>7595</sup>

1802. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that between 31 May 1992 and 8 June 1992, about 160 men were detained in Vlasenica secondary school, after which they were transferred to Sušica camp. The detainees included Bosnian-Muslim men, aged between 13 and 87, from Papraća; a Roma couple; and people from the villages of, Osmaci, Borogovo, Matkovac, and Kusonje. In light of the ethnic composition of these villages, the Trial Chamber finds that the detainees at Vlasenica secondary school included Bosnian Serbs from Osmaci and Borogovo, and Bosnian Muslims from Kusonje. During their detention, the detainees were not allowed to maintain personal hygiene with no functioning lavatories provided in the building. They were fed a small slice of bread and a small portion of egg each day. There were two litres of water for 160 people each day. The Trial Chamber finds that the guards at the school severely beat the detainees. Detainees were beaten when they refused to sing songs, identified as ‘chetnik’ songs by Tahir Ferhatbegović, and the guards put out cigarettes on the hands of Mirsad Kuralić. A soldier said to Hodžić, ‘[I]f you don’t lick this blood by the time I return, I will cut your throats.’<sup>7596</sup> The Trial Chamber finds that Veljko Bašić was the commander at the Vlasenica secondary school at this time. Bašić wore a blue police uniform. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 that Veljko Bašić was a member of the SJB Vlasenica. The guards wore camouflage uniforms. Among the guards were Vojin Grabovica, a person called Zoran, Milorad

4.14.3 Destruction of private and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites

1803. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for wanton acts of destruction of private property, including homes and business premises, and public property, including cultural monuments and sacred sites in Vlasenica Municipality, between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7597</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact number 1251 in relation to these incidents. It also received evidence from Witness RM-066, a Serb from Vlasenica,<sup>7598</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Fact.<sup>7599</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Ibro Osmanović, a Bosnian Muslim from Vlasenica<sup>7600</sup>, and Mane Đurić, Head of the SJB Vlasenica as of 20 May 1992.<sup>7601</sup> The Adjudicated Fact, the evidence of Witness RM-066, and parts of the evidence of Mane Đurić are reviewed in chapters 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1 and 4.14.7.

1804. Ibro Osmanović testified that one day while he was detained at Sušica camp, between 18 and 30 June 1992, he and Emin Gobeljić were called out by some of the guards.<sup>7602</sup> They were taken to the apartment of Jusuf Dautović, a Muslim, on Trg Oslobodjenja and told to carry almost everything away.<sup>7603</sup> Zoran Obrenović, Bato Milić, and ‘another soldier’ were also there.<sup>7604</sup> The items were then transported back to Sušica camp and all burned, except for a mattress which was taken to an invalid at the camp.<sup>7605</sup>

1805. Mane Đurić testified that the Vlasenica Town mosque was destroyed by explosives in August 1992.<sup>7606</sup> The Vlasenica SJB was given a two or three-hour notice from a VRS unit and asked the population to leave the area.<sup>7607</sup> In its report, the SJB recorded that the mosque was blown up by unidentified perpetrators.<sup>7608</sup> According to the witness, in order to avoid a conflict of authority with the VRS, the SJB did not undertake any preventative action.<sup>7609</sup>

1806. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that during the Gradina operations at the end of May and early June 1992, Kraljević ordered his unit to burn all the Muslim houses in order to prevent the owners from returning (see chapter 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1). The unit was supported by a VRS unit as well as police officers from the SJB Vlasenica. Many Muslim houses in Gradina and the surrounding villages, including Barice and Turalići, were burnt down. In Piskavice, a mixed Serb and Muslim village, they torched only the Muslim houses. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1807. The Trial Chamber further finds that sometime between 18 and 30 June 1992, Ibro Osmanović, a Bosnian Muslim detained at the Sušica camp, together with Emin Gobelji were called out by some of the guards, taken to the apartment of Jusuf Dautović in Vlasenica and told to take almost everything away. The items were then transported to Sušica camp and almost everything was burned. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding from chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 that the Vlasenica crisis staff and guards, consisting of members of the VRS and the MUP, were responsible for the conditions at the camp. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1808. The Trial Chamber also finds that in August 1992, a VRS unit ordered the destruction of the Vlasenica Town mosque, after giving a two-three hour notice to the SJB Vlasenica and asking the population to leave the area. The mosque was destroyed by explosives. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment.

4.14.4 Appropriation or plunder of property

1809. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for appropriation or plunder of property during and after take-overs, during arrests and detentions, and during or after deportations or forcible transfers of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Vlasenica Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7610</sup> The Trial Chamber has taken judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts<sup>7611</sup> and received evidence from Witness RM-030 and Ibro Osmanović, both Bosnian Muslims from Vlasenica Municipality,<sup>7612</sup> in relation to alleged incidents of appropriation or plunder, in chapters 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3, 4.14.6, and 4.14.7.<sup>7613</sup>

1811. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on or shortly after 17 May 1992 the Vlasenica municipal authorities forced a group of Bosnian-Muslim women<sup>7620</sup> from Zaklopač to sign over their houses and properties to Serbs.

1812. Based on Witness RM-066's evidence, the Trial Chamber further finds that in June 1992, members of Kraljević's unit took televisions and other property from Bosnian-Muslim residences in Vlasenica Town, and that one of the members claimed, and subsequently moved into, a Bosnian-Muslim house in Vlasenica Town. Members of the unit were permitted to take property from non-Serbs. Based on Adjudicated Facts 1259 and 1260, and evidence of Witness RM-030, the Trial Chamber finds that in early June 1992, Dragan Nikolić ordered Bosnian-Muslim detainees at Sušica camp to surrender all of their possessions. The Trial Chamber understands from Witness RM-030's evidence that the possessions were taken and were not returned to the detainees. Further, the Trial Chamber finds that Sušica camp guards, members of the VRS and MUP, stripped more than 800 Bosnian-Muslim women of their valuables. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.14.5 Forced labour and human shields

1813. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for subjecting Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats in Vlasenica municipality to forced labour, including digging graves and trenches and other forms of forced labour at front lines, and using them as human shields between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7621</sup> The Defence argued that detainees at Sušica camp volunteered to work and were not forced.<sup>7622</sup> The Defence further argued that at the camp, all ethnicities, Bosnian Serbs included, were equally subjected to comparable work obligations.<sup>7623</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of adjudicated fact no. 1216 related to forced labour for detainees at the Sušica camp. It also received evidence from Witness RM-066, a Serb from Vlasenica,<sup>7624</sup>

<sup>7620</sup> According to P6870, Zaklopac consisted of 288 Muslims and 146 Serbs (and 3 others or unknown). Considering this, and that the women were forced to sign over the property to Serbs, the Trial Chamber concludes that the women were Bosnian Muslims.

1814. The detainees at Sušica camp performed several types of forced labour, including burial of the men killed in Drum, digging of trenches, and carrying munitions at the front lines.<sup>7628</sup> According to a judgement before a local court in 2010, Goran Višković was convicted of, among others, ordering 20 detainees to get on a truck to perform forced labour on 27 June 1992.<sup>7629</sup> Witness RM-066 specified that by the second half of July 1992, a group of 50-100 detainees was taken to work on various projects on a daily basis, such as the VRS barracks, the Alpro factory, the hospital, or agricultural work.<sup>7630</sup> Mane Đurić, Branislav Sokanović, and Risto Vidović could authorize the use of Sušica camp detainees through written order.<sup>7631</sup> Police or battalion commanders, Milanko Sargić or Radenko Stanić, personally came to the camp to take detainees.<sup>7632</sup> Vojislav Nikolić and Veljko Bašić could also take detainees for work without a written order.<sup>7633</sup> The persons taking them to carry out labour had to provide this order, specifying the number of detainees to be taken, and sign a list of the detainees taken prior to the departure of the detainees so that it could be confirmed whether all were returned in the evening.<sup>7634</sup> Veljko Bašić was informed if a detainee was missing and would require explanations as to whether the detainee was released, taken by the SJB, or killed.<sup>7635</sup>

1815. The Trial Chamber finds that detainees at the Sušica camp performed several types of forced labour, including burial of the men killed in Drum, digging of trenches, and carrying munitions at the front lines.<sup>7636</sup> From at least mid-June until the end of September 1992, Vojislav Nikolić, Veljko Bašić, a member of the SJB Vlasenica during his time at Sušica camp as established in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3, Milanko Sargić, and Radenko Stanić, personally selected and/or took out non-Serb detainees from Sušica camp to carry out forced labour.<sup>7637</sup> From the second half of July onwards, some of these individuals forced a group of 50-100 detainees to work on various projects on a daily basis. In this respect, the Trial Chamber also recalls its findings in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 concerning the conditions of detention. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

4.14.6 Imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures

1816. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures on Bosnian Muslims and/or Bosnian Croats in Vlasenica Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7638</sup> Such measures included, but were not limited to, the denial of freedom of movement, the removal from positions of authority in local government institutions and the police, the general dismissal from employment, the invasion of privacy through arbitrary searches of homes, unlawful arrest and/or the denial of the right to judicial process, and the denial of equal access to public services.<sup>7639</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts. It also received evidence from Ibro Osmanović and Witness RM-004, both Bosnian Muslims from Vlasenica,<sup>7640</sup> as well

<sup>7636</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that Ibro Osmanović was one of the detainees involved in the burial of the men killed at Drum, as described in chapter 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1. It also observes that Osmanović was held at a detention facility that was stricken from the Indictment. The Trial Chamber has therefore not considered Osmanović's evidence for its finding on the occurrence of forced labour in Vlasenica and refers to its considerations regarding this type of evidence set out in Appendix B. The Trial Chamber has relied on the un rebutted adjudicated fact that detainees at the Sušica camp performed several types of forced labour, including burial of the men killed in Drum.

1817. From late 1991 and up to May 1992, Muslims working in state-owned companies and other public services in Vlasenica Municipality were dismissed from their jobs.<sup>7644</sup> According to Đurić, following the adoption of the decision of 19 April 1992 to take over the municipality, Muslims no longer reported to their workplace in the municipality, partly because a majority had already left.<sup>7645</sup> Muslim shopkeepers feared keeping their businesses open.<sup>7646</sup> Ibro Osmanović testified that after a Serb-only JNA unit had collected weapons with the help of local Serbs, Serb shops and bars began to re-open, but the Muslims were afraid to open their stores because the stores of those Muslims who had left, had been broken into and their homes and shops had signs posted or painted on them saying ‘Muslims leave’ and ‘We will kill all Ustaša.’<sup>7647</sup>

1818. Osmanović testified that around 17 or 18 May 1992, all the former Serb police officers and MUP personnel were called back to work, while Muslims, even those that worked there, were not allowed to enter the building containing the police station.<sup>7648</sup> According to Đurić, following the disarmament of policemen in execution of the Crisis Staff’s decision on disarming active and reserve police forces on 19 April 1992, the non-Serb policemen did not report for work at the police station.<sup>7649</sup> Rade Bjelanović, the Chief of the SJB, was authorised to establish the police station with new personnel.<sup>7650</sup> The police officers with a Serb ethnic background were re-employed.<sup>7651</sup> municipalities.<sup>7652</sup> Checkpoints were erected under the authority of Dragiša Milaković, an SDS member.<sup>7653</sup> Osmanović confirmed that contrary to the ‘Serbian’ population, the Muslim population of Vlasenica was not allowed to move freely within the municipality.<sup>7654</sup> At some point between 17 May and 22 May 1992, Milaković showed him a list containing the witness’s name and the names of other Muslim men between the ages of about 18 and 55, who had remained in Vlasenica after the JNA occupation.<sup>7655</sup> Milaković warned the witness not to walk around the town at night, to ignore anyone breaking into houses and taking property, and to take care of his life, because it was uncertain who had weapons now.<sup>7656</sup>

1820. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that following a Crisis Staff’s decision, dated 19 April 1992, on disarming active and reserve police forces, non-Serb policemen did not report for work at the police station. Rade Bjelanović, the Chief of the SJB, was authorised to establish the police station with new personnel. Around 17 or 18 May 1992, all the former Serb police officers and MUP personnel were called back to work, whereas Bosnian Muslims, even those that worked there, were not allowed to enter the police station. The Trial Chamber therefore finds that the Bosnian-Muslim staff members of the police were dismissed.

1821. The Trial Chamber further finds that around the time of the takeover of the municipality, on 23 April 1992, checkpoints were established under the authority of Dragiša Milaković, an SDS member. On 19 May 1992, the Serb Crisis Staff issued instructions on the procedure for persons to leave Vlasenica, requiring all Bosnian Muslims to sign a statement admitting that they were leaving of their own free will, before they were issued a pass to leave the Municipality. The Crisis Staff, under Milenko Stanić, issued passes which Bosnian Muslims were required to use in order to move around Vlasenica Municipality or to travel to other municipalities, whereas this requirement was not imposed on the Serb population.

1822. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Count 3 in chapter 8 below.

4.14.7 Forcible transfer and deportation

1823. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for forcible transfer and deportation of Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Vlasenica Municipality between 12 May 1992 and 30 November 1995.<sup>7657</sup> The forcible transfers and deportations were implemented by the imposition of restrictive and discriminatory measures, arbitrary arrest and detention, harassment, torture, rape and other acts of sexual violence, killing, the destruction of houses and cultural monuments and sacred sites, and the threat of further such acts - aimed at Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats.<sup>7658</sup> Others were physically driven out.<sup>7659</sup> The Defence argued that large numbers of Bosnian Muslims had already left Vlasenica by 19 April 1992, following an imminent threat of war by the Crisis Staff.<sup>7660</sup> The movement of civilians was voluntarily and caused by natural fear and panic to the rising of political tension and chaotic armed conflict in the municipality.<sup>7661</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts related to this charge.<sup>7662</sup> It received evidence from Witness RM-066, a Serb from Vlasenica (also reviewed in chapter 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1);<sup>7663</sup> Witness RM-030, a Bosnian Muslim from Vlasenica (also reviewed in chapter 4.2.2 Schedule C.2.1);<sup>7664</sup> Ibro Osmanović, a Bosnian Muslim from Vlasenica (also reviewed in chapter 4.14.6);<sup>7665</sup> Mane Đurić, Head of the Vlasenica SJB as of 20 May 1992 (also reviewed in chapters 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1 and 4.14.6);<sup>7666</sup> and Momir Deurić, member of the Vlasenica TO until the beginning of the war in 1992 and assigned to providing security for one of the TO facilities in Sušica from April to September 1992,<sup>7667</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated

Transfer of people in connection with and following the attack on the municipality

1824. In accordance with the 1991 census in Bosnia-Herzegovina, the ethnic composition of Vlasenica Municipality was: 18,727 (55 per cent) Muslims, 14,359 (42 per cent) Serbs, 39 Croats, 340 Yugoslavs, and 477 persons of other or unknown ethnicity.<sup>7673</sup> After 24 October 1991, members of the Vlasenica SDS founded an Assembly of the Serbian people.<sup>7674</sup> Mane Đurić testified that the Assembly started functioning in mid-April 1992.<sup>7675</sup>

number of soldiers and reservists were already present there.<sup>7677</sup> In the beginning of that month, SDS and local Muslims negotiated the division of the municipality into Serb and Muslim parts.<sup>7678</sup> During the negotiations, Milenko Stanić, the SDS-appointed President of the Municipal Assembly, consulted with Rajko Dukić, President of the SDS Executive Board.<sup>7679</sup> Dukić told Izet Redžić, SDA-appointed President of the executive board of Vlasenica Municipality, that he was following orders coming from 'higher up'.<sup>7680</sup> According to Momir Deurić, the Serb representatives in the municipal government proposed to divide the territory of the municipality into a Serb and a Muslim municipality.<sup>7681</sup> Redžić received threats from Tomislav Savkić, the Vlasenica SDS President, that if the Muslims refused the partition, armed intervention would follow.<sup>7682</sup> Deurić testified that Muslims accepted the proposal but started leaving Vlasenica en masse for Kladanj, Tuzla, and Cerska shortly thereafter.<sup>7683</sup> Đurić testified that around 13 April 1992, the municipality was split into the Serb municipality of Vlasenica, the Muslim municipality of Vlasenica, and the Serb municipality of Milići.<sup>7684</sup> On 19 April 1992, the Vlasenica Crisis Staff adopted a decision on taking over power in the territory of Vlasenica Municipality.<sup>7685</sup> Power was taken over a day or two later by the Serb authorities.<sup>7686</sup> On or about 23 April 1992, JNA soldiers took over the town of Vlasenica with the assistance of local armed Serbs, by taking control of the municipality premises, the police station, the post office, and the bank.<sup>7687</sup> Immediately after that, the seat of the Serb municipality of Vlasenica was moved from Milići to Vlasenica town, and a Serb crisis staff was set up.<sup>7688</sup>

1827. Ibro Osmanović testified that between 21 and 23 April 1992, Serb JNA soldiers from the Sremska Mitrovica Motorized Unit of the Novi Sad Corps came from the direction of Šekovići Municipality and entered Vlasenica Town with tanks and an APC.<sup>7693</sup> During the night of 23 and 24 April 1992, the Serb soldiers occupied Vlasenica Town and took control of the municipal defense and justice departments, the police station, the post office, and the bank.<sup>7694</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that it was the Serb police and TO that took control of Vlasenica with the aid of approximately 200 JNA soldiers from the Novi Sad Corps.<sup>7695</sup> There was no Muslim resistance to the take-over.<sup>7696</sup>

1828. According to Đurić, some departures of Muslims took place on 21 April 1992. Seeing the number of soldiers in town, Muslims became scared and started leaving towards Kladanj, Olovo, Tuzla, or Cerska. Those without transportation came to the municipal authorities asking for transportation, which was then secured for them.<sup>7697</sup> More departures took place following the take-over and, more particularly, the arrival of Serbs en masse at the end of April. The Muslims left because they were in a minority and feared for their safety. Others were forcibly removed from their houses and apartments by the arriving Serbs, who themselves had been evicted by Muslims elsewhere.<sup>7698</sup>

1829. Osmanović testified that following the take-over, the Serbs arranged a command structure and established the Serb Municipality Crisis Committee, which appeared to make all the final decisions in the town.<sup>7699</sup> According to Witness RM-066, the Crisis Staff, headed by Milenko Stanić, was the main municipal authority in Vlasenica in

Policemen reported to Vojo Nikolić. Aco, Đurić; two brothers called Sekulić; and a man called Simo from Piskavice.<sup>7704</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that Dragan Nikolić received a summons to join Kraljević's unit between 15 and 20 May 1992.<sup>7705</sup> According to Witness RM-066, at 7 a.m. every morning, all members of this special police platoon reported to the Vlasenica SJB building, where Kraljević assigned groups to their daily tasks.<sup>7706</sup> Occasionally Radenko Stanić and Mane Đurić attended these morning roll calls.<sup>7707</sup> The orders to conduct operations against Muslim villages in the municipality were received from Stanić, but specific direction for these operations lay within Kraljević's discretion.<sup>7708</sup>

1831. Witness RM-066 testified that Serb forces took over the following 16 Muslim villages in Vlasenica Municipality in 1992: Dragaši, Džemat, Drum, Alihadžić, Piskavice, Pijuci, Gradina, Turalići, Zaklopača, Kašaha, Neđeljište, Peševina, Hodžići, Mršići, Smajići, and Kuljančić.<sup>7713</sup> No non-Serb inhabitants remained in those villages after the take-overs and the ones that 'survived' either escaped or were taken to Sušica camp.<sup>7714</sup> While in Vlasenica, Osmanović heard that 'Chetniks' had cleansed several Muslim villages, killing 87 inhabitants in Zaklopača, 12 in Pijuci, 27 in Drum, 12 in Džamdžići, and about 30 in each Kula and Zeban.<sup>7715</sup> According to the witness, the special police platoon conducted the operation in Turalići in early May 1992, under the orders of Kraljević, and that village was burnt almost entirely to the ground.<sup>7716</sup> On 15 May 1992, Radovan Tačić, the Commander of the Birač Brigade Command, ordered the 3rd Infantry Battalion to control the territory of Milići municipality by fighting the renegade groups in coordination with the TO, in order to enable the functioning of the organs of the government.<sup>7717</sup> The following day on 16 May 1992, there was a take-over of Zaklopača killing 60 to 80 people, which, according to Đurić, encouraged Muslims to leave the area of Vlasenica.<sup>7718</sup> Witness RM-066 heard that prior to the attack on Zaklopača, the Muslims from that village had expressed their wish to stay, signed an oath of loyalty to the Bosnian-Serb Republic and posed no threat to the Serbs.<sup>7719</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts that, on 17 May 1992, in Zaklopača in Vlasenica Municipality, a group of women and children and one elderly man surrendered to the Serbs.<sup>7720</sup> The Serbs took them to the municipality building in Vlasenica town, where the women had to sign statements giving away their houses and properties to 'the Serbs'.<sup>7721</sup> They were then put on a bus and dropped off at a point about ten kilometres outside Kladanj, from where they walked to Kladanj town.<sup>7722</sup> On 26 and 28 May 1992, Svetozar Andrić ordered the Osmaci Light Infantry Battalion and Zvornik TO Staff respectively to move women and children out of the Muslims villages to Kalesija and Gračanica and to bring the men to the collection centres.<sup>7723</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that non-Serbs were harassed and did not feel their lives were secure in the municipality.<sup>7724</sup> Muslims from villages that were taken over by the end of May 1992 were fleeing for their lives although the Vlasenica municipal authorities were calling their departure voluntary.<sup>7725</sup> These Muslims waited with their belongings either at the bus station or on the football field for an opportunity to leave the municipality.<sup>7726</sup>

1832. Witness RM-004 testified that during the attack in Drum on 2 June 1992, the Serbs were killing all of the men and moving every Muslim woman out of the village.<sup>7727</sup> He was taken to an area where the women and children were being gathered, put onto a bus, and later transferred to the Sušica camp.<sup>7728</sup> According to Witness RM-066, the primary goal of the operation in Drum and Gradina was to surround and round up all Muslims, including women and children, and to transport them from Vlasenica.<sup>7729</sup>

1833. According to Đurić, by August 1992, almost all Muslims had left Vlasenica.<sup>7730</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that by October 1992, the only non-Serbs that remained in Vlasenica Town were a few Muslims who were married to Serbs and one Croat married to a Serb.<sup>7731</sup> By that time, no non-Serbs remained in the surrounding villages; the area that had been 'cleansed' of non-Serbs had expanded almost to Cerska.<sup>7732</sup> According to Tomislav Savkić, the departure of Muslims from Vlasenica took place in three stages: (i) those who did not support the war option and who saw that their extremist leadership was leading them into war left; (ii) those who were afraid of the revenge of the Serbs for what their ancestors had done to the Serbs in World Wars I and II left; and (iii)

'Serbian' refugees who were expelled by Muslims from Goražde, Srebrenica, Kladanj, and Olovo started arriving in Vlasenica in mid-May 1992, which made Muslims feel unsafe because they were in the minority and they were afraid of revenge attacks by Serbs which resulted in Muslims leaving.<sup>7733</sup>

The involvement of the Vlasenica crisis staff in the transfer of people

1834. The Trial Chamber received some evidence about the involvement of the Vlasenica Crisis Staff in the departure of Muslims from the municipality. Witness RM-066 testified that on 19 May 1992, the Crisis Staff issued instructions on the procedure for persons to leave the municipality, requiring all Muslims to sign a statement admitting that they were leaving of their own free will, before they were issued a pass to leave the municipality.<sup>7734</sup> Serb civilians did not need a pass to go through the checkpoints and move to another part of the municipality.<sup>7735</sup> On many occasions Muslims also had to pay a substantial amount of money in order to be permitted to leave.<sup>7736</sup> According to Đurić, the procedure laid out by the Crisis Staff was applicable to Muslims and Serbs and involved obtaining a certificate to allow a person to leave the municipality; it was applicable to Serbs to prevent them from leaving the municipality to avoid military service.<sup>7737</sup> Inhabitants could not obtain this certificate unless they signed a statement confirming that they were leaving the municipality voluntarily.<sup>7738</sup>

On 4 February 2010, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina convicted Predrag Bastah of ordering a couple as well as a woman and her underage children to leave Vlasenica Municipality in late August 1992.<sup>7739</sup> He threatened to kill them and all of them were 'forced' to leave for Muslim-controlled territory.<sup>7740</sup>

The transfer of people from Sušica camp

1836. The Trial Chamber also received evidence about people leaving the municipality after having been detained at Sušica camp in Vlasenica Municipality. In this respect, Witness RM-066 testified that between 15 or 18 June 1992 until the end of September 1992, instructions were to release detainees for exchange or transfer only upon seeing a written order with the signature of Risto Vidović, Mane Đurić, Branislav Sokanović, Veljko Bašić, Mićo Kraljević, or Milenko Stanić.<sup>7741</sup> While the official position of the Bosnian-Serb authorities in Vlasenica was that the detainees were exchanged for Serb detainees, no ‘real’ prisoner exchanges took place while he was stationed at Sušica camp and the general policy was that the able-bodied men of military age were transferred to the Batković detention facility in Bijeljina, while women, children and the elderly were generally taken to the frontlines in Kladanj or Cerska and simply ‘released’.<sup>7742</sup> When the Serb police or military would come to the Sušica camp for a group of detainees, they had a list of names, and would transport the majority of detainees by buses or trucks.<sup>7743</sup> On average, the trucks and buses arrived every seven to ten days, and excluding the smaller transportations of four or five detainees, the witness observed about 20 transports of between 20 to 300 detainees between 15 or 18 June 1992 until the end of September 1992.<sup>7744</sup>

1837. Witness RM-004 stated that on 5 June 1992, at Sušica camp, a group of men, one of whom he identified as working for the Vlasenica Municipality, came to issue permits to people in order to leave Vlasenica.<sup>7745</sup> The witness and others were told by these people that such permits were needed in order to leave Vlasenica without being mistreated or sent back at a roadblock.<sup>7746</sup> Anyone could sign and leave the camp but mostly women, children, and the elderly did so; approximately 800 women left in this manner with only about 10 women choosing to remain.<sup>7747</sup> Those who signed up to leave went on a bus bound for Kladanj.<sup>7748</sup> The witness understood that if he signed, he

1838. Witness RM-030 stated that on 6 June 1992, the men were separated from the women and children at the camp. The women including the witness's wife, daughter, mother, and sister-in-law were made to sign a book stating that they were leaving of their own volition and transported to Luke in buses and trucks. From there, they travelled on foot to Kladanj. Others (including the witness's father) were taken to Cerska in Vlasenica Municipality.<sup>7750</sup> Witness RM-066 testified that on one day in July 1992, 200 to 300 male detainees were taken in four or five buses to Batković camp.<sup>7751</sup> In July or August 1992, in the presence of camp warden Veljko Bašić and deputy camp warden Vidoslav Mladenović, a large number of women, children, and elderly men were taken by Serb police or military in three separate buses.<sup>7752</sup> An order was issued by Drago Nikolić and two police officers from Vlasenica SJB to rob women in that transport of their jewellery and valuables.<sup>7753</sup> According to Deurić, when lots of detainees were arriving at Sušica camp, those who wanted to go to Kladanj or Cerska, especially women and children, were immediately taken away to be exchanged.<sup>7754</sup>

1839. Milenko Stanić testified that on 26 December 1991, the municipal assembly of Vlasenica Municipality decided to join the SAO Birač.<sup>7755</sup> On 13 April 1992, the municipal assembly of Vlasenica Municipality adopted an agreement on the division of the territory into three municipalities: a Muslim municipality, a Serbian municipality, and the municipality of Milići.<sup>7756</sup> According to the witness, the Muslim representatives gave up on its implementation shortly after its adoption under pressure from the SDA leadership and only the decision on the establishment of Milići Municipality was implemented.<sup>7757</sup>

1841. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that throughout May 1992, as Serb refugees arrived in Vlasenica, Bosnian Muslims left because they feared for their safety. The arriving Serb refugees forced some Bosnian Muslims from their homes. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.6. The Trial Chamber also recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.1. A decision of the Vlasenica Crisis Staff, on 19 May 1992, compelled all Bosnian Muslims leaving Vlasenica to sign a statement admitting that they were leaving of their own volition.<sup>7759</sup> The Trial Chamber, accordingly, finds that Bosnian Muslims did not feel their lives were secure in Vlasenica Municipality and that, by August 1992, almost all Bosnian Muslims had left the municipality. The Trial Chamber notes, however, that many of the almost 19,000 Bosnian Muslims had departed Vlasenica prior to 12 May 1992. The Trial Chamber will further consider the departure of Bosnian Muslims from Vlasenica Municipality between 12 May and August 1992 in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment.

1842. The Trial Chamber finds that the attack on the Bosnian-Muslim village of Zaklopača on 16 May 1992, which killed 60 to 80 people, had encouraged Muslims to leave Vlasenica. On 17 May 1992, Serbs took a group comprised of women, children, and one elderly man from Zaklopač in Vlasenica Municipality who had surrendered to them to the municipality building in Vlasenica town. There the women had to sign statements giving away their houses and properties to 'the Serbs'. They were then put on a bus and dropped off at a point approximately ten kilometres outside Kladanj, from where they walked to Kladanj town. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment.

1843. The Trial Chamber finds that in May and June 1992, Kraljević, under the command of the Vlasenica Crisis Staff, led his unit, supported by a VRS unit, to take over Gradina, Sušica, and other Bosnian Muslim hamlets and send women and children to Vlasenica town. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1. Kraljević ordered the unit to torch all Muslim houses in order to prevent owners from returning. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.3. In relation to the incidents on 2 June 1992, in the village of Drum in Gradina, approximately 500 Muslims were captured by Kraljević's unit, accompanied by other VRS forces, and were taken either to Sušica camp or transported to the Vlasenica bus station or the football field before they were taken to Kladanj. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.1 Schedule A.9.1 in relation to this incident and finds that it was aimed to kill all the men and transfer the women and children outside the village. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1844. The Trial Chamber makes the following findings in relation to the numerous incidents at Sušica camp. The Trial Chamber finds that on or around 6 June 1992, following the separation of men from women and children at Sušica camp, approximately 800 women were transported, in buses and trucks, to Luke. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 that those detaining the women were VRS and MUP members. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 that the detainees at Sušica camp were Bosnian Muslims. Some of the women continued to Kladanj on foot. Others were taken to Cerska in Vlasenica Municipality. Women and others were required to sign statements by camp authorities stating that they left of their own volition, which they understood to entail the abandonment of their property. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment.

1845. The Trial Chamber finds that sometime after 28 June 1992, Witness RM-004, a Bosnian-Muslim man from Vlasenica was transferred from Sušica camp to Batković camp by a bus that was accompanied by a man wearing a camouflage outfit. On 30 June 1992, Witness RM-030, a Bosnian-Muslim man from Vlasenica was transferred from Sušica camp to the Batković camp. Between December 1992 and July 1993, Bosnian-Muslim detainees were released as part of an exchange after having been detained in both the Sušica camp and Batković camp, including Witness RM-004 and Witness RM-030 in Tuzla. The Trial Chamber will further consider the incidents related to the transfer of Witness RM-004 and Witness RM-030 in relation to Counts 3 and 7-8 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

1846. In relation to the incident in July or August 1992 at Sušica camp, the Trial Chamber finds that in the presence of camp wardens, a large number of women, children, and elderly men were taken in three separate buses from Sušica camp to either Kladanj or Cerska by Serb police or military. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding in chapter 4.14.2 Schedule C.19.3 that the detainees at Sušica camp were Bosnian Muslims.

1847. With regard to the evidence on the transfer from Sušica camp to Batković camp of approximately 200 Bosnian-Muslim detainees from Kalejisa Municipality on 28 June 1992, the Trial Chamber notes that Kalejisa Municipality is not within the scope of the Indictment and the allegations concerning the forced transfer or deportation of those Bosnian Muslims therefore fall outside of the Indictment. Similarly, the Trial Chamber notes that Mirsad Kuralić was residing in Kalejisa Municipality until the war. Thus, the allegations that he was forcibly transferred or deported on 13 August 1992 after his detention at Sušica camp and Batković camp fall outside the scope of the Indictment. For these reasons, it will not further consider these incidents in relation to any count of the Indictment.

1848. As for the evidence provided by Witness RM-066 on the transfer of 200 to 300 male detainees from Sušica camp to Batković camp on a day in July 1992, the Trial Chamber notes that the witness did not specify from which Municipality the detainees originated. Since only a limited number of municipalities fall within the scope of the Indictment and some or all of the 200 to 300 detainees may have originated from a municipality that falls outside the scope of the Indictment, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this incident in relation to any count of the Indictment.

1849. In relation to the evidence of the incident of alleged forcible transfer involving Predrag Bastah, the Trial Chamber does not rely on the facts as set out in the excerpt of the Judgment of the Court of Bosnia-Herzegovina dated 4 February 2010, in evidence as exhibit P6938, as it is unclear on what basis the court found that Bastah ordered people to leave Vlasenica Municipality in late August 1992 and there is a lack of supporting evidence thereof. The Trial Chamber, therefore, will not further consider this incident in relation to any Count of the Indictment.

5. Sarajevo

5.1 Introduction

5.1.1 Conditions in Sarajevo

1850. In chapters 5.2 and 5.3 below, the Trial Chamber will address specific instances of sniping and shelling. In this chapter, it will review evidence and make findings concerning the general situation in Sarajevo. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the conditions in Sarajevo.<sup>7760</sup> It further received evidence from Tarik Kupusović, a member of the Sarajevo town assembly from 1990 to 1994 and the mayor of Sarajevo from 1994 to 1996;<sup>7761</sup> Sabina Šabanić, Witness RM-155, and Rasema Menzilović, all Bosnian Muslims from Sarajevo;<sup>7762</sup> Nedžib Dozo, a former Bosnian-Muslim JNA mortar platoon commander and civilian police investigator;<sup>7763</sup> Husein Abdel-Razek, UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Commander from 21 August 1992 to 20 February 1993;<sup>7764</sup> and David Fraser, a Military Assistant to the UNPROFOR Commander in Sector Sarajevo from 17 April 1994 to 26 May 1995;<sup>7765</sup> as well as documentary evidence, and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>7766</sup> It also received evidence from John

General background

1851. Sarajevo was well-known as a multi-ethnic, multi-religious city, with a long history of religious and cultural tolerance.<sup>7789</sup> By 1992, Sarajevo had grown into the most important political, cultural, industrial, and commercial centre of Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>7790</sup> The central area of Sarajevo was composed of six municipalities, namely Sarajevo Centar, Ilidža, Novi Grad, Novo Sarajevo, Stari Grad, and Vogošća.<sup>7791</sup> The broader Sarajevo area included four other municipalities: Hadžići, Ilijaš, Pale, and Trnovo.<sup>7792</sup> Tarik Kupusović stated that in 1991 there were approximately 500,000 people living in Sarajevo.<sup>7793</sup> At that time, 40 per cent were of Muslim ethnicity, 32 per cent were of Serb ethnicity, and eight per cent were of Croat ethnicity; the remainder of the population either identified themselves as Yugoslavs or belonged to other ethnic groups.<sup>7794</sup> According to the 1991 census, Pale Municipality was the only one in which Bosnian Serbs constituted an absolute majority, estimated at around 69 per cent of the population.<sup>7795</sup> According to the census, the Serbs were a simple majority in Ilidža and Ilijaš, while they were in approximately equal numbers to the Muslims in Novo Sarajevo.<sup>7796</sup>

Agreements and ceasefires

1852. Several witnesses provided evidence about agreements made between the Bosnian-Serb and the Bosnia-Herzegovina leadership or with the UN concerning the withdrawal of heavy weapons and ceasefires. John Wilson testified that following and pursuant to the airport agreement signed on 5 June 1992, Serb artillery was concentrated in a number of areas so that they could be observed by military liaison officers.<sup>7797</sup> Husein Abdel-Razek testified that according to ‘the agreement’, the airport was under the supervision and management of UNPROFOR.<sup>7798</sup> UNPROFOR used the airport for humanitarian relief purposes, for receiving the delegations of peacekeeping missions, and for facilitating the movement of Bosnian officials to attend peace negotiations outside of Sarajevo.<sup>7799</sup> Only liaison officers were allowed to be present in the airport facilities or on the runway; members of the armed forces of both parties were prohibited on the premises. Civilians were also not allowed to use the airport or to be present in and around it.<sup>7800</sup> Richard Gray stated that as early as 18 June 1992, the leadership of both parties signed an agreement providing for the continuation of a unilateral ceasefire and for concentration of all heavy weapons within range of the airport in five collection centres where the weapons would be under the observation of UNPROFOR.<sup>7801</sup>

Similarly, Michael Rose testified that in February 1994 both parties signed agreements concerning an immediate ceasefire in Sarajevo and the withdrawal of all heavy weapons from a 20-kilometre circle around Sarajevo.<sup>7802</sup> During the withdrawal, the Bosnian Serbs produced a far greater amount of weapons than the Bosnian Muslims<sup>7803</sup> but both sides concealed a certain number of weapons within the TEZ.<sup>7804</sup> David Fraser testified that on 14 August 1994, an anti-sniping agreement was signed between Bosnia-Herzegovina, represented by ABiH Corps Commander Karavelić, and the Bosnian Serbs, represented by SRK Commander General Dragomir Milošević, by which the parties undertook to issue, within 24 hours, orders explicitly forbidding sniping activities against military personnel, civilians, and UN personnel.<sup>7805</sup> The anti-sniping agreement led to a short-term improvement, but it did not eliminate sniping altogether.<sup>7806</sup> According to a 15 September 1994 UNPROFOR assessment, thanks to the anti-sniping agreement, the tram and bus transport began functioning properly and an average of 15 snipers' victims per week was reduced to four victims.<sup>7807</sup>

1853. Neither the SRK nor the ABiH adhered to the TEZ.<sup>7808</sup> On 24 May 1995, the SRK removed weapons from WCPs, following an increase in the fighting, and refused to return them.<sup>7809</sup> General Smith issued an ultimatum to re-establish the TEZ but this was ignored, resulting in NATO air strikes on bunkers in an ammunitions depot outside Pale on 25 May 1995.<sup>7810</sup> During the night of 25 May 1995, the shelling of safe areas in Bosnia-Herzegovina, including Sarajevo, by the VRS, continued.<sup>7811</sup> On 25 and 26 May 1995, the SRK took a number of heavy weapons from WCPs.<sup>7812</sup> NATO targeted the ammunitions depot outside Pale on 26 May 1995.<sup>7813</sup> The SRK and the ABiH kept heavy weaponry within the 20-kilometre zone around Sarajevo, and outside WCPs, at times between August 1994 and November 1995.<sup>7814</sup>

1854. During the night of 29 August 1995, air attacks against Bosnian-Serb positions began.<sup>7815</sup> These attacks lasted until 1 September 1995.<sup>7816</sup> The NATO attacks, targeting the wider area of Sarajevo, resumed on 5 September 1995 and lasted until 14 September 1995.<sup>7817</sup> On 15 September 1995, representatives of the VRS, including Dragomir Milošević, and UNPROFOR agreed to a ceasefire and withdrawal of VRS troops from the area surrounding Sarajevo.<sup>7818</sup> On 5 October 1995, a 60-day ceasefire was agreed upon; this was to come into force on 10 October 1995, on the condition that the utilities in Sarajevo were re-connected.<sup>7819</sup> On 11 October 1995, the parties agreed to a 60-day ceasefire as of 12 October 1995.<sup>7820</sup> The fighting subsided by 14 October 1995.<sup>7821</sup>

Shelling and sniping in Sarajevo

1855. On 6 April 1992, gunfire erupted in Sarajevo, with each side accusing the other of having started the hostilities.<sup>7822</sup> By the end of April, the contour of Sarajevo's siege was largely established.<sup>7823</sup> From 2 or 3 May and for several weeks onwards, Baščaršija, the centre of old Sarajevo, was set alight; the national and university libraries, the railway station, the post office, and many key buildings and apartment buildings in town were heavily shelled and destroyed.<sup>7824</sup> The above-mentioned buildings were scattered all over town, so one could not identify a particular part of town being targeted, except for the buildings themselves, that were symbols of the town and were essential for its functioning, like the post office, the railway stations, the Zetra sports hall, and similar facilities.<sup>7825</sup>

<sup>7815</sup> Adjudicated Facts III, no. 1762. The Trial Chamber understands this to refer to air attacks carried out by NATO. It further notes that according to Adjudicated Facts 1757 and 1560, NATO had carried out air attacks in May 1995. Thus, it understands that the word 'began' in Adjudicated Fact 1762 is only applicable in the context of the air attacks that started in August 1995.

1856. Several witnesses provided extensive evidence about the situation in Sarajevo during the first months of the conflict. Kupusović stated that in the beginning of May 1992, there was shooting from armoured vehicles from Maršal Tito Barracks.<sup>7826</sup> All areas of the town within reach of the barracks were targeted and shots were fired in all directions.<sup>7827</sup> Throughout this time, the city was also shelled, often from various positions around Sarajevo, but also from barracks in the city that were still under the control of the JNA.<sup>7828</sup> Kupusović estimated that there were approximately 10 to 15 casualties per day that could be attributed to shelling and sniping incidents, 95 per cent of whom were civilian.<sup>7829</sup> He stated that the young men in the police force did not have heavy weapons.<sup>7830</sup> The shooting from the Maršal Tito Barracks continued for several weeks, until it was agreed that the JNA had to move to Serbia and the barracks were evacuated approximately in mid-June.<sup>7831</sup> The JNA were to leave behind their heavy weapons for the ABiH and only take personal weapons. Some JNA members remained in Grbavica.<sup>7832</sup>

1857. Witness RM-147, a VRS member from June onwards, testified that in May and June 1992, living in Grbavica as a Muslim or Croat meant to be under constant fear of being exposed to dangers such as being evicted, physically or psychologically abused, or killed by the VRS or the civilian or military police.<sup>7833</sup> Many were expelled from Grbavica or were forced to perform labour.<sup>7834</sup> Women were sometimes raped. Those taken away never returned.<sup>7835</sup> The witness testified that there were a lot of snipers in Grbavica and that sniping was incessant.<sup>7836</sup> Members of a VRS platoon used abandoned Muslim houses as shelter.<sup>7837</sup> Snipers also used these houses as firing positions and used various kinds of weaponry, such as a rifle with telescopic sights and some kind of binoculars, as well as a special machine gun with optic infrared sights fitted onto it which allowed them to also shoot at night.<sup>7838</sup> The snipers targeted persons at intersections despite there being containers or barriers which were set up for protection.<sup>7839</sup>

1858. Kupusović stated that narrower streets or streets with taller buildings were known by the inhabitants to be safer.<sup>7840</sup> The people who were shot crossing streets and moving around were civilians. People could not stay in their basements to wait for the situation to end because they had to go out to take care of the basic necessities of life. They had to continue living their lives in very risky conditions among all the sniping and shelling.<sup>7841</sup> There was no way to discern why sniping started or when it would start or stop.<sup>7842</sup> When the Sarajevo Presidency started functioning in early June 1992, it received reports as to where people were wounded or killed. If several people had been killed or wounded at a certain location, that location was given priority as a place for anti-sniping protection.<sup>7843</sup> Funerals and other gatherings were targeted with shells or sniper fire. As a result, people buried the dead at night when there was little or no visibility.<sup>7844</sup> The two main cemeteries could not be used because one was outside the Sarajevo encirclement and the other was very close to the separation lines. Temporary burials were organised at several locations in Sarajevo and many old cemeteries from the last century were used.<sup>7845</sup>

1859. Sulejman Crnčalo testified that when he and his family moved to Sarajevo in July 1992, there was constant shelling and sniping in the city.<sup>7846</sup> Civilians were targeted by snipers and shell-fire all the time, for example when they were out fetching water, in line waiting for bread, or while attending funerals.<sup>7847</sup> Children were also killed by snipers while playing.<sup>7848</sup> There was a risk of being hit by a shell or a sniper's bullet at almost every intersection in the city.<sup>7849</sup> Crnčalo witnessed corpses and blood all over the streets of Sarajevo; the corpses had not been buried because the ongoing shelling and sniping made it too dangerous to retrieve them and because of the high

1860. Between September 1992 and August 1994, civilians were shot at almost every day.<sup>7853</sup> Civilians in ABiH-held areas of Sarajevo were attacked from SRK-controlled territory. As a result, and at a minimum, hundreds of civilians were killed and thousands of others were injured.<sup>7854</sup> During this time, the conflict in the city of Sarajevo was mainly static and apart from some changes, most of the confrontation lines remained unchanged.<sup>7855</sup> The SRK's main forces were positioned around what was colloquially called the inner ring of Sarajevo, in particular in the area of Ilidža, Neđarići, and Grbavica.<sup>7856</sup> ABiH-held territory, including most of the city, was almost completely surrounded by SRK forces.<sup>7857</sup> Fire into ABiH-held areas of Sarajevo followed a temporal pattern.<sup>7858</sup> It was intense between September and December 1992.<sup>7859</sup> According to an UNPROFOR report, on 8 December 1992, 'indiscriminate shelling of the city' intensified.<sup>7860</sup> Fire into Sarajevo was still significant throughout 1993, with daily or weekly fluctuations (days of little shootings followed by days of extreme activity), followed by an intensification of fire in winter 1993 and up to the wake of the Markale shelling incident in February 1994 before subsiding.<sup>7861</sup> Although there were periods of relative inactivity in shelling during 1994, people venturing outside were still targeted.<sup>7862</sup>

1861. Between September 1992 and August 1994, throughout the city of Sarajevo, there were points in SRK-controlled territory, such as the Jewish Cemetery, the Orthodox Church and the School for the Blind in the areas of Neđarići, Špicasta Stijena, Mount Trebević, and Baba Stijena or Orahov Brijeg, which were prominent sources of sniper fire against civilians.<sup>7863</sup> The same pattern of regular fire at civilians from SRK-controlled positions or areas appeared consistently throughout ABiH-held areas of the city of Sarajevo.<sup>7864</sup>

1862. Grbavica was a neighbourhood in the municipality of Novo Sarajevo located in the southern-central part of the city of Sarajevo.<sup>7865</sup> Between September 1992 and August 1994, it was under SRK control.<sup>7866</sup> The confrontation line in Grbavica ran along the Miljacka River, with Grbavica lying to the south.<sup>7867</sup> During this period, civilians in Novo Sarajevo were targeted from the SRK-controlled area of Grbavica.<sup>7868</sup> The ‘sky-scrapers’ were located on Lenjinova Street, directly across the Maršal Tito Barracks.<sup>7869</sup> During the same period, in the general area of Grbavica, fire was opened against civilians from different high-rise buildings on the southern side of the Miljacka River, in the SRK-controlled neighbourhood of Grbavica.<sup>7870</sup> The Metalka building was located at the end of Franje Račkog Street, across the Miljacka River, about 300 metres from the Holiday Inn and the Museum.<sup>7871</sup> These positions allowed soldiers to ‘literally shoot down streets’ in the central part of Sarajevo, exposing all pedestrians at intersections, as well as cars, buses and trams travelling from the east to the west of the city, to sniper fire.<sup>7872</sup> The main thoroughfare of Sarajevo, part of which was then called the Maršal Tito Boulevard, became known as ‘Sniper Alley’ as it was particularly prone to regular gunfire.<sup>7873</sup> Containers were set up at intersections, such as near the Presidency and Energoinvest buildings and in proximity to the Holiday Inn, to shield civilians against fire coming from the tall buildings in Grbavica.<sup>7874</sup> The central district of Marin Dvor, in particular Marin Dvor square, was also particularly targeted from Grbavica.<sup>7875</sup> The area of Vraca, to the southwest of Grbavica, was also under the control of the SRK.<sup>7876</sup> The neighbourhood of Hrasno was a residential area located in the south-western part of Sarajevo, adjacent to Grbavica.<sup>7877</sup>

1863. People in Sarajevo were affected by the knowledge that one might be killed or wounded any day and by living in a city under siege for such a long time without basic necessities.<sup>7878</sup> Between September 1992 and August 1994, no civilian activity and no area of Sarajevo held by the ABiH seemed to its residents to be safe from sniping or shelling attacks from SRK-held territory.<sup>7879</sup> Children were targeted in schools, or while playing outside, riding a bicycle, near their home, or in the street.<sup>7880</sup> There was an extensive destruction of civilian inhabitations in Sarajevo.<sup>7881</sup> The natural and urban topography of the city of Sarajevo, such as ridges and high-rise buildings, provided vantage-points to SRK forces to target civilians moving around the city.<sup>7882</sup> Civilians tilled at night, fetched water or collected wood at night or when the visibility was reduced or developed alternative routes to traverse the city to avoid sniping fire seen from SRK-controlled territory.<sup>7883</sup> The trams did not run during periods when there was combat activity and tram drivers were told to return to the depot if combat activity began.<sup>7884</sup> Although civilians adapted to that hostile environment by closing schools, living at night, hiding during the day in their apartments or cellars, moving around the city of Sarajevo as little as possible, setting up containers and barricades to provide shelter against sniping fire, they were still not safe from sniping and shelling fire from SRK-controlled territory.<sup>7885</sup> A bus line that was established to carry people on an alternative route to ‘Sniper Alley’ also came under fire.<sup>7886</sup> SRK soldiers shot without knowing whether the movements they saw on the runway<sup>7887</sup> were caused by civilians or by soldiers dressed as civilians.<sup>7888</sup> The SRK was well aware that civilians crossed the runway.<sup>7889</sup>

1864. In the city of Sarajevo, there was a functioning institute for public health.<sup>7890</sup> Its job, among other things, was to work with statistical data on citizens of Sarajevo who had died or who had been killed.<sup>7891</sup> It collected data according to its own methodology, from people in the field, and on the basis of reports received from hospitals, funeral parlours, and other institutions that had such information.<sup>7892</sup> In the course of the whole war in Sarajevo, from May 1992 until October 1995, reportedly 12,000 civilians were killed by shelling and sniping, including 1,600 children, and an additional 4,500 civilians died of natural causes due to the prevailing conditions.<sup>7893</sup> Furthermore, in the first two years of the war about 100,000 citizens left Sarajevo.<sup>7894</sup>

1865. From August 1994 to November 1995, sniper fire and shelling against civilians within the confrontation lines primarily came from SRK-held territory. As a result of the sniping and shelling, civilians were seriously injured or killed. The shots and shells, originating from SRK-held territory, were fired by members of the SRK.<sup>7895</sup>

1866. Witness RM-155, Sabina Šabanić, and Fahra Mujanović provided evidence that from the start of the war in 1992, life in Sarajevo was a continuous struggle and there was a constant fear of being hit by snipers or shells in Sarajevo as none of the neighbourhoods was safe and residential areas were also heavily targeted by VRS artillery.<sup>7896</sup> Šabanić testified that travelling by tram was particularly dangerous because trams were frequently shot by sniper fire.<sup>7897</sup> Mujanović stated that around April 1992, the shelling and sniping were constant and occurred on most days, reaching an intensity level of over 1,000 shells falling on their neighbourhood and its surroundings.<sup>7898</sup>

1867. Kupusović stated that the fire brigade and the ambulance service were still operating, but that their buildings were frequently shelled and often hit by snipers, and that many fire brigade vehicles and ambulances were damaged as a result of sniping and shelling and lacked proper equipment.<sup>7899</sup> From time to time, hospitals, health centres, and clinics were also subjected to shelling and sniping and the staff and patients had to withdraw to basement areas and or lower floors.<sup>7900</sup> Husein Abdel-Razek testified that the Serbs also shelled a maternity hospital, which according to the witness was the main hospital for civilians. It comprised an intensive care unit and maternity units, and it was completely bombarded and had no electricity.<sup>7901</sup> According to the witness, Galić denied that the Serbs shelled the hospital and alleged that the shelling came from the Bosnian side. The Muslims had no artillery in that particular Sarajevo Sector and the shelling had come from the hills, which were controlled by the Serbs.<sup>7902</sup>

1868. Some witnesses provided evidence concerning the investigations into shelling and sniping incidents in Sarajevo. Refik Sokolar testified that his investigations as a police officer, carried out as part of a team, involved both on-site investigations and visiting victims in the hospital.<sup>7903</sup> Sokolar stated that he made over 200 investigations during the war.<sup>7904</sup> On the basis of these investigations and from spending many years in Dobrinja, Sokolar concluded that there were five locations from where sniper fire originated.<sup>7905</sup> These were Nedžarići, the Theological Faculty, the Ikića Kuće settlement, the Orthodox Church on Veljine, and buildings near the confrontation lines.<sup>7906</sup> In the witness's opinion, the sniping originated from Serb-controlled areas, including the Aerodrom area and Nedžarići, and most of the victims of sniping activity in Dobrinja that he investigated were civilians.<sup>7907</sup>

during the war.<sup>7909</sup> On the basis of these investigations and from spending many years in Dobrinja, Sokolar concluded that there were five locations from where sniper fire originated.<sup>7910</sup> These were Nedžarići, the Theological Faculty, the Ikića Kuće settlement, the Orthodox Church on Veljine, and buildings near the confrontation lines.<sup>7911</sup> In the witness's opinion, the sniping originated from Serb-controlled areas, including the Aerodrom area and Nedžarići, and most of the victims of sniping activity in Dobrinja that he investigated were civilians.<sup>7912</sup>

1870. Nedžib Đozo testified that the Sedrenik neighbourhood of Sarajevo was a residential area in the area of responsibility of the Stari Grad police station and located approximately 500 to 700 metres below Špicasta Stijena hill.<sup>7913</sup> According to the witness, Špicasta Stijena was the only elevation with a clear line of sight to Sedrenik and was under the control of the VRS.<sup>7914</sup> Based on his numerous investigations into the injuries or killings of civilians, the witness estimated around 50 to 100 civilians in Sedrenik to have been killed or wounded by VRS sniping and shelling.<sup>7915</sup> Sniper fire from Špicasta Stijena made life in Sedrenik very difficult, forcing people to access their homes through windows and to come and go when it was dark. The civilian protection service hung blankets and sheets to block the line of sight of the snipers at Špicasta Stijena.<sup>7916</sup> These snipers rarely fired a single bullet, but instead fired multiple times at anything they could see moving.<sup>7917</sup>

1871. Several international observers provided evidence concerning sniping and shelling incidents in Sarajevo. John Wilson testified that during his six weeks in Sarajevo, from 14 May to 23 June 1992, heavy artillery, involving thousands of rounds and directed at virtually the whole city occurred on most days, with only brief respites.<sup>7918</sup> On some days, the attack would last for 16 to 20 hours.<sup>7919</sup> The witness estimated that, on days with particularly heavy attacks, such as 14 and 28 May 1992,

5,000 to 10,000 rounds of artillery were fired into Sarajevo by the Bosnian Serbs.<sup>7920</sup> Most of Sarajevo's major buildings were hit by artillery.<sup>7921</sup> By 25 May 1992, Serb forces controlled Sarajevo and it was virtually impossible to move in or out of the city without their permission.<sup>7922</sup> In May 1992, sniper fire could be heard regularly in Sarajevo, restricting movement, and the streets were deserted.<sup>7923</sup> It was dangerous to move around the city centre and the Dobrinja area due to Bosnian-Serb sniper activity.<sup>7924</sup> On 14 May 1992, heavy fighting broke out in the Dobrinja area and fire appeared to be coming from outside the city.<sup>7925</sup> There was also heavy infantry and artillery fire in the Ilidža area where UNPROFOR staff was headquartered. The artillery fire began at 5 a.m. and lasted until well into the evening.<sup>7926</sup> Around 21 May 1992, there was high-volume, indiscriminate, and heavy artillery fire directed towards the centre of the city.<sup>7927</sup> In May and June 1992, the witness received regular reports from the Bosnian Presidency and occasional reports from local employees and travellers about Serb snipers injuring or killing civilians in Sarajevo.<sup>7928</sup> Later in 1992, the witness received reports from his military observers that the Serb forces moved gun crews by bus between the various firing positions, because they had more guns than men to fire them.<sup>7929</sup>

1872. Abdel-Razek testified that sniping and shelling occurred on almost a daily basis and heavily affected civilians when the witness arrived in Sarajevo in August 1992 and remained frequent until it calmed down a bit at the beginning of 1993.<sup>7930</sup> From his observations, the witness concluded that shelling was directed towards the city and not at specific military targets.<sup>7931</sup> The Serbs sniped at civilians, including women and children, who were crossing the airport.<sup>7932</sup> Colonel Sartre told the witness that the Serbs placed lights at the airport so that they would be able to shoot at targets crossing the airport.<sup>7933</sup> The witness, Sartre, and Colonel Davout also discussed it with Galić, who said he would continue to shoot at civilians if they kept crossing the airport.<sup>7934</sup> Shelling and sniping was directed at the civilian population, the UN headquarters, and other UN centres and facilities.<sup>7935</sup> Both sides engaged in sniping, but according to the witness, the Serb side was most active.<sup>7936</sup> According to the witness, hardly a moment passed when there was not a sniping attack.<sup>7937</sup> Reports from observers indicated that there were a lot of women, children, and the elderly who were wounded as a result of sniping.<sup>7938</sup> There were several notorious sniper areas in Sarajevo, including the areas near the presidency as well as around the airport and the confrontation lines.<sup>7939</sup> As part of the continuous shelling of the city, the Serbs purposely shelled the market and the bus station on many occasions. According to the witness, professional units designated these targets and they used artillery and mortars in a careful manner to achieve their aim and it was done to retaliate.<sup>7940</sup> There was fighting around the airport, Butmir, and Ilidža.<sup>7941</sup> In early December 1992, shelling increased greatly and UNPROFOR reported 1,284 rounds fired by the parties, with the Serbs firing the preponderance of shells.<sup>7942</sup> Also in December 1992, Serb forces used tanks and artillery to shell Otes, a civilian Muslim area located near the airport.<sup>7943</sup>

1873. Turajlić, the Bosnian Deputy Prime Minister, was shot and killed while travelling in a UN armoured vehicle on the road close to the airport that was controlled by the UN.<sup>7944</sup> According to the witness, no investigation was conducted by the Serbs. Plavšić apologized for the incident but said that the soldier who killed Turajlić was arrested but not in a reasonable mental condition because he had lost many friends and family in the fighting.<sup>7945</sup>

1874. Richard Mole testified that there was always daily random shelling of the city during his tenure.<sup>7946</sup> David Harland testified that for well over the 95 per cent of casualties of those sniping incidents for which the direction of fire could be identified, the fire came from the Serb side.<sup>7947</sup> According to the witness, UNPROFOR and UNMOs counted an average of 1,000 shells falling on Sarajevo daily, mostly on the civilian areas during the period from 1993 to 1995, though there were significant lulls during the period of the 1994 ceasefire.<sup>7948</sup> Michael Rose testified that upon his arrival to Sarajevo on 23 January 1994, he observed the whole city being reduced to a state of siege: there was no water, electricity, or heating.<sup>7949</sup> There were 1,500 to 2,000 shells falling on Sarajevo per day, 'going both ways'.<sup>7950</sup> Even though both sides engaged in sniping activities, the level of sniping by the Bosnian Serbs was higher.<sup>7951</sup>

1875. Witness RM-163 testified that between February and May 1994, following a ceasefire agreement, there was a period of calm and the situation in Sarajevo was almost normal.<sup>7952</sup> There was electricity and water, and the trams were running.<sup>7953</sup> The ceasefire agreement was generally complied with well until May 1994.<sup>7954</sup> During this period few light weapons were fired and no shelling took place.<sup>7955</sup> From May until at least the end of September 1994, the sniping and shelling of civilians and UNPROFOR resumed.<sup>7956</sup> From the beginning of May 1994, the situation in Sarajevo deteriorated gradually, but from the end of July until September it got worse.<sup>7957</sup> The largest area surrounding Sarajevo was under the control of the SRK.<sup>7958</sup>

1876. Francis Thomas testified that the indiscriminate nature of shelling by the Serbs was underscored by the fact that they never carried out target assessments, i.e. evaluated the damage done to a target and determining if further shelling was required.<sup>7959</sup> Serbs would often fire once into the city without any follow-up.<sup>7960</sup> According to Thomas, their use of artillery and tanks to shell Sarajevo in an attempt to affect the will of the Bosnian government had little impact. The resort to ‘terror shelling’ to discourage Bosnian infantry attacks in reality played into the hands of the Bosnians, in that the international media centred at the Holiday Inn in Sarajevo and they tended to report the war based on the situation in the city.<sup>7961</sup>

1877. David Fraser testified that there were several notorious sniping positions in Sarajevo, including Grdonj, and the airport.<sup>7962</sup> Sniper Alley was a three-kilometre road that ran in front of the Holiday Inn hotel and was located in the territory held by the ABiH.<sup>7963</sup> There were no ABiH military positions there and the only people using the road were Bosnian civilians and UN personnel; both groups were targeted by the Bosnian-Serb snipers.<sup>7964</sup> The witness learned from the UN troops stationed along Sniper Alley that the snipers would use a telephone pole or UN vehicles for target practice each morning, so that they could ‘range’ their weapons.<sup>7965</sup> Because of the number of incidents involving civilians in Sniper Alley, a special UN task-force was dedicated to this area.<sup>7966</sup> In Grbavica, the VRS snipers used the red-brick buildings opposite the Holiday Inn.<sup>7967</sup> UNPROFOR could not travel freely within Grbavica and UN personnel were always escorted by the VRS.<sup>7968</sup> The witness went on tours to the sniping positions in Grbavica.<sup>7969</sup> The sniping positions overlooked the ABiH-held territory and some UN positions.<sup>7970</sup> UNPROFOR received complaints that the ABiH was targeting Serb civilians in Grbavica, but the Bosnian Serbs did not allow them to investigate these incidents.<sup>7971</sup> According to the witness, except for the airport, where the parties had a roughly equal share in the sniping, the sniping in Sharpstone, Grdonj, the Jewish cemetery, and ‘Sniper Alley’ came predominantly from the Serb side and the

VRS sniped people engaged in civilian activities.<sup>7972</sup> The Muslims used cars, trenches, and screens to erect anti-sniping barricades and UNPROFOR tried to help in these activities, but the VRS snipers would overcome such obstacles by changing their positions.<sup>7973</sup> The ABiH held its positions at the base of Špicasta Stijena.<sup>7974</sup> The ABiH also had snipers, but as they moved around, UNPROFOR was not aware of their precise locations.<sup>7975</sup>

1878. When possible, the UN would investigate the shelling incidents and would in most cases be able to identify the responsible party as well as determine whether the target was legitimate.<sup>7976</sup> Although some of the shelling by the Bosnian Serbs was in response to offensive operations by the ABiH, in the witness's view it was generally disproportionate and indiscriminate.<sup>7977</sup> Fraser admitted that the fact that both warring factions were fighting each other in a city full of non-combatants made it extremely difficult to analyse the three criteria that should normally be taken into consideration in such a situation, which are military necessity, proportionality, and collateral damage.<sup>7978</sup> Having talked to the Muslim civilians employed at the UN headquarters in Sarajevo as well as other Bosnian civilians, Fraser opined that people in Sarajevo had lived in terror and were all visibly traumatised and stressed about the uncertainty of their future.<sup>7979</sup>

1879. Witness RM-120 testified that according to UNPROFOR reports, almost all of the sniper fire in Sarajevo originated from Serb positions on the other side of the Miljacka River.<sup>7980</sup> As of November 1994 the population of Sarajevo was 'strangled' when it came to supplies.<sup>7981</sup> The Serbs completely blocked the city.<sup>7982</sup> Sniping was a permanent threat to the population.<sup>7983</sup> General Dragomir Milošević was regularly informed about conditions in Sarajevo.<sup>7984</sup> The witness also testified that the Muslim side was trying to portray that the situation in Sarajevo was worse than it actually was.<sup>7985</sup>

1880. Thom Knustad stated that after a number of investigations of shelling incidents he discerned that some of the targeted areas were those where people normally gathered, for example food pick-up points, water collection points, parks, cemeteries, and hospitals.<sup>7986</sup> Anton Brennskag testified that in June 1995, he observed up to 150 rounds being fired into Sarajevo within a 24-hour period, hitting both military and civilian targets.<sup>7987</sup> On 18 June 1995, UNPROFOR withdrew from all WCPs around Sarajevo because UNPROFOR units could no longer be deployed safely in isolated parts of SRK-held territory.<sup>7988</sup> On 8 July 1995, Harland notified Phillip Corwin that the Serbs continued to snipe and shell Sarajevo and that the sniping and shelling carried no military benefit but contributed to an atmosphere of terror in Sarajevo.<sup>7989</sup> During that week the Bosnian Ministry of Health reported 39 civilian deaths and 190 wounded.<sup>7990</sup> Serb ‘gunners’ were targeting UN convoys using the Igman road.<sup>7991</sup> Finally Harland reported that the humanitarian situation was poor and that UNHCR had no food to distribute.<sup>7992</sup>

1881. Milenko Indić testified that during 1992, an UNMO office was established at the SRK Command, and there was regular communication between them. According to the witness, from the UNMOs’ location, it was not possible to establish an approximate number of shells fired, and their reports were mainly based on information received from the parties to the conflict.<sup>7993</sup> The reporting on military fire only became objective when UNPROFOR installed artillery radars around Sarajevo.<sup>7994</sup> evidence that the living conditions in Sarajevo during the war were very difficult, as there was a shortage of electricity, water, and food, limited access to medical care, and constant shelling and sniper fire.<sup>7995</sup> From approximately mid-June 1992 onwards, the telephone lines were not functioning.<sup>7996</sup> Kupusović stated that when an individual had to go out to fetch bread or water or simply because they could not spend all of their time in a basement or some other safe part of an apartment, there was a fear that the person who went out would not return or would come back wounded. This level of stress was a regular occurrence.<sup>7997</sup> In October 1992, the electricity was shut down and therefore the people of Sarajevo had to face a winter without electricity and water because the pumps ran on electric power. In order to survive the winter, trees in the town, parks and gardens were cut down for firewood.<sup>7998</sup> The water supply was organised from the city brewery's old wells and fuel was provided by UN forces.<sup>7999</sup>

1883. While many children were evacuated by humanitarian organizations, many more children remained in Sarajevo.<sup>8000</sup> From May 1992 school buildings were out of commission and it was only in late autumn 1992 that 'they' were able to organise teaching in basements and secure apartments. The teaching took place once or twice a week; the rest of the time, children had to study with their parents.<sup>8001</sup> The type of education the children of Sarajevo received during the war was poor and the effects of this were felt for years to follow.<sup>8002</sup>

1884. Crnčalo testified that he and his family received food from humanitarian supplies, but these supplies were sometimes cut off by the Serbs.<sup>8003</sup> The witness and his children stayed in Sarajevo until the siege of the city ended in 1996, but if the option had existed to leave Sarajevo during the siege they would have taken it.<sup>8004</sup> Kupusović stated that there were two large hospitals in Sarajevo: the clinical centre at Koševo and the state hospital at Marin Dvor. Several doctors from the Koševo clinical centre also established a provisional hospital in Dobrinja, which functioned during the war and then was dismantled.<sup>8005</sup> Youssef Hajir, one of the doctors who were involved in the provisional hospital in Dobrinja, stated that in May 1992, the conditions in Sarajevo were poor and the most basic medical equipment was unavailable.<sup>8006</sup> In July, the situation improved and more medical equipment became available.<sup>8007</sup> Driving an ambulance was considered a dangerous occupation, even if the ambulance was marked with a Red Cross sign; Hajir recalled two drivers being wounded and one being killed all while on duty.<sup>8008</sup>

1885. Jan Segers testified that when he arrived in Sarajevo in October 1992, most of the city had no water or electricity.<sup>8009</sup> Finding food and water would take hours, and people who went outside in search of these resources were wounded or killed by sniping and shelling.<sup>8010</sup> Civilians told the witness that they were living in constant panicked fear and were under the impression that they could get shot at any minute.<sup>8011</sup> Witness RM-126 stated that Serb forces used loudspeakers to insult and threaten the inhabitants of Sarajevo.<sup>8012</sup> With regard to the situation in Sarajevo, he stated that people were afraid for their lives and that it was more than fear, but also a form of paranoia. Nevertheless, people still had to go out daily in order to get food, water, and fuel. According to the witness, it could be seen in their faces 'that it had passed beyond normal fear, it was a fatalism'.<sup>8013</sup> According to an UNPROFOR report dated 28 August 1994, on 26 August 1994, the gas supply to Sarajevo was cut off as of 26 August.<sup>8014</sup>

1886. According to an UNPROFOR report from the headquarters in Sarajevo for the week of 29 May to 4 June 1995, the utilities situation in Sarajevo had been critical since 26 May 1995.<sup>8015</sup> On that day, Bosnian Serbs cut off the electricity supplies to the city and as a result water could not be pumped to the city.<sup>8016</sup> Gas supplies were completely disconnected by the Bosnian Serbs on 28 May, depriving the city of all utilities, and in retaliation the Bosnian authorities switched off the gas valve at Kladanj, which supplied the Serb side. The food situation was also unsatisfactory, and while reassurances were given by the Serb side that humanitarian agencies could continue their normal activities, the UNHCR had decided to suspend its convoys due to the security situation and the lack of UNPROFOR convoys.<sup>8017</sup>

1887. According to an UNPROFOR report of 24 June 1995, Sarajevo needed about 6,000 tonnes of food aid per month to meet basic needs. This target had not been met since the air lift had been stopped on 8 April 1995. On 22 June 1995, the first food convoys in four weeks arrived in Sarajevo, carrying 270 tonnes for Bosnian-controlled areas and 160 tonnes for Serb-controlled areas. After the ABiH shelled convoys that were approaching the UNHCR warehouse in the Serb-controlled area of Rajlovac, Koljević stated that there would be no more convoys until the Bosnians provide written guarantees that they would not shell the area again. The Bosnians stated that the convoys had been moving without UNPROFOR escort and had been attended by Serb police vehicles.<sup>8018</sup> On 2 July 1995, for the first time since the war began, a convoy arrived in Sarajevo without the express consent of the Serbs.<sup>8019</sup>

1888. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that the conflict erupted in Sarajevo around early May 1992. By 25 May 1992, the Bosnian-Serb forces were in control of Sarajevo and it was virtually impossible to enter the city without their permission. From at least 14 May to 23 June 1992, Sarajevo was targeted by heavy artillery almost daily. On some days, attacks would last for as long as 16 hours. On certain days during that period, thousands of rounds of artillery were fired into the city.

Sniping fire could be heard regularly. The main thoroughfare of Sarajevo, part of which was then called the Maršal Tito Boulevard, was particularly prone to regular gunfire and therefore became known as 'Sniper Alley'. Sniper Alley was an approximately three-kilometre-long stretch of a road that ran in front of the Holiday Inn hotel and was located in ABiH-controlled territory. Trams were also frequently subjected to sniper fire. A bus line that was established to carry people on an alternative route to Sniper Alley also came under fire. From July 1992 until August 1994, sniping occurred almost every day. Many hundreds of civilians were killed, while thousands were injured. Sniping occurred in places where people would gather, such as food and water pick-up points, parks, cemeteries, hospitals, and schools. From 1993 to 1995, an average of at least 1,000 shells fell on Sarajevo on a daily basis, although there were significant breaks during the 1994 ceasefire. Following the ceasefire agreement of 18 February 1994, the situation in Sarajevo improved and the number of sniping and shelling incidents dropped significantly. From May 1994 onwards, the situation worsened again and sniping and shelling resumed. After August 1994, the sniping and shelling became even worse.

1889. The Trial Chamber further finds that between May 1992 and November 1995, the inhabitants of Sarajevo were forced to undertake daily activities, like fetching water or collecting wood, at night or when visibility was reduced, and hid in their apartments or basements during the day. They also developed alternative routes to traverse the city to avoid sniper fire. If people were forced to go outside, for instance to fetch water, there was a fear that they would be killed or injured and they would run across streets and seek shelter. In several instances, civilians were killed on the streets. Civilians were also forced to bury the dead at night, because it was considered too dangerous for funerals to take place during the day due to the risk of being targeted by sniping or shelling. Civilians hung blankets or sheets in front of their windows or in close proximity of their houses in order to block the line of sight of snipers. From May 1992 onwards, schools were closed and it was not until late autumn 1992 that classes were organized in basements and secure apartments, and these classes were only held once or twice per week. As a result, the level of education received by the children living in Sarajevo was of poor quality. Inhabitants of Sarajevo lived in constant fear that they or their loved ones would be hit by sniper or artillery fire. This constant fear inevitably took its toll on the population and caused them significant stress and trauma. Some witnesses described their fear as going being normal fear and were fatalistic about the future. Inhabitants were severely hampered in their daily activities as a result of this.

1890. The Trial Chamber finds that the living conditions for the inhabitants of Sarajevo were extremely difficult as a result of living in constant fear and the lack of basic necessities, such as food, water, gas, and electricity, which forced them to go outside and be exposed to sniping and shelling. Only urgent medical care was provided, and hospitals and clinics were operating with very limited supplies. Hospitals, clinics, and ambulances were also targeted by snipers and shelled. As of mid-June 1992, telephone lines were cut. In October 1992, electricity was shut down, while there was no gas supply to Sarajevo as of 26 August 1994. In September 1995, the supply of water, electricity, and gas to the Bosnian-Muslim part of Sarajevo was halted.

1891. The Trial Chamber will further consider these findings when determining whether crimes were committed in Sarajevo.

5.1.2 Modified air bombs

1892. The Trial Chamber received evidence concerning modified air bombs used by the SRK in 1994 and 1995 in Sarajevo. In this section, the Trial Chamber will examine the evidence on accuracy and properties of modified air bombs. It will also discuss examples of the evidence it received regarding the production and distribution of these weapons within the VRS, in particular the SRK. The Defence argued that modified air bombs were well-designed, accurate, and valid weapons, having been extensively tested.<sup>8020</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to modified air bombs. It received documentary evidence which it finds consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8021</sup> It also received evidence from David Fraser, a Military Assistant to the UNPROFOR Commander in Sector Sarajevo from 17 April 1994 to 26 May 1995;<sup>8022</sup> Witness RM-159, a police employee;<sup>8023</sup> Ekrem Suljević, a

Accuracy of modified air bombs

1893. Vladimir Radojčić testified that air bombs of 250 kilograms or more were designed as a weapon to be dropped from overhead by a plane flying over its target.<sup>8036</sup> They have no independent propulsion or guidance system and hit their target by the force of gravity; their accuracy is determined by how and when they are dropped.<sup>8037</sup> In the second phase of the war, modified air bombs were used because of shortage of other ammunition.<sup>8038</sup> These bombs were previously used by the JNA air force, and were adapted to be launched from the ground.<sup>8039</sup> The range of an air bomb fired from the ground was between 600 metres and 4 kilometres.<sup>8040</sup>

1894. Radojčić believed that one rocket would be attached to a 100-kilogram air bomb, whereas three rockets would be attached to a 250-kilogram air bomb.<sup>8041</sup> Air bombs could be fired by a Plamen rocket system, an Orkan system, and an Oganj system with the first two containing a system that made it possible to adjust the bearing of the tubes and achieve a specific azimuth.<sup>8042</sup> Every rocket system had its own firing table.<sup>8043</sup> The Ilidža Brigade used 250-kilogram bombs and, the witness believed, Plamen rockets, which were launched from a launcher that was mounted to the back of a trailer of a large vehicle.<sup>8044</sup> The launcher was built by the Ilidža Brigade on the basis of sketches it had received from the SRK Command.<sup>8045</sup> The Ilidža Brigade used provisional firing tables, which it had received from the SRK Command.<sup>8046</sup> There was no manual available for the firing tables.<sup>8047</sup> When the target was not visible, an artillery protractor and a compass were used to adjust the angle and the azimuth.<sup>8048</sup> The Ilidža Brigade had at its disposal a 'laser gauge', a device that could measure the exact distance to the target.<sup>8049</sup>

1895. Stevan Veljović heard from brigade commanders in 1993 that 'craftsmen and engineers' were working on modified air bomb launchers.<sup>8050</sup> The witness heard from Dragomir Milošević that the air bombs were inaccurate and could be off-target by as much as two kilometres.<sup>8051</sup> The witness further testified that the engines of modified air bombs were very unreliable - sometimes one engine fired later than the other causing the bomb to drift either to the left or to the right; as a result, it was impossible to predict where the bomb would land.<sup>8052</sup> For this reason they were not meant to be used in urban areas as this would risk hitting their own men or civilians.<sup>8053</sup> The witness testified that modified air bombs had not been tested, and there were no firing tables for the modified air bombs and there were no rules detailing how the modified air bombs and accompanying launchers were to be used.<sup>8054</sup> The witness testified that as a result, modified air bombs were also dangerous to the artillery crew firing it; some artillery crews dealing with modified air bombs were killed as the bombs exploded when they were activated.<sup>8055</sup>

1896. Dragiša Masal, Radojčić, and Savo Simić testified that modified air bombs were professionally designed and were precise with regard to target firing.<sup>8056</sup> Nikola Mijatović testified that modified air bombs were less precise than conventional weapons.<sup>8057</sup>

1897. Thom Knustad stated that modified air bombs were highly inaccurate weapons.<sup>8058</sup> Thorbjorn Overgard added that a modified air bomb can be aimed at a general area but is very inaccurate because it descends whenever the fuel is finished or a set timer expires.<sup>8059</sup> Nedžib Dozo testified that he investigated modified aircraft bombs and examined one of the bombs at close range, as it had fallen into the Mošćanice River without exploding. The witness testified that these types of bombs were unguided aircraft bombs retrofitted with rocket motors and fired from multi-rocket launchers and opined that as such, the bombs were inherently inaccurate.<sup>8060</sup>

1898. Zorica Subotić testified that based on an analysis of firing tables at a distance of 6,000 metres modified air bombs were more precise than regular rockets in terms of target deviation.<sup>8061</sup> The witness testified that at one point, ‘before they were being used in the war’, she had been shown contemporaneous firing tables of modified air bombs by a colleague of her, an engineer from the Pretis factory who was working on modified air bombs; she further testified she believed that these bombs were tested at the Nikinći test site in Belgrade.<sup>8062</sup> The witness testified that for her research, she could not get a hold of these tables anymore, and did not know whether these tables still existed.<sup>8063</sup> The witness testified that as a result, she consulted firing tables from 2001 or 2002.<sup>8064</sup>

Destructive properties of modified air bombs

1899. Two types of air bombs were used in Sarajevo: the FAB-100 and the FAB-250. The numbers in the name indicate the approximate weight of the bombs in kilograms.<sup>8065</sup> Some of these air bombs carried fuel-air explosives, rather than only TNT.<sup>8066</sup> The FAB-100 air bomb had TNT as its explosive charge, whereas the typical explosive charge for a FAB-250 air bomb was a fuel-air mixture.<sup>8067</sup> Fuel-air explosions cause a lethal wave of overpressure and destroy everything and everyone in the blast.<sup>8068</sup>

David Fraser testified that apart from having a devastating psychological effect on the civilian population, modified air bombs, which were aerial bombs propelled by rocket

Production, distribution, and use of modified air bombs by the SRK and VRS

1900. In 1994 and 1995, the SRK possessed modified air bombs and air bomb launchers.<sup>8070</sup> During this time, the SRK requested and received 100/105 kilogram, 150 kilogram, and 250 kilogram air bombs. The VRS attached rockets to air bombs to enable their launch from the ground.<sup>8071</sup> Air bombs were produced in the Pretis factory, which was used by the SRK between August 1994 and November 1995.<sup>8072</sup> The ABiH did not possess modified air bombs.<sup>8073</sup>

1901. Stevan Veljović testified that the Igman and Ilidža Brigades, located west of Sarajevo, the 3rd Sarajevo and Ilijaš Brigades, located north of Sarajevo, and ‘possibly’ the 2nd Sarajevo Infantry Brigade, had modified air bomb launchers.<sup>8074</sup> According to Radojčić, the Ilidža Brigade had about ten modified air bombs available, but only launched three, including a first ‘test bomb’ on a cooler plant near Stup, which missed its target by a hundred metres and did not explode.<sup>8075</sup> Veljović testified that the use of modified air bombs had to be approved by the SRK Commander.<sup>8076</sup>

1902. Đorđe Đukić stated that as far as he remembered, the idea to use modified aerial bombs originated from the IBK, whose commander was Novica Simić.<sup>8077</sup> Mladić, who was in contact with commanders of the IBK, ordered that investigations be undertaken for producing launchers at the level of this corps.<sup>8078</sup> The fitting of the rocket engines to the aerial bombs was done in the Pretis factory.<sup>8079</sup> According to the witness, the first system with a single rocket engine for propulsion failed and therefore a modified system with two or three engines with a maximum range of around two kilometres was developed. Mladić personally ordered the construction of these launchers.<sup>8080</sup> The corps commanders would propose that launchers be used and every single use was approved personally by Mladić.<sup>8081</sup> With regard to the reporting on the use of this system, the language commonly used would not directly mention aerial bombs; instead the corps commanders would give their reports to Mladić using phrases such as ‘Boss, what we had agreed on has been used’.<sup>8082</sup> The witness believed that apart from Mladić and VRS Main Staff Chief of Artillery Rajko Balać, no one from the VRS Main Staff worked on this program.<sup>8083</sup>

1903. Manojlo Milovanović testified that the VRS did not have launchers capable of firing four aerial bombs at the same time.<sup>8084</sup> With regard to a specific makeshift device to transport aerial bombs from the firing position to a target, Milovanović testified that he had neither seen the device after it was manufactured and assembled, nor had he ever seen it in action.<sup>8085</sup> According to Milovanović, the device was not very precise and could only target an area.<sup>8086</sup>

1904. A large number of documents were admitted regarding the production, distribution, and use of modified air bombs. On 27 December 1993, following a meeting with VJ General Perišić in Belgrade, Mladić recorded that the matter of fuel-air bombs, and FAB air bombs which would come with blueprints, had been resolved.<sup>8087</sup> Pursuant to an order from the VRS headquarters to proceed with the construction of launching systems, on 26 May 1994 Ratko Savić, the Director of the Technical Repair Institute in Hadžići, asked the Director of the ‘Ironworks’ company in Ilijaš for six pieces of six metre long INP-140 launchers. These launchers could not be acquired elsewhere and were intended to be built into the launching systems to meet VRS needs.<sup>8088</sup> On 7 October 1994 – following a meeting in Belgrade with Slobodan Milošević, Momčilo

Perišić, and Jovica Stanišić – Mladić recorded a request for ammunition, which included air bombs.<sup>8089</sup>

1905. On 11 January 1995, pursuant to a VRS Main Staff request for information, the SRK Command was informed of the ammunition consumption by the SRK in November and December 1994, which included three aerial bombs.<sup>8090</sup>

1907. The Trial Chamber further received evidence detailing how the VRS Main Staff assessed the necessary levels of production of modified air bombs; to this end, the VRS Main Staff instructed Corps Commanders to report on their current stock and their needs for modified air bombs.<sup>8098</sup> This order was passed down to the individual units,<sup>8099</sup> who in turn promptly reported on their needs to the Corps Commander.<sup>8100</sup> The Corps Commander would pass on the information to the VRS Main Staff.<sup>8101</sup> If a corps (deputy) commander believed more air bombs were necessary for combat activities, he could indicate the same to the VRS Main Staff. For example, on 18 June 1995, the SRK Chief of Staff Čedomir Sladoje requested approval from the VRS Main Staff to issue a large number of air bombs (50 pieces) to the SRK in order to ‘crush the Muslim offensive’.<sup>8102</sup>

1908. The Trial Chamber received evidence regarding the development and deployment of air bombs which carried 500 kilograms of explosives. On 23 July 1995, Radoslav Pandžić of the SRK IKM, informed the SRK Commander about Colonel Savić’s visit, during which Savić informed them that the Maintenance and Repair Depot Hadžići had manufactured a launcher with the capacity of launching air bombs up to 500 kilogram. The launcher was mounted on a FAP-2226 vehicle taken from the Igman Infantry Brigade. Pandžić suggested that a commission be founded to test its functions. Following testing, the launcher would be deployed to one of the Corps artillery units.<sup>8103</sup>

1909. The Trial Chamber received evidence of the active involvement of SRK staff in the manufacturing of air bombs. Following a request from the 1st Sarajevo Motorised Brigade for the manufacturing of air bomb launchers on 9 August 1995, on 10 August 1995 the SRK head of artillery, Tadija Manojlović, ordered that the brigade carry out all material preparations, in the shortest possible time period, for the manufacturing of such launchers. Such preparations included securing vehicles, rails, cranes, and other means necessary, which the brigade would regulate in contact with responsible persons of the Maintenance and Repairs Depot Hadžići. Manojlović ordered the 4th Mixed Artillery Regiment to dismantle one irregular Howitzer 155 and hand it over the howitzer to the 1st Sarajevo Motorised Brigade, after which the brigade was to transport it to the

Further, Manojlović ordered the head of the 1st Sarajevo Motorised Brigade to select staff to be trained to make arms and bombs ‘ready for action’, together with staff from the Igman Infantry Brigade, at the Maintenance and Repairs Depot Hadžići.<sup>8104</sup>

1910. Before turning to its findings on the accuracy of modified air bombs, the Trial Chamber will first discuss the evidence of Zorica Subotić, who testified that modified air bombs could hit a target more precisely than regular rockets. In order to arrive at this conclusion, Subotić calculated the distance between the ‘most probable target’ and the ‘point of impact’, and assumed that the average range of modified air bombs of any type was 6,000 metres.<sup>8105</sup> The Trial Chamber observes that the calculations made by the witness in her report to determine the accuracy of modified air bombs appear to ignore significant circumstances on the ground that could have affected their accuracy when fired.<sup>8106</sup> It further observes that in her research on the accuracy of modified air bombs, Subotić relied on firing tables that she testified she had access to at some point in time, but conceded that she could not produce them.<sup>8107</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that following the witness’s testimony, it has not been furnished with these tables. More importantly, however, the Trial Chamber was not assisted by Subotić’s assumptions regarding targets. Subotić assumed that military targets near the points of impact were in fact the targets. In doing so, the witness ignored the possibility that the projectiles had been aimed at a civilian object or that the firing was so inaccurate that it missed its target by far.<sup>8108</sup> The Trial Chamber observes that these assumptions, which touch on the core issues which keep the parties in this case apart, were used by the witness as a starting point for determining the accuracy of modified air bomb; as such, they were self-serving the witness's conclusion that modified air bombs are accurate. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that Subotić's evidence regarding the accuracy of modified air bombs is insufficiently reliable.

1911. In relation to the accuracy of modified air bombs, the Trial Chamber received contradictory evidence. The evidence of Masal, Radojčić, and Simić suggests that the bombs were precise in targeting, whereas the evidence of Veljović, Knustad, Overgard, Dozo, and Mijatović suggests that they were not. The Trial Chamber considered that those witnesses testifying that the modified air bombs were imprecise were not only witnesses affiliated with the Bosnian-Muslim side, but also those affiliated with the UN, and even those employed by the VRS. On the other hand, the evidence suggesting that modified air bombs were precise only stemmed from witnesses affiliated with the Bosnian-Serb side. Furthermore, the evidence on the accuracy from Masal, Radojčić, and Simić is mainly based on conjecture following apparent knowledge with regard to testing and manufacture, rather than the actual firing in combat situations. Under these circumstances, also considering that despite the repeated references to firing tables of modified air bombs, such tables were not submitted to the Trial Chamber, the Trial Chamber considers the evidence of Masal, Radojčić, and Simić insufficiently reliable in this respect.

1912. The Trial Chamber observes that the Defence argued in its final brief that the ABiH possessed and used modified air bombs.<sup>8109</sup> In support, the Defence referred to the evidence of Milorad Šehovac and Vladimir Radojčić that the ABiH had 'modified naval bombs', as well as the statement of Mile Sladoje that the ABiH used 'some sort of modified projectiles'.<sup>8110</sup> Additionally, the Defence referred to a statement of Nikola Mijatović, who stated that he received reports from intelligence sources and that he saw

The Trial Chamber observes that the foregoing Defence witnesses did not provide further specifics in relation to this topic. It further observes, in relation to Vladimir Radojčić, that the witness was deeply familiar with the subject-matter of modified air bombs, yet with regard to the ABiH used different terminology, i.e. 'modified naval bombs'.

a television program after the war claiming that the ABiH used modified air bombs.<sup>8111</sup> The Trial Chamber finds that the evidence of Šehovac, Radojčić, and Sladoje in this respect does not relate to modified air bombs, and finds that the general statement of Mijatović on this subject is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the adjudicated fact that the ABiH did not possess modified air bombs.<sup>8112</sup>

1913. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that in 1994 and 1995, the VRS and SRK possessed and used modified air bombs in Sarajevo. Air bombs are designed to be dropped from the air; they have no independent propulsion or guidance system. Modified air bombs were essentially unguided aircraft bombs retrofitted with rocket motors and fired from multi-rocket launchers. They could be aimed at a general area and would descend whenever the fuel ran out or a set timer expired. As a result of their make-shift design, modified air bombs were highly inaccurate and had a devastating effect on impact. This was particularly the case when the explosive charge of the air bomb (TNT) was replaced by a fuel-air mixture which caused a lethal wave of overpressure and destroyed everything and everyone in the blast. The Trial Chamber further finds that the ABiH did not possess modified air bombs. In light of this, the Trial Chamber rejects the Defence's arguments.

1914. The Trial Chamber will address Mladić's personal involvement with regard to the production and use of modified air bombs in chapter 9.

5.2 Sniping incidents

5.2.1 Schedule F.1

1915. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Anisa Pita, a three-year-old girl, in her right leg when she was on the porch of her residence on Žagrići Street in the Širokača area of Sarajevo on 13 December 1992.<sup>8113</sup> The Defence argued that (i) the evidence regarding this incident is contradictory in various respects, (ii) based on the evidence of Poparić, the house on Žagrići Street was not visible from VRS positions, and (iii) based on the evidence of Poparić, Pita was not targeted but hit by a combat ricochet.<sup>8114</sup> The Trial Chamber has taken judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. Furthermore, it received evidence from Fatima Pita, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo,<sup>8115</sup> and Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping,<sup>8116</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8117</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Miloš Škrba, the Commander of the 2nd Infantry Company of the 2nd Infantry Battalion in the 1st Sarajevo Mechanised Brigade of the SRK,<sup>8118</sup> and Mile Poparić, a weapons and military equipment expert.<sup>8119</sup>

1916. On 13 December 1992, Anisa Pita, three-and-a-half years old, was targeted and injured by a shot from an area that SRK soldiers had access to.<sup>8120</sup> Fatima Pita stated that in the morning, Anisa was in front of the door of her parents' house on the open porch to take her shoes off, and visibility was clear.<sup>8121</sup> Although it had been foggy earlier in the day, the fog had lifted by the time of the incident.<sup>8122</sup> She was wearing a pair of overall jeans and a red jacket.<sup>8123</sup> She was standing on the porch alone when she was shot, and there was no one nearby carrying a weapon or wearing a uniform. There were no military positions around her house and Fatima did not see ABiH soldiers in the area during the period 1992 to April 1994, when she lived there.<sup>8124</sup> The shot was fired from the area of the ridge known as Baba Stijena.<sup>8125</sup> The entrance to the Pitas' house was completely walled in by neighbouring houses and structures such as fences, offering only a narrow line of sight in the direction of Baba Stijena.<sup>8126</sup> The distance from the house to Baba Stijena was 895 or 900 metres.<sup>8127</sup> In this respect, the Trial Chamber has also considered Adjudicated Facts numbers 1943 and 2134.

the ABiH positions, located exclusively in civilian houses and facilities.<sup>8132</sup> According to him, his unit returned enemy fire but he also claimed that no sniper or infantry weapon was fired from Baba Stijena while he was in command.<sup>8133</sup> The witness did not notice any other VRS unit, or member of a VRS unit, firing from Baba Stijena.<sup>8134</sup> The witness further testified that there was no sniper or sniper rifles in his company throughout the entire war.<sup>8135</sup> He never issued any order for fire to be opened on civilian targets from this or any other location.<sup>8136</sup> Also, he never received any written or oral orders from the battalion command to open fire on civilians.<sup>8137</sup> The task of the witness's company was of a defensive nature.<sup>8138</sup>

1918. Mile Poparić testified that (i) there was no line of sight from the actual location of Baba Stijena to Žagrić Street 38 and therefore to the door where Anisa Pita was shot,<sup>8139</sup> and (ii) even if there was a line of sight, fences, the weather, and Anisa Pita's appearance would have made it impossible to shoot her from Baba Stijena.<sup>8140</sup> Using Google Earth and landmarks such as the Lukavica-Pale road, the Osmice Motel, the Orthodox Church, and the Cathedral, Poparić drew a line from the site he identified as Baba Stijena to Žagrić Street 38.<sup>8141</sup> Relying on topographic maps of Sarajevo issued by the JNA Military and Geographic Institute in Belgrade, 'NIMA', and Google Earth, Poparić determined that even if all the trees and buildings were removed, there would still be no line of sight from Baba Stijena to Žagrić Street 38 due to a topographic elevation of 2-4.2 metres, depending on the map used.<sup>8142</sup> fired from SRK-controlled Baba Stijena. Poparić testified that there was no such line of sight and Škrba, who was stationed at Baba Stijena, testified that no sniper fire was opened from there. When examined on this topic, the Trial Chamber found that Škrba's testimony contained numerous internal contradictions. For example, the witness testified that his unit could not snipe from Baba Stijena because its position there did not offer any clear line of sight to ABiH-controlled territory. However, he also testified that his unit was targeted by the ABiH, which would mean that there was a line of sight enabling the opposing forces to shoot at each other. When questioned about this apparent contradiction, the witness was unable to provide a plausible explanation.<sup>8143</sup> Further, the witness testified that no sniper or infantry weapon was fired from Baba Stijena while he was in command, but upon questioning he acknowledged that his unit had returned enemy fire. The Trial Chamber therefore finds that the evidence of Miloš Škrba in this respect is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the above-mentioned Adjudicated Facts.

1920. In relation to Poparić's evidence, the Trial Chamber observed that his conclusions are based on an examination of three topographical maps, all of which produced differing results in relation to the topographic elevation. The Trial Chamber notes that Poparić was unable to visit the precise location where Anisa Pita was shot. It also considers that Poparić's main expertise is not related to drawing conclusions on differences between various topographical maps. Although Poparić refers to obstructions to any line of sight, he did not appear to have considered other reasonable possibilities for compensating any difference in elevation and simply assumed that 'one needs to lie down during combat'.<sup>8144</sup> In this regard, the Trial Chamber notes that Poparić conceded that a small change in positioning from the origin of fire would have overcome obstacles to a line of sight.<sup>8145</sup> The Trial Chamber finds that Poparić's evidence about this incident is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the above-mentioned Adjudicated Facts.

1921. The Defence's arguments regarding contradictions in the evidence relate to immaterial details of this incident with respect to determining whether the charge has been proven, namely the exact time of the shooting or the exact time the victim prior to being shot went to fetch water with her father. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this argument.

1922. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 13 December 1992, Anisa Pita, who was three-and-a-half years old at the time, was targeted and injured by a single bullet while she was standing on the porch of her parents' house. The Trial Chamber finds that the shot was fired from Baba Stijena. On the basis of Adjudicated Fact number 2134 and the evidence of Miloš Škrba, who acknowledged that his VRS unit was stationed at Baba Stijena, the Trial Chamber finds that Anisa Pita was shot by a member of the SRK. Anisa was alone on the porch when she was shot and there were no armed personnel in the vicinity. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

1923. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting dead Munira Zametica, a 48-year-old woman, while she was collecting water from the Dobrinja River in the area of Dobrinja on 11 July 1993.<sup>8146</sup> The Defence argued that (i) Zametica was not deliberately targeted by the SRK; and (ii) there were ABiH positions at the bridge.<sup>8147</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. In addition, it received evidence from Sadija Šahinović, who lived in Dobrinja II in Sarajevo in 1993;<sup>8148</sup> Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping;<sup>8149</sup> and documentary material and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8150</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Mile Poparić, a weapons and military equipment expert.<sup>8151</sup>

1924. On 11 July 1993, Sadija Šahinović and Munira Zametica, a 48-year-old woman in 1993,<sup>8152</sup> went to the Dobrinja River, where they joined a group of six or seven civilians who had found shelter below a bridge connecting Dobrinja II with Dobrinja III.<sup>8153</sup> Those people said that they had seen bullets hit the river. After some time had passed without sniping, the group decided to go for water one by one.<sup>8154</sup> Zametica was filling her bucket with water when she was shot.<sup>8155</sup> She was hit by a bullet in the right side of her chest.<sup>8156</sup> Šahinović saw her suddenly putting her hands on her chest and crying for a moment.<sup>8157</sup> Then Zametica turned around and was hit by another bullet in the right side of her neck.<sup>8158</sup> She tried to get out of the water and fell on the concrete embankment at the side of the river.<sup>8159</sup> The perpetrator repeatedly shot toward Zametica, preventing rescuers from approaching her.<sup>8160</sup> Soon after, two or three soldiers who passed by, stopped and shot back into the direction of a church in order to cover the persons who pulled Zametica out of the river.<sup>8161</sup> She died later that afternoon.<sup>8162</sup> The area of the Orthodox Church from where the fire came, Dobrinja IV, was within SRK-controlled territory.<sup>8163</sup> There were SRK firing positions on the tower of the church and nearby high-rise buildings.<sup>8164</sup> There was a line of sight between the tower and the spot where the victim was shot.<sup>8165</sup> Mile Poparić testified that the spot where Zametica was shot was 1,100 metres away from the Orthodox Church at Dobrinja IV.<sup>8166</sup> Poparić concluded that the likelihood that Munira Zametica was shot from a distance of 1,100 metres was extremely small and that she was most probably killed by projectiles that were the result of a ricochet of a burst of fire from a shorter distance.<sup>8167</sup>

1925. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 11 July 1993, Munira Zametica, a 48-year-old woman, was shot and killed when collecting water from the Dobrinja River. After hitting Munira Zametica twice, the shooting continued, preventing rescuers from approaching her. On the basis that the shot originated from an SRK position, the Trial Chamber finds that she was shot by a member of the SRK. The Trial Chamber considered in this regard that Poparić's expressions of likelihoods do not contradict the Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below, where it will also address the Defence arguments with respect to whether Zametica was targeted.

5.2.3 Schedule F.4

1926. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Nafa Tarić, a 35-year-old woman, and her eight-year-old daughter Elma Tarić, by a single bullet while they were walking together on Ivana Krndelja Street, in the centre of Sarajevo on 3 September 1993. The bullet wounded the mother in her left thigh and the daughter on her right hand and in her abdomen.<sup>8168</sup> The Defence argued, based on Poparić's evidence, that the shot was not fired by an SRK member.<sup>8169</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number Adjudicated Facts in relation to this incident. It also received evidence from Mile Poparić, a weapons and military equipment expert.<sup>8170</sup>

1927. On 3 September 1993, Nafa Tarić and her eight-year-old daughter Elma were targeted and injured by a shot fired from an SRK-controlled position in the area of Ozrenka Street on Hrasno Hill.<sup>8171</sup> At approximately 5 p.m., Nafa and Elma went to get school books. They walked from their apartment in Hrasno through the neighbourhood and down Ivana Krndelja Street.<sup>8172</sup> Nafa was wearing jeans, a denim waistcoat, and white T-shirt, while Elma was dressed in a red tracksuit.<sup>8173</sup> Nafa recalled it was a sunny and peaceful day.<sup>8174</sup> They crossed the street holding hands behind a line of containers installed to provide protection against SRK snipers.<sup>8175</sup> As they emerged from the cover of the containers, they were shot.<sup>8176</sup> A single bullet hit Nafa's left thigh, then grazed her daughter's hand and penetrated her stomach.<sup>8177</sup> They fell to the ground. Nafa said that another bullet 'whizzed past our bodies as we lay there'.<sup>8178</sup> People who witnessed the incident did not dare approach them.<sup>8179</sup> The two managed to crawl away from the exposed position and were taken to the hospital.<sup>8180</sup> Nafa and Elma were civilians.<sup>8181</sup> There was no on-going military activity at the time of the incident. There were neither soldiers, uniformed personnel, nor any military equipment present in the immediate vicinity.<sup>8182</sup> There was an unobstructed line of sight from SRK positions on Hrasno Hill to the location of the incident.<sup>8183</sup>

1928. Mile Poparić testified that based on his review of Nafa Tarić's testimony and Google Earth, he concluded that the maximum distance at which a shooter could see and target the incident site was around 540 metres, due to obstructions from houses and trees.<sup>8184</sup> According to Poparić, only positions in ABiH-controlled territory afforded a line of sight within that distance as the closest VRS positions were located at 680 metres from the incident site.<sup>8185</sup> Based on footage of a reconstruction of the incident, Poparić calculated that it took Nafa Tarić 1.02 seconds to get from the barrier to the place where she was shot.<sup>8186</sup> The shortest time required for a bullet to cover a distance of 680 metres was 1.2 seconds.<sup>8187</sup> According to Poparić, Nafa Tarić could therefore not have been deliberately targeted from VRS positions.<sup>8188</sup>

1929. In relation to the origin of fire, the Trial Chamber notes that Poparić's evidence is contradictory to Adjudicated Fact number 2256. Poparić's specific calculations are based on an assumption of where exactly the VRS positions were located. In relation to these positions, Poparić excluded certain positions because '[i]t doesn't make sense to have positions there'.<sup>8189</sup> Poparić's conclusion that fire could not have originated from VRS positions because such positions were too far away to allow a shooter to see and target the victim, is also based on his interpretation of the victim's testimony and Google Earth. According to Poparić, Google Earth shows houses and trees obstructing the view. However, it is unclear whether any such possible obstructions were already present at the time of the incident.<sup>8190</sup> Turning to Poparić's calculation of the time it took Nafa Tarić to get from the barrier to the place where she was shot and his inference that she was therefore not 'deliberately' targeted from VRS positions, the Trial Chamber finds that his specific calculations lack consideration of important other factors, such as whether the speed of walking at the time of the incident matched that during the reconstruction, or whether the impact spot was indeed indicated with such precision that would allow this kind of very specific calculation. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Poparić's evidence about the origin of fire is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact number 2256 in this respect.

1930. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 3 September 1993, Nafa Tarić and her eight-year-old daughter Elma were targeted and injured by a single bullet. On the basis that the shot originated from an SRK position, the Trial Chamber finds that they were shot by a member of the SRK. The victims, both civilians, were shot when they were on their way to get school books. They had just emerged from the cover of containers installed to provide shelter against SRK snipers when they were hit by the bullet. The bullet hit Nafa's left thigh, then grazed her daughter's hand and penetrated her stomach. A second bullet flew past them when they were lying on the ground wounded. People who witnessed the incident did not dare approach them. The Trial

In the immediate vicinity of the location of the incident there was no ongoing military activity at the time and no soldiers, uniformed personnel, or any military equipment were present. #### 5.2.4 Schedule F.5

1931. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Ramiza Kundo, a 38-year-old woman, in her left leg, while she was carrying buckets of water across Briješko Street in the west end of Sarajevo on 2 November 1993.<sup>8191</sup> The Defence argued that the evidence received in relation to this incident is contradictory and inconclusive and, with regard to the origin of fire, unclear.<sup>8192</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of some Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. It further received evidence from Ramiza Kundo herself, a Muslim resident of Brijesće, which was an exclusively Muslim area of Sarajevo in 1993,<sup>8193</sup> and Rasema Menzilović, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo,<sup>8194</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8195</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping;<sup>8196</sup> Milan Mandilović, a Serb surgeon at the Sarajevo State Hospital from May 1992 until the end of the war;<sup>8197</sup> Mile Poparić, an expert in weapons and military equipment;<sup>8198</sup> and documentary evidence.

between 300 and 400 metres away from the site of the incident.<sup>8213</sup> There was no line of sight to nearby ABiH-controlled areas.<sup>8214</sup> Van der Weijden testified that several locations at the alleged shooting position offered an unobstructed view on the road where the incident took place.<sup>8215</sup> A shooter at such positions, the furthest of which would be at a distance of 825 metres, would have easily been able to identify a woman carrying two containers of water.<sup>8216</sup> Mile Poparić testified that the incident site had lines of sight to both ABiH and VRS sniper positions.<sup>8217</sup> Poparić further assessed that the shot could not have come from Serb-held positions because the ‘lie of the land’ did not afford a line of sight for a sniper to shoot a person in the lower leg at the incident site.<sup>8218</sup>

1933. Poparić’s argument that there was a line of sight from ABiH-held territory to the impact site stands in stark contrast with Adjudicated Fact number 2262 which stipulates that there was no such line of sight. The Trial Chamber considers, however, that whether there was a line of sight from ABiH-held territory does not need to be established in light of Adjudicated Facts numbers 2263 and 2266 which clearly establish the origin of fire.

1934. With regard to Poparić’s claim that the shot could not have been fired from SRK-held territory due to the ‘lie of the land’, the Trial Chamber notes that this evidence stands in stark contrast with Adjudicated Facts numbers 2263 and 2266 which stipulate that the shot was fired from SRK-held territory. In this regard, the Trial Chamber considered that Poparić had plotted the impact site some 130 metres down along the road from actual site. Later, he testified that he had merely made a plotting mistake and that his calculations had in fact taken into account the correct impact site.<sup>8219</sup> Further, the Trial Chamber considers Poparić’s evidence in this respect to be very unclear, despite having been extensively questioned while in court. In light of this and the Trial Chamber’s assessment of Poparić’s evidence and methodology as set out in other incidents dealt with in chapter 5.2, the Trial Chamber finds that Poparić’s evidence in this respect is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Facts numbers 2263 and 2266.

1935. The Defence further submits that the evidence is too contradictory and unclear to serve as a basis for finding that the charge has been proven. The Trial Chamber notes that, with regard to the origin of fire and the question whether Kundo was targeted and injured, it relied on the un rebutted Adjudicated Facts numbers 2263 and 2266, as opposed to the evidence pointed to by the Defence.

1936. With regard to the remainder of the Defence's submission, the Trial Chamber considers that even if the evidence could be seen as contradictory with regard to certain matters, such contradictions relate to marginal aspects of this incident (for example which leg was injured, where the exact location of the well was, or whether Kundo was on her way to or from the well) and do not affect the outcome of this finding. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this Defence submission.

1937. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 2 November 1993, Ramiza Kundo was targeted, shot, and injured in her leg. The victim was a Bosnian-Muslim woman, dressed in civilian clothes, who was shot between her house and a well, carrying two water buckets. There were neither soldiers nor any military vehicles present in the immediate vicinity. On the basis that the shot originated from SRK-held territory, the Trial Chamber finds that Ramiza Kundo was shot by a member of the SRK.<sup>8220</sup> The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

5.2.5 Schedule F.9

1938. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Sanela Muratović, a 16-year-old girl, while she was walking with a friend on Đure Jakšića Street in the west end of Sarajevo on 26 June 1994.<sup>8221</sup> The Defence argued, based on the evidence of Poparić, that Sanela Muratović was shot during combat activity by a bullet which ricocheted off a building.<sup>8222</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. Further, it received evidence from Medina Omerović, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo;<sup>8223</sup> Milan Mandilović, a Serb surgeon at the Sarajevo State Hospital from May 1992 until the end of the war;<sup>8224</sup> Mile Sladoje, a member of the 1st Battalion of the Ilidža Brigade as of April 1992 until the end of the war;<sup>8225</sup> Youssef Hajir, a Muslim surgeon from Palestine who established the Dobrinja Hospital in Sarajevo in May 1992;<sup>8226</sup> Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping,<sup>8227</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8228</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Mile Poparić, a weapons and military equipment expert;<sup>8229</sup> and documentary evidence.

1939. On 26 June 1994, on a sunny early evening between 7 and 7:30 p.m., Sanela Muratović, age 16, and Medina Omerović, age 17, were walking side by side to Omerović's apartment in Đure Jakšića street 17 (on the eastern side of Lukavička Road), in the neighbourhood of Vojničko Polje (Novi Grad).<sup>8230</sup> Muratović was wearing a T-shirt, trousers, and sneakers, while Omerović was wearing shorts.<sup>8231</sup> As the two young women were about to cross the street towards Omerović's apartment block, some ABiH uniformed soldiers warned them that 'sniper fire had started and to hurry up'. They started running.<sup>8232</sup> Muratović was hit by a single shot in her right shoulder, from the front.<sup>8233</sup> Omerović, walking to Muratović's left, was not injured.<sup>8234</sup> Both young women went on and took shelter in a trench located to their right.<sup>8235</sup> Muratović was admitted to the Dobrinja General Hospital for emergency treatment on the same day.<sup>8236</sup>

1940. Muratović was targeted from SRK-controlled territory.<sup>8237</sup> The shot originated from the area of the Institute for the Blind.<sup>8238</sup> The distance between the area of the Institute for the Blind and the position of the victim at the time of the incident was about 200 metres.<sup>8239</sup> According to Mile Sladoje, the institute was never used as a sniper's nest. However, he acknowledged that members of the 1st Battalion of the Ilidža Brigade were positioned there.<sup>8240</sup> No fighting was going on in the area at the time of the incident.<sup>8241</sup> Soldiers were not garrisoned in the immediate vicinity of the spot where the incident occurred, and there was no military facility nearby.<sup>8242</sup> According to Sladoje, the 101st Brigade of the 1st Corps of the ABiH had a trench on Đure Jakšića Street.<sup>8243</sup>

1941. Mile Poparić testified that based on a photograph of the Institute for the Blind taken after the war, there was only one potential spot from which fire could be opened in the direction of the trench, and only if the position of the shooter was inside the room and on a platform.<sup>8244</sup> Based on the traces on buildings surrounding the Institute for the Blind, Poparić concluded that fire was opened from VRS-controlled territory in the vicinity of the Institute for the Blind during an exchange of fire between the warring sides and that Muratović was 'most probably' hit by a projectile ricocheting off the building located at Đure Jakšića Street No. 17.<sup>8245</sup>

1942. Poparić's conclusion that Muratović was hit by a combat ricochet contradicts Adjudicated Fact number 2283, which states that she was targeted. The basis of Poparić's conclusion is that he observed firing traces on buildings surrounding the Institute for the Blind. The Trial Chamber notes that Poparić conceded that there was no evidence of an exchange of fire on the day of the incident.<sup>8246</sup> He concluded though that there must have been an exchange of fire and that consequently Muratović's hit was a combat-related ricochet. The Trial Chamber considers this line of reasoning to be purely speculative and therefore insufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact number 2283.

1943. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 26 June 1994, 16-year-old Sanela Muratović was, at a distance of 200 metres, targeted, shot, and injured from the Institute for the Blind, where the 1st Battalion of the SRK Ilidža Brigade held positions.<sup>8247</sup> On the basis that the shot originated from an SRK position, the Trial Chamber finds that Muratović was shot by a member of the SRK. The victim was wearing civilian clothes and was shot when she was on her way home with a friend. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

5.2.6 Schedule F.11

1944. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Alma Ćutuna, a 43-year-old woman, in her right upper leg when she was travelling on the tram on Zmaja od Bosne Street on 8 October 1994.<sup>8248</sup> The Defence argued, mainly based on Poparić's evidence, that the ABiH shot at the tram.<sup>8249</sup> Scheduled Incident F.11 is limited to the shooting of Alma Ćutuna on 8 October 1994. The Indictment is, however, not limited to the Scheduled Incidents.<sup>8250</sup> Accordingly, the Trial Chamber also considered Adjudicated Facts and evidence about two other shootings at the same time and place. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. It also received evidence from Witness RM-112, a Bosnian Muslim living in Sarajevo from April 1992;<sup>8251</sup> Patrick

<sup>8248</sup> Indictment, paras 15-17, 76, 81, Schedule F.11. Although the text of Schedule F.11 of the Indictment does not specify that the victim was shot, the Trial Chamber understands the charge to cover this from this incident's inclusion as one of the sniping examples in Schedule F.

1945. On 8 October 1994, a tram was shot at the S-curve on Zmaja od Bosne Street with machinegun fire and Alma Čutuna was hit and seriously injured in her right upper leg.<sup>8256</sup> The tram was crowded and came under fire when it approached the Faculty of Philosophy.<sup>8257</sup> A cease-fire was in place and there were no military vehicles or equipment in the area at the time.<sup>8258</sup> Two other sniping incidents took place in the same area and within minutes of each other.<sup>8259</sup> Two to three minutes after the tram was hit, another tram travelling between the Faculty of Philosophy and the museum was hit by a burst of gunfire and several passengers were wounded.<sup>8260</sup> Shortly after the second tram was hit, four children between 12 and 14 years of age, running in the same area, near the Faculty of Philosophy and the Executive Council, were shot and wounded.<sup>8261</sup> In total, eleven people were injured.<sup>8262</sup> Nedžad Hadžibajrić died from a perforating wound to the right of his head.<sup>8263</sup> During the on-site investigation, the investigation team found two stationary trams that were damaged, with traces of fire, blood stains, and broken glass on the inside.<sup>8264</sup> The shots came from the direction of the Metalka Building, which was held by the SRK. The shots were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8265</sup> Visibility on the day was sufficient to allow a sniper at the Metalka Building to identify and target a tram negotiating the S-curve.<sup>8266</sup>

1946. The first shooting was heard by UNPROFOR staff on the ground.<sup>8267</sup> The burst of fire was very loud and seemed to have come from very close.<sup>8268</sup> Later, investigators on the ground using antenna rods were able to determine that the fire for all three shootings came from 'directions that converged toward house number 14', which was situated in Serb territory. Investigators placed these antenna rods into six fresh traces of impact in the ground near the impact location.<sup>8269</sup> Patrick van der Weijden commented that this location indicated by UNPROFOR was inaccurate.<sup>8270</sup> There was no line of sight to the location of the incident due to the presence of buildings in between. Furthermore, the suggested location was over 600 metres away from the location of the incident. According to van der Weijden, '[f]ire from that distance has lost its very loud crack and most of the noise will be the sound of bullets flying at supersonic speed which has a distinctively different sound'. Since the Metalka building was 290 metres away from the S-curve, the noise of the shot would have been clearly 'noticeable' for the UNPROFOR personnel on the ground.<sup>8271</sup> According to UNPROFOR, a total of six people were wounded during the shooting of the two trams.<sup>8272</sup>

1947. Michael Rose testified that Serbs fired at the two trams from their positions located at the Jewish cemetery.<sup>8273</sup> According to a report of a meeting between UNPROFOR and Mladić on 10 October 1994, UNPROFOR condemned the incident of 8 October 1994 in which the Sarajevo tramway was shot at. In response, Mladić denied that the Serbs were involved, claimed that the shooting had come from the Holiday Inn, i.e. from the Bosnian side, and that it was all a ‘scenario’ engineered by the other side. He added that Rose should not be duped by ‘Muslim propaganda’.<sup>8274</sup>

1948. Mile Poparić testified that based on his review of statements and other evidence, both trams were hit at locations that had no line of sight to positions of the VRS.<sup>8275</sup> Poparić concluded that the trams were hit from the executive council building, which was under the control of the ABiH.<sup>8276</sup>

1949. In relation to the origin of fire, the Trial Chamber notes that the Adjudicated Facts and some of the evidence differ. The origin of fire may be an important element in establishing the affiliation of the perpetrator. According to the Adjudicated Facts, the shots were fired from the direction of the Metalka Building by a member of the SRK. According to an UNPROFOR report, the shooting came from ‘house number 14’. Rose testified that the shots came from the Jewish Cemetery. Mladić claimed that they originated from the Holiday Inn. Poparić testified that there was no line of sight to VRS positions and that the shots came from the ABiH.

1950. There is no indication on what basis Rose concludes that the shooting came from the Jewish Cemetery, or why Mladić, according to a report, concluded that it came from the Holiday Inn. The Trial Chamber finds that neither Rose’s evidence nor the evidence of Mladić as set out in a report is sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts in this respect.

1951. In relation to the UNPROFOR report, the Trial Chamber notes that UNPROFOR was present at the scene of the shootings. However, UNPROFOR did not observe the shooting in determining its origin but employed a test using antenna rods. The Trial Chamber considered the description of this method of establishing the origin of fire as given by UNPROFOR and the exact phrasing of the results. The Trial Chamber is not convinced that this method could yield the kind of precision in the origin of fire that UNPROFOR put forward. Accepting that the antenna rod test lacks precision, the Trial Chamber finds that the UNPROFOR report is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Fact that the shots were fired from the direction of the Metalka Building.

1952. Poparić's conclusions are mainly based on an analysis of (i) the location of shattered glass from the tram windows, (ii) the angle of entry wounds on a victim, and (iii) the shape of a dust column caused by the bullets as observed on a video.<sup>8277</sup> In relation to (i), Poparić assumed that the tram stopped immediately upon impact arguing that '[the tram driver] was probably scared and stopped because of his instinct'.<sup>8278</sup> In relation to (ii), Poparić argued that one civilian was hit in his lip with the bullet ending up in his shoulder, suggesting that this must mean a large angle of descent. In relation to (iii), Poparić argues that the shape of the dust column indicates a short, high-angle shooting.<sup>8279</sup> The Trial Chamber considers that Poparić, in reaching his conclusion, made a number of assumptions so that only his conclusion seems reasonable. For (i), Poparić conceded that glass can also shatter at a later moment and not directly upon impact and failed to convincingly explain why the tram windows in this incident must have shattered upon impact.<sup>8280</sup> For (ii), Poparić did not seem to consider the possibility of a ricochet and also seemed to assume that the victim's head was upright when hit. Poparić conceded that a different position of the victim would affect his conclusion and failed to convincingly explain why the victim must have been upright.<sup>8281</sup> For (iii), other factors which may affect a dust column, such as wind conditions or composition of the ground, do not seem to have been considered by Poparić. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Poparić's evidence about the origin of fire is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts in this respect.

1953. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 8 October 1994, an SRK member, from the direction of the Metalka building, shot and seriously wounded Alma Ćutuna who was travelling on a crowded tram at Zmaja od Bosne Street. The shot was part of a set of shootings which also hit another tram and four children running in the area. A total of eleven people were wounded and one died.<sup>8282</sup> The shootings took place during a cease-fire and there were no military vehicles or equipment, apart from those of UNPROFOR, near the location of the incidents at that time. The Trial Chamber will

1954. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for firing at Dženana Sokolović, a 31-year-old woman, and her seven-year-old son Nermin Divović, while they were walking on Zmaja od Bosne Street on 18 November 1994. Dženana Sokolović was wounded by a bullet in the abdomen, which passed through her and hit her son in the head, killing him. The two were walking home from Hrasno, where they had gone to collect firewood the previous day.<sup>8283</sup> The Defence argued that the evidence is contradictory and inconclusive, suggesting that the fire did not come from the SRK.<sup>8284</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. It also received evidence from Dženana Sokolović, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo,<sup>8285</sup> Šefik Bešlić, a Bosnian-Muslim doctor and surgeon who worked as the head of abdominal surgery at Koševo Hospital in Sarajevo from 1980 to 2004,<sup>8286</sup> as well as documentary evidence and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8287</sup> The Trial Chamber further received evidence from John Jordan, a volunteer firefighter in Sarajevo from 1992 until 1995;<sup>8288</sup> Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping;<sup>8289</sup> Barry Hogan, an investigator for the Prosecution;<sup>8290</sup> and Mile Poparić, a weapons and military equipment expert.<sup>8291</sup> building offered a direct line of sight to the location where the victims were shot.<sup>8303</sup> Barry Hogan confirmed this.<sup>8304</sup> According to van der Weijden, at a distance of 320 metres from the Metalka building it would have been possible to determine with the naked eye that the victim and her two children were not combatants.<sup>8305</sup>

1956. Mile Poparić testified that based inter alia on his own estimate of the height of the victims, established during his review of the evidence, and Divović's entry wound, it is impossible to conclude that the victims were both hit by the same shot.<sup>8306</sup> He further testified that based on his interpretation of the evidence related to the bullet trajectory, including audiovisual evidence and photographs, and the uncertainties as to whether one or more projectiles hit the victims, he concluded that the shot may have come from the opposite side of the Metalka building.<sup>8307</sup>

1957. The Trial Chamber has considered Adjudicated Facts 2317 and 2319, according to which both victims were shot with the same projectile originating from Grbavica. It has also considered Poparić's evidence on the number of projectiles and direction of fire. The Trial Chamber notes that Poparić draws his conclusions from the identification of inconsistencies in the evidence and from his own assumptions. Drawing conclusion from evidence is not part of Poparić's expertise. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber finds the witness's conclusions to be insufficiently founded. Therefore, the Trial Chamber finds the witness's conclusions on the number of projectiles and direction of fire to be insufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Facts 2317 and 2319.

1958. In relation to the Defence's argument about contradictions in the evidence, the Trial Chamber notes that its finding on the affiliation of the perpetrator is solely based on the Adjudicated Facts. The Defence did not present reliable evidence rebutting this fact. Accordingly, any inconsistencies in the evidence, as submitted by the Defence, do not impact the Trial Chamber's findings in this respect. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber will not further consider the Defence submissions.

1959. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 18 November 1994, a member of the SRK shot and wounded Dženana Sokolović, a Bosnian-Muslim woman, with a single bullet which passed through her abdomen and hit her seven-year-old son Nermin Divović in the head, killing him, while they were walking on Zmaj (Zmaja) od Bosne Street on their way home. Her eight-year-old daughter was also nearby. There was no combat at the time and place of the incident and there were no military personnel or equipment present in the immediate vicinity. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

5.2.8 Schedule F.13

1960. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Afeza Karačić, a 31-year-old woman, and Sabina Šabanić, a 26-year-old woman, both in the right shoulder when the tram they were travelling in came under fire on Zmaja od Bosne Street, between the Technical School and Maršal Tito Barracks on 23 November 1994.<sup>8308</sup> The Defence argued that in relation to the tram the victims were travelling on the evidence is contradictory and inconclusive with regard to the origin of fire, excluding SRK responsibility.<sup>8309</sup> Scheduled Incident F.13 is limited to the shooting of tram 263 on 23 November 1994. The Indictment is, however, not limited to the Scheduled Incidents.<sup>8310</sup> Accordingly, the Trial Chamber also considered the evidence with regard to the shooting of tram 238 shortly after the shooting of the first tram. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to the first shooting. Further, it received evidence from Sabina Šabanić, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo;<sup>8311</sup> Dragan Mioković, a Bosnian-Serb police inspector at the Sarajevo CSB since 1993;<sup>8312</sup> Mirza Sabljica, a mechanical engineer specialised in ballistics and mechanical traces employed by the Bosnia-Herzegovina MUP's criminal forensics department in Sarajevo from June 1993 to July 1996;<sup>8313</sup> Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping;<sup>8314</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the

tram 263.<sup>8324</sup> Visibility was clear.<sup>8325</sup> The origin of fire was either the high-rise buildings on Lenjinova Street or the Metalka Building, both held by the SRK.<sup>8326</sup> Both these locations are in Grbavica.<sup>8327</sup> The shots were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8328</sup> Dragan Mioković specified that fire had been opened twice from Grbavica in Novo Sarajevo Municipality, first hitting tram 263 at 3:30 p.m. and then tram 238 at 3:45 p.m. on Zmaja od Bosne Street, near the Holiday Inn hotel and between the Philosophy Faculty and Museum respectively.<sup>8329</sup> A man and his wife, both born in 1934, travelling on tram 238 were respectively fatally wounded and seriously wounded in the left shoulder.<sup>8330</sup> According to the witness, between 1992 and 1995, tram passengers were generally civilians, often elderly people and women.<sup>8331</sup>

1962. Mile Poparić testified that during his review of the evidence, he identified contradictory statements concerning the origin of fire. Based on his own estimate of the angle of descent on the basis of the evidence concerning Šabanić and Karačić's entry and exit wounds and of the unspecified height of the buildings from which the shots were allegedly fired, Poparić concluded that the shots could not have been fired from VRS positions but only from the ABiH positions in the Executive Council Building or on Golo Brdo, in the east.<sup>8332</sup>

1963. The Trial Chamber notes that Poparić's evidence contradicts Adjudicated Fact number 2335 in relation to the affiliation of the perpetrator. Poparić drew his conclusions from assumed contradictions in the evidence and his review of evidence in general (as opposed to on-site analyses). Given his field of expertise, the Trial Chamber finds the witness's conclusions to be insufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact number 2335 with respect to the origin of fire. In this context, the Trial Chamber also notes that it will not further consider the Defence submission with respect to inconsistencies in the evidence regarding origin of fire of the shooting of tram 263, as the Trial Chamber relied on the unrebutted Adjudicated Fact and not on the evidence in this respect.

1964. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 23 November 1994, a member of the SRK fired shots at tram 263, which was travelling on Zmaja od Bosne Street in Sarajevo. Two women, Afeza Karačić and Sabina Šabanić, were seriously wounded. After the shots, panic erupted and many people were bleeding heavily. The passengers could not exit the tram directly and lay down on the floor as the tram driver continued driving until he reached a safer location. Shortly thereafter, tram 238 was also hit on the same street. A man and his wife, both born in 1934, were respectively fatally wounded and seriously injured. Considering the proximity of the trams and the limited time between the two shootings, as well as Mioković's evidence that both shootings came from Grbavica, the Trial Chamber finds that the firing at tram 238 and tram 263 originated from the same SRK source. There was a cease-fire at the time of the incidents and visibility was clear. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Counts 5-6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

5.2.9 Schedule F.15

1965. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Azem Agović, a 46-year-old man, and Alen Gičević, a 33-year-old man, travelling on Zmaja od Bosne Street in an eastbound tram, which was near the Holiday Inn at the time of the incident on 3 March 1995.<sup>8333</sup> The Prosecution argued that the bullets were fired from Serb-controlled Grbavica, and more specifically from the Metalka building.<sup>8334</sup> The Defence, based on the evidence of Poparić, argued that it is impossible that the tram was hit from the direction of the Metalka building and that it was in fact hit from ABiH territory.<sup>8335</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. Further it received evidence

1966. Alen Gičević stated that at around 12:30 p.m. on 3 March 1995 he was travelling in a crowded tram from Čengić Vila to Baščaršija, when it came under fire.<sup>8342</sup> He and Azem Agović, both civilians, were seriously injured by the shots.<sup>8343</sup> Gičević was hit above the right knee.<sup>8344</sup> He stayed in the Sarajevo State Hospital for 15 days and was operated on twice in order to remove the bullet fragment in his knee.<sup>8345</sup> The shots came from Grbavica, which was SRK-held territory, and were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8346</sup> Visibility on the day of the incident was sufficient for a shooter from Grbavica to identify the victims as civilians.<sup>8347</sup> It was the beginning of the Bajram holiday and there was a cease-fire on that day.<sup>8348</sup> According to a Bosnia-Herzegovina MUP criminal investigation file, the tram driver stated that the only military formations in the area had been UNPROFOR vehicles and UNPROFOR soldiers.<sup>8349</sup> There were no military assets or ABiH personnel involved in combat operations in this part of town at the time.<sup>8350</sup> Gičević confirmed that there were no military institutions, vehicles, or other military equipment in the area and that the Tito barracks was the closest military facility and was situated about 500 metres away.<sup>8351</sup>

1967. Mile Poparić testified that the seat in which Azem Agović sat when the tram was hit was positioned at an angle of 45 degrees relative to the axis of the tram.<sup>8352</sup> The angle of descent at which it was possible to hit the tram was between 8 and 45 degrees in order to inflict a wound like the one sustained by Agović.<sup>8353</sup> Based on the angle of his seat and the injury sustained by Agović, Poparić narrowed the range of possible trajectories at which the tram was hit to between 15 and 30 degrees, which correspond to locations in ABiH-held territory.<sup>8354</sup> The angle of descent at which it was possible to hit the tram on the specific stretch of the tracks from the direction of the Metalka building was between 80 and 90 degrees.<sup>8355</sup> The witness therefore concluded that it was impossible that the tram was hit by a projectile fired from the Metalka building.<sup>8356</sup>

1968. In relation to the origin of fire, the Trial Chamber notes that Poparić's evidence is contradictory to Adjudicated Fact number 2351. Poparić's conclusion that the fire came from ABiH territory is premised on his understanding of: (i) where exactly the tram at the time of the shooting was located;<sup>8357</sup> (ii) how Agović was positioned in the tram seat;<sup>8358</sup> and (iii) what the possible angles of fire were.<sup>8359</sup> In relation to (i), Poparić conceded that there was no consistent evidence on the exact location of the tram at the time of the shooting, yet made very specific calculations about shooting angles. In relation to (ii), Poparić merely assumed how Agović was positioned inside the tram and also did not seem to account for possible ricochets. In relation to (iii), the Trial Chamber notes that Poparić's specific calculations are based on a number of unsubstantiated assumptions. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Poparić's evidence about the origin of fire is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact number 2351 in this respect.

1969. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 3 March 1995 at around 12:15 p.m., at the beginning of the Bajram holiday, a member of the SRK, from Grbavica, shot and injured the civilians Azem Agović and Alen Gičević who were travelling on a crowded tram. There was no ABiH presence at the time and place of the incident. The closest military facility was at a distance of about 500 metres and visibility on the day of the incident was sufficient for a shooter to identify the victims as civilians. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

5.2.10 Schedule F.16

1970. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for shooting and wounding Tarik Žunić, a 14-year-old boy, in the hand while he was walking home from school at Sedrenik Street in Sarajevo on 6 March 1995. He was hit when he emerged from behind a protective screen about 100 metres from his house.<sup>8360</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of two Adjudicated Facts in relation to this incident. It further received evidence from Tarik Žunić himself, a Muslim resident of Sarajevo in 1995;<sup>8361</sup> Siniša Maksimović, a Bosnian Serb from Blažuj, Ilidža Municipality and member of the VRS from the beginning of the war;<sup>8362</sup> as well as documentary material and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8363</sup> The Trial

Chamber also received evidence from Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping;<sup>8364</sup> Slavko Gengo, the Commander of the 7th Infantry Battalion of the 1st Romanija Infantry Brigade from the end of January 1994 until May 1995;<sup>8365</sup> and Mile Poparić, an expert in weapons and military equipment.<sup>8366</sup>

1971. On 6 March 1995, Tarik Žunić, aged 14 years and wearing jeans and a green jacket, was shot and seriously wounded by machine gun fire from SRK-held positions at Špicasta Stijena when he was walking on Sedrenik Street and appeared from behind a sheet of canvas.<sup>8367</sup> Slavko Gengo testified that it was his battalion which was deployed at Špicasta Stijena, a position held by the VRS throughout 1992 until 1995.<sup>8368</sup> The evening of 18 September 1994 was the only time when this feature shortly fell under the control of the ABiH.<sup>8369</sup> Patrick van der Weijden testified that the ridgeline along which the Serb positions were at the time of the shooting was approximately 650-900 metres from the incident site.<sup>8370</sup> Tarik Žunić opined that the confrontation line was 800 metres from the street.<sup>8371</sup> Further, there were no trenches, military installations, guns, or barracks close to the place where he was shot or in the surrounding areas.<sup>8372</sup> Žunić clarified that the jacket he was wearing was a normal green more akin to 'Benetton green' than olive-drab and that he had a blue rucksack on his right shoulder.<sup>8373</sup> Žunić did not receive any help for half an hour as the shooting continued. A civilian vehicle approached as people wanted to pick him up but the car was immediately forced to leave due to heavy shooting from the snipers.<sup>8374</sup> Some other people tried to help, but one of them, a man who Žunić believed may have been Sefo

Pašić, was hit.<sup>8375</sup> Finally, an APC driven by Egyptian UNPROFOR soldiers picked Žunić up and brought him to the Koševo Hospital.<sup>8376</sup>

1972. Mile Poparić testified that based on Žunić's statement and medical files, he concluded that the victim was shot with a bullet whose incoming trajectory extended from right to left and upwards, meaning that Žunić was shot with a bullet fired from the direction of Sedrenik, which was under ABiH control, instead of Špicasta Stijena, which was under VRS control.<sup>8377</sup>

1973. Poparić's evidence that the shots came from ABiH territory contradicts Adjudicated Fact numbers 2354 and 2362 that state they were fired from the SRK side. Poparić bases his conclusion of the direction of fire on an interpretation of Zunić's statement and medical files. The Trial Chamber considers that a determination on the direction of fire cannot be reliably made on the basis of Zunić's medical files and statements, and without, as in this instance, very precise evidence on the exact positioning of the victim at the time of shooting. The Trial Chamber, therefore, concludes that Poparić's evidence is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Facts numbers 2354 and 2362.

1974. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber finds that on 6 March 1995, Tarik Žunić, a 14-year-old Muslim civilian, wearing jeans, a 'Benetton green' jacket, and a blue rucksack was shot, and seriously wounded in Sedrenik Street in Sarajevo by a member of the 7th Infantry Battalion of the SRK's 1st Romanija Infantry Brigade. The victim was shot from a distance of approximately 800 metres. The shooting continued for half an hour and intensified when people tried to approach and assist Žunić. There were no barracks, trenches, or other military installations close to the place where he was shot. The Trial Chamber will further consider the incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

5.2.11 Other sniping incidents

1975. The Trial Chamber has received evidence with regard to a number of unscheduled sniping incidents and will deal with them in turn.

Incidents on 20 and 22 March 1993 ('Ubala 27. Juli' Street)

1976. Witness RM-126, a Bosnian-Muslim policeman from Sarajevo,<sup>8378</sup> stated that on 20 March 1993 he was injured in 'Ubala 27. Juli' Street, on the street by a bullet fired from a skyscraper on Đure Salaja Street, which was VRS-held territory and had a clear view 'over the whole area'.<sup>8379</sup> At the time, the witness was dressed in civilian clothes and there was no military activity in the neighbourhood.<sup>8380</sup> On 22 March 1993, Sabid Hukara, a 17-year-old male, was killed on a bridge near Ivana Krndelja Street by a sniper shot coming from the same place.<sup>8381</sup> Hukara was a civilian and there was no military activity in the neighbourhood on that day.<sup>8382</sup>

1977. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 20 March 1993, Witness RM-126 was injured by a bullet. Although the witness claims that it was fired from a skyscraper on Đure Salaja Street, the only basis of knowledge he gives for this precision in relation to the origin of fire is that the skyscraper provided a clear view 'over the whole area'. The Trial Chamber does not consider this sufficient to rely on the witness's evidence in this respect. The Trial Chamber further finds Witness RM-126's evidence about Sabid Hukara's death to be of low probative value as the witness does not specify his source of knowledge with regard to the circumstances of Hukara's death including information he provides about the alleged perpetrators. Therefore the Trial Chamber will not further consider these incidents in relation to any count of the Indictment.

Incident of 31 March 1993 (Sedrenik)

1978. Witness RM-153, a taxi driver from Sarajevo,<sup>8383</sup> stated that on 31 March 1993 he found Džemo Parla dead and Mirsada Parla wounded outside their house in the

Sedrenik neighbourhood of Stari Grad.<sup>8384</sup> When he arrived at the house approximately an hour after the two people were shot, the witness was told that they had been struck by sniper fire from Špicasta Stijena.<sup>8385</sup> He learned that the man was shot and hit in the stomach while retrieving water from a water fountain behind his neighbour's house.<sup>8386</sup> The man then called his wife and daughter, who ran to where he was, but the sniper fired again, hitting the wife in the upper leg, while the daughter entered a neighbour's house and called for help. Despite continued sniper fire, some friends and relatives were able to bring the woman inside a neighbouring house and stop the bleeding in her leg.<sup>8387</sup> She was wrapped in a blanket and, under continuing fire, taken to the hospital.<sup>8388</sup> In the meantime, a relative attempted to retrieve the man, but he was already dead.<sup>8389</sup> The wound left the woman an invalid for life.<sup>8390</sup> According to the witness, the area of Špicasta Stijena was under control of the VRS.<sup>8391</sup> The VRS position in Špicasta Stijena was located about 150-200 metres away from the victims' house, and was visible from there.<sup>8392</sup> The witness stated that there was an active sniper position there for the duration of the war.<sup>8393</sup> Džemo Parla was 57 years old and was not a member of any army.<sup>8394</sup>

1979. According to an entry in the war diary of the Stari Grad SJB dated 2/3 April 1993, a man named Džemo Parla, born in 1937, was killed and a woman named Mirsada Parla, both residing at Sedrenik 101, was seriously wounded by 'the sower of death'.<sup>8395</sup> Nedžib Dozo, a Bosnian Muslim former JNA mortar platoon commander and civilian police investigator,<sup>8396</sup> testified that this was a weapon with an extremely rapid rate of fire and that the VRS fired it from multiple VRS positions at elevations around Sarajevo, including from Špicasta Stijena.<sup>8397</sup> With regard to the origin of fire, the Trial Chamber has further considered Adjudicated Facts number 1986 as well as the evidence of Slavko Gengo (reviewed in chapter 5.2.10) and Nedžib Đozo (reviewed in chapter 5.1.1).

1980. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 31 March 1993, Džemo Parla, who was not a member of any army, was shot in the stomach and killed while retrieving water from a fountain in the Sedrenik neighbourhood of Stari Grad. His wife, Mirsada Parla, was then shot in the upper leg after she had gone to her husband's aid. The bullet wounded Mirsada Parla and left her an invalid for life. On the basis that the fire originated from an SRK position, the Trial Chamber finds that the couple was shot by an SRK member. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5-6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 25 June 1993 (Kobilja Glava)

1981. On 25 June 1993, a man was picking lettuce in the vegetable plot of his farm in Kobilja Glava when, around 1:20 p.m., he heard sounds of shooting from Orahov Brijeg.<sup>8398</sup> He lay down for two or three minutes and when he got up, he was shot in the back.<sup>8399</sup> Another person,<sup>8400</sup> who was visiting the victim that day, saw him lying on the ground, on his back, at a distance of 50 to 100 metres from his house.<sup>8401</sup> This person went to get the assistance of a neighbour and returned with him to take the victim away.<sup>8402</sup> While they were carrying the victim, they heard intense shooting directed towards them.<sup>8403</sup> The three dropped to the ground.<sup>8404</sup> The shooting then stopped.<sup>8405</sup> They then ran several metres before the shooting restarted.<sup>8406</sup> They ran short distances four or five times, then fell to the ground to avoid being shot at.<sup>8407</sup> One of the persons counted 10 to 15 periods of shooting in total, and it took them 15 to 20 minutes to carry the victim to the house.<sup>8408</sup> The victim was dressed in no more than a pair of shorts.<sup>8409</sup> The man was shot from SRK-controlled territory.<sup>8410</sup>

1982. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 25 June 1993, a man was shot and injured in the back as he was picking lettuce in his farm in Kobilja Glava. He was dressed in civilian clothes. On the basis that he was shot from SRK-controlled territory, the Trial Chamber finds that he was shot by an SRK member.<sup>8411</sup> Two other persons were targeted and shot at ten to fifteen times as they were trying to assist the victim. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 27 June 1993 (Kranjčevića Street)

1983. On 27 June 1993, Almasa Konjhodžić was targeted and killed by a shot fired from SRK-controlled territory in Grbavica.<sup>8412</sup> At around noon on 27 June 1993, Milada Halili and her husband Sabri Halili were walking with Almasa Konjhodžić, Milada's mother, to the 'PTT' building.<sup>8413</sup> They were commemorating the death by sniper fire of a relative.<sup>8414</sup> As they approached the traffic lights at the intersection of Kranjčevića Street, in the vicinity of the Maršal Tito Barracks, they heard the sound of gunfire.<sup>8415</sup> Milada, who was a bit ahead, ran across the intersection behind a barrier of containers which had been set up to protect against shooting from Grbavica.<sup>8416</sup> Frightened by the shot, Almasa lost her balance and fell.<sup>8417</sup> Sabri helped her to her feet and they continued.<sup>8418</sup> They had walked ten metres when Almasa was struck by a bullet.<sup>8419</sup> She was taken to hospital where she died from the wound.<sup>8420</sup> Although Sabri was a member of the ABiH, he was off-duty that day and was not dressed in uniform or carrying weapons.<sup>8421</sup> Almasa was wearing civilian clothes.<sup>8422</sup> There were no soldiers or other military targets in the vicinity of the incident.<sup>8423</sup> There was an unobstructed line of sight from Grbavica to the intersection where Almasa was shot.<sup>8424</sup> Containers had been placed at the intersection to give protection from gunfire coming from Grbavica as the intersection had been targeted before.<sup>8425</sup> The bullet which killed Almasa was fired from Grbavica.<sup>8426</sup> Grbavica was under SRK control at the time of the incident.<sup>8427</sup>

1984. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that at around noon on 27 June 1993, Almasa Konjhodžić was targeted and shot as she was walking near the intersection of Kranjčevića Street, in the vicinity of the Maršal Tito Barracks. She subsequently died from this wound. She was wearing civilian clothes and there were no uniformed soldiers or other military activity in the vicinity of the incident at that time. On the basis that the shot originated from SRK-controlled territory, the Trial Chamber finds that she was shot by an SRK member.<sup>8428</sup> The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in Chapter 8, below.

Incident of 24 July 1993 (Sedrenik)

1985. Around 3 a.m. on 24 July 1993, Mejra Jusović, who lived at 133B Sedrenik Street in Sedrenik, went with a neighbour to Pašino Brdo, a wooded area to the immediate northeast, to collect firewood.<sup>8429</sup> Once there, she gathered the wood into a bundle which she tied together with rope.<sup>8430</sup> At about 6 a.m., she placed the load on her back and decided to return home.<sup>8431</sup> She was walking alone on her way back to her house, since her neighbour had left about half an hour earlier, when at approximately 200 metres from her house, she heard gunshots.<sup>8432</sup> She immediately lay down on the ground for cover.<sup>8433</sup> Two shots were fired, followed by a third one which hit her left buttock.<sup>8434</sup> At the time of the incident, Jusović was not wearing a military uniform.<sup>8435</sup> There was an unobstructed line of sight from the place where she was injured to Špicasta Stijena.<sup>8436</sup> The shot which injured Jusović originated from SRK-controlled territory in the area of Špicasta Stijena.<sup>8437</sup>

1986. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 24 July 1993, Mejra Jusović was shot and injured in Sedrenik. At the time of the incident, Jusović was not wearing a military uniform and was on her way home having collected firewood. On the basis that the shot originated from SRK-controlled territory, the Trial Chamber finds that she was shot by an SRK member.<sup>8438</sup> There was an unobstructed line of sight from the place where she was injured to this territory. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 5 August 1993 (Stara Cesta)

1987. Vildana Kapur, Sabina Zeković, and Ifeta Šahić, who was 14 years old in August 1993 and was living at her sister's house in Kobilja Glava, went to fetch water on 5 August 1993 around noon.<sup>8439</sup> There was neither water nor electricity in houses in Kobilja Glava during the conflict, and the fetching of water was usually done at the nearby river at dawn or dusk, to avoid being detected and shot.<sup>8440</sup> That day, the girls had not heard any shooting.<sup>8441</sup> On the morning of the incident, the weather was fine and the friends were dressed in T-shirts and denims.<sup>8442</sup> On their way back, pulling a wheelbarrow loaded with jerry cans of water, Šahić and her friends heard gunshots ahead of them.<sup>8443</sup> Šahić saw the flash from a machine gun shooting at them.<sup>8444</sup> They ran and sought shelter in an orchard on the left side of the street.<sup>8445</sup> The first bullets were shot at Šahić and her friends, striking the ground around their feet while they were walking along Stara Cesta.<sup>8446</sup> The shooting continued while they ran for shelter to the orchard.<sup>8447</sup> Despite their having moved into the orchard, the shooting continued.<sup>8448</sup> Kapur leaned against a tree and was then shot in her left leg.<sup>8449</sup> Kapur was targeted from SRK-controlled territory.<sup>8450</sup> On the same date, Kapur, who was 21 years old, was admitted to the Koševo Hospital, with an entry/exit wound, both with a diameter of 35 millimetres, on the left thigh inflicted by a fire arm. She was released after surgery on 8 August 1993.<sup>8451</sup>

1988. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 5 August 1993, three young females dressed in civilian clothes, including Vildana Kapur, were targeted and shot at with sniper fire while walking along Stara Cesta in Sarajevo. After they had fled into an orchard, the shooting continued and Kapur was hit. Kapur sustained an injury to her left thigh from the sniper fire and was admitted to the Koševo Hospital. On the basis that the shots originated from SRK-controlled territory, the Trial Chamber finds that they were shot by an SRK member.<sup>8452</sup> The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 6 August 1993 (Dobrinja)

1989. Refik Sokolar, a Bosnian-Muslim police officer who, from the middle of 1993 onwards, was tasked with investigating and reporting on shelling and sniping incidents in the Dobrinja area, Sarajevo,<sup>8453</sup> testified that he conducted an on-site investigation concerning the sniping of Vahida Sarić on 6 August 1993, who was wounded in her kitchen by bullet fragments in the left shoulder.<sup>8454</sup> Sokolar concluded that the bullet originated from Miroslava Krleže Street, in the Dobrinja 1 complex, which was held by the VRS.<sup>8455</sup>

1990. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 6 August 1993, Vahida Sarić was shot and wounded in her left shoulder while she was in her kitchen in the Dobrinja area. Sokolar did not provide a clear basis of knowledge for his conclusion regarding the origin of fire. The Trial Chamber also did not receive a contemporaneous report regarding the investigation mentioned by Sokolar. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber considers the evidence on the origin of fire insufficiently reliable and will not further consider this incident.

Incident of 26 September 1993 (Ivana Krndelja Street)

1991. Witness RM-126, a Bosnian-Muslim policeman from Sarajevo,<sup>8456</sup> stated that during the war he investigated a large number of snipings of civilians in the area of Trg Pere Kosorića and Hrasno and that in all of them the origin of fire was in VRS-held positions in Ozrenska Street and Grbavica.<sup>8457</sup> In particular, the witness stated that when he investigated an incident that had occurred on 26 September 1993, in which Edina Trto was killed by a sniper round on Ivana Krndelja Street, in a residential area without ongoing military activity, he came to the conclusion that the shot was fired from a VRS-held position in Ozrenska Street.<sup>8458</sup>

1992. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 26 September 1993 Edina Trto was shot and killed on Ivana Krndelja Street. The incident occurred in a residential area where there was no military activity. On the basis that the shot originated from a VRS-held position, the Trial Chamber finds that he was shot by an SRK member. Incident of 2 November 1993 (Braće Ribara Street)

1993. On 2 November 1993, Ramiz Velić was targeted from SRK-controlled territory in Vraca.<sup>8459</sup> At approximately 9:30 a.m., Velić, an employee of the Public Utilities Company in Sarajevo, was collecting rubbish with a front-end loader on Braće Ribara Street, in a settlement known as Trg Heroja (Heroes' Square) in Hrasno.<sup>8460</sup> He was being escorted by Egyptian forces in two UNPROFOR APCs marked 'UN'.<sup>8461</sup> He was wearing black corduroy trousers and a leather driver's jacket.<sup>8462</sup> The loader and the trucks onto which the rubbish was being loaded were yellow.<sup>8463</sup> Blankets hung on a wire across the street as protection against sniper fire.<sup>8464</sup> As Velić reversed the loader he moved away from the blankets and the protection of one of the buildings into an open area where the UNPROFOR vehicles were, and was shot.<sup>8465</sup> When he sensed the bullet strike his left hand, he jumped out of the cabin and took cover behind a tyre.<sup>8466</sup> The shooting continued and he heard several bullets strike the left side of the vehicle.<sup>8467</sup> After the shooting stopped, Velić was transported to hospital.<sup>8468</sup> He was deliberately targeted.<sup>8469</sup> The location of the incident was clearly visible from the SRK positions in Vraca.<sup>8470</sup> The bullets fired at the loader, one of which hit the victim, originated from the area of Vraca.<sup>8471</sup>

1994. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 2 November 1993, Ramiz Velić, an employee of the Public Utilities Company in Sarajevo, was targeted and injured by sniper fire while he was collecting rubbish on Braće Ribara Street, in Sarajevo. On the basis that the fire originated from SRK-controlled territory in Vraca, the Trial Chamber finds that he was shot by an SRK member.<sup>8472</sup> At the time of the incident Velić was being escorted by Egyptian forces in two UNPROFOR APCs

Incident of 9 November 1993 (Briješko Brdo Street)

1995. On or around 9 November 1993, at around noon, Fatima Osmanović, aged 44, was shot in her cheek on Briješko Brdo Street while returning home from a well.<sup>8473</sup> Rasema Menzilović, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo,<sup>8474</sup> stated that she was bleeding heavily out of her mouth. After the witness called a nurse, Fatima Osmanović was taken to hospital and survived the incident.<sup>8475</sup> Osmanović was wearing a skirt, a T-shirt, and a sweater.<sup>8476</sup> She was targeted from an SRK-controlled area.<sup>8477</sup> Menzilović specified that the shot came from an area known as 'polje' or 'bačići', 500 metres away and across the main road by the rail depot.<sup>8478</sup> Although it happened on a cloudy day, visibility was good, and there were no military positions or people carrying weapons nearby.<sup>8479</sup> Ramiza Kundo, a Muslim resident of Briješće, an exclusively Muslim area of Sarajevo in 1993,<sup>8480</sup> stated that there was no fighting ongoing when the incident happened.<sup>8481</sup> The Trial Chamber finds that some of the evidence from Menzilović and Kundo is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8482</sup>

1996. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on or around 9 November 1993, at approximately noon, Fatima Osmanović, a 44-year-old woman, was targeted, shot and injured on her cheek on Briješko Brdo Street on her way back from a well. Osmanović was dressed in civilian clothes. On the basis that the shot originated from an SRK-controlled area, the Trial Chamber finds that she was shot by an SRK member.<sup>8483</sup> At the time of the incident, there were no military positions or armed individuals nearby. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 11 January 1994 ('27 Ubala Juli' Street)

1997. In January 1994, Akif Mukanović lived with his wife Hatema and two teenage children on the first floor of an apartment block on '27 Ubala Juli' Street in Hrasno.<sup>8484</sup> The apartment faced the direction of the confrontation lines, which were approximately 800 metres away.<sup>8485</sup> To minimize the risk of being seen from SRK territory on Hrasno Brdo, the Mukanović family would, in addition to blinds, use blankets to cover the windows at night.<sup>8486</sup> On 11 January 1994, Mukanović arrived home from work around 7 p.m. It was already dark outside.<sup>8487</sup> Mukanović noticed that the blinds had not been covered with blankets.<sup>8488</sup> Because there was no electricity, a candle was lit on the table.<sup>8489</sup> Two bullets struck the apartment.<sup>8490</sup> One bullet passed through the wooden frame of the left side of the window and wounded his wife in the right shoulder blade, cutting through her aorta and lodging in her body.<sup>8491</sup> A second bullet went through the left windowpane, across the dining-room and through the wall into the outside hallway of the building.<sup>8492</sup> Hatema was taken to hospital but she did not survive the injury.<sup>8493</sup> There was an unobstructed line of sight between Hrasno Brdo and Mukanović's apartment.<sup>8494</sup> The shots fired into Mukanović's apartment were aimed at the window of the apartment.<sup>8495</sup> Hatema Mukanović was killed by a shot fired from territory on Hrasno Brdo under SRK control.<sup>8496</sup> There were no soldiers inside or in the proximity of the building and no combat activity was underway at the time.<sup>8497</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Witness RM-126, a Bosnian-Muslim policeman from Sarajevo,<sup>8498</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8499</sup>

1998. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 11 January 1994, Hatema Mukanović was shot and killed while she was in her apartment at '27 Ubala Juli' Street in Hrasno. Another bullet, fired at the window, also struck the apartment. On the basis that the shot originated from SRK-controlled territory, the Trial Chamber finds that she was shot by an SRK member.<sup>8500</sup> There was no soldier inside the apartment building or any military activity in the vicinity. There was an unobstructed line of sight between Hrasno Brdo and Mukanović's apartment. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

1999. On 13 June 1994, a bullet struck Fatima Salčin's palm on the road from Alipašino Polje to Dobrinja and lifted her arm up in front of her.<sup>8501</sup> The shot was fired from within SRK-controlled territory, by SRK personnel, to the west of the confrontation line.<sup>8502</sup> Salčin was targeted from SRK-controlled territory.<sup>8503</sup>

2000. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 13 June 1994, a member of the SRK targeted and shot Fatima Salčin in the hand while she was on the road from Alipašino Polje to Dobrinja. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in Chapter 8, below.

Incident of 24 October 1994 (Vojničko Polje)

2001. On 24 October 1994, Adnan Kasapović, a 14-year-old civilian boy, was shot and killed when walking by a passageway in Vojničko Polje.<sup>8504</sup> He was shot in a passageway to one side of Vemek's department store.<sup>8505</sup> The shots came from the School of the Blind, a known sniper location of the SRK.<sup>8506</sup> The shots were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8507</sup> There was a direct line of sight from the School of the Blind to the passageway.<sup>8508</sup> Nothing obstructed the view.<sup>8509</sup> The sniper in the School of the Blind, particularly with the benefit of telescopic sights and from the upper floors of the School of the Blind, had a clear view of Kasapović.<sup>8510</sup> There was sufficient visibility in the early morning of that day for a shooter with telescopic sight to see him.<sup>8511</sup> The Trial Chamber, moreover, received evidence from Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping,<sup>8512</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8513</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Mile Poparić, a weapons and military equipment expert.<sup>8514</sup> He testified that at the time there were tall trees in front of the School of the Blind which very likely blocked visibility.<sup>8515</sup> The Defence argued that in relation to this incident the Prosecution presented defective evidence from Van der Weijden in relation to whether there was a clear line of sight.<sup>8516</sup>

2002. The Trial Chamber considers that Poparić's testimony that trees likely blocked the view from the School of the Blind does not contradict the Adjudicated Facts. In addition, the Trial Chamber will not further address the Defence submission as it refers to the evidence of van der Weijden and the Trial Chamber relied on the un rebutted Adjudicated Facts instead.

2003. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 24 October 1994, a member of the SRK shot and killed Adnan Kasapović, a 14-year-old civilian boy in Vojničko Polje. The shots came from the School of the Blind and there was a direct line of sight from the school to the position of the victim. The sniper in the School of the Blind had a clear view of Kasapović. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 9 November 1994 (Zmaja od Bosne Street)

2004. Mirza Sabljica, a mechanical engineer specialised in ballistics and mechanical traces employed by the Bosnia-Herzegovina MUP's criminal forensics department in Sarajevo from June 1993 to July 1996,<sup>8517</sup> testified that on 9 November 1994 he was informed that several persons had been wounded by bullets on Zmaja od Bosne Street (formerly Vojvode Putnika) near the technical school.<sup>8518</sup> The witness was part of the team investigating the incident on 10 November 1994.<sup>8519</sup> The investigation concluded that on 9 November 1994 around 4:50 p.m., five persons were wounded by several firearm projectiles. Three of the wounded were pedestrians, two of whom were soldiers. The other two of the wounded were passengers in a Golf car, one of whom was a soldier.<sup>8520</sup> One of the soldiers who were walking wore a camouflage jacket.<sup>8521</sup> The investigation concluded that the bullets had been 'most probably' fired from a window of a skyscraper on Lenjinova Street in Grbavica, which was under VRS control at that time.<sup>8522</sup>

2005. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 9 November 1994 at around 4:50 p.m., five persons, three of whom were soldiers, were shot and wounded on Zmaja od Bosne Street near the technical school. Two of the five, including one soldier, were in a Golf car. The other three, including two soldiers, one of whom in a camouflage jacket, were walking nearby. VRS-controlled position, the Trial Chamber finds that the five persons were shot by an SRK member. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 22 November 1994 (Sanela Dedović)

2006. On 22 November 1994, Sanela Dedović was shot and seriously wounded in the ankle by a fragment of a bullet fired from a sniper weapon.<sup>8523</sup> The shot originated from the ridge Špicasta Stijena, which was controlled by the SRK.<sup>8524</sup> The shots were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8525</sup> Mile Poparić, an expert in weapons and military equipment,<sup>8526</sup> testified that there was no line of sight between the incident site as indicated in van der Weijden's report, the intersection of Sedrenik Street and Redzepa Gaorušanovica Street, and the Špicasta Stijena ridge.<sup>8527</sup> The Defence argued that in relation to this incident the Prosecution presented defective evidence from Van der Weijden and Hogan, who committed errors in marking the exact impact spot.<sup>8528</sup>

2007. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 22 November 1994 an SRK member shot and seriously wounded Sanela Dedović. Even if Poparić's evidence referred to the correct impact site, and would thus contradict Adjudicated Fact number 2802, it would not impact the Trial Chamber's finding which solely rests on Adjudicated Fact number 2803. In relation to the Defence's argument, the Trial Chamber notes that it relied on the Adjudicated Facts and not the evidence of van der Weijden or Hogan with regard to this incident. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber will not further address the Defence submission. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 10 December 1994 (Sedrenik)

2008. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. In addition, it received evidence from Nedžib Dozo, a Bosnian-

Muslim former JNA mortar platoon commander and civilian police investigator;<sup>8529</sup> Patrick van der Weijden, an expert in sniping,<sup>8530</sup> and finds that this evidence does not rebut the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8531</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Mile Poparić, an expert in weapons and military equipment.<sup>8532</sup> The Defence submitted that (i) the Prosecution's sniping expert Van der Weijden committed a number of errors in relation to the line of sight when analysing this incident, and (ii) the victim was not shot from VRS positions at Špicasta Stijena.<sup>8533</sup>

2009. On 10 December 1994, Derviša Selmanović went out into a friend's garden to get firewood.<sup>8534</sup> Selmanović was shot with a machine gun and seriously wounded in her leg when she was in the backyard of the house in Sedrenik.<sup>8535</sup> Nedžib Đozo testified that the victim took shelter behind her home as another 20-30 bullets were fired at and around her house. She was then taken to hospital, where she was treated for an entry-and-exit infantry-weapon-bullet wound.<sup>8536</sup> The shots came from the SRK-controlled ridge Špicasta Stijena.<sup>8537</sup> The shots were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8538</sup> Selmanović was an unarmed cook.<sup>8539</sup> An on-site investigation report completed by Nedžib Đozo set out that a detailed on-site investigation could not be conducted on this day due to constant fire activity from the 'aggressor's positions'.<sup>8540</sup> Patrick van der Weijden testified that the ridgeline along which the Serb positions were during the war was approximately 950 to 1,050 metres from the incident site.<sup>8541</sup> Mile Poparić testified that due to the weather at the time of the incident, the incident site was not clearly visible from VRS positions.<sup>8542</sup> He also testified that Selmanović could not have been shot from Špicasta Stijena because Van der Weijden mistakenly identified where the victim was located when she was shot.<sup>8543</sup>

2010. The Trial Chamber notes that Poparić's evidence is contradictory to Adjudicated Fact no. 2817, in the sense that he suggests that it was impossible to shoot Selmanović from Špicasta Stijena. However, whether there was fog at the time of the incident and where Selmanović was located when shot are factual matters which Poparić, an expert, cannot put forth as reliable arguments. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Poparić's evidence about the origin of the fire is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact number 2817. In this context, the Trial Chamber also notes that it will not further consider the Defence submission with respect to any errors regarding the determination of the line of sight committed by van der Weijden, as the Trial Chamber relied on the unrebutted Adjudicated Fact and not on van der Weijden's evidence in this respect.

2011. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 10 December 1994, an SRK member shot and wounded Derviša Selmanović, an unarmed cook, who was fetching wood in the backyard of a house in Sedrenik. The shot originated from the SRK-controlled ridge Špicasta Stijena. The Trial Chamber further finds that once Derviša Selmanović took shelter behind her house, another 20 to 30 bullets were fired at and around her house. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 14 May 1995 (Dobrinja)

2012. On 14 May 1995, Jasmina Tabaković was killed by a shot while she was in her bedroom in Dobrinja.<sup>8544</sup> The shots came from SRK-held territory in Dobrinja I.<sup>8545</sup> The shots were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8546</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence in the form of an Official MUP report and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>8547</sup> According to the report, the victim's father, who was in the 2013. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 14 May 1995, an SRK member shot and killed Jasmina Tabaković in her apartment in Dobrinja. The shot was fired from SRK-held territory in Dobrinja I. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 25 June 1995 (Titova Street)

2014. David Harland, an UNPROFOR civil affairs officer assigned to Sarajevo as of May 1993,<sup>8549</sup> testified that on 25 June 1995, a 16-year-old boy was shot in the head while riding his bicycle near the Ali Pašina Mosque and UNPROFOR headquarters on Titova Street, in Sarajevo.<sup>8550</sup> UNPROFOR concluded that he had been shot from a Serb position on a tall building to the west.<sup>8551</sup>

2015. The Trial Chamber finds David Harland's evidence regarding UNPROFOR's conclusion of the position from which the shot originated to be of low probative value as its basis of knowledge is unknown. The Trial Chamber will therefore not further consider this incident in relation to any count of the Indictment.

5.3 Shelling incidents

5.3.1 Schedule G.1

2016. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for heavily shelling civilian targets in Sarajevo, damaging or destroying them and, causing the deaths of several civilians and injuring others from on or about 28 May 1992.<sup>8552</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence from Milan Mandilović, a Serbian surgeon at the Sarajevo State Hospital from May 1992 until the end of the war;<sup>8553</sup> Bakir Nakaš, a Muslim doctor from Sarajevo who worked as the general manager of the Sarajevo State Hospital throughout the war;<sup>8554</sup> Witness RM-115, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo;<sup>8555</sup> Fadila Tarčin, a Bosnian Muslim living with her family in the predominantly Muslim residential area of Širokača in south-east Sarajevo in 1992;<sup>8556</sup> Nedžib Dozo, a Bosnian-Muslim former JNA mortar platoon commander and civilian police investigator;<sup>8557</sup> and John Wilson, the chief UNMO for UNPROFOR deployed to Sarajevo from 22 March to 24 June 1992;<sup>8558</sup> as well as documentary evidence.

2017. Milan Mandilović testified that in April 1992, he observed that Bosniak personnel from the Sarajevo State Hospital left the city and went ‘home’; he believed they did so out of fear that the situation in Slovenia and Croatia, where war had broken out, would repeat itself in Sarajevo.<sup>8559</sup> In May 1992, there was shooting around the city and the city was hit by artillery shelling.<sup>8560</sup> As of 10 May 1992, the JNA withdrew from the Sarajevo State Hospital, and the hospital became a civilian body.<sup>8561</sup> As a result, the witness no longer reported to the JNA, but to the local community of Sarajevo.<sup>8562</sup> The JNA's departure from the Sarajevo State Hospital was organised and drugs, supplies, and equipment were left behind at the hospital.<sup>8563</sup> As a result of the JNA's departure, many Bosniak personnel who had earlier left the hospital, returned.<sup>8564</sup> The hospital appointed a Serb, a Bosniak, and a Croat to its management.<sup>8565</sup> The guards at the entry of the hospital never barred people from entering or leaving the hospital.<sup>8566</sup>

<sup>8552</sup> Indictment, paras 11-12, 76, 81, Schedule G.1. The language of the Indictment suggests that the temporal scope of Scheduled Incident G.1 extends from on or about 28 May 1992 until November 1995. However, the Trial Chamber also considered the language used in the description of Scheduled Incident G.1, the structure of Schedule G in general, and the parties’ submissions on this incident’s temporal scope, and concludes that Scheduled Incident G.1 covers the alleged shelling which started on 28 May 1992 and concluded soon thereafter.

2018. Bakir Nakaš testified that on 10 May 1992, the JNA withdrew from the hospital.<sup>8567</sup> No armed Bosnian soldiers or security guards were allowed to be inside the hospital, and there were no military-related facilities in the hospital's vicinity.<sup>8568</sup> During the witness's time as general manager the rule was that the only armed people on the grounds were the perimeter security.<sup>8569</sup> In 1992, within the compound of the hospital, some of the facilities were mobilised for the treatment of members of the ABiH 1st Corps for their rehabilitation after surgery.<sup>8570</sup> After a shelling on 13 May 1992, a flag with the Red Cross emblem was placed on the south side of the building facing Vrace Hill and Trebević which, in the witness's view, could be seen from 500 metres away. The flag remained in place from May to September 1992.<sup>8571</sup> Witness RM-115 stayed at the State hospital in Sarajevo from the beginning of May 1992.<sup>8572</sup> The State hospital was a former military hospital and was located in the Marin Dvor neighbourhood.<sup>8573</sup> The witness testified that there was heavy shelling in the night of 28 May 1992.<sup>8574</sup> The soldiers had left before the shelling and only medical staff remained.<sup>8575</sup> The witness was unable to move for four hours because the shelling of the hospital was so heavy.<sup>8576</sup> Around midnight, the witness wanted to move from one of the offices to another room when, passing through the connection passage, the witness was hit by shrapnel and lost consciousness.<sup>8577</sup> The witness believed that a shell had exploded somewhere on the third floor and that shrapnel had come through a window.<sup>8578</sup> The witness was found lying in a pool of blood and brought to the emergency room, where the witness underwent surgery.<sup>8579</sup> Due to the seriousness of the injuries, the witness was evacuated from Sarajevo in November 1993 for further surgery abroad.<sup>8580</sup>

2019. Fadila Tarčin testified that late in the night of 28 May 1992 she and her family went to the cellar of their house, due to the shelling of their neighbourhood, Širokača.<sup>8581</sup> The witness, who was 16 years old at the time, estimated that Širokača was positioned about one or two kilometres from the frontlines.<sup>8582</sup> The witness testified that she once or twice observed three or four men from the reserve police pass through her area, but that the only military position close to her house was the military barracks at Bistrik about 1.5 kilometres away, which the witness believed was occupied by the JNA until about May 1992.<sup>8583</sup> On the night of the shelling, neighbours who would usually come to the witness's house to seek shelter did not dare venture the 20-30 metres between their houses due to the intensity of the shelling, which remained unchanged for two hours and then subsided after midnight.<sup>8584</sup> Suddenly there was a massive explosion and the witness who was sitting on the floor next to the exit of the cellar felt an impact on her foot and discovered that she could not move her legs. The witness's right foot was bleeding, as was her right leg which was bleeding heavily from inside the knee, but the shelling prevented the witness from leaving the cellar until about 4:30 a.m., when a neighbour was able to organise a van to take her to the hospital.<sup>8585</sup> The witness arrived at the Koševo hospital at about 5 a.m., where she was operated on and received a cast for her broken foot. The witness testified that two days later, after she was released from the hospital, she saw that a shell had hit the valley side of her neighbour's house across the road, causing extensive damage to three houses, and realised that it was shrapnel from this shell that had shot through the plywood door of her cellar.<sup>8586</sup> The witness learnt from men in the neighbourhood, who had previously served with the JNA, that the shell was a large calibre howitzer shell and that it had been launched from Borije, east of Širokača.<sup>8587</sup> Throughout the war, the witness's neighbourhood remained under constant shelling and her house was hit twice.<sup>8588</sup> The witness has continued to suffer from her injuries and cannot walk properly as a result of the injury to her foot.<sup>8589</sup> The Stari Grad SJB's logbook recorded that on 27 and 28 May 1992, VRS artillery shelled Pogledine, Kamenice, Mahumatovac, and Colina Kapa.<sup>8590</sup> Nedžib Dozo testified that these were neighbourhoods of Stari Grad.<sup>8591</sup> Two persons were wounded in the Pogledine area.<sup>8592</sup>

2020. John Wilson testified that on 28 May 1992, one of the most intense shelling attacks struck Sarajevo, commencing in the evening around 5 p.m. and continuing until early the next morning.<sup>8593</sup> Rounds of all calibres, including rocket-launchers, impacted throughout the city, with a concentration on the old town, in such a manner that there appeared to be no particular targets involved.<sup>8594</sup> During the night, the JNA liaison officer contacted UNPROFOR in Sarajevo and asked them to ask the Presidency to stop the attacks of mortars, rockets, and small arms on Lukavica, which had caused casualties. The JNA liaison officer threatened that there would be heavy retaliation against the city.<sup>8595</sup> The witness was not aware of any attacks or outgoing fire by Presidency forces that night, although it would have been hard to discern given the concerns for Sarajevo, but that the Maršal Tito Barracks was under continuous fire from Presidency forces.<sup>8608</sup> Mladić stated that he was not aware of President Karadžić's offer to withdraw all heavy weapons from Sarajevo, but that he would abide by any agreement the government made.<sup>8609</sup> The witness and Mladić also discussed the heavy shelling of 28 May 1992 and Mladić accepted that he was responsible for the attack, but stated that he was acting in response to provocations and was simply defending the Serb people and neighbourhoods in Sarajevo from Presidency forces.<sup>8610</sup> According to the witness, Mladić regularly stated that the shelling of Sarajevo had the purpose of defending Serbs or responding to attacks.<sup>8611</sup> On the same day, General Philippe Morillon met President Slobodan Milošević and asked him to use his influence to have Mladić stop the bombardment of Sarajevo.<sup>8612</sup> Milošević responded that he disagreed with Mladić's actions completely and had done his utmost to persuade Mladić to cease the unjustified bombardment of the civilian population of Sarajevo, including by trying to contact Karadžić.<sup>8613</sup> Milošević added that General Panić had told him that the Serb side had even fired at a JNA convoy, killing one soldier, and that he considered Mladić 'totally crazy'.<sup>8614</sup> Later that day, General Morillon met with Karadžić and Koljević.<sup>8615</sup> Karadžić told Morillon that the Serb parts of the city were attacked nightly by the Green Berets. According to Karadžić, the Serb forces were inexperienced and self-organized and as a result, had overreacted to attacks. Mladić did not have all Serb forces under his command but was trying to bring them under control.<sup>8616</sup> Karadžić agreed to travel to Sarajevo to contact Mladić and stop the bombardment.<sup>8617</sup> Later that day, Karadžić's assistant informed General Morillon that Mladić had spoken to Karadžić by phone and had indicated that the bombardment would stop.<sup>8618</sup> The Trial Chamber also recalls evidence of Witness RM-511 set out in chapter 9.4.2.

2022. Based on the foregoing, and recalling its finding in chapter 3.1.4 that Mladić was the commander of the VRS Main Staff, the Trial Chamber finds that members of the SRK fired artillery, rockets, and mortars against Sarajevo from 5 p.m. on 28 May 1992 until early the next morning, following an order from Mladić. Rounds of all calibres, including rocket-launchers, impacted throughout the city with a concentration on the old town. Mladić personally directed the attack, including selecting targets such as the Presidency, the town hall, police headquarters, and the children's embassy and directing the fire away from Serb-populated areas. Witness RM-115 was seriously injured at the State hospital in the Marin Dvor neighbourhood, when shrapnel came through a window and hit her. A flag with the Red Cross emblem was placed on the south side of the building facing Vrace Hill and Trebević which, could be seen from 500 metres away. No armed ABiH soldiers or security guards were inside the hospital, and there were no military-related facilities in the hospital's vicinity. Shells also hit the predominantly Muslim residential area of Širokača. In her home in Širokača, the then 16-year-old Fadila Tarčin sustained a broken foot and a leg injury due to an explosion. The shell had also caused extensive damage to three houses, across the road from Tarčin's home. The closest military position was the military barracks at Bistrik about 1.5 kilometres away. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

2023. With regard to Mladić's role in this incident, the Trial Chamber will consider this further in chapter 9.

5.3.2 Schedule G.2

2024. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for carrying out a massive bombardment of Sarajevo, with a variety of artillery fired from positions all around the city from on or about 6 June 1992. Civilian targets were damaged and destroyed and a number of civilians were killed and wounded.<sup>8619</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence with regard to two specific incidents covered by Schedule G.2 of the Indictment and will consider it below. The Defence argued that (i) the evidence presented by the Prosecution, and in particular the evidence of Fahra Mujanović and Ziba Avdić, is vague, (ii) the SRK could not be responsible for these incidents as during the timeframe of this alleged bombardment, it was under strict order to restrict its use of fire and to focus on the fortification of its positions,<sup>8620</sup> and (iii) the evidence establishes that the SRK is not responsible for the incident of 9 June 1992 due to the fact that Vogošća was subject to consistent fighting between the warring sides and that both the ABiH and the SRK held important positions in the area with a good view of the surrounding area.<sup>8621</sup>

2025. With regard to the alleged shelling of Sarajevo on 6 June 1992, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Fatima Palavra, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo who was 14 years old in 1992;<sup>8622</sup> Ziba Avdić and Zilha Granilo, both Bosnian Muslims from Sarajevo;<sup>8623</sup> as well as documentary evidence.

2026. Fatima Palavra stated that on 6 June 1992, she was living in an apartment in the Papagajka building on H. Kreševljakovića Street, which housed refugees at that time.<sup>8624</sup> While having breakfast with four family members in the apartment, she saw what appeared to be a very bright shining light followed by a shell exploding.<sup>8625</sup> The next thing she remembered was waking up in Koševo Hospital.<sup>8626</sup> The witness sustained injuries to her right leg and right temple, and she was discharged from the hospital on 9 June 1992.<sup>8627</sup> Fatima's mother, Ismeta Bećirović, a Bosnian-Muslim from

However, the Trial Chamber also considered the language used in the description of Scheduled Incident G.2, the structure of Schedule G in general, and the parties' submissions on this incident's temporal scope, and concludes that Scheduled Incident G.2 covers the alleged shelling which started on or about 6 June 1992 and concluded soon thereafter.

Sarajevo, and other three family members present at the apartment during the explosion, were also brought to the hospital with injuries and discharged within a few days.<sup>8628</sup> The witness's uncle informed her that his partner died as a result of the explosion.<sup>8629</sup> The apartment was completely destroyed.<sup>8630</sup> Ziba Avdić stated that her residential neighbourhood on Koševo Hill was shelled on 6 June 1992 from 8 until 11 a.m., and again during the evening.<sup>8631</sup> The witness thought that the shells were coming from the direction of Poljine based on 'the sounds the shells made and the direction they seemed to travel'.<sup>8632</sup> She sought shelter in the basement of her apartment building at Mitra Trifunovića Uče number 65.<sup>8633</sup> The witness's apartment building was located within a residential area of other apartment buildings with no barracks, police stations, or factories nearby.<sup>8634</sup> The witness could see in the direction of Poljine from her building.<sup>8635</sup>

2027. Zilha Granilo stated that on 6 June 1992, she heard shells flying through the air and it appeared to her as though all of Sarajevo was being shelled very heavily.<sup>8636</sup> She lived on Bjelave Street in a residential area without factories or military facilities. There was a one-room police office in the area.<sup>8637</sup> Between 4 and 5 p.m., because of heavy shelling nearby, she decided to take shelter in the basement of a nearby bank building.<sup>8638</sup> As she left her house, a shell fell on her neighbour's shed some 10 to 15 metres away, and the blast threw her two to three metres.<sup>8639</sup> As she had shrapnel in her leg and back and suffered a small puncture to her neck, her neighbour took her to hospital.<sup>8640</sup> While being treated, she saw a badly wounded or dead person, covered in

She was unable to recognize the individual.<sup>8641</sup> When she returned home, she realized that her daughter, Jasna Zeničanin-Granilo, who had joined the police at the beginning of the war, had not come home.<sup>8642</sup> She later learned that her daughter had been killed in a shelling incident on Breka Street in Sarajevo, and that her daughter was the person she had seen in the hospital earlier that day.<sup>8643</sup> As a result of continued heavy shelling and shooting, the witness was not able to bury her daughter until six days later. She buried her daughter at night to avoid being targeted.<sup>8644</sup>

Only Onešćuk and Hašim survived.<sup>8653</sup> The remaining corpses at the entrance were collected the following day.<sup>8654</sup>

2029. According to an official note from the Agency for Investigation and Documentation of Bosnia-Herzegovina Sarajevo Sector dated 26 June 2000, Mejra Fetahović and Ziba Avdić reported that Abdulah Fetahović, Muhamed Advić, and Osman Kapetanović were killed on 6 June 1992 on Mitra Trifunovića Uče Street as a result of the explosion of a shell fired from the direction of positions held by 'Serbian' military forces. They also reported that Ivan Orušćuk and a man named Hašim had been wounded by the same shell.<sup>8655</sup> According to an ABiH certificate dated 20 December 1994 and issued for the purposes of regulating entitlements, Abdulah Fetahović, a member of the ABiH 105th Motorised Brigade, died on 6 June 1992.<sup>8656</sup>

2030. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 6 June 1992, shells landed and exploded in Sarajevo on the Papagajka building on H. Kreševljakovića Street, on the yard of a house on Bjelave Street, and near an apartment building on Mitra Trifunovića Street number 65. As a result of the shelling, four people were killed, and five others were wounded, including two children. Among the casualties, four were Bosnian Muslims and one was a member of the ABiH. The explosions also set a car and a camping van on fire. With regard to the first two incidents, the Trial Chamber has not received evidence on the origin of fire or the identity or affiliation of the perpetrators. With regard to the third incident, the Trial Chamber has received evidence from Mejra Fetahović and Ziba Avdić that the shells were fired from the direction of positions held by 'Serbian' military forces in Poljine. Fetahović did not provide any basis of knowledge for this information, whereas Avdić's source of knowledge is that her building faced toward the north, so she could see the direction of Poljine. The Trial Chamber considers this information to be imprecise and does not find it reliable to establish the origin of fire. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber is unable to establish the identity or affiliation of the perpetrator(s) of the above incidents and will not further consider them in relation to any count of the Indictment.

2031. The Trial Chamber has received further evidence that one woman was killed by a shell landing on Breka Street in Sarajevo, on 6 June 1992. The Trial Chamber did not

2032. With regard to the alleged shelling of Sarajevo on 9 June 1992, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Fahra Mujanović, a Bosnian Muslim who lived with her family at Barica 89 in Vogošća in the suburbs of Sarajevo;<sup>8657</sup> Dragan Maletić, a Bosnian-Serb Commander of the 1st Romanija Corps in Sarajevo;<sup>8658</sup> Stevan Veljović, Assistant Chief of Staff for Operations and Training of the 1st Romanija Brigade from 19 May 1992 until December 1994;<sup>8659</sup> and Aernout van Lynden, a Sky News journalist covering the conflict in the former Yugoslavia from Sarajevo, Pale, and Central Bosnia from May 1992 until 1995.<sup>8660</sup>

the explosion threw the witness several feet across the yard. Shrapnel from an 82-millimetre mortar shell injured the witness in her legs, left arm, back, chest, and head; she was bleeding heavily. Because the shelling continued, it took about an hour until anyone was able to help her.<sup>8668</sup> A young man finally took the witness to Koševo Hospital in a private car, which was hit by sniper fire on the way.<sup>8669</sup> She was operated on, but several pieces of shrapnel remained in her body.<sup>8670</sup> On that day, around 150 people injured in the shelling in Sarajevo were admitted to the hospital.<sup>8671</sup> The witness was discharged from the hospital on 21 July 1992, but was unable to stay at her house due to the trauma that she experienced at the sounds of impending shellfire.<sup>8672</sup> When the witness and her family returned to Vogošća five years after the attack, their house had been destroyed.<sup>8673</sup> The witness still suffers from constant pain and headaches related to her injuries.<sup>8674</sup>

2034. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that around 9 June 1992, a shell landed and exploded near a house in Vogošća in the suburbs of Sarajevo, injuring Fahra Mujanović, a Bosnian-Muslim woman who was playing outside with her four-year-old son. The Trial Chamber did not receive any evidence on the origin of fire. Accordingly, the evidence relating to the armed forces holding positions around Barica does not need not to be addressed further. The Trial Chamber also did not receive evidence on the identity or affiliation of the perpetrators. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber is unable to establish the identity or affiliation of the perpetrator(s) of this incident and will not further consider it in relation to any count of the Indictment.

2035. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for firing two shells upon a crowd of approximately 200 people who were watching and participating in a football game in a parking lot bordered on three sides by residential apartment blocks and on the fourth side by the Lukavica Road in Dobrinja IIIB, a residential settlement, on 1 June 1993. first shell landed among the players in the centre of the pitch.<sup>8699</sup> Fažlić was hit by shrapnel and sustained serious injuries in both legs as well as in other parts of his body.<sup>8700</sup> There were eleven young men on the ground, eight of whom died on the spot.<sup>8701</sup> Omer Hadžiabdić, who was 15 years old at the time, was watching the match from the overturned cars when the first shell struck the football pitch.<sup>8702</sup> He was wounded by shrapnel in his leg.<sup>8703</sup> Nedim Gavranović, who was 12 years old at the time, was standing behind one of the goals when he heard the first explosion and felt a very strong blow.<sup>8704</sup> He sustained an entry and exit wound in his right lower leg caused by shrapnel.<sup>8705</sup> Within seconds of the first shell, a second shell landed at almost the same spot in Dobrinja IIIB.<sup>8706</sup> It fell in front of a young man and tore his leg off.<sup>8707</sup> There were many wounded people on the ground.<sup>8708</sup>

wore uniforms.<sup>8715</sup> The crowd was carrying out a civilian activity, i.e. playing football.<sup>8716</sup>

2040. In relation to the Defence's argument about the reliability of the conclusions of the three investigations, the Trial Chamber recalls that in relation to this incident it relied on the un rebutted Adjudicated Facts, and not the evidence challenged by the Defence. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this Defence submission.

2041. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 1 June 1993, two mortar shells were fired from SRK-held territory at a make-shift football pitch at a parking lot where a football tournament with around 200 spectators was held in the community of Dobrinja IIIB. The Trial Chamber finds that the shells were fired by members of the

<sup>8717</sup> For example, in D2117, para. 46, Subotić draws significant conclusions about the accuracy of the investigators' determination of the azimuth based on the apparently incorrect placement of the magnetic compass. However, the photograph is too unclear to draw any such conclusions. In D2117, para. 45, SRK<sup>8718</sup>, killed over 10 people, and injured approximately 100 others, including children and a member of the civil defence.<sup>8719</sup> There were around 40-60 ABiH soldiers in uniform present at the parking lot, who were off-duty, unarmed, and not engaged in any military activity. There were also women and children. The two shells fell in quick succession, landed at almost the same spot, and were not fired at a nuclear shelter about 100 metres from the parking lot or a nearby trench system. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 in chapter 8, below.

5.3.4 Schedule G.6

2042. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for firing three mortar shells, which landed in the area of Alipašino Polje: the first in a park behind, and the second and third in front of residential apartment buildings at 3 Geteova Street (previously Cetijska Street) and at 4 Bosanska Street (previously Klara Cetkin Street), where children were playing, on 22 January 1994. Six children were killed and five people were wounded. The origin of the fire was from VRS/SRK-held territory approximately to the west.<sup>8720</sup> The Defence argued that the shells were not fired from SRK-held territory and challenges the accuracy of the investigations.<sup>8721</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. Further, it received evidence from Muhamed Kapetanović, a Bosnian Muslim from Alipašino Polje Sarajevo who was nine years old in January 1994;<sup>8722</sup> Refik Aganović, a Bosnian Muslim living in Alipašino Polje Sarajevo in 1994;<sup>8723</sup> Witness RM-172, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo;<sup>8724</sup> Mirza Sabljica, a mechanical engineer specialised in Subotić makes assumptions about which locations would have been sufficiently secure to fire a mortar from.

<sup>8718</sup> The Trial Chamber considers the Defence's argument about evidence that no shots were fired from the Lima 5A position irrelevant, considering that neither the Indictment nor the Adjudicated Facts identify this position as the origin of fire. Furthermore, the Defence cites to no evidence when it puts forth the submission that there were no other SRK firing positions along the projected bearing, see Defence Final Brief, para. 1928. Lastly, the Defence fails to point to clear evidence which would support its theory that the shot originated from ABiH positions, which accordingly remains pure speculation.

2044. The Trial Chamber also received evidence from two members of the Ilidža Brigade regarding this incident. Mile Sladoje testified that his battalion faced enemy forces belonging to the 1st Corps of the ABiH in Alipašino Polje.<sup>8752</sup> He testified that there were no military facilities or objects on Geteova Street<sup>8753</sup>, but that a police station was nearby.<sup>8754</sup> Sladoje's unit had no direct line of sight to Geteova Street, and although it was possible to fire from the mortar positions held by his unit near the Theological Faculty, this did not happen.<sup>8755</sup> Vladimir Radojčić testified that he never issued an order to any unit of his brigade, including the Nedžarići Battalion, to fire on the street where this incident was alleged to have occurred and that he never received any information that this street had been fired upon.<sup>8756</sup>

2045. Zorica Subotić testified that two of the three mortar shells had a calibre of 120 millimetres.<sup>8757</sup> The shell which impacted on the curb at 4 Klare Cetkin Street (currently

4 Bosanska Street) originated from an azimuth of 238 degrees and therefore came from an area in the direction about 30 degrees to the south of the Institute for the Blind in Nedžarići.<sup>8758</sup> The shell that landed on 3 Cetinjska Street (currently 3 Geteova Street) originated from an azimuth slightly less than 240 degrees, which rules out the possibility that the shell was fired from the Institute for the Blind in Nedžarići.<sup>8759</sup> The witness concluded that the shells were fired from the same weapon from an area close to the 'UPI' Institute at a distance of 3,720 metres which, according to the witness, was under ABiH control at the time.<sup>8760</sup>

such shelling, the witness responded that ‘[i]n combat there is no terrorising’, showing a skewed understanding of ius in bello.<sup>8762</sup> In this particular situation, and for these reasons, the Trial Chamber finds that this evidence is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts with respect to the origin of fire.

2048. The evidence of Zorica Subotić contradicts the Adjudicated Facts with regard to the origin of fire for this incident.<sup>8763</sup> Subotić based part of her analysis of crater size and origin of fire on photographs and a video.<sup>8764</sup> She failed to give a clear explanation of how she calculated the distance between an alternative firing position and the impact sites.<sup>8765</sup> Furthermore, Subotić failed to plausibly explain her criticism of contemporaneous azimuth measurements, when it was revealed in court that she had failed to take into account in her calculations the usual margins of error for direction of fire measurements.<sup>8766</sup> The Trial Chamber considers, therefore, that Subotić’s evidence on this incident is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts with respect to the origin of fire.

2050. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that at approximately noon on 22 January 1994, three mortars were fired by a member or members of the SRK’s Ilidža Brigade. The Trial Chamber finds that the mortars hit an area where children were playing around what are today known as 3 Geteova Street and 4 Bosanska Street, killing six individuals under the age of 12 and severely wounding six other civilians, five of whom were children. The attack came at a time when there was a lull in hostilities and no activities of a military nature were underway in the neighbourhood, nor were any

<sup>8763</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that Subotić’s evidence also contradicts the Adjudicated Facts about the types of shells, but considers this a marginal detail, which does not require resolution by the Trial Chamber.

5.3.5 Schedule G.7

commander of the mixed artillery battalion of the 1st Sarajevo Mechanised Brigade as of 27 May 1992.<sup>8782</sup>

2052. On 4 February 1994 around 11:30 a.m. three mortar shells struck a residential neighbourhood in Dobrinja killing at least eight civilians including a child and injuring at least 18 people including two children.<sup>8783</sup> Eldar Hafizović stated that on that day humanitarian aid was scheduled to be distributed.<sup>8784</sup> According to Michael Rose, people were in fact queuing for food when a minimum of three mortar rounds fell.<sup>8785</sup> Medical records confirm that Sabahudin Ljusa sustained severe shrapnel wounds to the chest.<sup>8786</sup> A medical record from Dobrinja General Hospital states that a woman<sup>8787</sup> was 'injured by shell explosion' in the leg.<sup>8788</sup> In addition, a hospital record dated 4 February 1994 describes an injury Hafizović received.<sup>8789</sup> The shell which exploded against the eastern facade of the apartment block on Oslobodilaca Sarajeva Street, and which injured Sabahudin Ljusa, struck first.<sup>8790</sup> The latter two shells were 120-millimetre calibre and flew in from the east and from the east-north-east, respectively.<sup>8791</sup> The confrontation line east of the site of the incident was not more than 600 metres away.<sup>8792</sup> With respect to two shells, the origin of fire was SRK-held territory.<sup>8793</sup> The first shell to strike formed part of the same attack and therefore also originated in SRK territory. Three shells struck civilians engaged in peaceful activities.<sup>8794</sup> The TO office was not the target of the attack.<sup>8795</sup> Refik Sokolar testified that there was no ongoing military activity in the area at the time of the shelling.<sup>8796</sup>

explicit command, he claimed that no fire was opened that day.<sup>8797</sup> According to the witness, he was never informed of the alleged incident and only learned about it shortly before testifying in the Karadžić case.<sup>8798</sup> Zorica Subotić testified that, based on traces and photo documentation, all shells came from a direction of north-north-east and therefore could not have come from SRK positions.<sup>8799</sup>

shelling. In this particular situation, and for these reasons, the Trial Chamber finds that Škrba's evidence with regard to this incident is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts.

2057. On the basis of the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 4 February 1994, three mortar shells were fired on a residential neighbourhood in Dobrinja, killing at least eight civilians. On the basis that the shells originated from SRK-held territory, the Trial Chamber finds that the shells were fired by a member of the SRK.<sup>8803</sup> In addition, at least 18 persons were wounded during the shelling. Medical records of the wounded victims confirmed, inter alia, serious injuries by shrapnel. There was no ongoing military activity in the area. The TO office was not the target of the attack. The civilians were engaged in peaceful activities and were queuing for humanitarian aid which was scheduled to take place that day. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9 and 10 in chapter 8, below.

5.3.6 Schedule G.8

2058. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for firing a 120-millimetre mortar shell which hit a crowded open air market called 'Markale' situated in a civilian area of Old Town Sarajevo, killing 66 people and wounding over 140 people on 5 February 1994.<sup>8804</sup> The origin of fire was VRS/SRK-held territory approximately to the north-north-east.<sup>8805</sup> According to the Defence, the mortar shell that exploded at Markale Market was not fired from a mortar, but was instead planted at the market and activated remotely with a timer.<sup>8806</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. It also received evidence from

<sup>8803</sup> The Trial Chamber refers to its further considerations with regard to this conclusion, as set out in its factual finding on Scheduled Incident F.5 in chapter 5.2.4.

Events before 5 February 1994

<sup>8833</sup> Witness GRM-116, T. 42690-42692. In light of the witness’s overall testimony, the Trial Chamber understands that the witness must have meant that the mortar was to be fired from ABiH territory, facing Markale market, on the axis Mrkovići-Spičasta Stijena, suggesting that it would have come from SRK-held territory.

<sup>8834</sup> Witness GRM-116, T. 42690-42692. In light of the witness’s overall testimony, the Trial Chamber understands that the witness must have meant that mortar fire was to be deliberately directed in the direction of the Bosnian Muslims.

2060. On 26 January 1994, SRK Commander Stanislav Galić issued an order to all SRK units on combat operations in the Sarajevo region.<sup>8837</sup> Galić ordered that ‘by using all available means, exert strong pressure on the Muslim forces in Sarajevo and liberate [...] Grdonj [...] and penetrate deep into the region of [...] Dobrinja creating thus favourable conditions for the wider-scale offensive activities by the forces of the Corps and the reinforcement’. Galić then described the SRK’s subsequent combat activities along axes west of Sarajevo: ‘Further in operation, by holding the Muslim armed forces in Sarajevo firmly encircled, inflicting casualties, preventing supplies from arriving and preventing /medical/ evacuations, using all means to exasperate them and with offensive activities [...] cut the Muslim armed forces in Sarajevo off from the forces in Eastern Herzegovina, link up the forces of the Corps at the north-west and the south-east part of the Sarajevo frontline and liberate the Serb part of Sarajevo’.<sup>8838</sup>

Events on 5 February 1994

2062. A man was in the garden of his mother's house on the day, when he heard the sound of a heavy weapon like a mortar shell being fired from behind an SRK position, Špicasta Stijena, at Mrkovići.<sup>8847</sup> The 120-millimetre mortar shell was fired from the direction north-northeast of the market or at a bearing of approximately 18 degrees.<sup>8848</sup> From the angle of descent alone, it is not possible to calculate the distance a shell travelled. The number of charges (one to six) used in addition to the initial (0) charge progressively increase the distance a shell travels.<sup>8849</sup> The distance between Markale Market and the SRK confrontation line to the north-north-east at the time of the incident was approximately 2,600 metres.<sup>8850</sup> The shell which exploded in Markale Market travelled a distance considerably greater than 2,600 metres from the north-east direction, placing the position from which the shell was fired well within SRK-controlled territory.<sup>8851</sup> The crater caused by the explosion was approximately nine centimetres deep and the depth of the tunnel of the tail fin and the depth of the crater were together 200-250 millimetres.<sup>8852</sup> The shell could not have been fired from any place on the ABiH side of the confrontation lines in a direction north-north-east of Markale Market.<sup>8853</sup>

Investigations

2064. Numerous investigations were carried out into the incident, on the same day and in the weeks that followed. Michael Rose testified that both sides blamed each other for the attack. General Milovanović proposed that a mixed commission of military experts be formed to determine the provenance of the attack, but the commission was never established.<sup>8857</sup> Rose testified that there were two investigations into the incident, one conducted by the Sector Sarajevo and involving representatives of the Muslim authorities, and the other run by the UNPROFOR headquarters.<sup>8858</sup> The French engineers investigating the scene as part of the first investigation told Rose that they were unable to locate all the items from the site, as some had been removed by the Bosnian government prior to their arrival.<sup>8859</sup> Their initial view was that the bomb had been fired from the Bosnia-Herzegovina side.<sup>8860</sup> The subsequent investigation established that the shell had come from the north-east, but the exact distance from the firing point was not identified.<sup>8861</sup>

the tail fin of the projectile.<sup>8867</sup> Bešić did not move the tail fin but UNPROFOR soldiers, who arrived at the incident site about 10-15 minutes after the witness, cleared the crater and extracted it.<sup>8868</sup> Bešić took the tail fin to the laboratory for further technical investigation.<sup>8869</sup> The tail fin was marked on the inside as 'MM-74' and 'KB 87-01'.<sup>8870</sup> According to the witness, 'KB' is Cyrillic for 'KV', standing for the Krušik factory in Valjevo (Serbia) with the year of production having been January 1987.<sup>8871</sup>

that the round had not struck any object before hitting the ground.<sup>8878</sup> According to the witness, the approximate direction of fire of the mortar shell was east-north-east.<sup>8879</sup> The witness accepted that the angle of descent was reported at 1,200 to 1,300 mils.<sup>8880</sup> He further noted that the angle of descent must have been steep in order to leave the adjacent building undamaged.<sup>8881</sup> As both parties held positions in the direction of fire and the distance could not be determined, the witness concluded, consulting inter alia data in firing tables, that it was impossible to determine with certainty whether the shell was fired from the ABiH or Serb positions.<sup>8882</sup> According to the witness, the depth of the crater at the time of the impact could not be accurately determined because the crater had been disturbed.<sup>8883</sup>

2067. The incident was reported in a number of UNMO and UNPROFOR reports. According to an UNMO daily situation report of 5 February 1994, one mortar round landed on a market table and exploded at a height of 90 centimetres in a crowded market in Sarajevo. UNMOs confirmed 58 people were killed and 142 were wounded, none of whom were Bosnian-Serbs. On the same day, UNMOs observed that 18 mixed rounds were fired from Serb-controlled territory while none were fired from ABiH-controlled territory. Similarly, the UNMOs observed 55 mixed impacts in ABiH-controlled territory while none were observed in Serb-controlled territory.<sup>8884</sup> According to an UNPROFOR situation report of the same day, on 5 February 1994, a single 120-millimetre mortar shell exploded at the market in Sarajevo during rush hour. Fifty-eight ‘civilians’ were killed and 142 were wounded. The crater analysis carried out showed that the shell could have been fired from ABiH or Serb positions.<sup>8885</sup> According to an UNPROFOR weekly report of 9 February 1994, on 5 February 1994, a 120-millimetre mortar bomb hit the old town market in Sarajevo, injuring almost 200 people and killing

68.<sup>8886</sup> Almost all of the victims were civilians.<sup>8887</sup> UNPROFOR ballistics experts concluded that the bomb had been fired from the north-east, from near the confrontation line but that it was not possible to say that the round had come from Serb positions.<sup>8888</sup> UNPROFOR reported that after the incident, in a letter to the Presidents of Russia and the USA, the Serbs claimed that the Muslim authorities had brought in people who were already dead to the marketplace in order to frame the Serbs. Similarly, according to UNPROFOR, Krajišnik claimed that many of the dead bodies seen on TV were just dummies dressed up as blast victims.<sup>8889</sup> A second, more thorough, investigation by UNPROFOR concluded that it still could not be determined from which side of the confrontation line the bomb had been fired.<sup>8890</sup>

charges used when firing the mortar.<sup>8907</sup> Although some members of the team made estimates about the angle of descent based on an analysis of the crater on 11 February 1994, the team ultimately concluded that as the crater had been thoroughly excavated, an accurate measurement could not be taken.<sup>8908</sup> FreBat did not measure the angle of descent before it excavated and removed the tail fin.<sup>8909</sup> Russell's measurements of 5 February were taken after FreBat had removed the tail fin.<sup>8910</sup> Given that the estimated distance range included areas on both sides of the confrontation line, the team concluded that there was insufficient physical evidence to prove that one side or the other fired the mortar bomb on 5 February 1994.<sup>8911</sup>

2070. Witness GRM-065 determined that the mortar shell crater was clean and sharply defined.<sup>8912</sup> According to the witness, it is more difficult to determine a shell's precise angle of descent after the tail fin has been extracted.<sup>8913</sup> The witness determined that the crater was not created by a static explosion device based on its shape and the appearance of the ground around the crater.<sup>8914</sup>

police building located within 300 metres of the site of the blast.<sup>8918</sup> The witness testified that the lethal radius of a 120-millimetre bomb is 54 metres and the danger zone radius for unprotected troops is 500 metres.<sup>8919</sup> Hamill testified that air temperature conditions have a minor impact on the margin of error of mortar targeting. Taking into account all meteorological factors, the margin of error of a mortar bomb would be up to 100 metres at a distance of 3,000 metres.<sup>8920</sup>

2073. Witness GRM-097, who was in Mostar at the time of the Markale Market shelling, testified that UNPROFOR received information casting doubt on the conclusion that the Bosnian Serbs were responsible.<sup>8926</sup> The shell that landed at the market appeared to have come in with a very high trajectory, indicating a close-range firing.<sup>8927</sup> Major John Russell told the witness that no shrapnel or other physical evidence could be found at the scene on 5 February 1994.<sup>8928</sup> The initial investigation could not confirm the perpetrator of the shelling.<sup>8929</sup> During a meeting held on 6 February 1994, Milovanović adamantly denied that the Bosnian Serbs had fired the shell.<sup>8930</sup> During a meeting with the Bosnian-Muslim leadership held on 8 February 1994, General Rose suggested that the shelling may have been carried out by the Bosnian-Muslim side. Following this suggestion, a long silence followed, after which the Bosnian-Muslim leaders asked whether the interpretation had been correct, and then denied responsibility, claiming to have intercepted a conversation involving the Bosnian Serbs confessing to the shelling.<sup>8931</sup>

2074. Jan Segers testified that following media reports about the Markale Market shelling in February 1994, he received an oral report from UNMOs returning from inspection and crater analysis.<sup>8932</sup> The UNMOs reported that they could not perform a thorough crater analysis, as no artillery had been fired and there was no impact on the ground, which led them to the preliminary conclusion that the explosion had most likely been caused by an explosive device under a table.<sup>8933</sup> While in Zagreb working as a Military Information Officer, the witness saw a copy of a code cable that had been sent to New York, which also stated that the incident had in all likelihood been caused by an explosive device that had been placed under a table.<sup>8934</sup>

2075. Witness GRM-037 testified that around late November to early December 1994, a sergeant from the United States intelligence cell told him, during an official meeting arranged specifically to discuss the shelling of Markale Market, that the Muslims were responsible for the first Markale Market shelling incident.<sup>8935</sup> The sergeant flashed a five by eight inch photograph from a distance of about 10 to 15 feet and told the witness that it was a photograph of a person dropping a mortar shell from a window overlooking the market.<sup>8936</sup> The witness could not see the photograph well.<sup>8937</sup> He was told that the Bosnian-Muslim side had provided the United States with this photograph.<sup>8938</sup> During his visit to the marketplace, sometime between November 1994 and July 1995, the witness personally saw the imprint of a shell in a narrow street and its trajectory looked as if it had been straight down.<sup>8939</sup> When confronted with a sketch of the place of the impact and the surrounding buildings, the witness agreed that the buildings were too far away for it to be possible to drop the shell from one of the buildings onto the marketplace.<sup>8940</sup>

millimetre mortars to face targets located inside the inner ring of Sarajevo.<sup>8946</sup> Two 120-millimetre as well as two 82-millimetre mortars were placed at firing positions in Mrkovići, in addition to two 82-millimetre mortars at Gornije Biosko and two 120-millimetre mortars on Debelo Brdo.<sup>8947</sup> While it was not possible to see into the city of Sarajevo from these positions, observers reported the direction of fire so that the mortar crew was able to adjust its aim.<sup>8948</sup> According to the witness all of their mortars only had coordinates for the line of confrontation.<sup>8949</sup> A 120-millimetre mortar fired from Mrkovići had a firing range of approximately three to four kilometres.<sup>8950</sup> The 4th Mixed Artillery Regiment was located at Debelo Brdo and also able to target the centre of Sarajevo; it was supposed to back-up and support the 7th Infantry Battalion.<sup>8951</sup> The 4th Mixed Artillery Regiment possessed 155-millimetre howitzers, 122-millimetre assets, and a 130-millimetre cannon.<sup>8952</sup> According to the witness, all SRK Brigades save for the Igman and Ilijaš brigades were able to target the city centre of Sarajevo.<sup>8953</sup> The witness claimed not to have heard, nor to have received any report regarding mortar fire from Mrkovići on 5 February 1994.<sup>8954</sup>

coordinates, a commission member explained that mortar fire on the market could not have been opened from that position.<sup>8959</sup> The witness further specified that the coordinates were not consistent with the funnel-like traces observed at Markale and typically going backwards towards the direction of fire.<sup>8960</sup> According to the witness, there were no footsteps around the mortars and the six and three-storey buildings in between the positions and the market were too high for a round to fly over.<sup>8961</sup> At the time, the witness or Gengo were the only ones approving firing round, rounds were scarce, and the soldiers were not allowed nor would they have dared to fire ammunitions independently.<sup>8962</sup> The battalion was under strict orders to observe cease-fires and only fired on enemy positions in case of defence actions and never on civilians or civilian buildings.<sup>8963</sup> Civilian casualties only occurred when the battalion engaged military targets without realizing that they were near civilian buildings.<sup>8964</sup> After a few days, UNPROFOR soldiers and officers came for a regular inspection of the battalion and inspected the mortar positions for approximately ten minutes without measuring anything.<sup>8965</sup> The witness heard the interpreter translate that the French major had concluded that the battalion was not involved in the Markale incident.<sup>8966</sup>

2079. Siniša Maksimović provided a statement regarding the Markale Market shelling which reads: ‘As [SRK] company commander I had contact with all members of my unit [stationed near Grdonj and Mrkovići], and their unanimous conviction about the incident in Markale on 5 February 1994 was that it was an incident staged by the Muslims. All operations were aimed towards the enemy lines, which were very close to ours’.<sup>8967</sup>

2080. Zorica Subotić testified that a number of professionals, including experts in ballistics and munitions, staged the Markale Market incident by simultaneously and remotely activating, through a timer or another trigger, either two static 120-millimetre mortar shells, or a single 120-millimetre mortar shell and some other unidentified explosive device, in the busiest part of the market.<sup>8968</sup> Subotić considered that the incident probably occurred pursuant to orders from the Bosnia-Herzegovina government.<sup>8969</sup> She based her opinion on (i) the speed and method of evacuation of the wounded that, in her view, was illogical unless someone knew of the explosion in advance;<sup>8970</sup> (ii) discrepancies in the lists of dead and wounded persons coupled with the high number of dead and wounded compared to the number of people at the market, which showed that the number of dead and wounded was inflated by misrepresenting existing hospital patients as victims and transporting corpses from Koševo Hospital and other places to the incident;<sup>8971</sup> (iii) the quick response of the media, namely the use of television cameras to broadcast shocking imagery and, in particular, the filming of the above-mentioned corpses;<sup>8972</sup> and (iv) her analysis of the dimensions of the market stalls, the minimum angle of descent, the crater, the stabilizer, and the material traces of the mortar.<sup>8973</sup>

2081. To reach her conclusions, Subotić relied on drawings, photographs, maps, and video footage to reconstruct the dimensions of the stalls and the layout of the market at the time of the incident and examine traces of the explosion.<sup>8974</sup> On the basis of these calculations, Subotić determined that the minimum angle of descent was 73 degrees for the mortar shell to land and avoid hitting a stall.<sup>8975</sup> Subotić concluded that if the analysis of the CSB investigators and Berko Zečević at the time of the incident were correct, it would have been impossible for the mortar shell to land without it also hitting the roof of the stall, and that therefore the mortar shell must have been planted and statically activated.<sup>8976</sup> She opined that the mortar shell was placed on a stand with the measurements carefully calculated to make it appear as if the mortar shell came from a VRS position and had been fired with a large charge.<sup>8977</sup>

2083. Finally, relying on video footage, Subotić concluded that shrapnel damage on a red stall next to the '22 Decembar' building could not have been caused by the mortar shell that left the crater and that therefore, there must have been a second mortar shell or some other explosive device.<sup>8982</sup> According to Subotić, a single explosion could not

Consideration of Adjudicated Facts and assessment of reliability and credibility of witnesses

2084. The Trial Chamber has taken judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts regarding the perpetrator(s) of this incident. According to Adjudicated Facts numbers 2519 and 2525, the mortar shell which exploded at Markale Market a) was fired from SRK-controlled territory, and b) travelled a distance considerably greater than 2,600 metres from the north-east direction, placing the position from which the shell was fired well within SRK-controlled territory. The Trial Chamber has received evidence from both parties which deals with the origin of fire as stated in the Adjudicated Facts, namely that an investigation carried out by UNPROFOR concluded that – at that time – it could not be determined from which side of the confrontation line the mortar shell had been fired. Additionally, it received evidence that an investigation carried out by the Bosnian MUP concluded that there were six potential firing origins, one of which was under the control of the ABiH and five of which were under the control of the SRK. These investigations do not provide – nor do they intend to provide – conclusive answers to the matters established in the Adjudicated Facts regarding the mortar shell’s origin of fire and the entity controlling that position. Therefore, the Trial Chamber finds that this evidence does not contradict the Adjudicated Facts.

2085. The Trial Chamber has also taken judicial notice of an Adjudicated Fact, which sets out the precise bearing of the mortar shell fired at Markale Market. According to Adjudicated Fact no. 2515, the 120-millimetre mortar shell fired at Markale Market was fired from the direction north-northeast of the market or at a bearing of approximately 18 degrees. John Russell, on the other hand, testified that the approximate direction of the mortar shell fired at Markale Market to be east-north-east. The Trial Chamber examined whether Russell’s evidence was sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact no. 2515. The Trial Chamber considered that prior to his assignment in Sarajevo, Russell had attended a two and a half day crater analysis course and had conducted four crater analyses.<sup>8984</sup> While the Chamber considered the witness to be generally truthful in answering questions from the parties and the Chamber, the witness was not thorough in his analyses or his measurements and often testified that he was unaware of important factors that would have been relevant to making his determinations.<sup>8985</sup> Furthermore, the witness conceded that he had used incorrect firing tables to calculate the mortar shell's angle of descent.<sup>8986</sup> The witness did not believe it was necessary, however, to revise his statement when he learned that the information on which his conclusions were based was either incomplete or incorrect.<sup>8987</sup> According to his diary entry of 5 February 1994, the witness had done 'a quick crater analysis'.<sup>8988</sup> In light of the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that the witness's evidence in relation to the direction of fire is not sufficiently reliable to rebut Adjudicated Fact no. 2515.

2086. The Trial Chamber notes that Witness GRM-097 testified that the shell that landed on Markale Market was fired from close-range. Milorad Batinić provided evidence about having seen a video showing two men running away from the market, which the witness found suspicious. Jan Segers testified that he had heard two theories about the event from UNMO personnel: that an explosive placed under a market table had caused the explosion at Markale Market and that the explosive had been caused by the Serb army firing a mortar shell at the market. The evidence from these witnesses does not contradict, and therefore does not rebut, the Adjudicated Facts concerning the events on 5 February 1994, in particular concerning the origin of fire.<sup>8989</sup>

<sup>8988</sup> John Russell, T. 38726. The Trial Chamber notes that - despite his testimony that he could not conclude which side had shot the mortar - the witness wrote in his diary that '[I] agree with the direction that the round came from, I disagree with the distance, believing that the BiH shot at themselves'. The witness could not, however, tell who he disagreed with at the time, and the Trial Chamber observes that none of the investigative teams at that time had drawn any conclusions regarding the origin of fire of the mortar shell, see John Russell, T. 38726-38728.

<sup>8989</sup> With respect to Witness GRM-097, whose conclusions were in part based on visual estimates following a visit to Markale, the Trial Chamber observes that the witness's evidence was not based on actual measurements or expertise, including experience in handling or analysing similar situations. See Witness GRM-097, T. 40145-40148, 40170-40171. The witness's estimates related to, amongst others, the height of the buildings surrounding Markale Market and their proximity to the location where the shell landed.

at Markale Market on 5 February 1994. Some disputed the direction of fire, angle of descent, or suggested that the mortar shell had been fired – either detonated remotely or from a close distance – by the ABiH, which would starkly contrast a number of Adjudicated Facts in relation to this incident. The Trial Chamber will consider the reliability of the evidence of these witnesses, in turn.

2088. Witness GRM-037 testified he saw someone flash a photograph, described by that person as being of a person dropping a mortar shell from a window overlooking the market. The photograph was small (five x eight inches), it was being waved at a distance of approximately 10 to 15 feet away by an unknown person, and the witness was unable to make out anything on the picture as a result.<sup>8990</sup> In his statement, the witness supported his claims that the shell had been dropped from a window of a high-rise building nearby based on the point of impact of the mortar shell and the fact that these two (the point of impact and the building) were three feet apart.<sup>8991</sup> When shown a picture of Markale Market, the witness appeared at first not to recognize the site.<sup>8992</sup> The witness then testified that the mortar shell's point of impact was not at a distance of three feet from any building surrounding Markale Market, and that in fact it could not have been dropped from a window.<sup>8993</sup>

2092. The witness's basic claims were that (i) the mortar shell which hit Markale Market could not have fallen at the angle which other experts concluded it had, and (ii) that the tail fin of the mortar shell – also called the stabilizer – was planted at the Markale Market site after the explosion. The witness testified that she examined whether there were two stabilizers. The witness's research on the Markale incident was based on examining photographs of the tail fin that was found at Markale Market and using a similar tail fin she had brought into court. On this basis, the witness drew her conclusions. The claim that the stabilizer was planted at the site was, in the witness's opinion, supported by the fact that the mortar shell's base charge could not by any kind of force before, during, or after the mortar shell exploded, be disconnected from the body of the stabilizer. To prove this point, the witness brought a stabilizer attached to base charge to court and stated that they could not be unscrewed from each other which, the witness claimed, was a technical matter not in dispute.<sup>8997</sup> When the charge was handed to the bench, the judges managed to unscrew the charge within a matter of seconds using a plastic ballpoint pen.<sup>8998</sup> For her research on the Markale incident, the witness used firing tables from 2001 and testified that she did not have firing tables from before that time.<sup>8999</sup> At the same time, the witness acknowledged that precise firing tables are essential to calculate matters such as a mortar's velocity or its angle of descent.<sup>9000</sup>

imprecise with regard to dates, times, places, who attended these meetings, and the manner in which the witness obtained the information.

2096. Based on the Trial Chamber's findings regarding the credibility and reliability of these witnesses, the Trial Chamber concludes that their evidence is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts that relate to this incident.

5.3.7 Schedule G.10

<sup>9006</sup> The Trial Chamber refers to its further considerations with regard to this conclusion, as set out in its factual finding on Scheduled Incident F.5 in chapter 5.2.4.

2099. An order from the SRK, dated 6 April 1995 and signed by Dragomir Milošević, states '[t]he Ilidža Brigade will immediately prepare a launcher with an aerial bomb and transport the bomb for launching. [...] The most profitable target must be selected in Hrasnica or Sokolović Kolonija, where the greatest casualties and material damage would be inflicted'.<sup>9019</sup> Vladimir Radojčić testified that he interpreted Milošević's order as an order to open fire at military targets.<sup>9020</sup> David Fraser commented that this order did not contain any reference to a military target and even if there had been a military target in Hrasnica, it would have been inappropriate to fire a modified air bomb in such a densely populated area.<sup>9021</sup>

2100. On the morning of the attack, there was some firing in the area of the Famos factory, but no more than usual.<sup>9022</sup> A VRS Main Staff report to the Bosnian-Serb President dated 7 April 1995, stated that in the 2nd Sarajevo Light Infantry Brigade area of responsibility, the 'enemy' opened very heavy fire on the 'Famos factory' and the neighbourhoods of Grlica and Vojkovići from the direction of Gradina, Igman, and Lasica at 6 a.m.<sup>9023</sup> According to the report, the VRS responded to 'enemy activities' by launching an air bomb.<sup>9024</sup> Radojčić confirmed that the bomb on Hrasnica was in response to ABiH actions; Ilidža was exposed to artillery fire from Hrasnica and Sokolović Kolonija daily.<sup>9025</sup>

post office, which was situated in a civilian area in the centre of Hrasnica.<sup>9030</sup> The ABiH 104th Brigade was trained and shells were manufactured at the Aleksa Šantić School, which was next to the post office.<sup>9031</sup> The witness learned about trainings in the school from a television clip showing Izetbegović visiting the school.<sup>9032</sup> Milorad Šehovac testified that the SRK Command and his brigade had known for a long time that the Aleksa Šantić School was used to train Special Police Units of the MUP of Bosnia-Herzegovina and to produce ammunition for the use of the 1st Corps of the ABiH.<sup>9033</sup> Radojčić testified that the artillery officers picked the school, because the command of the 104th Brigade was not in the post office at the time, due to ongoing combat.<sup>9034</sup> The witness testified that he knew that there were civilians in Hrasnica, but that there should have been no civilians in the building that was targeted.<sup>9035</sup>

2102. Radojčić testified that the bomb missed the school by 20 metres and destroyed a small house.<sup>9036</sup> Thirty to forty minutes after the launch, the witness, based on information from his own observers, told Dragomir Milošević where the bomb had fallen, and Milošević was satisfied with the result.<sup>9037</sup> A few hours after the launch, UNPROFOR members informed the witness that the bomb destroyed a house with guards close to the school and showed him a photograph of a leg in a camouflage uniform and with a boot, protruding from the rubble of the house.<sup>9038</sup> The witness learned about the distance of 20 metres from the UNPROFOR members who had visited the site.<sup>9039</sup> One civilian, Ziba Ćustović, was killed and three others were injured, one of whom seriously, as a result of the explosion.<sup>9040</sup> One of the three was witness Ziba

Šubo, whose house collapsed on top of her.<sup>9041</sup> When visiting the site after the impact, Thorbjorn Overgard saw one uniformed body where only the legs protruded from a damaged house.<sup>9042</sup> The explosion completely destroyed two houses and damaged at least ten other houses nearby.<sup>9043</sup>

2103. Hrasnica was a civilian area.<sup>9044</sup> Fraser testified that Hrasnica is at the foot of Mount Igman.<sup>9045</sup> Witness RM-159 stated that there were no military targets ‘in the neighbourhood’.<sup>9046</sup> Ilija Mišćević stated that the impact location was not more than 100 metres east of the Aleksa Šantić School, which was used by the ABiH to detain Serb civilians.<sup>9047</sup>

2104. Zorica Subotić testified that the projectile in this incident exploded instantaneously on impact with the house.<sup>9048</sup> Subotić concluded this from the fact that the entire roof collapsed into the house. Had the projectile exploded inside, the roof structure would have been scattered around the house.<sup>9049</sup> Another indication of this conclusion is the fact that the surrounding houses mainly had damage to their roofs.<sup>9050</sup> As the longitudinal walls were not demolished, Subotić concluded that the projectile did not have a large enough explosive charge to demolish all the walls.<sup>9051</sup> According to Subotić, a fuel-air bomb would kill any civilians within a 20-metre radius from the centre of the explosion.<sup>9052</sup> Subotić concluded that the projectile in this incident was not a fuel-air bomb, but a modified aircraft bomb called ‘FAB-100’.<sup>9053</sup>

2105. In relation to the Defence's argument about errors in the investigation reports, the Trial Chamber recalls that exhibits P582, P1049, and D1268 were found to be consistent with the Adjudicated Facts. As a result, the Trial Chamber did not further consider this evidence, but relied on the Adjudicated Facts. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber will not further consider this Defence submission.

2106. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that Dragomir Milošević ordered the Ilidža Brigade on 6 April 1995 to prepare an air bomb and select a target, which would cause the greatest casualties and damage. In the morning of 7 April 1995, the ABiH opened fire on the 'Famos factory'. Thereafter, the members of the Ilidža Brigade of the SRK launched a modified air bomb from Ilidža. The bomb exploded in the densely populated civilian area of Hrasnica. The explosion resulted in the death of one civilian. Also, a number of civilians, including Ziba Šubo, were injured, one of whom seriously. The explosion also destroyed two houses and damaged at least ten others nearby. The Trial Chamber recalls its finding about the accuracy of modified air bombs in chapter 5.1.2. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, where it will also address the Adjudicated Facts and evidence in relation to what was targeted.

5.3.8 Schedule G.13

2107. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for firing a modified air bomb that struck a building near apartment blocks in Safeta Hadžića Street, destroying the top three floors of an apartment building on 26 May 1995. The explosion was followed by several artillery rounds. As a result of this incident two persons were seriously injured, 15 persons were slightly injured, and serious damage was caused to a number of buildings.<sup>9054</sup> The Defence argued that inconsistencies in the SJB investigation into this incident render the investigation's conclusions unreliable.<sup>9055</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts relevant to this incident and received evidence from Witness RM-104, a Bosnian Muslim from Ilidža

<sup>9055</sup> Defence Final Brief, paras 2324-2338. The Trial Chamber notes that the Defence seemingly takes the position that the Prosecution alleged in relation to Scheduled Incident G.13 that the modified air bomb contained toxic aerosol (Defence Final Brief, para. 2323). However, no such allegation is contained in the Indictment. The Trial Chamber will not further consider the Defence's submission in this regard.

2108. On 26 May 1995, a modified air bomb hit Safeta Hadžića Street.<sup>9061</sup> According to Vladimir Radojčić, Safeta Hadžića Street was located in the immediate vicinity of an industrial complex with many military installations, units, and firing points.<sup>9062</sup>

Witness RM-110 testified that ten 90-millimetre armour-piercing artillery projectiles also hit the street that day.<sup>9063</sup> The bomb impacted on the roof of an apartment building and destroyed the top floors.<sup>9064</sup> The artillery projectiles also caused damage to a number of houses.<sup>9065</sup> The bomb was fired from the area of Ilidža-Rajlovac, which was SRK-held territory.<sup>9066</sup> Witness RM-110 specified that the bomb was fired from the south-south-westerly direction corresponding to the positions of the ‘rebel Bosnian Serbs in the Lukavica area’, while the other ten projectiles were fired from the westerly direction corresponding to the positions of the ‘rebel Bosnian Serbs in the Ilidža area’.<sup>9067</sup> Radojčić testified that, according to the Muslim police, the bomb came from

II.<sup>9078</sup> Subotić also suggested, based on the shell traces, that this projectile had never been fired.<sup>9079</sup> Regarding the eighth, based on the traces at the site as analysed on a photograph, Subotić concluded that the house was hit from a relatively short distance.<sup>9080</sup> Regarding the ninth and tenth, Subotić stated that there is no material available to review.<sup>9081</sup>

2111. With regard to the origin of fire of the modified air bomb, the Trial Chamber notes that the evidence before it presents a different picture than the Adjudicated Facts. While Adjudicated Fact number 2555 reads that the modified air bomb was fired from the area of Ilidža-Rajlovac, located in the west of Sarajevo, the evidence of Witness RM-110 and Vladimir Radojčić indicates that it was fired from the area of Lukavica, located in the south-west of Sarajevo. The Trial Chamber considers that even if this Adjudicated Fact was rebutted with regard to the origin of fire, this would not impact the affiliation of the perpetrator; a fact that has been judicially noticed.<sup>9082</sup>

2112. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that a modified air bomb and ten projectiles hit Safeta Hadžića Street on 26 May 1995. The bomb was fired by an SRK member, destroyed the top floors of the apartment building on Safeta Hadžića Street number 52, and injured at least 16 civilians, two of whom seriously. While the projectiles were fired from the direction of Ilidža and damaged a number of houses, the Trial Chamber considers that the evidence is too vague to determine the exact origin of fire. It will therefore not further consider the consequences of the firing of these projectiles.

2113. The Trial Chamber will further address Subotić's evidence regarding the aiming of the modified air bomb in its legal findings in chapter 8. Finally, the Trial Chamber recalls its finding about the accuracy of modified air bombs in chapter 5.1.2.

2114. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

5.3.9 Schedule G.15

2115. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for firing a modified air bomb from Lukavica, which exploded next to house 10 on Trg Međunarodnog Prijateljstva Street, lightly injuring seven persons and causing considerable damage to neighbouring buildings on 16 June 1995 at about 3:20 p.m.<sup>9083</sup> The Defence argued that numerous errors in the Sarajevo CSB investigation render the CSB's report unreliable.<sup>9084</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident. In addition, it received evidence from Witness RM-155, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo;<sup>9085</sup> Witness RM-159, a police employee;<sup>9086</sup> and documentary evidence and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>9087</sup> The Trial Chamber also received evidence from Mile Sladoje, a member of the 1st Battalion of the Ilidža Brigade as of April 1992,<sup>9088</sup> and Vladimir Radojčić, the commander of the VRS Ilidža Brigade from January 1993 until the end of the war.<sup>9089</sup>

<sup>9082</sup> Accordingly, as the Trial Chamber relied on the un rebutted Adjudicated Fact number 2555, there is no need to further address the Defence's challenges of the origin of fire based on inconsistencies in the SJB's investigation report (P495).

2116. Witness RM-155 explained that on 16 June 1995, she was at the civil defence office a.k.a. local community centre located on the ground floor of a residential apartment building on Trg Međunarodnog Prijateljstva Street 10 in Alipašino Polje, Novi Grad Municipality.<sup>9092</sup> This office was a civilian institution providing humanitarian aid to civilians.<sup>9093</sup> According to the witness, the weather was fine and there was good visibility on that day.<sup>9094</sup> There were no soldiers or military facilities in the vicinity.<sup>9095</sup> At approximately 3:30 p.m. she heard a loud noise, as if a plane was flying past.<sup>9096</sup> A modified air bomb exploded on Trg Međunarodnog Prijateljstva Street 10 and injured seven people.<sup>9097</sup> The witness could not hear properly for a year after the explosion, had pain in the right side of her body, and continued suffering from headaches.<sup>9098</sup> The whole office was destroyed with only its exterior walls remaining.<sup>9099</sup> Witness RM-159 stated that the bomb fell in a residential area, causing severe damage to several buildings.<sup>9100</sup> The bomb was fired from a position under the control of the SRK and was launched by members of the SRK.<sup>9101</sup>

Prijateljstva Street.<sup>9103</sup> Mile Sladoje testified that the Bitumenka facility was a military target throughout the conflict, as Muslim forces fired mortar rounds from this position.<sup>9104</sup> According to maps of Novi Grad Municipality, the location of Scheduled Incident G.15 is approximately 250 metres from the Bitumenka building.<sup>9105</sup>

2119. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 16 June 1995, a modified air bomb exploded in a residential area in Alipašino Polje. The bomb was fired by members of the SRK and injured seven people, one of whom sustained hearing problems for one year following the incident. The explosion severely damaged several buildings, one of which contained a civil defence/local community centre office. The Trial Chamber also recalls its findings in chapter 5.1.2 about the accuracy of modified air bombs. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 in chapter 8, below.

5.3.10 Schedule G.18

2120. According to the Indictment, the Accused is responsible for firing a 120-millimetre mortar shell which landed in Mula-Mustafe Bašeskije Street outside the entrance to the City Market, killing 43 people and injuring 75 on 28 August 1995.<sup>9106</sup> The origin of fire was Trebević, VRS/SRK-held territory.<sup>9107</sup> Scheduled Incident G.18 is limited to this shelling incident. The Indictment is, however, not limited to Scheduled Incidents.<sup>9108</sup> Accordingly, the Trial Chamber has also considered evidence falling outside the scope of Scheduled Incident G.18. The Defence argued that the shell was not fired from the SRK.<sup>9109</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of

Impact at Markale Market

2121. On the morning of 28 August 1995, Ismet Svraka did not notice any fighting in or around Sarajevo.<sup>9133</sup> The street at the Markale Market was crowded with people.<sup>9134</sup> There was no military activity, and the witness had never seen any military installation, posts, or activity there.<sup>9135</sup> Đula Leka stated the market was a strictly civilian area, in a neighbourhood with no military activity.<sup>9136</sup> Nedžib Dozo testified that at the time of the incident, the police or Sarajevo government had forbidden the residents of Sarajevo to assemble or linger in public places and Markale was the only place in Sarajevo where large numbers of people still gathered to buy things because it was generally considered safe, as the area could not be seen from VRS positions.<sup>9137</sup> Active and reserve policemen were deployed at the Stari Grad police station around 500 metres from the Markale Market at the time of the incident and the witness testified that there were no army facilities in the old part of town and he did not know whether the ABiH used

2122. On 28 August 1995, at 11:10 a.m., there was an explosion on Mula Mustafe Bašeskije Street just outside the Markale Market.<sup>9140</sup> Witness RM-110 testified that the shell was a 120-millimetre light contact fuse shell.<sup>9141</sup> At least 35 people died and at least 78 people were wounded, many of them seriously.<sup>9142</sup> The great majority of wounded were civilians. Only one of the deceased was a soldier of the ABiH. The other 34 deceased were civilians.<sup>9143</sup> Witness RM-110 testified that at least 43 people were killed.<sup>9144</sup> Rupert Smith testified that 88 were wounded.<sup>9145</sup> Fatima Zaimović stated that on 28 August 1995, Andreja Svoboda, born 22 March 1991, was brought to the hospital from Darovalaca Krvi, number 15.<sup>9146</sup> She had explosive wounds.<sup>9147</sup> Milan Mandilović authenticated documentation from the Sarajevo Forensics Institute that, following their autopsy, a forensic specialist of the Institute declared 37 people dead on 28 August 1995 as a result of injuries sustained during an incident that occurred that same day.<sup>9148</sup> The same forensic specialist, following their autopsy, declared another six

2124. In relation to the Bosnian investigation, Emir Turkušić testified that the shell had impacted directly against the road without hitting anything along its trajectory. This conclusion was based on the fact that there was no damage to any of the roofs or buildings. Turkušić testified that contact-fuse mortar shells do not ricochet, meaning that they explode as soon as there is any contact.<sup>9150</sup> There were many indications that the shell had been launched with three charges, which would give an approximate distance of 2,400 to 2,500 metres.<sup>9151</sup> The witness's examination showed that the minimum possible angle of descent was 67.25 degrees.<sup>9152</sup> It also showed that the likely actual angle of descent (70.01 degrees) was very close to the minimum possible angle of descent.<sup>9153</sup> The examination of the witness and his team further showed that the azimuth was 170 plus/minus five degrees.<sup>9154</sup> The stabilizer of the 120-millimetre shell recovered from the market was marked 'MKM74KB9307'.<sup>9155</sup> The witness knew of only one stabilizer recovered from the scene.<sup>9156</sup> Turkušić testified that he heard on television that the French UNPROFOR contingent provided the radar above Sarajevo but that it had broken down very soon after the beginning of the war.<sup>9157</sup>

2125. Bešić stated that the stabilizer was found approximately 25 to 30 metres from the crater.<sup>9158</sup> It was partly flattened.<sup>9159</sup> While the stabilizer was moved around during the investigation, the witness stated that only one stabilizer was found at the scene.<sup>9160</sup>

2126. In relation to the UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo investigation, Witness RM-055 testified that an analysis of the Serb-manufactured tail-fin confirmed that the mortar had been fired from 2,850 mls.<sup>9161</sup> The minimum angle of impact of the shell was calculated by French specialists as 67 degrees.<sup>9162</sup> From the angle of impact one could determine that the shell was fired either with charge 1 or charge 6, excluding other charges.<sup>9163</sup> The firing distance for charge 1 would be at least 1,300 metres, and for charge 6 eight to nine kilometres.<sup>9164</sup> The source-of-fire locations for these two possibilities were: an area north-east of Mount Trebević, which was controlled by the SRK (for charge 6) and an SRK position close to the confrontation line (for charge 1).<sup>9165</sup> This analysis was provided by UNPROFOR specialists.<sup>9166</sup> UNPROFOR had two French cymbeline radars in operation in the area at that time. The radar monitoring the south of Sarajevo was located in the southern part of Sarajevo airport, and the other one was located towards Rajlovac.<sup>9167</sup> The airport radar detected no trajectory, which led UNPROFOR to believe that the shell flew under the radar and thus must have been fired with charge 1.<sup>9168</sup> The confrontation line in the azimuth direction was between 800 and 1,000 metres away from the Markale Market entrance.<sup>9169</sup>

fire as it was unknown with which charge the projectiles were fired.<sup>9170</sup> The UNMOs were also unable to confirm which warring faction had fired the rounds.<sup>9171</sup> According to a newspaper article, Jan Segers stated that UNMOs who investigated immediately after the incident, as well as several UN officers, considered it likely that the shell had come from the Muslim side.<sup>9172</sup>

2128. Harry Konings stated that during his investigation of the Markale shelling, he and other UNMOs found the mortar projectile's tail-fin, which had Cyrillic writing on it, 10 to 20 metres away from the place of impact.<sup>9173</sup> Based on a rough estimate, the UNMOs determined that the compass bearing was 170 degrees and the minimum angle of impact 67 degrees.<sup>9174</sup> In measuring the bearing Konings used a normal civilian compass, which is less accurate than a military one as it uses degrees instead of mils.<sup>9175</sup> He estimated that there was a margin of error of five to ten degrees on each side (10 to 20 degrees in total) for the compass he used.<sup>9176</sup> Furthermore, he wore a flak jacket at the time and acknowledged that the metal in the jacket may have had an impact on the compass.<sup>9177</sup> Konings did not see a fuse funnel in the crater at the market.<sup>9178</sup> Konings and his team also investigated the other four shell impacts nearby and came to the conclusion that their bearing was between 220 and 240 degrees.<sup>9179</sup> He concluded that these four rounds were fired from a different location from the Markale one.<sup>9180</sup> He disagreed with the notion that the Markale mortar projectile had hit a roof prior to impact which would have changed its trajectory, stating that the shape of the crater was normal and there were no signs of a prior impact.<sup>9181</sup> Konings stated that Majors Conway and Knustad, manning the UNMO OP that day, neither heard the round nor saw any shots being fired from Bosnian territory although the weather was very clear and they could see the entire city from the post.<sup>9182</sup> Between 8 a.m. and the time when the shelling incident occurred, there was no exchange of fire.<sup>9183</sup>

2129. Thom Knustad stated that at about 9 a.m. on 28 August 1995 he and his colleague Paul Conway and interpreter Emina Hasanović went to the UN OP on Colina Kapa a.k.a. OP-1 for their shift.<sup>9184</sup> OP-1 was situated on a hill in the south-eastern part of Sarajevo, overlooking the city and only 100 to 200 metres north of the confrontation line.<sup>9185</sup> Colina Kapa is about 340 metres higher than the city of Sarajevo.<sup>9186</sup> The first Bosnian-Serb positions were about 1.5 kilometres south of OP-1.<sup>9187</sup> Another hill is located behind OP-1.<sup>9188</sup> Some time between 10 a.m. and noon, while near OP-1, Knustad saw smoke rising and then heard the sound of an impact explosion in the city.<sup>9189</sup> The market was approximately two kilometres away from OP-1.<sup>9190</sup> Knustad did not hear the projectile prior to impact. According to Knustad, had the projectile been fired from Muslim-controlled territory along the measured bearing of 170 degrees, he would have heard the firing.<sup>9191</sup> Paul Conway testified that he was unable to determine whether the explosion came from incoming or outgoing fire and he could not, due to the acoustics of the area, conclude that the fire definitely came from the Bosnian-Serb side.<sup>9192</sup>

UNMOs, investigated the scene, focusing on crater analyses.<sup>9193</sup> The UNMO investigation could not establish the firing point as the charge of the mortar was unknown.<sup>9194</sup> The two reports differed on the direction of the rounds, the UNMO report finding the bearing to the firing point at 170 degrees (plus/minus five degrees) and the Sector Sarajevo report at 2,850 mils or 160 degrees.<sup>9195</sup> As a result, the witness ordered another collection of all available evidence on the incident from UNPROFOR G2 officer Brian Powers.<sup>9196</sup> Another crater analysis, a re-examination of the fuse furrow, and information that the shell had hit a roof or a wall on entry, established that the mortar had been fired along the direction of approximately 220 degrees south-west.<sup>9197</sup> The cymbeline radar above the old town of Sarajevo did not pick up the trajectory of the shell, suggesting that the shell must have been fired at a low trajectory, thus from at least 1,550 metres away.<sup>9198</sup> Assuming an azimuth of 220-240 degrees, the confrontation line was at a distance of 1,050 metres from the impact point.<sup>9199</sup> Lastly, none of the OPs near the confrontation lines reported hearing any firing from there.<sup>9200</sup> Smith testified that this absence of sound was very significant as a 120-millimetre mortar makes 'quite a noise' when fired. On the basis of this data, Smith concluded that the shells had been fired from Bosnian-Serb positions outside the enclave, somewhere between Lukavica and Miljevići.<sup>9201</sup>

Lukavica and Miljević.<sup>9202</sup> The technical team reported that the ballistic signature of four of the five mortar bombs that day indicated a firing point from Serb territory.<sup>9203</sup> This assessment was based on an analysis of the fuse furrows, the cymbeline radar, as well as the lack of any observations from UN posts close to the nearby confrontation line.<sup>9204</sup>

2134. Milovan Milutinović testified that when the VRS Main Staff was informed about a shell exploding at Markale Market on 28 August 1995, he received a call from Mladić, who told him that he had called the commanders of the units who told him that none of the units had opened fire on Sarajevo.<sup>9212</sup> After the event, a VRS Main Staff public announcement was issued in which any involvement of the VRS in the incident was categorically denied.<sup>9213</sup> According to the witness, on the same day Mladić sent a letter to Smith, denying any VRS responsibility for the event and requesting the establishment of a joint Muslim-Serb-International commission to investigate the incident.<sup>9214</sup> Further, according to the witness, the Russian investigative team involved in the joint commission on behalf of UNPROFOR found and informed the VRS Main Staff that among the alleged victims of the incident were a number of individuals who had perished earlier and had recently been exchanged.<sup>9215</sup>

2135. Stevan Veljović testified that the Markale Market shelling could not have been caused by a 120-millimetre mortar shell fired from the line of defence of the 4th Sarajevo Brigade, which included Trebević in its zone of responsibility, as all such artillery pieces were at the Trebinje front at that time.<sup>9216</sup> In any case, from their position it would have been impossible to cause the incident.<sup>9217</sup> According to a report on the availability of ammunition and fuel, dated 31 August 1995, the 4th Sarajevo Light Infantry Brigade had 13 120-millimetre mortars available.<sup>9218</sup> According to the witness, there were indeed 13 mortar pieces: six at the Nišić plateau (50 kilometres away from Sarajevo), two in Trebinje, and five in the direction of Goražde.<sup>9219</sup>

writing that they did not fire artillery weapons on the city of Sarajevo between 10 a.m. and noon on 28 August 1995.<sup>9220</sup>

2137. Harland testified that in a press statement, General Smith mentioned that it was unclear who had fired the bomb into the market.<sup>9221</sup> Harland had advised Smith to make this kind of neutral statement despite evidence to the contrary in order to deceive the Serbs so that they could not prepare for upcoming air strikes by, e.g., taking further UN hostages.<sup>9222</sup>

Four other impacts in the vicinity of the market

2140. According to an UNMO report of 30 August 1995, an UNMO patrol investigated five 120-millimetre mortar impacts in the general area of the market place on 28 August 1995.<sup>9230</sup> The minimum possible impact angle was 67 degrees.<sup>9231</sup> OP-1 members did not see or hear any outgoing mortar rounds from either side.<sup>9232</sup> Two of the projectiles caused seven injuries.<sup>9233</sup> These and two other rounds were fired from bearings of 220 to 240 degrees plus/minus five and impacted 300 metres further south from the lethal round, close to the 'UPI' business centre. These four projectiles were marked 'MKM74KB9307'.<sup>9234</sup>

2141. Turkušić testified that his department attended the shelling site at the 'UPI' (Agricultural Processing Complex) company building at Branilaca Grada Street number 20 on 28 August 1995. The azimuth of the crater was determined to be 240 degrees plus/minus five. The projectile which impacted on the building's roof at 11:30 a.m. was a 120-millimetre light contact fuse mortar shell with 'MKM74KB9307' markings.<sup>9235</sup> This site was around 200 metres away from the Markale Market.<sup>9236</sup> No one was killed but four people were wounded.<sup>9237</sup>

2142. The witness also attended the site of the shelling at Branilaca Sarajeva 24, 'BKC' (Bosniak Cultural Centre) building, on 28 August 1995. The azimuth of the crater was determined to be 240 degrees plus/minus five. The projectile impacted on the building's roof at 11 a.m. and was a 120-millimetre light contact-fuse mortar shell with 'KB 9307' markings.<sup>9238</sup> This site was 'a couple hundred metres' away from the Markale Market.<sup>9239</sup> No one was killed but two individuals were injured.<sup>9240</sup>

2143. According to a MUP report, two further 120-millimetre shells with the same markings impacted at the square located between the National Theatre building and the 2144. The evidence of Zorica Subotić is in stark contrast to the Adjudicated Facts. Whereas the Adjudicated Facts state that the shell that landed outside Markale Market on 28 August 1995 was fired by the SRK, Subotić concluded that the explosion must have been static or that the shell was thrown from a roof or window. The Trial Chamber notes that Subotić first assumed, without testing the veracity of such assumption, that every SRK shelling would have been caught by the radar.<sup>9243</sup> She therefore excluded the SRK as perpetrators.<sup>9244</sup> In relation to the radar, Subotić delved further into a detailed technical analysis, which again is riddled with numerous assumptions, the basis of which remains unclear.<sup>9245</sup> She then reasoned that, as there is evidence that no blast was heard, the ABiH can also be excluded. This left her with the sole conclusion that the explosion must have been triggered by a static device.<sup>9246</sup> Subotić also concluded, based on a photograph where shrapnel traces apparently cannot be seen, that the shell was fired at very low speed or activated statically.<sup>9247</sup> Due to this flawed methodology and her focus on interpreting evidence rather than providing a ballistic analysis, the Trial Chamber finds that Subotić’s evidence in relation to the shelling incidents of 28 August 1995 is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts related to these incidents.

2145. Exhibit D1466, a newspaper article, suggests that UN officials, including those who investigated the site, considered it likely that the shell had been fired from the Muslim side. This is also in stark contrast with the Adjudicated Facts related to this incident. The newspaper article is an interview with Jan Segers, a Belgian UNPROFOR officer and UNMO who was deployed in the former Yugoslavia from 1991 until 1995.<sup>9248</sup> The Trial Chamber considers this evidence to be unclear in relation to the UN members' bases of knowledge for pronouncing on the likelihood of the shell's origin of fire. The Trial Chamber also considered that this information only stemmed from an interview in a newspaper article and that the interviewee, Jan Segers, subsequently did not have recollections about the 28 August 1995 incident. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that this evidence is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts.

2146. The evidence of Stevan Veljović also contradicts the Adjudicated Facts. His evidence indicates that the 4th Sarajevo Light Infantry Brigade, which included Trebević in its zone of responsibility, had no 120-millimetre mortar shells at Mount Trebević on 28 August 1995, and even if it did, that such shells could not have reached the Markale Market. The Trial Chamber took into consideration that Veljović, as commander of the brigade which allegedly fired the shell at the Markale Market, may have had a personal interest in distancing himself from this shelling. Accordingly, it treated his evidence with great caution. With regard to the reliability of his evidence, the Trial Chamber considered that the witness stated in court that he 'came [to court] to defend General Mladić'.<sup>9249</sup> The witness also testified 'I survived these two strokes. I am a sick man, after all. I cannot remember each and every thing. Please take that into consideration'.<sup>9250</sup> Specifically with regard to Veljović's evidence that such a shell could not have reached the market from the brigade's positions, the Trial Chamber considers this evidence, without further details about the alleged more limited range of such shells, to be too sweeping to be reliable. Based on these considerations, the Trial Chamber finds that Veljović's evidence is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts.

Market. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that the evidence on the general statement by Mladić that his troops had not been involved in the attack, as well as D2139, is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts in this respect.

2148. The evidence of Demurenko also contradicts the Adjudicated Facts. Demurenko testified that a shell could not have been fired by the VRS. The Trial Chamber considered that during his testimony, Demurenko was often evasive when answering questions, to the point of even being obstructive.<sup>9251</sup> Furthermore, the witness gave incomplete answers in relation to central aspects of his evidence during his testimony.<sup>9252</sup> Demurenko's evidence that he inspected the area of possible firing on a six kilometre by 100 metres stretch, plainly ignores that the margin of error for any direction of fire crater analysis leads to an increasingly larger area the further one travels away from the point of impact.<sup>9253</sup> As such, at a distance of six kilometres, a margin of error of plus minus five degrees leads to possible firing positions on a stretch that is more than one kilometre wide. Lastly, the Trial Chamber finds that Demurenko's evidence contained a number of internal inconsistencies.<sup>9254</sup> Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that the evidence of Demurenko is not sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Facts in this respect.

2149. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Fact 2571, which states that the direction of fire was 170 degrees. It also heard evidence that the direction of fire was 160 or 220 degrees. Even if one were to conclude that this Adjudicated Fact is rebutted, this would not affect the finding as irrespective of the exact direction of fire, none of the evidence received by the Trial Chamber contradicts Adjudicated Fact 2580, according to which the shell was fired by the SRK. The Trial Chamber therefore refrains from making a determination as to whether Adjudicated Fact 2571 is rebutted. In coming to this conclusion, the Trial Chamber considered whether the inclusion of the origin of fire in the description of Scheduled Incident G.18 in the Indictment meant that this was such a vital component of the charge so as to require a finding. As the origin of fire is not a material element to be proven, the Trial Chamber was satisfied that this matter required no finding.

2150. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 28 August 1995, at 11:10 a.m., a mortar shell struck the street in the vicinity of the crowded Markale Market. At least 43 people died and 88 people were wounded, many of them seriously. The great majority of wounded were civilians and included children as young as four years of age. Of the deceased, the vast majority were civilians; one was an ABiH soldier. The shell was fired by members of the SRK. There were no military facilities close to the market. Prior to the incident, the authorities had forbidden the residents of Sarajevo to assemble or linger in public places and Markale was the only place in Sarajevo where large numbers of people still gathered.

2152. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 in chapter 8 below.

5.3.11 Other shelling incidents

Shelling on or about 14 May 1992

2153. With regard to the alleged shelling of Sarajevo on or about 14 May 1992, the Trial Chamber received evidence from John Wilson, the Chief Military Observer for UNPROFOR deployed to Sarajevo from 22 March to 24 June 1992;<sup>9255</sup> Richard Gray, the Senior Military Observer for UNPROFOR in Sector Sarajevo from 11 June 1992 to

20 September 1992, and present in Sarajevo as of 10 April 1992;<sup>9256</sup> as well as documentary evidence.<sup>9257</sup>

2154. According to an entry in the war diary of the Stari Grad SJB, on 14 May 1992, the area of Vratnik was targeted the entire day with rockets from the direction of Borije and Trebević, burning two homes and damaging two mosques and other homes.<sup>9258</sup> The area of Hrid-Jarčedoli was also targeted on 13 and 14 May 1992 from the direction of Borije, Trebević, and Lapišnica with all available weapons and artillery, causing extensive material damage and wounding three persons, including one child.<sup>9259</sup> The Bosnalijek building on Jukićeva Street was listed by fire brigade commander Mesud Jusufović as a facility which caught fire as a result of shelling or other activities from ‘the aggressor’ on 14 May 1992.<sup>9260</sup> According to an annex to the UN Commission of Experts report dated 27 May 1994, 40 individuals were killed in Sarajevo on 14 May 1992.<sup>9261</sup>

2155. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on or about 14 May 1992 there was heavy shelling in Sarajevo, causing material damage and wounding three people. Specifically based on P2733 and P549, the Trial Chamber finds that members of the SRK committed the shelling. The Trial Chamber did not receive conclusive evidence that the 40 killed individuals were related to that day’s shelling. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Incident of 27 May 1992

2156. With regard to the alleged shelling of Sarajevo on 27 May 1992, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Zlatko Medjedović, a ballistic expert employed by the Secretary of the Interior in Sarajevo from 1978 until 1998;<sup>9262</sup> Jose Cutileiro, the chairman of the talks on the future constitutional arrangements for Bosnia-Herzegovina

Regarding who had control over Mount Trebević during the conflict, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts 2134 and 2571<sup>9268</sup> and received evidence from Witness RM-126, a Bosnian-Muslim policeman from Sarajevo;<sup>9269</sup> and Nedžib Dozo, a Bosnian-Muslim former JNA mortar platoon commander and civilian police investigator.<sup>9270</sup> The Defence argued that the 27 May 1992 shelling was carried out by the ABiH and that the SRK could not have been responsible for it as: (i) a review of the incident site excluded SRK-held positions as the origin of fire; (ii) the SRK had been forbidden to open fire that day; and (iii) an investigation carried out by Mladić indicated that there had been no unauthorized engagement of targets in the area.<sup>9271</sup> The Defence further argued that the crater analyzed by the Prosecution and the Bosnia-Herzegovina Prosecutor was not formed at the time of the incident and that the findings of their investigation cannot be relied upon in determining SRK responsibility for this incident.<sup>9272</sup>

The on-site investigation conducted by the MUP determined that the shell was fired from positions at Trebević.<sup>9277</sup> The pedestrian precinct and the surrounding area were not used for military purposes.<sup>9278</sup>

2160. According to an article from The Independent dated 22 August 1992, UN officials said that they were suspicious about the circumstances of the 27 May incident, and one UN official was quoted as having said that they believed that it was a ‘command-detonated explosion, probably in a can’, because the impact was not necessarily similar or anywhere near as large as expected with a mortar round landing on a paved surface.<sup>9283</sup>

Karadžić and Plavšić also denied that the Serbs had committed the attack.<sup>9287</sup> According to Wilson, the results of a crater analysis of the site conducted by French soldiers were inconclusive, as the round could have come from either Serb or Muslim positions.<sup>9288</sup>

2164. Zorica Subotić testified that the shell which exploded in Vase Miškina Street on 27 May was fired from ABiH-controlled territory.<sup>9290</sup> The angle of descent of the shell was 83 to 84 degrees.<sup>9291</sup> Subotić drew her conclusions on the basis of contemporaneous television footage, a site visit which took place on 17 September 2010, technical specifications of the relevant weapon, the pattern of marks scattered on the pavement, and photo evidence of the Sarajevo CSB and a wartime correspondent, Roger Richards.<sup>9292</sup> The two key determining factors for Subotić that indicated that the shell could not have emanated from VRS positions were that: (a) the stabiliser had not embedded itself in the pavement and, therefore, only a shell with charge 3 or lower could have been used and the shell was therefore fired from a location nearer to the target;<sup>9293</sup> and (b) an orthogonal projection of a photo of the site apparently taken sometime between June and September 1992 by wartime correspondent Roger Richards indicated a smaller crater size than photos taken by the police and a high angle of descent (83 to 84 degrees), which means that it was not fired by the VRS from the Lukavica-Pale road as such a shell would have required an M74 shell with charge 6.<sup>9294</sup>

2165. The Trial Chamber received contradictory evidence with respect to the cause of the explosion which took place in Vase Miškina Street in Sarajevo on 27 May 1992. Exhibit D1425, a newspaper article, suggests that unidentified UN officials considered it likely that the explosion had been caused by an explosive detonated on the ground because the impact point was not as large as expected as in the case of a mortar shell landing on a paved surface. The Trial Chamber observes that there is no information concerning whether the UN officials were ballistic experts or what kind of impact size they would have expected and on what basis. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber considers the conclusions drawn by the unidentified UN officials to be based on speculations and too unsupported to be reliable.

2166. Milorad Batinić suggested that the incident was caused by claymore mines. Milorad Bukva suggested that the incident was staged by the Bosnian-Muslim authorities. The Trial Chamber notes that both witnesses, given their positions in the VRS, may have had a personal interest in concluding that the incident was not caused by a shell fired by the VRS. Accordingly, it treated the evidence of these two witnesses with great caution. In relation to the reliability of their evidence, the Trial Chamber notes that Batinić received such information from Spasoje Cojić, the Commander of the Igman Brigade, who based his conclusion that the victims had not been injured by a mortar shell on unidentified pathology reports which were never shown to Batinić. With respect to Bukva's evidence, the Trial Chamber observes that he did not provide any details with respect to how he obtained the intelligence data and what information it exactly contained. The Trial Chamber also notes that the evidence of Batinić and Bukva is contradicted by photo evidence taken at the incident site by the CSB Sarajevo that day,<sup>9295</sup> as well as by exhibits P2052 and D1243, and the evidence of Zlatko Medjedović, John Wilson, Jose Cutileiro, and Zorica Subotić, which all indicate that a shell landed in Vase Miškina Street on 27 May 1992. In light of the foregoing, the Trial Chamber considers the evidence of Batinić and Butka to be unreliable in this respect and will not consider it further.

2167. With respect to the evidence of Jose Cutileiro on the perpetrators of the incident, the Trial Chamber notes that Cutileiro obtained his information from an unidentified

Portuguese artillery officer who allegedly participated in the investigation of the incident. However, the Trial Chamber notes that Cutileiro did not specify whether the Portuguese artillery officer's opinion in relation to the origin of the shell was based on the outcome of the investigation or whether it was his own conclusion. Under these circumstances, and in the absence of further evidence on the matter, the Trial Chamber finds that Cutileiro's evidence in this respect is not reliable and will not consider it further.

2169. According to the evidence of Zorica Subotić, the shell which landed in Vase Miškina Street was fired from ABiH-held territory and its angle of descent was 83 to 84 degrees. However, during her testimony, when it was put to her that the peripheral traces of the crater measured in May 1992 were at least 40 centimetres from the centre, the witness conceded that based on those measurements, the angle of descent would have been much lower than 83 degrees.<sup>9296</sup> Furthermore, Subotić did not take into account the difference in elevation on Mount Trebević when using the firing tables which would have given different firing ranges.<sup>9297</sup> In relation to her argument that the stabilizer had not embedded itself in the pavement and that, therefore, only a shell with charge three or lower could have been used, Subotić contends that on this basis, the shell must have been fired from a location near the target, thereby excluding VRS-held positions. The Trial Chamber notes in this respect that, as conceded by the witness, the quality of the impact surface was not taken into account in her analysis.<sup>9298</sup> With respect to Subotić's argument that an orthogonal projection of a photograph of the site indicated that the shell could not have been fired by the VRS, the Trial Chamber notes that the photograph used by Subotić is not dated and contains no specific reference to a location. Notwithstanding this, Subotić assumed the photograph's contemporaneous nature on the basis of tenuous claims made outside her area of expertise. The witness then used this photograph as a basis to calculate the type of shell and origin of fire.<sup>9299</sup> 2170. Turning to Subotić's argument that the crater analyzed by the Bosnia-Herzegovina Prosecutor was formed after the time of the incident, the Trial Chamber notes that her conclusion is based on comparisons with the aforementioned undated photograph and with photographs and measurements of the incident site taken in 2010. The Trial Chamber observes that there are obvious limitations to both photographs in terms of reliability.<sup>9300</sup> Furthermore, Subotić's suggestion that the investigation led by the Bosnia-Herzegovina Prosecutor was fraudulent is unsubstantiated and based upon claims made outside the witness's expertise. Due to her flawed methodology and her focus on interpreting evidence rather than providing a ballistic analysis, the Trial Chamber considers Subotić's evidence in relation to this incident to be unreliable and will not consider it further.

2172. In light of the foregoing, the Trial Chamber rejects the Defence's arguments in relation to this incident as unmeritorious.

least 100 were wounded, including two minors. All victims were civilians and the area where the shell landed was not used for military purposes. At the time when the shell struck, some of the victims were waiting in a bread queue. On the basis that the shell originated from Mount Trebević, which was SRK-held territory, the Trial Chamber finds that the shell was fired by a member of the SRK. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

Incidents of 6 and 7 September 1994 (Butmir Bridge and Igman Road)

2174. According to UNPROFOR reports, the UNPROFOR Sector Sarajevo Infantry Battalion was engaged to counter the shooting by the Serbs in the area of Ilidža on 6 and 7 September 1994. In the first incident on 6 September, the Serbs fired a 20-millimetre cannon from the Terme Hotel in Ilidža, at civilians crossing the Butmir Bridge.<sup>9301</sup> UNPROFOR returned fire.<sup>9302</sup> The second incident involved the Serbs directing 20-millimetre cannon fire at civilians and two UNPROFOR vehicles travelling along the Igman road. The two vehicles were used in the rescue of wounded journalists.<sup>9303</sup> UNPROFOR subsequently fired back at the artillery below the Terme Hotel.<sup>9304</sup> After this date there were no shots fired at the Bosnian population in the vicinity of the bridge.<sup>9305</sup>

implementation of the Dayton Agreement;<sup>9307</sup> and David Harland, an UNPROFOR civil affairs officer assigned to Sarajevo as of May 1993.<sup>9308</sup> Bell testified that by the end of April or 2 May 1992, front lines in Sarajevo were established.<sup>9309</sup> Bowen testified that at least from July 1992 the high ground of the city's periphery was under Bosnian-Serb control.<sup>9310</sup> The witness's impression was that after 1992, the lines around the city's perimeter were more or less set, and the frontlines did not really shift.<sup>9311</sup> Harland testified that by the time he arrived the confrontation line had stabilised, and he understood it had remained the same since the summer of 1992, and it remained largely the same until the end of the conflict.<sup>9312</sup>

2177. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 6 September 1994, civilians crossing the Butmir Bridge were fired at by a 20-millimetre cannon and the day after civilians and two UNPROFOR vehicles were fired at while travelling along Igman road. In both instances UNPROFOR returned fire. With regard to the perpetrator, the Trial Chamber concluded based on Adjudicated Facts 1919, 1922, 2020, 2546, and 2555, that Ilidža was SRK-held territory between September 1992 and August 1994, and in May 1995. Given that the confrontation lines remained relatively static throughout the conflict, the Trial Chamber concluded that Ilidža was also SRK-held territory in September 1994. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber finds that in both instances the SRK fired at the civilians.<sup>9313</sup> The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 8 November 1994 (Livanjska Street)

Dragan Mioković, a Bosnian-Serb police inspector at the Sarajevo CSB since 1993,<sup>9314</sup> and Mirza Sabljica, a mechanical engineer specialized in ballistics and mechanical traces employed by the Bosnia-Herzegovina MUP's criminal forensics department in Sarajevo from June 1993 to July 1996,<sup>9315</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>9316</sup>

2180. Dragan Mioković testified that at 7 p.m. on 8 November 1994, he and his team arrived at Livanjska Street to conduct an investigation into the second and third shells that had landed there.<sup>9323</sup> The witness's team ascertained that these shells had been fired from Serb positions in 'Špicasta stijena-Hladvode' to the north-east.<sup>9324</sup> The witness testified that the impact site of the second and third shells was several hundred metres from the military police headquarters at Koševo Hill and at least two kilometres from the front line.<sup>9325</sup> Mirza Sabljica testified that the direction of fire of the second and third shells was 15 to 20 degrees from the north to east, which was the general direction of Špicasta Stijena, occupied by the Serbs.<sup>9326</sup>

2181. According to an UNPROFOR report, ‘the most suspected area’ from which the shells were fired was an area under the control of the ABiH. This conclusion was based on a calculation that excluded SRK positions as being possible areas from which the shells were fired.<sup>9327</sup> UNPROFOR established the shells’ possible range as being from 100 to 5,000 metres, the angles of descent estimated as between 70 and 75 degrees, and the azimuth as 1,400 mils.<sup>9328</sup> Mioković testified that, when his team compared their finding with UNPROFOR’s finding, they found that they had reached different conclusions regarding the location from which these shells had been fired – UNPROFOR had concluded that they had come from ABiH positions because the Serb positions would have been too far away.<sup>9329</sup> Further communication revealed that UNPROFOR had used incorrect firing tables – they had used the specifications of Finnish shells to calculate the distance instead of the JNA shells that had actually been used, leading to the miscalculation.<sup>9330</sup> When the witness’s team pointed out that the Finnish charts could not be relevant, UNPROFOR immediately accepted that and took the correct firing tables from the witness’s team.<sup>9331</sup> Sabljica testified that UNPROFOR calculated the approximate origin of fire but utilized a firing table for Finnish shells rather than the JNA shells that had been fired.<sup>9332</sup>

2182. The UNPROFOR report on an investigation into the second and third shells to land on Livanjska Street, which excluded that the shells were fired from SRK positions, contradicts Adjudicated Fact no. 2771, which states that these shells were fired from SRK-held territory. The Trial Chamber finds the UNPROFOR report sufficiently reliable to rebut the Adjudicated Fact. Under these circumstances, the Trial Chamber finds that Adjudicated Fact no. 2771 is rebutted. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber reviewed the evidence before it in order to make a determination on this matter.

2183. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 8 November 1994, the SRK fired one shell from Poljine. This shell landed and exploded on Livanjska Street in Sarajevo, killing three civilians and seriously injuring six civilians. Two additional shells landed and exploded on Livanjska Street later on that same day. The Trial Chamber received conflicting evidence as to whether these second and third shells were fired from territory controlled by Serbs or by the ABiH. The Sarajevo CSB concluded that these shells were fired from Serb positions, a conclusion supported by both Dragan Mioković and Mirza Sabljica at trial, while an UNPROFOR report concluded that the shells were most likely fired from ABiH-controlled territory. Mioković and Sabljica explained that UNPROFOR's flawed conclusion was based on their use of firing tables for Finnish shells rather than the appropriate tables for the JNA shells that were fired. Mioković further testified that UNPROFOR's investigative team conceded this error when the Sarajevo CSB team drew their attention to it. The Trial Chamber finds Mioković and Sabljica reliable in this respect and therefore finds that the second and third shells to land on Livanjska Street on 8 November 1994 were fired by SRK members from Špicasta Stijena. In total, these three shells killed at least four civilians and seriously injured at least six civilians. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 21 November 1994 (Grbavica)

2184. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to a shelling incident in Grbavica on 21 November 1994. It also received evidence from Sabina Šabanić, a Bosnian Muslim from Sarajevo,<sup>9333</sup> and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>9334</sup>

2186. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 21 November 1994, a member of the SRK fired a rocket from an M80 hand-held rocket-launcher at a tram in Grbavica. The explosion seriously injured Hajrudin Hamidić, the civilian driver of the tram. Immediately after being targeted by the rocket projectile, a member of the SRK fired sniper shots at the tram. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 16 June 1995 (Čobanija Street)

2187. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the SRK's possession of modified air bombs between August 1994 and November 1995,<sup>9340</sup> and Adjudicated Facts regarding an incident at Čobanija Street on 16 June 1995. It also received documentary evidence, and evidence from Harry Konings, an UNMO stationed in Sarajevo from 4 May to 23 October 1995,<sup>9341</sup> and found that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts with regard to this incident.<sup>9342</sup>

2188. On 16 June 1995, at least three civilians were injured, two of whom seriously, as a result of the explosion of a modified air bomb on Čobanija Street.<sup>9343</sup> The modified air bomb was launched by members of the SRK.<sup>9344</sup>

2189. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 16 June 1995, members of the SRK launched a modified air bomb which exploded on Čobanija Street 7 in Sarajevo. As a result of the explosion at least three civilians were injured, two of whom seriously. The Trial Chamber also recalls its findings in chapter 5.1.2 about the accuracy

Incident of 22 June 1995 (Geteova street)

2190. Anton Brennskag, a former lieutenant-colonel with the Royal Norwegian Army who was stationed as an UNMO in Sarajevo,<sup>9345</sup> testified that a modified aircraft bomb explosion in Geteova Street next to no. 12, in the Alipašino Polje neighbourhood of Sarajevo, which occurred on 22 June 1995, killed a girl aged one year and ten months and injured five other people.<sup>9346</sup> One of those injured died from his injuries later that same day.<sup>9347</sup> The rockets comprising the modified aircraft bomb were fired from the direction of VRS-held territory of Ilidža, azimuth 250 degrees plus minus ten.<sup>9348</sup> There were no military targets in the vicinity.<sup>9349</sup>

Incident of 25 June 1995 (Dženetića Čikma Street)

2192. Nedžib Đozo, a Bosnian Muslim former JNA mortar platoon commander and civilian police investigator,<sup>9351</sup> testified that on 26 June 1995, he participated in an on-site investigation of a shelling incident which occurred on the afternoon of 25 June 1995, on Dženetića Čikma Street no. 12 in Stari Grad, Sarajevo.<sup>9352</sup> Ballistic experts determined that the 120-millimetre shell which landed on the street had been fired from VRS-controlled territory near Barice or Mrkovići in the north, located on the opposite side of Špicasta Stijena from Sedrenik.<sup>9353</sup> The witness testified that two or three children were injured as a result of this incident.<sup>9354</sup> According to the Stari Grad CJB official report, Sidbela Zimić (nine years old), Amina Pajević (ten years old), and Ljiljana Janjić (eleven years old) died as a result of the shelling, while Maja Škorić (seven years old) and Almira Krasnić (12 years old) were gravely injured.<sup>9355</sup>

2193. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 25 June 1995 a member or members of the SRK fired a 120-millimetre shell which landed on Dženetića Čikma Street no. 12 in Stari Grad, Sarajevo, gravely injuring two and killing three other children. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 28 June 1995 (Geteova Street)

The Trial Chamber considers the date of 26 May 1995 to be a typographical error, given that the content of the report relates to events on 26 June 1995; P551 (Hand-drawn map of location of shelling incidents in Stari Grad).

28 June 1995. It also received evidence from Witness RM-110, a Bosnian-Muslim police officer,<sup>9356</sup> and documentary evidence relating to the incident and found that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>9357</sup> In addition, the Trial Chamber received evidence from Zorica Subotić, an expert in ballistics.<sup>9358</sup>

2195. On 28 June 1995, three people died and seven others were injured in an explosion. They were all civilians living in the residential apartment building at Geteova Street no. 5, Sarajevo.<sup>9359</sup> The modified air bomb originated from SRK-held territory, either Ilidža or Butila, and it was launched by a member of the SRK.<sup>9360</sup> The effective range of a FAB-250 air bomb is between 5,780 and 7,680 metres.<sup>9361</sup>

Incident of 1 July 1995 (Bunički Potok Street and Alekse Šantića Street)

2198. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the SRK's possession of modified air bombs between August 1994 and November 1995 (reviewed in chapter 5.1.2), and regarding the incidents at Bunički Potok Street and Alekse Šantića Street 1 July 1995. It also received evidence from Zorica Subotić, an expert in ballistics.<sup>9363</sup>

2200. Zorica Subotić testified that a single modified air bomb landed at Alekse Šantića Street, travelled some distance underground, resurfaced, continued its flight, and landed approximately 150 metres away at Bunički Potok Street.<sup>9367</sup> She further testified that the target of the modified air bomb was most likely a house on Alekse Šantića Street used by the ABiH.<sup>9368</sup>

2201. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 1 July 1995 members of the SRK launched one or two<sup>9369</sup> modified air bombs, which fell on Bunički Potok Street and Alekse Šantića Street. The Trial Chamber did not receive any evidence as to the explosion on Alekse Šantića Street, in terms of injury or damage caused, and will therefore not further consider this incident in relation to any count of the Indictment. The explosion in Bunički Potok injured thirteen civilians, two of whom were seriously injured. The Trial Chamber also recalls its findings in chapter 5.1.2 about the accuracy of modified air bombs. The Trial Chamber will further consider these incidents in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below, where it will also

Incident of 1 July 1995 (east of PTT Building)

2202. Anton Brennskag, a former lieutenant-colonel with the Royal Norwegian Army who was stationed as an UNMO in Sarajevo,<sup>9370</sup> testified that on 1 July 1995 a modified aircraft bomb, fired from an east to north easterly direction, landed in the garden of a family house just east of the PTT building, causing a crater two to three metres deep, but did not injure anyone.<sup>9371</sup> This was a residential area without any military targets.<sup>9372</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the SRK's possession of modified air bombs between August 1994 and November 1995 (reviewed in chapter 5.1.2).

Incidents of 1 July 1995 (Skenderija Street, Branilaca Grada Sarajeva, Mula Mustafe Baseškije Street and Ferhadija Street)

2204. Nedžib Đozo, a Bosnian Muslim former JNA mortar platoon commander and civilian police investigator,<sup>9373</sup> testified that he investigated shelling incidents that occurred in Stari Grad on 1 July 1995 in which 120-millimetre mortar shells landed in close proximity and shortly after one another with each shell coming from the same direction of fire and landing closer to the Markale market.<sup>9374</sup> The first shell landed on Skenderija Street near a secondary school (around 250-300 metres from Markale); the second shell exploded in front of the Stari Grad municipal building on Ulica Branilaca Grada Sarajeva Street (then known as JNA Street, around 150-200 metres from Markale), wounding several people; the third shell hit a food store on Mula Mustafe Baseškije Street (then known as Maršal Tito Street, around 30 metres from Markale), killing one person and injuring several people; and the fourth shell landed on the roof of a building on Ferhadija Street across from the Faculty of Economics, but did not cause any casualties.<sup>9375</sup> A man told the witness that his son, a young man who had gone to enrol as a student, died as a result of the first shell.<sup>9376</sup> An official report of these investigations, noted that the second shell killed Mensur Sećibović and injured Mustafa Aganagić, Zijo Međuselac, and four others, while the third shell killed Fahrudin Nikšić and Hasija Kalamujić, and injured Meho Kadušić and ten others.<sup>9377</sup>

2205. The witness testified that he and others at the Stari Grad police station concluded, based on their experience in Sarajevo, that the VRS mortar fire on Stari Grad on 1 July 1995 came from the same weapon, which was being adjusted or corrected to reach Markale market so as to cause a large number of casualties.<sup>9378</sup> The shells came from the direction of the Serb-controlled area of Lukavica or Vraca on the slopes of Trebević.<sup>9379</sup> According to a MUP report, a 120-millimetre contact-fuse shell arrived from the direction of south-west and exploded on 1 July 1995 at around 2:15 p.m. in the vicinity of the Branilaca Grada Street, across from house number 40, killing one person and injuring six.<sup>9380</sup>

further consider these incidents in relation to Counts 5, 6, 9, and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 19 July 1995 (Marice Uherke Street)

2207. According to a MUP report, on 19 July 1995 one 120-millimetre mortar shell with markings 'KB-9504' was fired from Serb positions in Ilidža in the north exploded in the Sokolovići settlement of Sarajevo, at Marice Uherke Street no. 8, in the yard of the family house owned by Adnan Hodžić, injuring three people.<sup>9381</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the position of the SRK in Ilidža during the war. These Adjudicated Facts are reviewed in chapters 5.1.1 and 5.3.8.

2208. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 19 July 1995, a member or members of the SRK fired a 120-millimetre shell with markings 'KB-9504' at the Sokolovići settlement of Sarajevo. The shell landed in the yard of the family house at Uherke Street no. 8, injuring three people. The Trial Chamber will further consider this incident in relation to Counts 9 and 10 of the Indictment in chapter 8, below.

Incident of 23 July 1995 (Bjelašnička Street)

2209. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the SRK's possession of modified air bombs between August 1994 and November 1995. Further, the Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to a shelling incident at Bjelašnička Street on 23 July 1995 and received documentary evidence in this respect and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>9382</sup>

north-westerly direction, from SRK-controlled territory.<sup>9385</sup> It was launched by members of the SRK.<sup>9386</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the SRK's possession of modified air bombs between August 1994 and November 1995 (reviewed in chapter 5.1.2).

2211. The Defence argued that the Prosecution 'has not led any substantial evidence other than the adjudicated facts' for this incident and that 'taking judicial notice of adjudicated facts without any other substantial evidence would create a presumption of guilt of the Accused'.<sup>9387</sup> Requiring the Defence to present contradictory evidence under these circumstances would violate the Accused's right to remain silent.<sup>9388</sup> First, the Trial Chamber recalls its approach to Adjudicated Facts, set out in Appendix B. Second, the Trial Chamber notes that the Defence bases its argument on a comment by the Trial Chamber in its Rule 98 bis decision. In that decision, the Trial Chamber noted that 'failure of the Prosecution to adduce any evidence or insufficient evidence on individual charges has an effect on proceedings that will follow'.<sup>9389</sup> The Trial Chamber clearly was referring to a situation where no evidence was presented (and no Adjudicated Facts were taken judicial notice of). In fact, where the Trial Chamber has taken judicial notice in relation to an incident, there should in fact not be further evidence presented in this regard. The Trial Chamber considers that the Defence's submissions are without merit. They are rejected.

Incident of 22 August 1995 (Zmaja od Bosne Street)

2214. With regard to the Defence's arguments concerning this incident,<sup>9394</sup> the Trial Chamber refers to its considerations and conclusion concerning Incident of 23 July 1995 (Bjelašnička Street), above. On this basis, the Defence's submissions are rejected.

2215. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 22 August 1995, a member or members of the SRK launched a modified air bomb, which hit the BITAS Building on Zmaja od Bosne 64, killing a civilian, injuring another person, and causing damage to the building. The Trial Chamber also recalls its findings in chapter 5.1.2 about the accuracy of modified air bombs. ## 6. Taking of hostages

6.1 Introduction

2216. According to the Indictment, between approximately 26 May 1995 and 19 June 1995, Bosnian-Serb forces detained over 200 UN peacekeepers and military observers in various locations, including Pale, Sarajevo, Banja Luka, and Goražde, and held them at different locations in the Bosnian-Serb Republic including in places of strategic or military significance.<sup>9395</sup> The purpose of these detentions was to render the locations immune from NATO air strikes and to prevent further air strikes against Bosnian-Serb military targets.<sup>9396</sup> In the course of the detentions, threats were issued to third parties, including NATO and UN commanders, that further NATO attacks on Bosnian-Serb military targets would result in the injury, death, or continued detention of the detainees.<sup>9397</sup> Some of the detainees were assaulted and maltreated during their captivity.<sup>9398</sup> The Defence submitted that, as a result of the UN's direct and active participation in the conflict, UN personnel lost their civilian protection status and were therefore lawfully detained.<sup>9399</sup> Further, members of paramilitary groups were responsible for any ill-treatment of UN personnel that may have occurred.<sup>9400</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts 1759 and 1760 related to this charge.<sup>9401</sup> The Trial Chamber received evidence from UNMOs Patrick Rechner, Janusz Kalbarczyk, and Griffiths Evans, stationed in Pale in 1995;<sup>9402</sup> UNMOs Gunnar Westlund, Joseph Gelissen, and Marcus Helgers, stationed in Sarajevo in 1995;<sup>9403</sup> Aleksandr Vishnevski, an UNPROFOR officer stationed in Sarajevo from February to June 1995 and attached, as of May 1995, to the 1st Company deployed at the Krivoglavci checkpoint;<sup>9404</sup> Rupert Smith, Witness RM-120, Witness RM-409, near Sarajevo between May and August 1993;<sup>9417</sup> Ratomir Maksimović, who served in the SRK Command from 1 April 1993 to 1 September 1994 and from 30 April 1995 to 31 March 1996;<sup>9418</sup> and Reynaud Theunens, a military intelligence analyst;<sup>9419</sup> as well as documentary evidence.

2217. David Harland testified that on 22 May 1995, Bosnian-Serb forces removed two heavy weapons from the WCPs near Sarajevo and Bosnian forces withdrew weapons of their own.<sup>9420</sup> An ultimatum was issued by General Smith, UNPROFOR Commander in Sarajevo at the time, on 24 May 1995, with which the Serbs failed to comply, and in response NATO bombed certain Bosnian-Serb military targets on 25 May 1995.<sup>9421</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts concerning the confiscation by the SRK of heavy weapons from WCPs on 25 and 26 May 1995 and the subsequent NATO bombings of the ammunitions depot in Pale on 26 May 1995, which are reviewed in chapter 5.1.1. According to a VRS Main Staff document dated 26 May 1995, NATO had identified depots, missile and radar systems, artillery firing positions, and command posts as potential bombing targets.<sup>9422</sup> Witness GRM-037 testified that UNPROFOR, NATO, and national armed forces personnel, including a group of British soldiers known as 'JCOs', were tasked with covertly locating and recording Bosnian-Serb military positions and facilities which could be potential targets for air strikes and sharing this information with NATO.<sup>9423</sup> He also saw target lists for NATO air strikes in the UNPROFOR headquarters.<sup>9424</sup> Furthermore, the Canadian government and other countries had forward air controllers in Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>9425</sup> The witness saw General Smith enter the Air Operations Cell in the UNPROFOR headquarters in Zagreb where the target lists for NATO air strikes were being compiled and deduced from this that Smith must have been aware of the presence of these forward air controllers in Bosnia-Herzegovina and of the fact that they assisted NATO in conducting the air strikes in Pale in May 1995.<sup>9426</sup> According to the witness, all UNMOs were acting as if they were collecting intelligence and many of them had weapons, even though they were supposed to be unarmed.<sup>9427</sup> To the witness's knowledge, none of the UNMOs that he claimed were armed and none of the forward air controllers who were present in Bosnia-Herzegovina were part of the group that was taken hostage in May 1995.<sup>9428</sup> The witness recalled statements made by the Bosnian-Serb leadership that after the bombing started, they considered the UN to have become a combatant in the conflict.<sup>9429</sup> Patrick Rechner testified that all UNMOs in the former Yugoslavia were unarmed.<sup>9430</sup> side included 199 soldiers, mostly French, and 32 UNMOs. Sixteen of the UNMOs were being used as human shields.<sup>9437</sup>

2220. Milenko Indić testified that on one occasion his office received an order from the VRS Main Staff to place under control, disarm, and seize the communication devices of UNPROFOR members in the SRK territory, but not to harm them in any manner.<sup>9442</sup> On 27 May 1995, Dragomir Milošević informed all SRK units that they were to report, by way of regular combat reports, the number of members of UNPROFOR, UNHCR, and other international organisations taken prisoner, the number of members under blockade, and the number of pieces of equipment seized. The units were instructed not to capture Russian UNPROFOR members and to free the captured Russians.<sup>9443</sup>

2221. Witness GRM-037 testified that he received intelligence from direct sources that the orders to take ‘hostages’ came from high up in the military structure.<sup>9444</sup> According to an UNPROFOR letter addressed to Dragomir Milošević, since 26 May 1995 Bosnian-Serb forces had implemented a systematic policy of hostage-taking of unarmed military observers.<sup>9445</sup>

2222. On 28 May 1995, during a meeting of the Supreme Command of the Bosnian-Serb Republic, attended by Mladić and Karadžić, Karadžić instructed to 'seize the enclaves'.<sup>9446</sup> It was concluded at the meeting that captured members of UNPROFOR should be treated as POWs and that relations with the UN should be frozen.<sup>9447</sup>

2223. On 30 May 1995, Mladić informed various VRS corps commands and units that NATO was preparing for an operation to free the UNPROFOR personnel who were being held captive.<sup>9448</sup> Based on a 29 May 1995 Supreme Command decision, Mladić ordered all units to assess the feasibility of helicopter assault and to consider possibilities for the detection of enemy forces and taking effective combat action. Mladić further ordered the units to prevent any leak of information about the number and sector of deployment of UNPROFOR personnel who were held captive and forbid all unauthorized individuals from attempting to contact the detainees without approval of the Main Staff.<sup>9449</sup> The command of the SRK was to complete the disarming of the captured UNPROFOR personnel and their deployment to facilities identified as potential NATO air-strikes targets on the same day and transport the remaining UNPROFOR personnel to a safe place, from which the Main Staff would organize their transport to other corps. The commands of the SRK, HK and DK were to plan and prepare fire on the sectors of UNPROFOR personnel and possible areas of helicopter assault landings, around the enclaves of Sarajevo, Goražde, Srebrenica, and Žepa.<sup>9450</sup> In case of a NATO air strike or a helicopter assault landing, the units were to immediately and without a separate order open fire from all available assets on the sector of airborne assault and the sector of the deployment of UNPROFOR personnel. The unit commanders were expected to report to Mladić about the implementation of this order in regular combat reports.<sup>9451</sup>

6.2 Detention of UNMOs stationed in Pale and in the Sarajevo area

2224. Gunnar Westlund stated that on 14 May 1995, six members of his team, SS-1, were present in their office in Kasindo: one Dutch, Mark Helgers; one Nigerian, Abdul Razak Bello; one Polish, Wieslaw Wojtasiak; one Pakistani, Ahmad Manzoor; one Czech, Karel Kratky; and himself.<sup>9452</sup> On that day, SS-1 was visited by Captain Gavran, a VRS Battalion Commander, who informed the witness that his team was no longer allowed to leave their accommodation, except to shop, but that the witness, as team leader and with VRS approval, could visit the VRS and UNMO headquarters.<sup>9453</sup>

2225. Janusz Kalbarczyk testified that as of April 1995, Sierra Echo 1 (SE-1) was led by a British officer and his deputy, Major Griffiths Evans.<sup>9454</sup> Around 21 May 1995, UNMOs' headquarters in Sarajevo, in compliance with a demand made by the VRS, ordered UNMO teams stationed in Pale, including the members of the SE-1 Team, to cease their patrolling activities and stay in their accommodation unless required to get food supplies.<sup>9455</sup> Westlund stated that after the first NATO air strike on 24 May 1995, at approximately 2 or 3 p.m., a uniformed VRS security officer entered SS-1 quarters in Kasindo and told the UNMOs stationed there that they were not allowed to leave, and that men were to be posted outside with orders to shoot them if they tried to leave.<sup>9456</sup>

2227. Also on 25 May 1995, after the second NATO air strike, Westlund heard someone on the radio, in English, identify himself as a VRS soldier and threaten to kill the 'Pale Team' of UNMOs if the NATO strikes did not stop. At 5:15 p.m., two armed soldiers in uniform trousers and green T-shirts without insignia ordered the witness and his team, SS-1, to leave their accommodation.<sup>9459</sup> The witness and his team were made to drive to Grbavica.<sup>9460</sup> The soldiers made the witness take a back road and the witness believed that they wanted to avoid the VRS garrison on the main road, which made him think that these were not VRS soldiers. At Grbavica, the witness was taken with his team to the cellar of a civilian building, which was occupied by civilians and VRS soldiers. The two soldiers who had arrested the witness and his team appeared, according to the witness, to be under the command of a man. This man had a long beard and long black hair and was dressed in black. He was accompanied by two men armed with pistols and kalashnikovs who, according to the witness, were not VRS soldiers but who wore some parts of VRS uniforms. The witness and his team were given a mix of uniforms and civilian clothes to change into. They were allowed to keep their IDs, wallets, and cigarettes. He and his team were then driven by the leader in black and another man, both of whom the witness stated were Bosnian Serbs, for 45 to 50 minutes to Pale, through VRS checkpoints. They stopped in front of a police station which the leader in black visited while they were guarded in the car. They were then driven to a café where they were ordered out of the car. The witness and his team were lined up on the pavement, and the witness observed a number of drunken soldiers, many of whom wore UN equipment such as helmets or berets. They were then ordered into another car, driven by a VRS officer. A man, who was approximately 25 years old and introduced himself to the witness as a VRS soldier, accompanied them in the car, and later told the witness that he was Canadian. They then drove to Jahorina Mountain, where the same man ordered the witness to contact UNMO headquarters and tell them that the team would be shot one by one unless the NATO air strikes stopped.<sup>9461</sup> The witness's team was loaded into a mini-bus and driven up Jahorina Mountain and, during the trip, drunken VRS soldiers beat and abused the Nigerian and the Pakistani UNMOs by hitting them with the butts of their rifles.<sup>9462</sup>

several big explosions and the alarm siren in Pale.<sup>9464</sup> At 10 a.m., General Smith had a telephone conversation with Mladić, reminding him to moderate his actions, return the missing weapons to the WCPs, and to clear the TEZ, after which Mladić urged Smith to think of the people and the soldiers under his command and the consequences which may result from such unreasonable and ‘unthinking’ decisions.<sup>9465</sup> Kalbarczyk testified that about 40 minutes after the last explosion, a police car arrived and an armed police commander and two armed policemen in violet uniforms entered the UNMOs’ office.<sup>9466</sup> Police officers, unlike soldiers, wore violet uniforms.<sup>9467</sup> Griffith Evans, also from the SE-1 Team, described the group that arrived at their post as composed of four people in VRS uniform and one in civilian clothes, whom the witness perceived as being in charge.<sup>9468</sup> He described the men in uniform as armed military policemen.<sup>9469</sup> The witness, Jose Antonio Romero, Dmitri Batiouchenkov<sup>9470</sup>, and Zlatko Kozusnik, all UNMOs from the SE-1 Team, were held at gunpoint and ordered to raise their hands. The policemen told the members of the SE-1 Team that they had received an order to shoot them if the bombardments continued.<sup>9471</sup> Kalbarczyk attributed this conduct to the police commander while Evans stated that the man in civilian clothes informed them that they were under arrest and one of the men in VRS uniform pointed what Evans believed to be a pistol at the team.<sup>9472</sup> Kalbarczyk testified that the police commander left after ten minutes and the policemen ordered the UNMOs to put their hands down. During the next 40 minutes, the UNMOs were not authorized to pick up incoming calls from their headquarters.<sup>9473</sup> At about 11:20 a.m., VRS soldiers arrived in

2229. At 11:30 a.m., armed VRS soldiers drove Kalbarczyk and Kozusnik to Pale and left the car open and unguarded for about ten minutes, during which time soldiers and civilians, who were around the car, threatened and insulted the witness and his colleague, by spitting and throwing stones at them.<sup>9479</sup> Subsequently, the VRS soldiers drove all of the detained members of the SE-1 Team to a place close to Pale called Jahorinski Potok, which had been targeted by NATO air strikes.<sup>9480</sup> Evans stated that before reaching Jahorinski Potok, they stopped in front of the local police station in Pale, where a VRS soldier of Canadian citizenship entered the car used to transport this group of UNMOs. The soldier used the radio to inform the UNMO headquarters in Sarajevo that Evans and his team were under arrest and that their lives would be in danger if the headquarters would not meet with General Smith to stop the air strike.<sup>9481</sup> Smith testified that the man speaking English, who had called him to inform him that he had taken UNMOs, mentioned that they had been placed at potential targets in the Pale area.<sup>9482</sup> These actions were confirmed to Smith in a message from Mladić sent through Indić, and in a phone call from Mladić.<sup>9483</sup> During this second conversation between Mladić and Smith, which took place at around 2:50 p.m., Mladić said that his information was that some men had been placed on the door and the roof of the earlier

2230. Earlier on the same day at approximately 10:30 a.m., Rechner heard loud voices and two shots being fired outside of the 7 Lima Team accommodation in Pale.<sup>9487</sup> Through a door at the back of the office he observed three individuals armed with kalashnikovs in the office.<sup>9488</sup> He called Karadžić's office and his secretary Mira told him that if the men had arrived at about 10:30 a.m., they were soldiers who had been sent there officially.<sup>9489</sup> He also called Jovan Zametica, Karadžić's spokesman and political advisor, who confirmed that he had heard that preparations were being made to send some soldiers into their office and that he was aware of an order.<sup>9490</sup> Almost immediately thereafter, one of the interpreters called the witness and told him that he was required in the office.<sup>9491</sup> When the witness entered the office, he saw two of the armed men there: Nikola Ribić, who was in full VRS uniform, and another man dressed in a red T-shirt and camouflage pants.<sup>9492</sup> Ribić told him to sit down and call the UNMO headquarters by radio, which the witness did.<sup>9493</sup> Ribić took the radio, identified himself as a VRS soldier and said that he wanted the bombing stopped immediately, or else the witness and two other UNMOs would be executed.<sup>9494</sup> Ribić then told the witness to call

General Smith.<sup>9495</sup> However, Smith's aide-de-camp said that Smith would not speak with these armed men, whereupon Ribić took the phone and said that he wanted the air strikes stopped and 'if you value the lives of your UNMOs, you'll stop the air strikes now. For every bomb that falls from now on, one of the UNMOs will be shot'.<sup>9496</sup> While Rechner and his colleagues Captain Oldrich Zidlik and Captain Pavel Teterovsky waited for Ribić's commander, Ribić directed them to call their headquarters several times to ask for confirmation that the air strikes had been called off.<sup>9497</sup>

2231. At approximately 11 a.m., a group of armed VRS soldiers arrived at the office, led by a commander whose name sounded like Srdjan and who walked with a crutch.<sup>9498</sup> While the air strikes were still on-going, the witness, Zidlik, and Teterovsky were handcuffed together in the back seat of their car, and driven to the ammunition bunkers at Jahorinski Potok, which had been the target of NATO bombings on 25 and 26 May 1995.<sup>9499</sup> While waiting for the gate to the bunker complex to be opened, a group of angry people gathered and one person opened the door of the car, punched and kicked the witness, pulled out a pistol and tried to point it at the UNMOs.<sup>9500</sup> The witness learned that this man's name was Šljivić or Šlivo and he was later dressed in uniform and served as one of their guards.<sup>9501</sup>

air strikes and threatened to kill them if they were not killed by the air strikes.<sup>9503</sup> The events at the warehouses were filmed by this press information officer.<sup>9504</sup> After being forced to contact the headquarters again to confirm that the air strikes had been called off, the UNMOs were loaded back into the vehicle and taken to the ammunition bunkers, which were located at a VRS military facility.<sup>9505</sup> On the way there, the Lieutenant-Colonel forced the witness to contact the headquarters again and inform them that in the event of any more air strikes, ‘they would die for the sake of NATO’, which was also suggested by Ribić.<sup>9506</sup>

VRS.<sup>9511</sup> Evans stated that Batiouchenkov was handcuffed to a door of an ammunition bunker and Kalbarczyk and Kozusnik, also part of the witness's team, were taken inside.<sup>9512</sup> Rechner testified that Kalbarczyk was placed at the most dangerous place, near a bunker that had been bombed that morning and where the ammunition was still exploding.<sup>9513</sup> Kalbarczyk testified that at around noon, he was chained to a lightning rod for approximately four hours and filmed by a VRS officer.<sup>9514</sup> Soldiers provided food to the witness, but no water despite the hot temperatures.<sup>9515</sup> Rechner testified that at approximately 2:20 p.m. two VRS soldiers came by to check if all UNMOs were still properly secured. The witness overheard them discussing whether they had enough time to check on Kalbarczyk further up the road before 2:30 p.m., the time NATO had announced to resume air strikes.<sup>9516</sup>

had orders from the regular VRS. An English-speaking Canadian soldier named Ribić was in charge, along with another commander who was about 40 years old, had blond-grey hair, wore a green overall uniform, and had a pistol. The witness and the other UNMO were taken to the Pale hospital where they were filmed by Pale TV. They were then taken to the Pale Barracks.<sup>9522</sup>

to the railing of the bridge.<sup>9530</sup> Evans stated that after approximately ten minutes he and Romero were driven back to the Koran Barracks and re-chained to the flagpoles.<sup>9531</sup> After 4 p.m., two UNMOs, Alves and Gelissen, were brought to join them and were handcuffed to another flagpole for approximately four hours, after which they were allowed to sit in the shade under close guard.<sup>9532</sup> Gelissen testified that Golubev was also handcuffed to a flagpole in front of the barracks.<sup>9533</sup> Lalović testified that an armed man wearing a uniform advised him to film and interview two UNPROFOR members, who according to the witness were Brazilian and Polish, at a radio relay facility in Jahorina since NATO might open fire on it.<sup>9534</sup> Lalović complied with the armed man's request and returned the UNPROFOR members to the uniformed men in Pale after filming them in Jahorina.<sup>9535</sup> External reporters gave his editors a report involving UNPROFOR members tied to electricity poles at the barracks in Pale.<sup>9536</sup> Gelissen stated that during their detention, NATO planes were flying above them.<sup>9537</sup> The situation was tense and one VRS soldier was making gestures of shooting the plane and cutting throats towards the UNMOs while others were shouting. One commander, namely, as the witness later learned, Captain Vojvodić, sent back these soldiers.<sup>9538</sup>

2237. Rechner testified that in the meantime, still on 26 May 1995, in Jahorinski Potok at approximately 3:30 p.m. two groups of senior military officers, including two colonels, came by to see the UNMOs.<sup>9539</sup> Thereafter, a political delegation came by which included Jovan Zametica, Karadžić's spokesman and political advisor. The witness asked Zametica to explain the treatment of the UNMOs, to which Zametica responded: '[w]ell, times have changed' and remarked 'I wonder what General Smith will do now'.<sup>9540</sup> The witness testified that while being chained to the poles and bunkers the UNMOs were in danger. As they were left alone, the witness was afraid that a crowd of civilians would make their way to them, or the Lieutenant-Colonel who had threatened to shoot them would come and execute them. Further, as they were secured in front of one of the bunkers filled with ammunition that had not yet been destroyed, any potential air strike would set off an explosion and if air strikes would resume he was afraid that they would be executed one at a time to get the bombing stopped.<sup>9541</sup>

Srdan and Ribić were probably from that same unit, although Ribić was wearing a regular VRS uniform.<sup>9559</sup>

equipment and clothes.<sup>9567</sup> At Pale Militia Station they waited, guarded and inside the car, for 15 minutes before a black four-wheel-drive car, with either a jaguar or a tiger's head sticker on it, arrived. Their police car then followed the black car and they were taken to a café where there were a lot of soldiers, some of whom were from the 7 Lima Team and had been captured earlier. A young Bosnian-Serb soldier told the witness's group that they were VRS hostages and that they would be taken to the Jahorina radar station and used as 'human shields'.<sup>9568</sup>

2242. Still on the same day, the group was taken to the Jahorina Radar Station, first by a UN car, then by a military bus with three soldiers on it.<sup>9569</sup> A drunk soldier hit Major Bello on the head and Major Westlund on the shoulder, in both cases with the butt of a kalashnikov rifle.<sup>9570</sup> The bus stopped near the radar station and they were made to walk 15 minutes to the barracks, where they were taken to a room and had to write down their names, ID numbers, nationality, and hand over any property they still had with them.<sup>9571</sup> The guards at the radar station identified themselves as members of the VRS and one of them wore a patch from the 22nd Mixed Brigade.<sup>9572</sup> The witness's group was later taken to a room where they were fed, allowed to sleep, and warned by the sub-lieutenant who was in charge there, named Trafković, not to try to escape because the area around the station was mined.<sup>9573</sup> Trafković expressed that he was sorry about the situation and that he hoped it would be resolved and that they would be released quickly. He told them that they had been taken on the orders of either the Bosnian-Serb President or the Bosnian-Serb command.<sup>9574</sup>

Radar Station to be used as ‘human shields’.<sup>9584</sup> He also had to tell them that for every air strike one of them would be shot and if the radar station was attacked they would all be shot.<sup>9585</sup> Westlund stated that he, Helgers, Bello, Kratky, and Wojtasiak were kept at this complex until 13 June 1995.<sup>9586</sup>

2244. Rechner testified that, at approximately 9 a.m. on 27 May 1995, Ribić instructed him to call the UNMO headquarters and inform them that the UNMOs were to be placed at the same positions as the day before, in front of the bunkers, and to inform them of the locations of the other UNMOs being held ‘hostage’.<sup>9587</sup> However, for the duration of the day, the UNMOs were taken by regular VRS soldiers to a guardhouse located midway between the warehouses and bunkers.<sup>9588</sup> Evans stated that they were kept there without handcuffs. The Canadian Serb took Kalbarczyk and Alves away and brought them back after a few hours.<sup>9589</sup> Kalbarczyk testified that Captain Vojvodić visited the detainees and introduced himself as a liaison officer between the VRS command and the detainees. The detained UNMOs were then moved to another building after which they were told that they had been moved to this location so that they could be chained more quickly to NATO’s potential targets.<sup>9590</sup> At 11 a.m., the cameraman and the journalist drove him and Alves from the SE-1 Team, both blindfolded, to the same radar station as the one to which the witness had been attached the previous day, and filmed the two UNMOs for approximately 15 minutes while they were handcuffed to two antennae.<sup>9591</sup> The two UNMOs were then driven back to the barracks after a stopover at a wedding party where they were given food, drinks, and were filmed.<sup>9592</sup>

2245. On 27 May 1995, the VRS forces detained 35 UNMOs in several places in Bosnia-Herzegovina: three from the 7 Lima Team and five from the SE-1 Team at Jahorinski Potok; four from the SN-1 Team from Vogošća and six from the SS-1 Team from Kasindo, at their accommodations and later, for the Kasindo team, at the Jahorina radar station; two from the L Team in Lukavica, at an unknown location; three from the SG-1 Team in Grbavica, at an unknown location; nine from the SW-1 Team from Blažuj, at their accommodation; and three from the Banja Luka Team, two at an unknown location and one at the Mahovljani airbase near Banja Luka.<sup>9593</sup>

June 1995 with a small group of guards.<sup>9601</sup> Evans stated that the detainees were held in a room for 24 hours a day, under constant guard. They had no radio and food was brought to them.<sup>9602</sup> Vojvodić visited them daily and Evans and his team would request medical attention due to the unsatisfactory hygiene conditions.<sup>9603</sup> Their demands were not met until later.<sup>9604</sup> The UNMOs requested to know their status and Vojvodić answered that they were detained as POWs. The UNMOs then requested to have the same rights as POWs. Vojvodić responded that he would contact Major Batinić but the UNMOs never heard anything from him.<sup>9605</sup> Gelissen stated that on 28 May 1995, the two Russian UNMOs were released.<sup>9606</sup> Rechner testified that on that day, when VRS soldiers allowed the UNMOs to pick up a change of clothes in the original accommodations, he saw one of the interpreters in the office and instructed him to fax a message to the headquarters to let them know that they were fine. The landlord, Danjlo Savić, who happened to be at the office, interrupted and stated that Momčilo Krajišnik, an old friend, had instructed him that the UNMOs not be allowed to call or fax any message. Savić told the witness to do as he was told and if everything worked out they would be set free in three or four days.<sup>9607</sup>

2248. On this same day, General Smith and Mladić had a telephone conversation during which Mladić said that the Serb treatment of all detained UN personnel was humane and proper, although there were some located in key positions, including his headquarters, which were potential NATO targets.<sup>9608</sup> Mladić added that he had given orders not to handcuff detainees, acknowledging nevertheless that he was aware that in some cases the detainees had been handcuffed.<sup>9609</sup> Mladić further said that if Smith were to send letters of condolences to the families of dead Serb soldiers, he would ‘give a

On 30 May 1995, the officer in charge of the detainees, Lieutenant-Colonel Indić, asked Rechner to be his informant and to write down information about the behaviour of the UNMOs in exchange for an authorization to make a phone call home, which he declined.<sup>9612</sup> Kalbarczyk testified that when detained in the small guard house, the detainees were allowed to go outside after a week. According to the witness, they were not allowed out for safety reasons because of possible provocations by VRS soldiers passing near the building where they were detained.<sup>9613</sup>

2250. Gelissen stated that on 31 May 1995, they were visited by Major Batinić who introduced himself as being in charge of Captain Vojvodić who had been, until then, responsible for the detainees at the Koran military barracks.<sup>9614</sup> They therefore drafted a letter to Major Batinić, asking for, inter alia, the right to be visited by the ICRC and access to a doctor.<sup>9615</sup>

2252. During his detention, Rechner was guarded by Major Batinić from the headquarters in Sokolac, Captain Radovan Vojvodić, the Koran Barracks Security Officer, and a Military Policeman called 'Ogi', all of whom wore VRS uniforms.<sup>9619</sup>

2253. Milorad Šehovac testified that after the NATO bombings of 1995 and as they were attacked, the SRK 2nd Sarajevo Light Infantry Brigade declared five to seven UNMOs, deployed in the Sarajevo area, as POWs. The SRK unit detained the UNMOs in the house of a forestry engineer and manager of forestry in Trnovo in the Sarajevo area.<sup>9620</sup> The SRK unit acted in execution of an order from the SRK to capture 'everything' in their defence zone and treat them as POWs. According to the witness, the SRK unit did not mistreat the detainees nor used any kind of restraint or force against them. The UNMOs were allowed to make phone calls, provided three meals per day, and allowed to see a doctor.<sup>9621</sup> According to the witness, the military police guards who were guarding the men, disarmed them and took their rifles, but left them their side arms and pistols with their ammunition in it.<sup>9622</sup> The witness never received orders that the UNMOs were to be restrained in any way.<sup>9623</sup>

6.3 Detention of Ukrainian UNPROFOR soldiers in Banja Luka<sup>9624</sup>

2255. Vishnevski stated that on 26 May 1995 around 9 a.m., he saw that the Zaria checkpoint in Ilidža was blocked on two sides and a tank and an APC were advancing towards it. The police arrived at the checkpoint and their commander informed Captain Movchaniuk, chief of the checkpoint, that the UNPROFOR soldiers had to hand over their weapons after which they would be transferred to a safe place.<sup>9629</sup> Radojčić testified that the members of the 1st Company could keep their side arms without ammunition.<sup>9630</sup> Vishnevski testified that upon Captain Movchaniuk's order, the members of the 1st Company who were present handed over their weapons in an organized manner.<sup>9631</sup> Radojčić testified that the other weapons were placed in a separate, locked room, and the key was given to the 1st Company Commander.<sup>9632</sup> Vishnevski testified that during this process, he saw on television that French soldiers were being taken 'hostage', handcuffed, and treated with violence. He informed Kruchkov, who ordered them to stop handing over their weapons. They were left with eight or nine automatic rifles. The police again demanded that the 1st Company hand over the remaining weapons and Veličko, the Military Police Commander in charge, who had one star on his uniform, threatened Kruchkov with his pistol, upon which Dvorovoi, UNPROFOR soldier and driver, rushed to the commander's help and hit several Serbs.<sup>9633</sup> The police fired above their heads in the direction of the members of the 1st Company and ordered them to lie down. Kruchkov and Dvorovoi did not carry out this order but were forced to surrender the remaining weapons.<sup>9634</sup> Kruchkov and Dvorovoi were isolated.<sup>9635</sup> Afterwards, the police escorted all other 22 members of the 1st Company to the Zaria police station and then to a hotel where they spent several hours.<sup>9636</sup> At around noon, they were returned to the Zaria checkpoint in police cars, where they spent the remainder of the day and night.<sup>9637</sup>

2256. On 27 May 1995 at 4 a.m., the police woke up the detainees and two military policemen took them to a bus which then drove in the direction of Krivoglavci checkpoint. The bus was escorted by two police vehicles. It stopped at a checkpoint called Palub where they picked up Captain Lukianenko, in charge of the Palub checkpoint, Kruchkov, Dvorovoi, and four soldiers of the battalion.<sup>9638</sup> One of the detainees had a radio receiver hidden in a backpack and the detainees informed the Battalion Commander about the events taking place. The escorted bus drove to Bijeljina. The detainees were then transferred to a military compound or a military school in Banja Luka. The Serb military police told the detainees to line up on the square, took their flak jackets, shoulder straps, and shoelaces, declared them POWs, and told them to obey their orders. Using dogs, the military police forced the detainees to split into smaller groups. The witness was transferred to a barracks-like compound in Banja Luka with 13 other soldiers of the 240th Battalion, including Kruchkov, Lukianenko, and Movchaniuk while the other soldiers were taken elsewhere. The conditions at the compound in Banja Luka were bad: the detainees barely received any food, the mattresses were unusable, and there was no soap, bed linen, or hot water. One of the military police commanders in Banja Luka explained that the purpose of splitting

2258. On 28 May 1995, the VRS Chief of Staff, Manojlo Milovanović, sent a report to the Bosnian-Serb President stating that the Krajina Corps took over 57 UNPROFOR members from the IBK, including 43 Ukrainian soldiers.<sup>9641</sup>

6.4 Detention of UNPROFOR soldiers in Sarajevo

2260. Witness RM-403 stated that 20 UNPROFOR soldiers belonging to the 4th Infantry Battalion were tasked to relieve the WCP in Poljine, approximately ten kilometres north of Sarajevo in Serb-controlled territory, on 13 May 1995.<sup>9643</sup> There was a Serb command post, manned by two to four Serb soldiers, approximately 50 metres away from the WCP.<sup>9644</sup> The head of the UNPROFOR unit met two to four times every day with the commander of the Serb command post, Captain Drago.<sup>9645</sup> Captain Drago was in charge of three Serb positions. He was a member of the Artillery Battalion, commanded by Major Jovanovski.<sup>9646</sup> The UNPROFOR unit was tasked to patrol the three WCPs in Poljine, manned by Serb soldiers.<sup>9647</sup> After 22 May 1992, Captain Drago banned the unit from patrolling, after which they were physically stopped by Bosnian-Serb soldiers and later anti-tank mines.<sup>9648</sup>

2261. On 26 May 1995, at approximately 2:15 p.m, the head of the UNPROFOR unit and another member of the unit met with Captain Drago at the Serb command post.<sup>9649</sup> Upon arrival, they were surrounded by six or seven VRS soldiers, wearing insignia of a Serbian flag with a yellow cross and four S's, pointing kalashnikov rifles and makarov pistols at them.<sup>9650</sup> Commander Vlado Medić, wearing black fatigues with Bosnian-Serb insignia, ordered the two members of the unit to surrender and hand over their weapons.<sup>9651</sup> Medić had been appointed to the rank of Major in the Koševo Brigade by the Brigade Commander, Miroslav Krajišnik, on 27 May 1992, and was Captain Drago's superior.<sup>9652</sup> Medić told the head of the UNPROFOR unit that they were taking hostages because NATO forces had bombed Pale, hitting a civilian hospital and killing people, and to recover Serb weapons under UNPROFOR control to prevent a Bosniak offensive.<sup>9653</sup> Two hours later, the Commander of the UNPROFOR 4th Infantry Battalion told the head of the UNPROFOR unit via radio communication that high-level negotiations were under way and that he should try to buy time while conveying explanations to the Serbs.<sup>9654</sup> The head of the UNPROFOR unit conveyed this information to Medić at the Serb post. Medić then made a phone call and returned very upset informing the head of the UNPROFOR unit that he would help them lay down their weapons faster. Medić then ordered a soldier from his unit to fire a rocket launcher. This soldier destroyed the watchtower of the UNPROFOR post. The UNPROFOR soldiers were in combat positions, and one of the armoured vehicles had moved to aim its gun towards the Serbs. This stand-off lasted ten minutes, during which Medić told the head of the UNPROFOR unit that if they did not lay down their arms, he would order his men to destroy the UNPROFOR tank and its crew of three.<sup>9655</sup> Captain Drago then arrived with five or six men, put a knife against the throat of the UNPROFOR unit's head while a soldier pointed a kalashnikov at his back, and other soldiers similarly threatened another member of the unit. Drago ordered the head of the UNPROFOR unit to lay down his weapons or he and the other member of the unit would be shot, and then said he would destroy the UNPROFOR post.<sup>9656</sup> He ordered one of his soldiers to fire at the UNPROFOR tank, at which point the head of the UNPROFOR unit surrendered his weapons and told the post to surrender.<sup>9657</sup>

2262. The UNPROFOR post was surrounded by approximately 50 Serb soldiers, while another 50 were close by. Some of them had been seen previously at Poljine, while the others whom Witness RM-403 had not seen before were better equipped, with kalashnikovs and rocket launchers.<sup>9658</sup> The soldiers were members of the VRS 3rd Infantry Brigade.<sup>9659</sup> 'Irregular militias' belonging to the Vasilje Vidovi, a.k.a. under the command of General Josipović, who was apparently in charge of most of the Northern Sarajevo sector.<sup>9661</sup> Witness RM-403 stated that the UNPROFOR soldiers' weapons and protection equipment were taken from them and they were not permitted to take any personal items. The head of the UNPROFOR unit informed Captain Drago that this was contrary to the Geneva Conventions, and Captain Drago replied through an interpreter that 'he could not care less'. Several of the UNPROFOR soldiers were kicked and punched by Serb soldiers to speed up their surrender.<sup>9662</sup>

2263. The UNPROFOR soldiers were driven in two Serb military trucks to the military hospital in Jagomir, Sarajevo, where they underwent medical examination and remained for two days.<sup>9663</sup> A senior Bosnian-Serb military official told them that if they remained calm everything would be alright, but that if they tried to escape they would be shot.<sup>9664</sup>

they were held in a small house.<sup>9669</sup> During the night of 28 to 29 May 1995, Bosnian-Serb Military Police took them to other locations.<sup>9670</sup> The soldiers transported to Doboj were then held at various positions and ‘very likely’ used as ‘human shields’ against eventual air attacks.<sup>9671</sup> Six soldiers were detained alone and three were handcuffed.<sup>9672</sup>

2265. Witness RM-403 stated that during the night of 28 May 1995, at approximately 10 p.m., the head of the UNPROFOR unit and a soldier named Ferry were taken to an ammunition depot in Doboj Town which also served as the command post for the area, where they were held for about a week.<sup>9673</sup> They were treated well, ate as the Serb soldiers did, and had one shower and one outing per day.<sup>9674</sup> While detained, the head of the UNPROFOR unit met with a Bosnian-Serb Captain in command there, and a colonel who introduced himself as the regional Commander-in-Chief, who asked if they were treated well and if they needed anything. One of the Serb soldiers told the head of the UNPROFOR unit that they feared NATO reprisals and that they would be handcuffed inside the depot in case of air strikes.<sup>9675</sup>

2266. The second group composed of UNMO and UNPROFOR personnel was transported to a Serb military police building in Bijeljina, where they were split up and detained at different military positions.<sup>9676</sup>

This group of armed men was commanded by a man with captain's insignia.<sup>9677</sup> The commander of the Frebat 4 unit requested to see Lieutenant Beauregard, the chief of the UNPROFOR armoured platoon, stationed on that day at the entrance of the barracks, and was transported there.<sup>9678</sup> Beauregard was outside his post talking with a Serb major, wearing a new uniform, a French bullet-proof jacket, and insignia of a major. According to the witness, the major was in command of all the troops.<sup>9679</sup> Beauregard informed the commander of the Frebat 4 unit that Pale had been bombarded for the second time and that the Serbs wanted to take a number of UNPROFOR soldiers stationed at the barracks to assess the damage.<sup>9680</sup> Beauregard refused to go to Pale and the major left.<sup>9681</sup> While the Frebat 4 Commander was away from his section, the major told the members of the Frebat 4 that part of the battalion was authorised to go to Pale without weapons or equipment. The commander refused to obey this order and told the major that he did not want to deal with him anymore.<sup>9682</sup> The man left and ordered his troops to take up combat positions.<sup>9683</sup> At around 4:30 p.m., an explosion was heard. The witness later learned that two vehicles had been destroyed at the entrance of the barracks.<sup>9684</sup> The Captain commanding the Serb armoured elements and the Major in charge of the Lukavica Military Police took part in the capture and threatened the members of the Frebat 4 unit with heavy weapons.<sup>9685</sup>

2268. Still on 26 May 1995, around 7:15 or 7:30 p.m., Indić, accompanied by a civilian holding a video camera, introduced himself and informed the Frebat members as well as Beauregard, who was also present, that they were VRS POWs.<sup>9686</sup> According to an Associated Press article dated 26 May 1995, Indić entered the UNPROFOR quarters unarmed, in order to negotiate. After Beauregard told Indić that he had orders not to surrender, Indić ordered the military police to fire at the building where the French soldiers were. After a while, the French surrendered.<sup>9687</sup> Indić provided a different account of the circumstances of the shooting and testified that upon receiving an order from the Corps Command duty officer to place the French contingent under control and remove their weapons and means of communication, he reached an agreement with the French commanding officer whereby the witness would provide him with an alibi in order for him to surrender. According to Indić, the shooting was prearranged with the French officer.<sup>9688</sup>

without their equipment, which then set off towards the off-limits area.<sup>9698</sup> The Frebat members were then transferred to Bileća, where they were guarded by members of the Military Police until 6 June 1995.<sup>9699</sup> The barracks seemed to be used as a training camp but the detainees noticed the presence of several guns and missiles.<sup>9700</sup> Witness RM-409 stated that the Frebat Commander was held in the Lukavica military police building with two UNMOs, who were Swedish and Norwegian.<sup>9701</sup> During his detention, the Frebat Commander was interrogated by Indić, the captain, and the major and was asked for personal information about his men.<sup>9702</sup> Serb soldiers threatened and beat the Frebat Commander during his detention.<sup>9703</sup>

2271. According to an UNPROFOR situation report, other UNPROFOR French soldiers were surrounded at various WCPs. In particular, on 27 May 1995, VRS members denied access and exit to 22 French soldiers at Bare, and to 21 French soldiers at Osijek.<sup>9704</sup> In addition, the VRS detained several soldiers at various OPs in Sarajevo: nine French soldiers at Krupaci and ten disarmed French soldiers at Rajlovac.<sup>9705</sup>

2272. Furthermore, the Trial Chamber received evidence about the detention of another group of French UNPROFOR soldiers stationed in an OP on the Vrbanja Bridge in the Sarajevo area. Witness RM-401 testified that on 27 May 1995, the Sierra Victor OP, located in a Serb area of Sarajevo, was tasked with keeping the Serbs and Bosnian Muslims apart, and in particular preventing the Serbs from gaining control of the Bosnian-Muslim symbols of authority, such as the Bosnian Presidency building.<sup>9706</sup>

2273. At 4:10 a.m. on 27 May 1995, a group of approximately 15 Bosnian-Serb assailants wearing UN helmets and protection gear carried out a rapid commando-type operation and took the head of the OP and his twelve fellow soldiers 'hostage', leaving two behind.<sup>9707</sup> Although it was dark at the OP except for a candle placed near the radio, most of the assailants appeared to be militia members under the command of Slavko Aleksić, a.k.a. Duke, while the rest were members of the VRS.<sup>9708</sup> Duvan Triković, a.k.a. Tuba, was Aleksić's deputy and Aleksić's men, about 60 to 80, operated within the area of responsibility of the VRS 3rd Battalion of the 1st Motorised Brigade.<sup>9709</sup> According to Reynaud Theunens, while a number of SRK reports suggest that SRS volunteer groups were acting independently, other documents confirmed that these groups were subordinated to or related to the Bosnian-Serb MUP.<sup>9710</sup> On 16 December 1993, Slavko Aleksić sent a request for ammunition to the Command of the VRS 3rd Battalion.<sup>9711</sup> Ratomir Maksimović testified that Slavko Aleksić never undertook any military action without the knowledge of the SRK Command.<sup>9712</sup>

2274. UNPROFOR detainees captured on the Vrbanja Bridge were threatened with death and held in solitary confinement at Lukavica.<sup>9718</sup>

2275. Witness RM-401 testified that the barracks were occupied by Serbs.<sup>9719</sup> Other French detainees were already there including 30 to 40 members of a platoon manning the Lukavica WCP, who all had been captured by the Serbs the previous day.<sup>9720</sup> While in the barracks, a member of the VRS who had accompanied the UNPROFOR soldiers to the Lukavica Barracks asked the head of the OP for his radio frequency to contact his superiors, but he refused.<sup>9721</sup> After being kept in a building for approximately three hours, the UNPROFOR soldiers were brought back to the Serb building aboard a military van and placed under the watch of soldiers wearing a variety of old military uniforms which appeared to be distinct from those of the soldiers who had taken them 'hostage'.<sup>9722</sup> They were then forced to put their hands on their necks, but while most of them were allowed to drop their hands, the head of the OP was required to remain in this position for hours; when he started to weaken, he was slapped. During their detention, many people entered the room and insulted them in Serbian.<sup>9723</sup> At the time, the head of the OP was not aware that French UNPROFOR troops had regained control of his OP on the morning of 27 May 1995.<sup>9724</sup> During the afternoon, the head of the OP was visited by a number of Serb soldiers whose age and demeanour indicated that they were high-ranking, and at one point he was taken to a corridor where he caught a glimpse of several officers in a meeting indicating that negotiations for an exchange were underway between the Serb authorities and UNPROFOR.<sup>9725</sup>

2276. A long time after his release, the head of the OP heard from a French soldier that at the time of his detention, Mladić was present around the building.<sup>9726</sup> During the detention, another French 'hostage' was brought in with a radio set to act as interpreter and the head of the OP was allowed to contact UNPROFOR.<sup>9727</sup> The detained

UNPROFOR soldiers were forced to wear Serb uniforms.<sup>9728</sup> At some point, five UNPROFOR soldiers were selected and led to the courtyard where they were to be exchanged.<sup>9729</sup> Two Serbs took the head of the OP and drove a vehicle around the building to be able to use it for the exchange away from the Bosnian line of fire.<sup>9730</sup> The Serbs were afraid that the Bosnians would fire at the vehicle and told the head of the OP that he would be held responsible if the armoured vehicle was destroyed.<sup>9731</sup> The vehicle left towards the UNPROFOR soldiers stationed in Vrbanja.<sup>9732</sup> There were about 100 people around the Lukavica Barracks, including soldiers and civilians, and everyone was on edge as the exchange attempt had failed.<sup>9733</sup> As the soldier who had acted as interpreter returned with his radio, the head of the OP was able to contact his superiors and explain that the situation was very tense and that he and the other hostages were threatened with death; thereafter he was punched and kneed by the two Serb soldiers.<sup>9734</sup>

2277. The Serbs had sent an armoured vehicle to retrieve the bodies of two Serbs killed in the course of UNPROFOR's retaking of the OP, and the head of the OP was threatened that if anything went wrong with this trip, he would be released into the Bosnian frontlines wearing a Serb army uniform.<sup>9735</sup> When the armoured vehicle returned, the head of the OP was taken towards the vehicle in the midst of the crowd and he saw two corpses being taken out of the vehicle.<sup>9736</sup> The two Serb soldiers took him back to the building where they tied him to another soldier with steel wire, as was done to the other French soldiers.<sup>9737</sup> They were then returned to the OP, where they were forced to kneel in the middle of the road, facing the Bosnian sector.<sup>9738</sup> The head of the OP heard the French interpreter translate a message indicating that if they did not comply with the Serbs' request, the two of them would be executed along with the other detainees.<sup>9739</sup> After ten minutes, the UNPROFOR soldiers were taken away and brought to various buildings throughout the night.<sup>9740</sup> In the course of the night, they were untied and brought to a Serb warehouse where they were tied up individually and remained for four to five hours.<sup>9741</sup>

2278. On 28 May 1995, the VRS Chief of Staff, Manojlo Milovanović, sent a report to the Bosnian-Serb President stating that the Krajina Corps 'took over' 57 UNPROFOR members, including French soldiers, from the IBK and that the HK Command took over 18 French UNPROFOR members from the SRK.<sup>9742</sup>

2279. Witness RM-401 testified that at 7 or 8 a.m. on 29 May 1995, the head of the OP and the other UNPROFOR soldiers were untied and were visited by some people, one of whom was a young woman, dressed in civilian attire who spoke French.<sup>9743</sup> She told them that the negotiations had not been conclusive and that the head of the OP and another French soldier were to be killed; she also told the head of the OP that he had to designate two French soldiers to be killed.<sup>9744</sup> She eventually left and no one was killed. A man described by the witness as a 'civilian' in a dark suit with a navy blue sailor's cap, known as 'Duke Alexis', arrived in a group but entered the room alone, struck the head of the OP on the temple with his dagger, and kicked the other French soldier who was in the room in the face.<sup>9745</sup> 'Alexis' left the room after a short while, and two VRS officers entered and assured the head of the OP that they would be handed over to the VRS.<sup>9746</sup>

The UNPROFOR soldiers were later transported to Lukavica, where they were received by a commander who read the Geneva Conventions to them, told them they would be treated as POWs, and assured them that as long as there were no NATO strikes, they would be safe.<sup>9747</sup> On 29 May 1995, two French soldiers were taken away, handcuffed for a few minutes to military equipment, and filmed by a Serb cameraman, and on 30 May 1995, the same was done to two other French soldiers; on the second occasion, the head of the OP acted as interpreter but was not filmed as he had a black eye.<sup>9748</sup> They were taken to the factory near the Lukavica Barracks, where each was asked three questions: (1) How do you feel?; (2) Are you afraid?; and (3) Are you well treated?.<sup>9749</sup> A Serb Orthodox priest, who said to represent the Red Cross, visited the French soldiers during their detention and brought them clothing, toiletries, and correspondence, including a letter from their superior; the priest also told the head of the OP not to recount what had happened to them on 27 and 28 May 1995.<sup>9750</sup> They remained in detention in Lukavica until 13 June 1995 and were treated well.<sup>9751</sup>

2281. Witness RM-055 testified that on 27 May 1995, Dragomir Milošević ordered that an UNPROFOR liaison officer who had come to Lukavica with a message for him be locked up with other ‘hostages’.<sup>9752</sup> Witness RM-120 testified that after 5 p.m. on the same day, Dragomir Milošević and Indić called Sector Sarajevo stating: ‘[i]f you surrender the four Serb prisoners to me, we might consider giving you the French ‘hostages’ in Vrbanja’.<sup>9753</sup> They then pretended to carry out summary executions of the captured soldiers.<sup>9754</sup>

2282. On 3 June 1995, UNPROFOR sent a protest letter to Dragomir Milošević concerning the Serb troops’ threats against the lives of French soldiers in their custody since 27 May 1995. It also specifically protested the Serb soldiers’ treatment of a lieutenant who was forced to kneel in the street at gunpoint and threatened to be killed if UNPROFOR refused to withdraw from its post at the Vrbanja Bridge. During a telephone conversation with an UNPROFOR soldier, Indić said ‘if you don’t stop the attack immediately, I will kill one of the French soldiers’.<sup>9755</sup>

6.5 Detention of UNPROFOR soldiers in Goražde

2283. Jonathon Riley testified that on 27 May 1995, based on a VRS Main Staff order, the commander of the DK, Milenko Živanović, ordered the 5th Podrinje Light Infantry Brigade Command to immediately capture and disarm UN soldiers located in the Sjenokos sector.<sup>9756</sup> Sjenokos is a mountain on the west bank of the Drina River above Goražde and three OPs were located there.<sup>9757</sup> Živanović also ordered the 5th Military Police Battalion to take over the captured UN soldiers and relocate them to various military locations in groups of one to four.<sup>9758</sup> Živanović ordered that the UN soldiers be treated as POWs in a correct manner throughout their capture and detention.<sup>9759</sup> Smith testified that on 27 May 1995 VRS soldiers captured 30 UNPROFOR soldiers from the Goražde area.<sup>9760</sup>

2284. Hugh Nightingale stated that the OP he was in command of in Goražde was positioned close to the Bosnian-Serb positions and that he became familiar with some of the Bosnian-Serb soldiers, including their Line Officer Captain Brane. After 22 May 1995, and more precisely at approximately 11 a.m. on the day after the bombardments in Pale, he was requested to meet with the local Bosnian-Serb Commander at their headquarters.<sup>9761</sup> When Nightingale attended the meeting, he observed an increased number of Bosnian-Serb soldiers and he saw a commander whom he had not previously encountered. The Commander told Nightingale that he was taking over the OP and that the witness should pack up as he and his troops would be taken to a safe area. When Nightingale responded that he would take his troops to his own headquarters in Goražde, he was told ‘You do not understand, you are coming with us to Višegrad, we can do it in two ways. With shooting or without’. Nightingale stated that he then returned to his OP and briefed his Corporal and staff, then briefed the watchkeeper at the headquarters by radio, and packed a kit. Bosnian-Serb troops then entered the OP without consent and Nightingale and his troops were escorted in two of their own armoured vehicles down the road, where they met up with two vehicles from OP7.<sup>9762</sup>

2285. Nightingale stated that further down the road to Višegrad he observed that all escape routes had been cut off by soldiers and obstructions, which led him to believe the operation was organised and planned. The road gave way under the vehicle holding Nightingale and his troops and it rolled down the hill. Five of Nightingale's troops and a Bosnian-Serb soldier were badly injured.<sup>9763</sup> Following the accident, Nightingale and his troops were transferred to the other armoured vehicles. Upon reaching the bottom of the hillside, Nightingale was introduced to Colonel Fortula, whom he believed to be the overall commander of the local VRS Brigade in the area. Colonel Fortula offered to take the injured to the Sokolac hospital but Nightingale declined.<sup>9764</sup>

2286. Nightingale and his troops were then taken to Višegrad at the Military Barracks, where they were processed and informed by Colonel Fortula that they were 'hostages'. A camera crew was present and filmed the men being fed. After the meal their personal belongings, protection kit, weapons, and other items were removed. Their UN ID numbers and names were recorded and they received medical care. The witness then went with Sergeant Warren to see Fortula in his office. Fortula asked Nightingale to guarantee the good behaviour of his soldiers and said that in return they would not be handcuffed and Nightingale agreed. In response to Nightingale's questions as to what would happen to them, Fortula only answered that it was outside his control. Nightingale was then taken to a room with the other troops and injured men. There were guards at the front of the building and seven or eight armed Bosnian Serbs in the room. A number of Bosnian-Serb television personnel were present with cameras, three or four of whom appeared to be civilian. Nightingale was asked to speak in front of television cameras and answered questions.<sup>9765</sup>

2287. At approximately 10 p.m., he and his troops were loaded into a truck. The injured were delivered to the Sokolac hospital and the remaining troops were put into pairs. The group then travelled by truck through Rogatica during the night, and the pairs were dropped off in areas of Bosnian-Serb troop concentration. Nightingale was dropped off with another member of his troops, at approximately 8 a.m., and taken to a building being used as a jail for Serbs. They were placed in guards accommodation. They were restricted in their movements and taken outside for fresh air only once. They stayed in the same room with access to an ablutions block whose windows were barred. The outer doors were locked, with no less than two guards in the room at all times. Four guards worked in rotation, with two carrying firearms.<sup>9766</sup> Nightingale and his co-detainees were kept there for six days, during which they were not threatened or assaulted. They were fed twice a day the same food as the guards.<sup>9767</sup>

2288. Riley testified that the 1st Battalion of the Royal Welch Fusiliers was deployed on the banks of the Drina River as part of the UNPROFOR mission and occupied OPs and checkpoints along the confrontation line.<sup>9768</sup> After the NATO air strikes on Pale on 25 and 26 May 1995 relations with the Serb side in Goražde deteriorated to the point that contact nearly ceased.<sup>9769</sup> Around noon on 26 May 1995, the witness received a radio message through an interpreter from Fortula who, according to the witness, was the Commander of the Goražde/Višegrad Light Mountain Brigade of the DK and responsible for liaising with UNPROFOR.<sup>9770</sup> Fortula informed the witness that Mladić had ordered him to shell the camp of the witness's troops if further NATO attacks were to take place, because the United Kingdom was a NATO member state.<sup>9771</sup> When the witness reported the message to the UNPROFOR headquarters in Sarajevo, he was told that the headquarters and UN commanders in Srebrenica, Tuzla, and Žepa had received similar messages.<sup>9772</sup> Mladić had a liaison officer present in Fortula's headquarters, Brane Šuka.<sup>9773</sup> The witness met with him regularly.<sup>9774</sup> According to the witness, Mladić may have passed orders directly through that liaison officer.<sup>9775</sup>

2289. Around 9 a.m. on 28 May 1995, the witness received another radio message from Fortula, through the same interpreter as two days earlier, requesting him to go to an important meeting at checkpoint 6 at 2 p.m. to discuss liaison, but he decided not to go because 'hostage-taking' in Sarajevo had started.<sup>9776</sup> Around 2 p.m. the same day, the witness found out that Major Jones, the commanding officer of one of the battalion's two companies, Company A, had received a message that OP6A, OP6, and OP7 had been invaded and surrounded by heavily armed Serbs. It became clear to Riley that the crews of those OPs were being detained, which led him to order the remaining OPs to withdraw. According to the witness, the detainees were allowed to collect their belongings and were escorted in their vehicles to Višegrad and from there through Rogatica to Zvornik.<sup>9777</sup>

2290. Soon after the attack on Company A, Company B on the east bank of the Drina River was attacked by the Serbs. OP1 was attacked and withdrew under fire; OP2 was overpowered by the Bosnian Serbs who took the crew into custody in a house behind the OP; OP3 withdrew as Bosnian-Serb and Bosnian-Muslim forces began to fight for possession of the ground where it was located; and the remaining OPs along the east bank withdrew.<sup>9778</sup> The witness's troops did not fight alongside ABiH forces and never became an ally of the Bosnian government, but handed over their positions to the ABiH forces as, according to the witness, the Bosnian-Serb attack violated the TEZ and the ABiH forces were entitled to defend their territory.<sup>9779</sup>

2291. Altogether, 33 of his soldiers were taken 'hostage' that day, although six who were injured were released thereafter.<sup>9780</sup> The witness learned from his soldiers who were taken 'hostage' that they had been organised in pairs and dropped off at military installations in groups of varying size in locations between Bileća and Zvornik, spanning approximately 200 kilometres in distance, and that they had been treated correctly throughout their capture and detention.<sup>9781</sup> At least one of the captured soldiers told the witness that he had been led to believe that he was a POW, and as far as the witness knew, his soldiers were treated as such.<sup>9782</sup> According to the witness, the OP2 crew maintained their weapons and radio contact until being taken to Bileća in the morning of 29 May 1995.<sup>9783</sup> The witness believed the 'hostage-taking' to be a tactic to prevent further NATO air strikes against the Bosnian Serbs.<sup>9784</sup>

6.6 Release of UN hostages

2293. On 28 May 1995, Milovanović sent a report to the Bosnian-Serb President in which he mentioned, inter alia, that the exchange of the captured UNPROFOR soldiers for VRS soldiers would be discussed within the framework of a general solution for the situation.<sup>9786</sup>

2294. On 29 May 1995, Mladić met with General De La Presle, who introduced himself as a representative of the French Government in Vlasenica.<sup>9787</sup> De La Presle specified that he did not represent the international community.<sup>9788</sup> De La Presle indicated that the French press reported Karadžić's statements that the 'POWs' were 'hostages and human shields'.<sup>9789</sup> He added that their release would be a political gesture which would be taken into account in the discussions concerning France's position on the nature of UNPROFOR's new mandate, humanitarian aid, air-strikes, and no-fly zones. De La Presle added that NATO's role was limited to a support role to UNPROFOR.<sup>9790</sup> De La Presle urged Mladić to immediately release the POWs.<sup>9791</sup>

2295. During a meeting held on 1 June 1995, Victor Bezrouchenko and Andrey Demurenko met with Marko Lugonja and Milenko Indić, both from the SRK. Lugonja and Indić both stressed that they were not authorised to make any decisions as to the issue of UN 'hostages' and detainees because these were to be taken at the highest political level. Lugonja indicated that the hostage situation would possibly be resolved in the following four or five days. Lugonja and Indić were of the opinion that the NATO air strikes against Bosnian Serbs were a de facto declaration of war, Serbs at large had lost their confidence in UNPROFOR after events in Slavonia, and UNPROFOR had effectively sided with Croats and Bosnians.<sup>9792</sup>

2296. On 2 and 6 June 1995, Karadžić ordered the VRS Main Staff to carry out the necessary preparations for the release of captured UNPROFOR members from various units.<sup>9793</sup> On 2 June, he ordered the release of 120 of them. This order further requested that the captured UNPROFOR members be gathered along with their personal weapons in the area of Pale. On 6 June, he ordered the release of 95 of them. This second order further requested that the captured UNPROFOR members be gathered along with their personal weapons by 1 p.m. on 7 June in the area of Bijeljina and Višegrad.<sup>9794</sup> They were to be handed over to the MUP, which was tasked to organise their transport to the FRY.<sup>9795</sup> The VRS was ordered to take maximum security measures and to submit a detailed report to the Bosnian-Serb President on the completed task.<sup>9796</sup> On 2 and 6 June 1995, in compliance with the orders from Karadžić, Mladić ordered the commands of various VRS corps to release a total of 215 UNPROFOR personnel detained in the Pale, Zvornik, Vlasenica, Bijeljina, and Višegrad sector.<sup>9797</sup> Mladić further ordered the commands of the SRK, DK, and IBK to hand over most of the detainees to various MUP organs of the Bosnian-Serb Republic.<sup>9798</sup> Mladić further ordered the VRS not to divulge any information on the status, number, or redeployment of the remaining captured UNPROFOR members and UNMOs.<sup>9799</sup>

2297. In a meeting held on 4 June 1995, General Janvier informed Mladić that all UN personnel held as ‘hostages’ by the VRS should be liberated immediately and their equipment returned in order to avoid the arrival of a multinational brigade tasked with increasing the security of UN personnel.<sup>9800</sup> In response, Mladić stated that the liberation of the POWs was directly linked to a guarantee that air strikes will not take place again in the future. Mladić requested the immediate ratification of an agreement with UNPROFOR stating that (i) the VRS would no longer threaten the life and security of UNPROFOR members; (ii) UNPROFOR would not engage any of its forces or air strikes against Serb objectives or territory; and (iii) upon signing of the agreement, all POWs would be liberated.<sup>9801</sup>

2298. In a report to various SRK units dated 8 June 1995, Colonel Marko Lugonja confirmed that the VRS had captured 367 UNPROFOR members and UNMOs, including 37 Russians who were released the day following their capture. The report stated that as of 8 June 1995, 230 UNPROFOR members had been released. The capture was condemned by 'the West'. The United Kingdom and France had started to send naval and land forces to support UN forces in Bosnia-Herzegovina and to potentially launch an operation which would free the captured UNPROFOR members and break the blockade of Sarajevo. The suspected aims of the operation were to liberate the captured UN members; to capture the VRS members to exchange as hostages; and to capture Butmir airport and to break the blockade of Sarajevo by force along the Igman-Sarajevo and Kiseljak-Sarajevo axes.<sup>9802</sup> Ten to twelve thousand troops were preparing to carry out the operation, which was to start suddenly and be carried out in several stages. Many troops had already been dispatched to the Adriatic. In the event of an operation to free the 'hostages' using special troops and helicopter airborne assaults, the NATO combat Air Force would carry out support activities including air surveillance, 'cleansing and softening' of the assault area, and providing immediate fire support to the troops.<sup>9803</sup> According to Lugonja's sources, a special formation of approximately 5,000 men had been established to liberate the captured UN members. The media were demonizing Serbs to justify possible military engagement against them.<sup>9804</sup> The liberated UN members were to be transferred to Croatia, Italy, and onto ships in the Adriatic. UNPROFOR was to be reinforced by extra troops from France, the United Kingdom, USA, Germany, and Turkey regardless of the fate of the hostages.<sup>9805</sup>

2299. During a meeting held in Pale on 8 June 1995, Karadžić referred to the release of 'POWs' as 'a great thing'.<sup>9806</sup> On 10 June 1995, Mladić met with Momčilo Perišić, who conveyed to Mladić that Slobodan Milošević indicated that he wanted the release of the rest of the 'POWs'.<sup>9807</sup>

2300. In a letter dated 12 June 1995 addressed to General Janvier, Mladić asked for the release of four members of the VRS, as the VRS had already released 231 UN personnel.<sup>9808</sup>

2301. According to an order dated 13 June 1995, Karadžić ordered the release of all captured UNPROFOR and UNMOs on that day, the hand-over of the detainees to Jovica Stanišić, and the restitution of their personal effects and weapons but excluded the release of 15 UNMOs, set to be released on 18 June 1995.<sup>9809</sup> Also on 13 June 1995, a total of 18 UNPROFOR soldiers and eight UNMOs detained by the VRS were released in Novi Sad: 14 French, six British, two Polish, one Russian, one Norwegian, one Swedish, and one Czech.<sup>9810</sup> According to an UNPROFOR cable, out of the 15 detained UNMOs who had yet to be released, nine were last seen in Pale on 13 June 1995, four were at the Jaharina radar station<sup>9811</sup> on 13 June 1995, whereas the whereabouts of two UNMOs from the Banja Luka Team were unknown.<sup>9812</sup> During the 51st session of the Bosnian-Serb Assembly held on 14-15 June 1995, Karadžić, referring to the detention of UN personnel, stated: '[W]e ordered the arrest, we didn't go into detail as to when they would be tied up, but it had a good effect, it was very shocking for the world [...]'.<sup>9813</sup> Concerning the release of the detained UN personnel, he added: '[We] couldn't let them all go at once, but in proportions, we even left 15 until the end of this week so we could keep the weapons we have in Sarajevo, knowing about the offensive and planning to do something in Sarajevo'.<sup>9814</sup>

2303. Smith testified that the ‘hostages’ were released in stages between 2 and 18 June 1995.<sup>9819</sup> Witness RM-120 testified that on 2 June 1995, 63 ‘hostages’ were released.<sup>9820</sup> Harland testified that 120 ‘hostages’ were released by 3 June 1995.<sup>9821</sup> Around 3 June 1995, following a meeting of the ‘VRS Supreme Command’, a press release was issued presenting the ‘hostage-taking’ of UN personnel as an act of self-defence and stating that the ‘hostages’ as well as the surrounded UN personnel would remain under VRS control until the UN guaranteed the end of air strikes. A few days later, Karadžić said that any attempt to liberate the ‘hostages’ would result in bloodshed.<sup>9822</sup> On 7 June 1995, another 111 detained UN personnel were released, with another 150 remaining under Serb control.<sup>9823</sup> According to an UNPROFOR daily report to the UNSC, 58 Ukrainian, 17 British, two Spanish, and one Brazilian, were among the released detainees.<sup>9824</sup> Banbury testified that on 7 June 1995 at a UN briefing it was reported that 108 ‘hostages’ had been released on the previous day.<sup>9825</sup> According to an UNPROFOR weekly situation report, 11 Canbat personnel and UNMO ‘hostages’ detained by the Bosnian Serbs were released in Pale on 18 June 1995 in exchange for four Bosnian-Serb soldiers held by UNPROFOR.<sup>9826</sup> On 17 and 18 June 1995, the Serbs released the last 26 UNPROFOR ‘hostages’.<sup>9827</sup> Harland testified that the last UNPROFOR ‘hostages’ were released by 24 June 1995.<sup>9828</sup> their capture told them to prepare their kit for departure.<sup>9829</sup> The officer then returned with four other guards, blindfolded Nightingale and his fellow ‘hostage’, and placed them in the back of the troop carrier. The troop carrier picked up four of Nightingale’s troops as well as the injured men from the hospital, and the group was taken to a police station in what Nightingale believes was Višegrad.<sup>9830</sup> They were handed over to Serb authorities and driven over the border, where they met Stanišić. They were then driven by coach to Novi Sad where they met the Chargé d’affaires from the British Embassy in Belgrade, Ivor Roberts, and subsequently they were flown back to the United Kingdom.<sup>9831</sup>

2305. Witness RM-403 provided evidence about the release of French UNPROFOR soldiers. On 5 June 1995, Bosnian-Serb military policemen returned the head of the UNPROFOR unit and a soldier named Ferry, detained at the Doboj ammunition depot (in this respect, see the witness’s evidence reviewed in chapter 6.4), to a house on the outskirts of Doboj.<sup>9832</sup> In this house, they were reunited with the other 13 UNPROFOR soldiers, who had also been transported from the Bijeljina barracks to Doboj with them.<sup>9833</sup> They further heard that they had all been held at military sites, including hospitals, command posts, artillery firing positions, and ammunition depots.<sup>9834</sup> On 6 June, they were transported to Bijeljina in a Bosnian-Serb military bus, carrying Ukrainian soldiers, and then towards the Serbian border in a Serbian Special Forces bus. They were joined by another bus with UNPROFOR soldiers from the 4th Infantry Battalion taken hostage at Lukavica, and under guard of three or four Serbian Special Forces soldiers.<sup>9835</sup> The head of the UNPROFOR unit also learned that six UNPROFOR soldiers who had remained in Bijeljina had been released earlier.<sup>9836</sup> They crossed into Serbia at the Zvornik bridge and were received in Novi Sad by Colonel Philippe, Commander-in-Chief of Serbian Special Forces, who told them they were free and guests of Serbia.<sup>9837</sup>

2306. The second group of French soldiers from the Poljine WCP were brought back to Bijeljina on 2 June 1995 and brought to Zvornik, Novi Sad, and Belgrade while the members of the first group were all reunited in Dobož on 5 June 1995.<sup>9838</sup> The French soldiers from the OP Sierra Victor, detained at the Lukavica Barracks, were released on 13 June 1995. One member was released on 27 May 1995, one escaped during the night of 28 May 1995, and the remaining ten were released on 14 June 1995.<sup>9839</sup>

2307. With regard to the release of the Frebat Commander and two UNMOs, Witness RM-409 stated that on 2 June 1995, the Commander of the military police asked the Frebat Commander and the two UNMOs detained in the building of the military police in Lukavica to gather their belongings and to get onboard a bus already filled with members of Beauregard's platoon. Indić and Brane were present. The Frebat Commander refused to board without his men and was taken to the building located at the entrance of the barracks where he was detained.<sup>9840</sup> On 6 June, a 'Serb regular militiaman' and a 'civilian' drove the Frebat Commander to Pale in a civilian vehicle where he was temporarily held in a 'container' with two UNMOs who were Spanish and Brazilian respectively. Later, the three of them were taken in a small army van to the Serbian border and eventually released in Novi Sad.<sup>9841</sup> The Frebat Commander remained in Lukavica until 7 June 1995.<sup>9842</sup>

2308. With regard to the release of Ukrainian UNPROFOR soldiers, Vishnevski stated that on 6 June 1995, all soldiers who were taken 'hostage' were brought together again to Banja Luka and from there transferred to Novi Sad where they boarded a plane for Zagreb.<sup>9843</sup>

2309. Finally, with regard to the release of UNMOs, the Trial Chamber received evidence from a number of witnesses. According to Kalbarczyk, between 2 and 4 June 1995, Mladić and a number of other individuals, all in civilian clothing, briefly visited the detained UNMOs.<sup>9844</sup> The detainees were filmed by the same journalist and the same cameraman, who had previously filmed them during their detention.<sup>9845</sup> Later on, Captain Vojvodić drove the detainees to their respective accommodations and offices so that they could retrieve some of their belongings and call their relatives.<sup>9846</sup> Rechner testified that in the guard house at the Koran Military Barracks, the detained UNMOs were provided food and water, but not permitted to meet with a doctor until 5 June 1995; on 8 June 1995 the UNMOs were finally visited by delegates of the ICRC, following which they received clothing and toiletry, and on 10 June they could call home.<sup>9847</sup> Gelissen stated that following the ICRC visit, they were also allowed to write messages, which were checked by Vojvodić's superiors, to their next of kin. During the doctor's visit, five of the detainees were found to be in a bad condition.<sup>9848</sup> Rechner testified that Bolajić, the President of the Bosnian-Serb Exchange Commission, stated that they were official POWs because they were combatants, with which the witness disagreed since they were not involved in any hostilities.<sup>9849</sup> Several witnesses testified that UNMOs Romero and Huelin were released in early June due to their bad health.<sup>9850</sup>

2310. Kalbarczyk testified that on 13 June 1995, Captain Vojvodić informed the detainees about their upcoming release.<sup>9851</sup> Kalbarczyk last saw Evans, Rechner, and Zidlik at the barracks in Pale on 13 June.<sup>9852</sup> Shortly after, he was taken to the Pale police station and then placed in a nearby container where other UN military personnel, including Kozusnik and Wojtasiak, were also waiting to be released.<sup>9853</sup> Helgers stated that Wojtasiak was released on 13 June 1995.<sup>9854</sup> Gelissen stated that on 13 and 14 June 1995, four UNMOs, Mohamad Al Lawwama, Jotham Njagi, Jarmo Laine, and Guy Schandeler, were brought to the police station.<sup>9855</sup> Evans stated that on 15 June 1995, two UNMOs from the Banja Luka Team arrived.<sup>9856</sup> Helgers stated that they were joined by Westlund, Bello, and Kratky, who had previously been driven from the Jahorina radar station to a hotel complex on the hill where they met Major Manzoor. They were taken to the military police station in Pale, near the Koran hospital, and were given uniforms.<sup>9857</sup> The witness was given a Dutch uniform, which was not his.<sup>9858</sup> Kalbarczyk testified that Wojtasiak told him that he had been kept at the Jahorina radar station during the entire period of his captivity. Approximately four hours later, special police forces from the FRY, wearing red berets, arrived on two buses. They called the names of the detainees who could board the buses.<sup>9859</sup> The buses then drove to Novi Sad where they were taken to a holiday resort.<sup>9860</sup> During the trip and overnight stay, the detainees remained under the custody of the Serbian army.<sup>9861</sup> The next morning the detainees left Novi Sad for Belgrade and from there they were flown to Zagreb on UN airplanes.<sup>9862</sup>

UNMOs and one Polish UNMO from his team were released.<sup>9863</sup> At the school, the witness and the other 'POWs' were escorted by the chief of the Serb Special Forces, a Colonel, and by ten soldiers in red berets to Belgrade where he was released to fly to Zagreb.<sup>9864</sup> Evans stated that Bello, Kratky, Laine, Al Lawwama, Njagi, Schandeler, and Helgers were also released on that day.<sup>9865</sup>

On 15 June 1995, Rechner met with Koljević who told him that the extremely high magnitude of the crisis precipitated by the bombing warranted the response of the Bosnian-Serb government to take UN peacekeepers hostage.<sup>9866</sup> He also said that the plan was to evacuate all detainees to Belgrade but that their release was delayed due to some technical difficulties.<sup>9867</sup>

2313. On 17 June 1995, Evans and the remaining detainees were informed by Vojvodić of their potential release. Alongside eleven Canadian UN soldiers, Evans and the remaining detainees were taken to the Koran hospital and visited by Koljević. While being filmed by the local TV crew, Koljević confirmed their release and apologized for what had happened.<sup>9868</sup> They were then taken to Novi Sad and from there by plane to Zagreb.<sup>9869</sup>

They were taken to the Pale police station where Koljević made a speech to Pale TV explaining why the Bosnian Serbs had taken 'hostages'.<sup>9870</sup> Helgers stated that Koljević explained that he was sorry that they were forced to take them, that they were going to be released to the Serb government, and that he hoped it would not be necessary to do such a thing again.<sup>9871</sup> Later on, Lieutenant-Colonel Indić arrived to release them; he and a man from the Serb security

6.7 The Trial Chamber's findings

2315. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that between 25 and 27 May 1995, VRS officers and soldiers and, in one case, a police commander and police officers wearing violet uniforms surrounded or arrested several UNMOs stationed in Pale and in the Sarajevo area. Some of these arrests were ordered by the VRS Command or the Bosnian-Serb Presidency. The UNMOs arrested by police officers were then placed in VRS custody. The VRS detained the UNMOs until 18 June 1995 and tied them with chains or handcuffs, and at times at gunpoint, to various strategic locations which were potential targets of, or targets that had previously been hit by, NATO air strikes. These were located in and around the Koran military Barracks in Pale, for example inside the ammunition bunker complex in Jahorinski Potok, the Jahorina radar site, and a bridge leading to Pale.<sup>9879</sup> The UNMOs remained there while NATO planes were flying above them and were filmed, inter alia, by VRS soldiers and officers. VRS soldiers and personnel and police officers made various threats to the detainees' lives on several occasions, including at the time of their arrest and immediately before that. The threats were made directly to the UNMOs as well as to UNMO headquarters, to exert leverage over NATO in order to secure the end of air strikes. Lieutenant-Colonel Indić was in charge of all detained UNMOs in the Sarajevo area. Major Batinić and his subordinate, Captain Vojvodić, both VRS officers,<sup>9880</sup> were in charge of the UNMOs detained at the Koran military Barracks. On one occasion, Captain Vojvodić sent back the soldiers who had made threats to the life of the UNMOs.

2316. The Trial Chamber further finds that between 25 and 28 May 1995, VRS members, including members of the military police, and, in some cases in the presence of militias such as the Vasilje Vidović a.k.a. Vasko gang and men under the command of Slavko Aleksić a.k.a. Duke, and members of the regular police forces captured UNPROFOR soldiers. The captured soldiers included approximately 30 soldiers from the Ukrainian 240th battalion, manning inter alia the Zaria and Palub checkpoints around Ilidža, French soldiers stationed in various OPs and WCPs around Sarajevo, and soldiers stationed in various OPs in Goražde. The VRS Main Staff more particularly ordered the capture of the UNPROFOR soldiers in the Goražde area. The Ukrainian UNPROFOR soldiers and the soldiers stationed in the Goražde area were disarmed by their captors who resorted at times to threats with the force of arms to compel them to comply. The Bosnian-Serb military police detained 14 of the Ukrainian UNPROFOR soldiers at a military compound in Banja Luka until 6 June 1995. The French UNPROFOR soldiers were placed under the custody of the VRS, including the military police, and held in different military positions until 24 June 1995, including at the Dobož ammunition depot, in Bileća, at the Lukavica Barracks, and in the military police building in Lukavica. VRS forces detained the UNPROFOR soldiers captured in the Goražde area for approximately a week at different military installations in Višegrad and between Bileća and Zvornik. Živanović ordered that the UNPROFOR soldiers captured in the Goražde area be treated as POWs. The Bosnian-Serb military police informed other UNPROFOR soldiers that they were being held as POWs, exposed them to intimidation techniques, and made threats to their lives during their detention. During their detention, some of the UNPROFOR soldiers were handcuffed to military equipment and, in some cases, filmed. Others were used as shields to allow the VRS to cross Bosnian lines of fire or, after being placed at potential NATO targets, to exert leverage over NATO to stop air strikes. VRS soldiers and officers, including Indić, threatened the lives of some of the UNPROFOR detainees on several occasions during their capture. They also threatened the lives of some of these detainees during their detention, including during an exchange attempt. VRS soldiers further told the detainees that they would be killed if the NATO air strikes were to continue. The Trial Chamber further finds that Dragomir Milošević and Indić pretended to carry out executions of the detainees during a conversation with UNPROFOR officials to obtain their withdrawal from their position as well as to secure an exchange with Serb prisoners. The Trial Chamber finds that some of the UNPROFOR detainees were captured because of the NATO bombing of Pale while others were captured in order to recover Serb weapons under UNPROFOR control. Based on the overall evidence on the capture and detention of UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel during that period and the circumstances of their release, the Trial Chamber finds that the UNPROFOR soldiers captured in the Goražde area were detained pursuant to the 27 May 1995 VRS Main Staff order and to prevent further NATO air strikes against Bosnian Serbs.

2317. The Trial Chamber will further consider the above mentioned incidents in relation to Count 11 of the Indictment in chapter 8 below.

2318. The Trial Chamber will address the evidence related to the alleged fourth JCE and, in particular, the Accused's alleged responsibility (some of which has been reviewed above in this chapter) in chapter 9.

7.1 The take-over of the Srebrenica enclave

2319. In this chapter, the Trial Chamber will review the evidence and make findings concerning the lead-up to the fall of the Srebrenica enclave. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to these events. It further received evidence from Richard Butler, an intelligence research specialist;<sup>9881</sup> Mujo Subašić, a Bosnian Muslim from Podžeplje, Han Pijesak Municipality, who worked as a nurse in the Srebrenica Hospital from April 1993 until 11 July 1995;<sup>9882</sup> Pyers Tucker, a British army officer, who served with UNPROFOR as military assistant to General Philippe Morillon from October 1992 to March 1993;<sup>9883</sup> Ratko Nikolić, from the Serb village Opravdići close to Kravica;<sup>9884</sup> Momir Deurić, member of the Vlasenica TO until the beginning of the war in 1992 and assigned to providing security for one of the TO facilities in Sušica from April to September 1992;<sup>9885</sup> Witness RM-306, a Serb from Bratunac;<sup>9886</sup> Robert Franken, the Deputy Commanding Officer of DutchBat in Potočari from 15 January to late July 1995;<sup>9887</sup> Momir Nikolić, the Assistant Commander for Intelligence and Security of the Bratunac Brigade from November 1992 to at least October 1995;<sup>9888</sup> Pieter Boering, a former DutchBat Major who served as liaison officer with the VRS and ABiH in Srebrenica from 3 January to July 1995;<sup>9889</sup> Eelco Koster, a member of DutchBat;<sup>9890</sup> as well as documentary evidence; and finds that this evidence is consistent with the Adjudicated Facts.<sup>9891</sup> The two kilometres long.<sup>9901</sup> Before the war, many of Srebrenica's residents worked in the factories at Potočari, a few kilometres north of Srebrenica, or in the zinc and bauxite mines to the south and northeast of the town.<sup>9902</sup> In 1991, the population of the Srebrenica municipality was 37,000, of which 73 per cent were Muslim and 25 per cent were Serb.<sup>9903</sup>

2322. In May 1992, a group of Bosnian-Muslim fighters under the leadership of Naser Orić managed to recapture Srebrenica.<sup>9909</sup> Over the next several months, Orić and his men pressed outward in a series of raids.<sup>9910</sup> By September 1992, Bosnian-Muslim forces from Srebrenica had linked up with those in Žepa, a Muslim-held town to the south of Srebrenica.<sup>9911</sup> Mujo Subašić stated that the Commander of the ABiH Žepa Brigade was Avdo Palić.<sup>9912</sup>

‘genocide of the Serbian people’.<sup>9914</sup> To prevent this, he had decided to launch offensive operations, describing that the aim of all VRS units was to launch offensive operations ‘to crush large HVO and Muslim groups in the territory of RS and force them into unconditionally surrendering their weapons, or destroy them’.<sup>9915</sup> He ordered, inter alia, that DK forces in the wider Podrinje region should exhaust the enemy, ‘inflict the heaviest possible losses on them and force them to leave the Birač, Žepa, and Goražde areas with the Muslim population’.<sup>9916</sup> Mladić further ordered that the units should ‘first offer the disarming of able-bodied and armed men, and if they refuse, destroy them.’<sup>9917</sup> In accordance with a decision of 24 November 1992, signed by Milenko Živanović of the DK and sent to the Commander of the Zvornik Light Infantry Brigade, various units were ordered to launch an attack aimed at inflicting the highest possible losses on the enemy, and forcing the ‘Muslim local population to abandon the areas of Cerska, Žepa, Srebrenica, and Goražde’.<sup>9918</sup> The Bratunac Light Infantry Brigade was instructed to consolidate the Fakovići Battalion and give it the task to penetrate as deep as possible into the area of Srebrenica and attack the enclave.<sup>9919</sup> Before initiating any kind of operation, the respective unit members were to be informed about the ‘crucial importance’ of the operation for ‘the realisation of the aim of the Serbian people, namely, the creation and establishment of a Serbian state’.<sup>9920</sup>

2324. By January 1993, the Srebrenica enclave had been expanded to include the Bosnian Muslim-held enclave of Cerska located to the west of Srebrenica.<sup>9921</sup> At this time the enclave reached its peak size of 900 square kilometres, although it was never linked to the main area of Bosnian-held land in the west and remained an island amid Serb-controlled territory.<sup>9922</sup> Pyers Tucker testified that during a meeting with Major Pandurević on 7 February 1993, he saw maps on Pandurević’s office wall detailing the VRS’s advance on the eastern enclaves.<sup>9923</sup> These demonstrated the progressive ‘squeezing’ of the enclaves through rings marked on the maps with correlating dates, the first date being 7 February 1993.<sup>9924</sup> The witness described the ‘Bosnian-Serb method’ as the following pattern: first a small number of villages were shelled, then after two or three days some infantry, a couple of tanks, and APCs attacked; however by the time of such attacks the civilian population had mostly left due to the previous shelling.<sup>9925</sup>

2325. The witness was shown the ‘Directive for further operations of the Army of Republika Srpska’ dated 19 November 1992 and signed by Mladić and testified that it accorded with the maps that he had seen in Pandurević’s office, depicting the first offensive which appeared to have been launched on 7 February 1993.<sup>9926</sup> Tucker further explained that while the Bosnian-Muslim attacks on Serb civilians had certainly enraged the Bosnian Serbs, the orders show that the VRS had envisaged and planned an offensive well before February 1993 with the aim to capture and eradicate the eastern enclaves.<sup>9927</sup>

2326. Another set of documents shown to Tucker about various shelling incidents accorded with his observations of the use of heavy artillery against fleeing civilians.<sup>9928</sup> A ‘combat order for the liberation of Kamenica, Cerska, and Konjević Polje’ sent from the DK Command to its brigades on 1 February 1993, further supported the offensive portrayed on the maps hung in Pandurević’s office.<sup>9929</sup> According to the order ‘the enemy’s morale has been rather shaken for the following reasons: [...] the impossibility of normal living conditions due to the constant firing of our artillery’ which in the witness’s view referred to the use of artillery against civilians.<sup>9930</sup>

2327. An assessment of the situation in the Srebrenica enclave sent from the ABiH Command ‘Main Kiseljak’ to ‘HQ UNPROFOR Zagreb’ and dated 15 March 1993 stated that systematic cleansing of the Srebrenica enclave had been ‘going on full force’ since at least the beginning of March 1993 and possibly as early as January of that year and that the Muslim forces were unlikely to be able to stop a concerted advance.<sup>9931</sup>

Tucker explained that he and Morillon only learned later that the plan to seize the eastern enclaves had already been ordered in November 1992.<sup>9932</sup>

2328. During his travels to eastern Bosnia, Tucker observed that in parts of the enclaves houses of the fleeing population had been burned down by Bosnian-Serb forces.<sup>9933</sup> Specifically he witnessed this happening in the area around Srebrenica and a number of villages in the Srebrenica pocket.<sup>9934</sup>

2329. In January 1993, Bosnian-Muslim forces attacked the Bosnian-Serb village of Kravica.<sup>9935</sup> Over the next few months, the Bosnian Serbs responded with a counter-offensive, eventually capturing the villages of Konjević Polje and Cerska, severing the link between Srebrenica and Žepa and reducing the size of the Srebrenica enclave to 150 square kilometres.<sup>9936</sup> Bosnian-Muslim residents of the outlying areas converged on Srebrenica Town and its population swelled to between 50,000 and 60,000 people.<sup>9937</sup> According to a UNSC report dated 30 April 1993 on the UNSC mission to Srebrenica, on 25 April 1993, Srebrenica Town had a population of approximately 20,000 to 28,000 people in April 1993 of whom between 8,000 and 10,000 were locals and the remainder were displaced persons from the surrounding villages.<sup>9938</sup> The whole enclave was overcrowded and held 70,000 people.<sup>9939</sup>

Conditions in Srebrenica Town

2330. By March 1993, the advancing Bosnian-Serb forces had destroyed the town's water supplies and there was almost no running water.<sup>9940</sup> People relied on makeshift generators for electricity.<sup>9941</sup> Food, medicine, and other essentials were extremely scarce.<sup>9942</sup> Tucker testified that during a meeting with Morillon on 8 March 1993 with inter alios Gvero; Raković, Chef de Cabinet to Karadžić; Kovadević; and Ratko Adžić, Minister of the Interior in Pale, a cease fire was agreed around Konjević Polje for a military convoy to pass through to evacuate civilians who had been injured during the fall of Cerska in early March 1993.<sup>9943</sup> In addition, Gvero authorised a humanitarian aid convoy to go to Srebrenica on 11 March 1993 on the condition that the ABiH would stop attacks in other areas.<sup>9944</sup> Tucker learned from the ABiH Command headquarters and British officers accompanying the convoy that upon arrival of the military convoy in Konjević Polje during the night of 11 March 1993, it was surrounded by local Bosnian Muslims who demanded a cease-fire and prevented the convoy to move.<sup>9945</sup> The crowd was still gathered around the convoy in the morning of 12 March 1993 when Bosnian-Serb forces started to attack the village, firing directly into the crowd, and killing and injuring many people.<sup>9946</sup> The remainder of the convoy was escorted back to Zvornik the following day.<sup>9947</sup>

2331. By March 1993, when French General Philippe Morillon, the Commander of UNPROFOR, visited Srebrenica, the town was overcrowded and siege conditions prevailed.<sup>9948</sup> Before leaving, General Morillon told the residents of Srebrenica at a public gathering that the town was under the protection of the UN and that he would never abandon them.<sup>9949</sup> Between March and April 1993, approximately 8,000 to 9,000 Bosnian Muslims were evacuated from Srebrenica under the auspices of the UNHCR.<sup>9950</sup> The evacuations were, however, opposed by the Bosnian-Muslim government in Sarajevo as contributing to the 'ethnic cleansing' of the territory.<sup>9951</sup>

2332. Tucker reported to his headquarters in Zagreb on 18 March 1993 that there were craters along the main refugee routes which confirmed the claims of the people having been shelled while fleeing.<sup>9952</sup> The witness reported on 19 March 1993, that a multiple rocket launcher fired and hit Srebrenica at 2:45 p.m., killing two people and wounding three children, all Bosnian-Muslim civilians.<sup>9953</sup> On 20 March 1993, Morillon and the witness accompanied a convoy with 673 women, children and about 100 wounded people from Srebrenica to Bratunac.<sup>9954</sup> After Bosnian-Serb soldiers searched the convoy and checked whether any men were among the people on it, the convoy continued towards Tuzla and Morillon and the witness returned to Srebrenica.<sup>9955</sup>

2333. According to a UNSC report dated 30 April 1993 on the UNSC mission to Srebrenica, on 25 April 1993, Srebrenica had no sanitation or basic medical assistance.<sup>9956</sup> The Bosnian-Serbs did not allow surgeons to enter the city although there were many wounded requiring surgery.<sup>9957</sup> Many people were sleeping on the streets, which were also used as toilet facilities.<sup>9958</sup> More than 50 per cent of the town's houses and public facilities had been damaged or destroyed, a situation which the report described as hazardous with the potential to lead to epidemics.<sup>9959</sup> The mutilated remains of 15 children who had been killed by mortar fire while playing soccer at school in the beginning of April 1993 were still scattered in the area two weeks later.<sup>9960</sup> According to the report, the Bosnian-Serbs were determined to show their effective control of the town and that it was at their mercy.<sup>9961</sup> They constantly harassed humanitarian aid convoys and helicopters that flew out the wounded and sick.<sup>9962</sup> Srebrenica was described in the report as 'the equivalent of an open jail in which its people can wander around but are controlled and terrorized by the increasing presence of Serb tanks and other heavy weapons in its immediate surroundings' and was described by the UNHCR representative as a 'bad refugee camp'.<sup>9963</sup> The Bosnian-Serbs only allowed the departure of the sick, wounded, and dependent women and children.<sup>9964</sup>

2334. Subašić stated that from April 1993 until January 1995, basic commodities such as water, food, detergent, and soap were in insufficient supply, resulting in epidemics and causing starvation of the population of Srebrenica Town.<sup>9965</sup> In particular, in April 1993 Srebrenica Hospital staff had no medicine, including no antibiotics, and had to make bandages out of sheets and re-use gauzes.<sup>9966</sup> Around the end of 1993 or beginning of 1994, MSF and the ICRC provided basic medical supplies and electricity to the hospital using ICRC generators.<sup>9967</sup> Between 1993 and 1995, the food and supply convoys were insufficient.<sup>9968</sup> Razija Pašagić stated that people in Srebrenica were starving during this time.<sup>9969</sup> Food only became available when international organisations began delivering relief parcels.<sup>9970</sup> Some people died due to injuries from fighting over the food parcels.<sup>9971</sup> By early 1995, fewer and fewer supply convoys were making it through to the Srebrenica enclave.<sup>9972</sup> The already meagre resources of the civilian population dwindled further, and even UN forces started running low on food, medicine, fuel, and ammunition.<sup>9973</sup> Eventually, the peacekeepers had so little fuel that they were forced to start patrolling the enclave on foot.<sup>9974</sup> By February 1995, the restriction of international convoys impacted the rotation and readiness of DutchBat troops and caused further deterioration of the humanitarian situation in the Srebrenica enclave.<sup>9975</sup> DutchBat soldiers who went out of the area on leave were not allowed to return and their numbers dropped from 600 to 400 men.<sup>9976</sup> The military capability of DutchBat was hampered by the VRS's refusal to allow soldiers re-entry into the enclave after their leave.<sup>9977</sup>

2335. Pieter Boering estimated that during the first few months of 1995 there were 30,000 people living in the enclave.<sup>9978</sup> Water supply was limited, resulting in poor sanitation, and people had scant access to medical care, with health professionals having limited medical equipment.<sup>9979</sup> There was only one hospital in Srebrenica supported by MSF and a few local doctors' stations, so people went to Tuzla for additional medical treatment.<sup>9980</sup> Franken testified that at some point around March 1995, MSF stopped providing medical care because of a conflict with the Srebrenica Town authorities, but

DutchBat continued to provide medical care until it was unable to operate its mobile medical stations due to lack of fuel.<sup>9981</sup> Subašić stated that the inhabitants of Srebrenica had just enough to survive, felt helpless, desperate, and desolate, and wanted to leave.<sup>9982</sup> Witness RM-311 testified that from May to July 1995, the living conditions for her family in Srebrenica were difficult as they had very little food and clothing.<sup>9983</sup> In 1995, representatives of the ICRC and UNHCR told Momir Nikolić that the situation in Srebrenica was terrible as those in the enclave suffered from contagious diseases and lice.<sup>9984</sup>

2336. Subašić stated that in 1995, the number of convoys decreased, resulting in a decrease in the medical supplies provided by the ICRC and MSF.<sup>9985</sup> The witness heard from a hospital staff member in charge of food supplies and, on a separate occasion from a woman from MSF, that the Serbs sometimes stopped convoys, preventing them from entering Srebrenica, or would only allow trucks with one kind of supply, for instance soybeans, to enter Srebrenica.<sup>9986</sup> Boering testified that the population of Srebrenica wished to leave the enclave as early as May or June 1995.<sup>9987</sup> Between May and July 1995, the situation deteriorated considerably and the number of relief supplies that UNHCR brought in for the population decreased due to increasing threats from the VRS, including more shootings, as well as a growing number of ‘refugees’.<sup>9988</sup>

UN safe areas and the demilitarisation of Srebrenica

2337. On 16 April 1993, the UNSC passed Resolution 819, declaring that ‘all parties and others treat Srebrenica and its surroundings as a “safe area” that should be free from armed attack or any other hostile act.’<sup>9989</sup> At the same time, the UNSC created, with Resolution 824, two other UN protected enclaves, Žepa and Goražde.<sup>9990</sup> The UNSC stated in Resolution 819 that it ‘condemns and rejects the deliberate actions of the Bosnian-Serb party to force the evacuation of the civilian population from Srebrenica and its surrounding areas [...] as part of its abhorrent campaign of ethnic cleansing'.<sup>9991</sup> Resolution 819 further called for 'the immediate cessation of armed attacks by Bosnian-Serb paramilitary units against Srebrenica and their immediate withdrawal from the areas surrounding Srebrenica.'<sup>9992</sup> When the 'safe area' of Srebrenica was established, the UNSC called upon the Secretary-General to 'take immediate steps to increase the presence of the United Nations Protection Forces in Srebrenica and its surroundings.'<sup>9993</sup>

2339. Before the conclusion of the agreement, Srebrenica Town was under intense shelling, surrounded and totally isolated.<sup>9998</sup> This situation forced the Srebrenica local authorities to agree to a settlement whereby only the Bosnian-Muslim side was to disarm under the supervision of UNPROFOR.<sup>9999</sup> According to the UNSC report, the Bosnian-Muslim side signed the agreement under duress after UNPROFOR officers informed the President and Vice-President of Bosnia-Herzegovina that no outside support would come and that they were defenceless.<sup>10000</sup> The report further stated that there was ‘no doubt that had this agreement not been reached, most probably a massacre would have taken place’.<sup>10001</sup>

2340. On 18 April 1993, the first group of UNPROFOR troops arrived in Srebrenica.<sup>10002</sup> Fresh troops were rotated approximately every six months after 18 April 1993.<sup>10003</sup> The peacekeepers were lightly armed and at any one time numbered no more than 600 men, a much smaller force than had been originally requested.<sup>10004</sup> They established a small command centre, the ‘Bravo Company compound’, in Srebrenica itself and a larger main compound about five kilometres north of the town in Potočari.<sup>10005</sup>

2341. On 20 April 1993, Sefer Halilović informed the Commander of the ABiH 2nd Corps, Naser Orić, that on 19 April 1993, the ‘aggressor’ insisted that all units at the defence lines surrender their weapons, which was contrary to the agreement signed by Mladić on the demilitarisation of Srebrenica Town.<sup>10006</sup>

2342. According to an agreement on the demilitarisation of Srebrenica and Žepa of 8 May 1993, Mladić and Halilović, in the presence of Morillon, declared that the areas of Srebrenica and Žepa be demilitarised.<sup>10007</sup> The agreed demilitarisation included that every military or paramilitary unit withdraws or hands over weapons to UNPROFOR.<sup>10008</sup>

2343. In January 1995, a new set of UNPROFOR troops, a battalion from the Netherlands, referred to as ‘DutchBat’, rotated into the enclave.<sup>10009</sup> Initially, DutchBat had eight OPs around the perimeter of the enclave; four additional OPs were added between February and July 1995.<sup>10010</sup> Boering testified that in April 1995, an OP was established in Lozine, a village in the southern part of the enclave, which met the resistance of local Muslim civilian and military leaders.<sup>10011</sup> The OPs were to report on people entering and leaving the enclave, taking note of their Serb or Muslim ethnicity, and to secure the border.<sup>10012</sup> Most of the time, groups of Bosnian-Serb and Bosnian-Muslim soldiers maintained shadow positions near the OPs marking the perimeter of the enclave.<sup>10013</sup> The Bosnian-Serb forces from three DK brigades surrounding the enclave were equipped with tanks, armoured vehicles, artillery, and mortars.<sup>10014</sup> Franken testified that DutchBat patrols and OPs were increasingly targeted, mostly from Bosnian-Serb positions, with increasing frequency beginning in April and May 1995.<sup>10015</sup> In several instances, wounded civilians were transported by DutchBat to the hospital in Srebrenica.<sup>10016</sup> Due to circumstances such as increased attacks on DutchBat patrols and positions, there was some discussion between DutchBat and the Chief of Staff of the 28th Division of the ABiH about a coordinated defence in the event of a Serb attack on the enclave whereby DutchBat would limit itself to the authorised protection of its OPs, while the ABiH would defend the areas between the OPs.<sup>10017</sup>

2344. Both parties to the conflict violated the ‘safe area’ agreement.<sup>10018</sup> Insofar as the ABiH was concerned, immediately after signing the ‘safe area’ agreement, General Halilović ordered members of the ABiH in Srebrenica to pull all armed personnel and military equipment out of the newly established demilitarised zone.<sup>10019</sup> He also ordered that no serviceable weapons or ammunition be handed over to UNPROFOR.<sup>10020</sup> Accordingly, only old and dysfunctional weapons were handed over and anything that was still in working order was retained.<sup>10021</sup> Bosnian-Muslim helicopters flew in violation of the no-fly zone; the ABiH opened fire toward Bosnian-Serb lines and moved through the 'safe area'; the 28th Division was continuously arming itself; and at least some humanitarian aid coming into the enclave was appropriated by the ABiH.<sup>10022</sup> The 28th Division of the ABiH forces that remained in the enclave lacked a firm command structure and communications system, and some ABiH soldiers carried old hunting rifles or no weapons at all.<sup>10023</sup>

2345. Momir Nikolić testified that General Mladić had visited the Bratunac Brigade in early July 1994.<sup>10024</sup> On 4 July 1994, Lieutenant Colonel Slavko Ognjenović of the 1st Bratunac Brigade Command sent a report to the 3rd Infantry Battalion.<sup>10025</sup> Ognjenović reported that the commander of the VRS Main Staff had recently visited the Corps Command and had indicated that he would soon visit some of the Corps' units, including the Bratunac Brigade.<sup>10026</sup> Ognjenović further reported that the Serbs had won the war in Podrinje, but had not beaten the Muslims completely.<sup>10027</sup> Ognjenović set out the final goal of attaining an entirely Serbian Podrinje and militarily defeating the enclaves of Srebrenica, Žepa, and Goražde.<sup>10028</sup> The witness testified that the term Podrinje referred to the municipalities along the upper part of the Drina: Foča, Goražde, Višegrad, Srebrenica, Bratunac, Zvornik, and Bijeljina.<sup>10029</sup> Ognjenović wrote that the enemy's life was to be made so unbearable and their temporary stay in the enclave so impossible that they realise that they cannot survive there and leave the enclave en masse as soon as possible.<sup>10030</sup> The witness interpreted the enemy as mentioned in this part of the order to relate to the opposing military forces.<sup>10031</sup> Ognjenović further wrote that the Serbs must continue to arm, train, and prepare the VRS for the crucial task of expelling the Muslims from the Srebrenica enclave.<sup>10032</sup> The witness interpreted the expulsion of Muslims mentioned in this part of the order to refer to emptying the enclave of its Muslim population entirely (including civilians).<sup>10033</sup> The witness considered that this expulsion was directed against the civilian population and was, as such, not a military task and should not have been included in the document.<sup>10034</sup> According to the witness, these instructions to make life unbearable for the Muslim population had the effect of giving Bratunac Brigade members permission to fire freely at civilians.<sup>10035</sup> Sniping incidents intensified as a result.<sup>10036</sup> When the witness confronted Brigade members, they would respond that they had permission to open fire from the commander.<sup>10037</sup> The witness requested the commander to suspend such permission and undertook efforts to limit the incidents.<sup>10038</sup> The witness recommended that those undisciplined VRS members be punished.<sup>10039</sup>

2346. Paul Groenewegen observed during the first months of his assignment which started in January 1995 and ended in July 1995, that there was military activity between the two sides, including shooting back and forth, and occasionally he heard an explosion.<sup>10040</sup> Franken testified that the 28th Division had its headquarters in a classroom in Potočari and in a house in the village of Pale as well as offices in the former post office in Srebrenica Town.<sup>10041</sup> Groenewegen testified that during patrols, the ABiH members he observed in the enclave on three or four occasions consisted of groups of about five to ten men, armed with small calibre weapons.<sup>10042</sup> While some of these men wore camouflage uniforms, the witness considered them to be groups of 'civilians' protecting their enclave.<sup>10043</sup>

that the ABiH had 4,000 to 4,500 small arms and some mortars.<sup>10045</sup> Momir Nikolić testified that in 1995, he served as liaison officer in the Srebrenica demilitarized zone and was in contact with DutchBat.<sup>10046</sup> He spoke to DutchBat about violations of the demilitarised zones, for instance by Serb forces setting up new positions or by Bosnian-Muslim groups setting up ambushes or carrying out sabotage works in Serb territory.<sup>10047</sup> On 11 January 1995, Nikolić informed the DK Command that in accordance with their order, the VRS 1st Bratunac Light Infantry Brigade lodged an official protest to the commander of DutchBat and military observers regarding the incident in the Osoje-Kik Brdo area.<sup>10048</sup> The 1st Bratunac Light Infantry Brigade reported that it was informed, in response to the protest, that Bosnian Muslims blocked the access road from Srebrenica to the Osoje area for UNPROFOR, and it further reported that the behaviour of the Bosnian Muslims, including the failure to demilitarise, indicated that they did not wish for a peaceful solution to Srebrenica.<sup>10049</sup>

2348. In the spring of 1995, there were many skirmishes between VRS soldiers and ABiH soldiers.<sup>10050</sup> Momir Nikolić testified that he spoke to DutchBat about incidents of VRS Brigade members firing at civilians.<sup>10051</sup> According to the witness, some undisciplined soldiers from his brigade, being the 1st Bratunac Light Infantry Brigade, with whom he had already had problems, regularly fired semi-automatic rifles from their positions at unarmed civilians 200 to 300 metres away.<sup>10052</sup> The witness reported on such incidents along the chain of command and informed the security and intelligence organ about them.<sup>10053</sup> In the months before the Srebrenica attack, elements of the Bratunac Brigade shelled and opened sniper fire on the enclave.<sup>10054</sup> Franken testified that DutchBat identified about 16 VRS artillery and mortar positions, in the area of the Milići Brigade on the west side of the enclave, and a few positions of self-propelled mechanised guns.<sup>10055</sup>

2349. Eelco Koster testified that around 18 February 1995, he joined a patrol around the compound in which he was posted.<sup>10056</sup> The patrol passed through part of Srebrenica, where the witness saw that some of the houses had been hit by shells and were burned out.<sup>10057</sup> In the beginning of March 1995, the witness heard increased machine-gun fire and rifle shots coming from the north, but could not see who was firing.<sup>10058</sup> Miroslav Deronjić stated that during a meeting with Karadžić sometime in May 1995, Karadžić told him, as President of the Bratunac Municipality Crisis Staff, that a military operation was on its way regarding Srebrenica and asked him to be prepared to make arrangements when needed.<sup>10059</sup> In May 1995, Koster noticed a further increase in machine-gun fire and rifle shots, and OPs and patrols sometimes came under fire from the Serb side, i.e. from outside the Srebrenica enclave, but were not actually hit.<sup>10060</sup> The Bratunac Brigade opened fire on Srebrenica on 25 May 1995.<sup>10061</sup> Alma Gabeljić stated that on 25 May 1995, between 7 and 8 p.m., artillery shelling impacted outside her house causing one of the walls to collapse.<sup>10062</sup> She distinguished this sound from tank projectiles as she had heard both sounds prior to the incident.<sup>10063</sup> The impact killed the witness's sister Jasna and seriously injured the witness in her upper left arm.<sup>10064</sup>

2350. Subašić stated that in June 1995, he heard that the VRS Special Forces Sabotage Group, positioned in the Vidikovac settlement in Srebrenica and supported with heavy fire by the Serb forces positioned on the hills, launched an attack against Srebrenica with automatic rifles, machine guns, and small calibre mortars.<sup>10065</sup> This resulted in chaos and panic in the hospital and in the city.<sup>10066</sup> Boering testified that at the end of June 1995, the inhabitants of the Swedish Shelter project, a centre hosting 4,000 'refugees' in the South of the enclave, had to leave because of shelling.<sup>10067</sup> Milovan

Milutinović testified that on 27 June 1995, dozens of inhabitants were killed in the village of Višnjica; cattle were stolen, and houses were set on fire by Muslim forces from the UN safe area of Srebrenica.<sup>10068</sup> The witness visited the scene the following day and saw bodies around houses, which were still burning.<sup>10069</sup> According to the witness the VRS Main Staff lodged protests on several occasions with the UNPROFOR Command in Bosnia-Herzegovina against such crimes committed by the ABiH in the safe area of Srebrenica.<sup>10070</sup>

2351. In June and July 1995, Boering could see, from the DutchBat headquarters in Potočari, Bosnian-Muslim houses facing the headquarters being shelled from the direction of the VRS position in Bratunac.<sup>10071</sup> According to the witness, the Bosnian Muslims living in these houses fled towards Potočari and Srebrenica after the shelling, and local authorities and hospitals reported to DutchBat that many of the Bosnian Muslims were killed or injured.<sup>10072</sup>

2352. Momir Nikolić testified that some 15-20 days prior to the take-over of Srebrenica, General Živanović visited the Bratunac Brigade and told him, Major Trisić, and other officers about the plan to attack the Srebrenica enclave.<sup>10073</sup> The witness testified that the first, military intention of the attack was to physically separate the two enclaves of Žepa and Srebrenica, to liberate the Zeleni Jadar–Jasenova–Milići road, and then reduce the Srebrenica enclave to the town area.<sup>10074</sup> According to the witness, from the moment the enclave was set up, the VRS forces had the goal to make it disappear, for it to be emptied, and for it to become Serbian territory.<sup>10075</sup> The decision to forcibly

2353. Lazar Ristić stated that a meeting was held at the Zvornik Brigade headquarters on 1 July 1995.<sup>10077</sup> Lieutenant Colonel Pandurević, the Commander of the Zvornik Brigade, explained the work that was to take place in the coming period and said that he was going to Srebrenica with a certain number of troops.<sup>10078</sup> Pandurević said that the rest of the troops were to stay and that Major Obrenović, the Chief of Staff and Deputy Brigade Commander of the Zvornik Brigade, would be in charge.<sup>10079</sup> The Intervention Platoon was ordered to be ready on 4 July 1995 at the assembly point in Konjević Polje to go to Srebrenica.<sup>10080</sup> The then-commander of the DK, General-Major Milenko Živanović, signed two orders on 2 July 1995, laying out the plans for the attack on the enclave and ordering various units of the DK to ready themselves for combat.<sup>10081</sup> The operation was code-named 'Krivaja 95'.<sup>10082</sup> The DK was the VRS military formation tasked with planning and carrying out operation Krivaja 95, which culminated in the capture of Srebrenica town on 11 July 1995.<sup>10083</sup> General Krstić was to command the Krivaja 95 operation.<sup>10084</sup> He was fully apprised of the VRS territorial goals in the Srebrenica enclave, which included cleansing the area of the Bosnian-Muslim population.<sup>10085</sup> The initial Krivaja 95 plan did not include taking of Srebrenica Town.<sup>10086</sup> An assessment had been made by the VRS Command that conditions were not right at that moment for capturing Srebrenica Town.<sup>10087</sup>

2355. Witness RM-322 testified that on 4 July 1995, Vinko Pandurević, together with a unit of 420 to 450 men from the Zvornik Brigade, including members of its elite and command, left the headquarters to take part in the Krivaja 95 operation against Srebrenica.<sup>10091</sup> People who had come from Sućeska told Subašić on 4 July 1995 that the Serbs were grouping at the border of the enclave.<sup>10092</sup>

2356. Momir Nikolić testified that on 4 or 5 July 1995, Commander Blagojević showed him and the Bratunac Brigade Command a DK Command order for active combat dated 2 July 1995.<sup>10093</sup> According to the order, the recipients were to abide by the Geneva Conventions in all dealings with POWs and the civilian population.<sup>10094</sup> On 5 July 1995, Blagojević issued an order implementing the DK's order of 2 July 1995, repeating the instruction to treat POWs and the population in accordance with the Geneva Conventions.<sup>10095</sup> Recalling an increase of the number of wounded to be treated at the Srebrenica hospital between 4 and 11 July 1995, Subašić stated that most of the people hit by grenade shrapnel were civilians from Srebrenica.<sup>10096</sup> Srebrenica remained under fire until the enclave fell under the complete control of the VRS on 11 July 1995.<sup>10097</sup>

On 1 March 1995, Akashi informed Annan that despite the acceptance of the COHA on 31 December 1994, Bosnia-Herzegovina had obstructed attempts by UNPROFOR to improve liaison, observe confrontation lines, and instead had imposed restrictions on UNPROFOR movement and threatened the lives of the 'BSA' liaison officers.<sup>10098</sup> In January 1995, Bosnia-Herzegovina imposed a blockade of 'Sector North East' to protest the presence of the 'BSA LO' at the Tuzla Air Base, and 2358. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that Srebrenica Town, in Srebrenica Municipality in eastern Bosnia-Herzegovina, was of significant strategic significance to the Bosnian Serbs as it formed part of the Central Podrinje Region, control over which was necessary in order to form a political entity in Bosnia-Herzegovina. In 1991, the population of Srebrenica Municipality was 37,000 of which 73 per cent were Muslim, and 25 per cent were Serb.

2359. Between early 1992 and the beginning of July 1995, the VRS and the ABiH were engaged in combat in Srebrenica Town and the enclave. On 12 May 1992, Momčilo Krajišnik, the President of the Bosnian-Serb Assembly, signed the 'Decision on Strategic Objectives of the Serbian People', which included an objective relating to the Srebrenica area, and that was to eliminate the Drina as a border separating Serb states by establishing a corridor in the Drina river valley. The Srebrenica enclave consisted of ABiH-held territory, which was the result of a series of raids conducted by Naser Orić as of May 1992. Geographically the enclave reached its peak of 900 square kilometres in January 1993, when it had expanded to include the Bosnian-Muslim enclave of Cerska, which lies to the west of Srebrenica. The Srebrenica enclave was not linked to the main area of Bosnian-held land to the west and remained in the middle of Serb-controlled territory. On 19 November 1992, Mladić issued Directive 4, in which he ordered the DK to inflict the heaviest possible losses on the ABiH and force them to leave the Birač, Žepa, and Goražde areas with the Muslim population. On 24 November 1992, Milenko Živanović of the DK sent a decision to the Commander of the Zvornik Light Infantry Brigade, in which various units were ordered to inflict the highest possible losses on the enemy, forcing the Bosnian-Muslim population to abandon the areas of Cerska, Žepa, Srebrenica, and Goražde. The Bratunac Brigade was instructed to consolidate the Fakovići Battalion and give it the task to penetrate as deep as possible into the area of Srebrenica and attack the enclave. Unit members were to be informed before any kind of operation, 'the realisation of the aim of the Serbian people, namely, the creation and establishment of a Serbian state'. Directive 4 was implemented by VRS forces in February 1993. As a result of the Bosnian-Serb counter-offensive to ABiH activity in the first few months of 1993, the size of the Srebrenica enclave was reduced to 150 square kilometres. In April 1993 some 20,000 to 28,000 people were living in Srebrenica Town comprising displaced persons from surrounding villages and 8,000 to 10,000 locals most of whom were Bosnian Muslims. The Bosnian-Muslim population of Srebrenica Town at times swelled to between 50,000 to 60,000 as a result of people being displaced from the surrounding villages and the whole enclave was comprised of 70,000 people in April 1993.

2360. By March 1993, Srebrenica Town had almost no running water as VRS forces had destroyed the town's water supplies. Food, medicine, and other essentials were extremely scarce. There was no access to medical assistance and the VRS prevented surgeons from entering the city, despite many people needing surgery. The town was overcrowded and siege conditions prevailed. Between March and April 1993, approximately 8,000 to 9,000 Bosnian Muslims were evacuated from Srebrenica under the auspices of the UNHCR. The VRS were determined to show their effective control of the town and that it was at their mercy. The VRS placed restrictions on humanitarian aid convoys, with few convoys making it into the Srebrenica enclave by early 1995.

2361. On 16 April 1993, the UNSC adopted Resolution 819, declaring Srebrenica and its surrounding area a 'safe area', free from armed attack or any other hostile act. On 17 April 1993, the VRS and the ABiH concluded a demilitarisation agreement, including a total cease-fire in the Srebrenica area. Following Resolution 819, UNPROFOR troops arrived in Srebrenica on 18 April 1993, with DutchBat arriving in the enclave in January 1995. Mladić and Halilović concluded a second demilitarisation agreement on 8 May 1993, declaring that the areas of Srebrenica and Žepa be demilitarised. Both parties to the conflict violated the demilitarisation agreement, with military activity between the two sides. In July 1994, Lieutenant Colonel Slavko Ognjenović of the Bratunac Brigade Command reported to the 3rd Infantry Battalion, that the war in Podrinje had been won, but that the Bosnian Muslims had not been completely defeated. He set out a plan to achieve the final goal of attaining an entirely Serbian Podrinje and militarily defeating the Srebrenica, Žepa, and Goražde enclaves. This plan included making the conditions in the enclave so unbearable that the ABiH would leave en masse. The VRS was to be armed, trained, and prepared for the task of expelling the Bosnian Muslims from the Srebrenica enclave, this expulsion being directed against the civilian population. As a result, sniping incidents by Bratunac Brigade members intensified and Momir Nikolić requested that the Bratunac Brigade Commander suspend the perceived permission. Momir Nikolić undertook efforts to limit incidents and recommended that undisciplined VRS members be punished. In May 1995, Karadžić told Miroslav Deronjić, President of the Bratunac Municipality Crisis Staff, that a military operation was on its way regarding Srebrenica and asked him to be prepared to make arrangements when needed.

2362. Approximately 15 to 20 days before the take-over of Srebrenica, General Živanović visited the Bratunac Brigade, where he outlined to Momir Nikolić, Major Trisić, and other officers the plan to attack the Srebrenica enclave. The attack was to physically separate the Žepa and Srebrenica enclaves, to liberate the Zelani Jadar-Jasenova-Milići road and then reduce the Srebrenica enclave to the town area. The VRS intended to make the enclave disappear, to empty it, and to make it Serb territory, and the decision to forcibly remove the Bosnian-Muslim population from Srebrenica came as a result of the fall of the enclave. On 1 July 1995, during a meeting held at the Zvornik Brigade headquarters, Lieutenant Colonel Pandurević, Commander of the Zvornik Brigade, outlined plans for an operation in Srebrenica. On 2 July 1995, DK Commander General Major Milenko Živanović signed two orders laying out plans for an attack on the enclave and ordering various DK units to ready themselves for combat. This operation was code-named ‘Krivaja 95’ and did not include taking Srebrenica Town, as the VRS command assessed that the conditions were not right at that moment for capturing the town. General Krstić was to command the ‘Krivaja ‘95’ operation and the DK was the military formation tasked with planning and carrying out the operation. He was fully apprised of the VRS’s territorial goals in the Srebrenica enclave, which included cleansing the area of the Bosnian-Muslim population. An order for active combat dated 2 July 1995 stated that the recipients were to abide by the Geneva Conventions in all dealings with POWs and the civilian population. On 5 July 1995, Blagojević issued an order implementing the DK’s order of 2 July 1995, repeating this instruction. The Trial Chamber will consider the events following this order in chapter 7.1.2.

2363. The Trial Chamber will address the evidence related to the alleged Srebrenica JCE and, in particular, the Accused’s alleged responsibility (some of which has been reviewed above in this chapter) in chapter 9.

7.1.2 Directives no. 7 and no. 7/1

2364. In this chapter, the Trial Chamber will review the evidence and make findings on Directive no. 7 and Directive no. 7/1 signed by Karadžić on 8 March 1995 and by Mladić on 31 March 1995, respectively.<sup>10106</sup> The Prosecution argued that in March 1995, Radivoje Miletić and the VRS Main Staff drafted the ‘Directive for further Operations No. 7’.<sup>10107</sup> Following the creation of the safe areas, Mladić and Karadžić were running out of time to take the enclaves and thus issued Directive no. 7 to ‘create an unbearable situation’, that would leave the Muslim population with no choice but to leave the area.<sup>10108</sup> According to the Prosecution, Directive no. 7 escalated the dire humanitarian situation in the enclaves.<sup>10109</sup> The Prosecution further argued that the 2 July 1995 Krivaja-95 attack plan reflected the strategy set out in Directive no. 7.<sup>10110</sup> This strategy remained in force until 9 July 1995, when the strategy changed to include the take over of the Srebrenica enclave.<sup>10111</sup> Mladić approved and was fully informed of Directive no. 7's content prior to it being sent to the VRS Corps Commands.<sup>10112</sup> Before it was issued, he expressed words and intentions that were reflected in the language of the directive.<sup>10113</sup> Regarding Directive no. 7/1 issued by Mladić on 31 March 1995, the Prosecution argued that it did not rescind the unlawful language of Directive no. 7 but rather confirmed its content.<sup>10114</sup> According to the Prosecution, had Mladić intended to rescind the language, he would not have cited Directive no. 7 in the instructions addressed to the DK in Directive no. 7/1 nor referred to it in his order to the DK dated 26 March 1995, in which the corps was tasked to 'continue to execute their combat tasks in conformity with Directive no. 7'.<sup>10115</sup>

2365. The Defence submitted that Directive no. 7 illustrated the disagreements between Mladić and Karadžić because: (i) the latter sent orders directly to Milovanović and to the VRS Corps – rather than to Mladić – in an attempt to circumvent Mladić;<sup>10116</sup> and (ii) Directive no. 7 was eventually amended by Mladić when he issued Directive no. 7/1, which did not contain the orders regarding the creation of 'an unbearable situation of total insecurity' or 'complete physical separation' of the Srebrenica and Žepa enclaves.<sup>10117</sup>

Context and content of Directive no. 7

2367. Richard Butler testified that by early January 1995, the Bosnian-Serb Government had decided to apply additional pressure to the Eastern 'safe areas'.<sup>10123</sup> Part of this pressure consisted in the restriction of movement of UN forces in Eastern Bosnia, particularly with regard to the supply convoys to the three 'safe areas'.<sup>10124</sup> On 8 March 1995, Colonel Miletić drafted the Bosnian-Serb Supreme Command Directive no. 7, which, according to Butler, clearly spelled out the strategy of the Bosnian-Serb Republic for the DK concerning these areas.<sup>10125</sup> The DK was to 'create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica'.<sup>10126</sup> According to Butler, Directive no. 7 was drafted on behalf of Mladić and signed by Karadžić, the Supreme Commander.<sup>10127</sup> He testified that in shaping the goals spelled out in Directive no. 7, the VRS Main Staff exercised significant control over issues that directly impacted the combat capability of UNPROFOR, particularly those forces garrisoned inside the Eastern enclaves.<sup>10128</sup> As early as March 1995, the political and military leaders of the Bosnian-Serb Republic realized that they had to either militarily end the conflict or set the stages for a negotiated settlement favourable to them by the end of the year.<sup>10129</sup> There were indications that the Croat-Muslim's alliance would not continue the current cease-fire, and that the alliance was preparing a series of major offensives against the Bosnian-Serb Republic and the RSK.<sup>10130</sup> According to Butler, Directive no. 7 reflected this assessment.<sup>10131</sup>

2368. Butler further testified that in Directive no. 7, the Supreme Command of the VRS outlined the four main priorities of the armed forces for the upcoming period: (i) through resolute offensive and defensive military operations, impose a military situation which the international community would be compelled to accept; (ii) improve the operational and strategic position of the VRS; (iii) reduce the front-line, and create conditions for the economic revival of the Bosnian-Serb Republic by sending a number of military conscripts home; and (iv) create the conditions for the state and political leadership to negotiate a peace agreement and accomplish the strategic objectives of the war.<sup>10132</sup>

2369. Mitar Kovač testified that the Bosnian-Serb President signed ‘documents’ proposed to him by the VRS Main Staff with confidence.<sup>10133</sup> Kovač explained that a directive was not an executive document, but constituted the basis for executive documents such as, commands, orders and plans, which offered possibilities to correct what was not formulated well in the directive.<sup>10134</sup>

2370. Directive no. 7 ordered that the DK carry out the ‘complete physical separation of Srebrenica and Žepa [...] as soon as possible, preventing even communication between individuals in the two enclaves’, and ‘by planned and well-thought-out combat operations create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica and Žepa’.<sup>10135</sup> The directive further set out that if UNPROFOR forces left Žepa and Srebrenica, the DK Command should ‘plan an operation named Jadar with the task of breaking up and destroying the Muslims forces in these enclaves and definitively liberating the Drina valley region’.<sup>10136</sup>

2371. On 17 March 1995, Manojlo Milovanović, Chief of Staff of the VRS (see chapter 3), forwarded Directive no. 7, signed by Karadžić, to the 1KK command.<sup>10137</sup> Manojlo Milovanović testified that he only signed an urgent transmittal letter on 17 March 1995, forwarding Directive no. 7 to the 1KK after Miletić, who had drafted the directive, had told him that a copy was omitted in the first round on 8 March 1995 and only sent to the 2KK.<sup>10138</sup> Milovanović could not remember whether he verified with Mladić if he had approved of this Directive.<sup>10139</sup> Milovanović added that the directive constituted a political decision and even if he had been aware of the content, he could have done nothing because Karadžić had signed it.<sup>10140</sup> According to the witness, the instructions with regard to the creation of an ‘unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope or further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica and Žepa’ in Directive no. 7 would have been unlawful if they were subsequently formulated into a combat order since, according to the Geneva Conventions, the civilian population is never a legitimate target or objective.<sup>10141</sup> Milovanović considered it a mistake that the directive was directly sent to the corps commands.<sup>10142</sup> Instead, it should have only reached Mladić because the corps commanders could not take any measures on the basis of Directive no. 7; Mladić was to issue orders based on this directive.<sup>10143</sup>

2372. Ljubomir Obradović testified that Directive no. 7, drafted by Miletić, was drafted pursuant to the full method, which meant that the drafting involved all staff organs, i.e. sectors and administrations.<sup>10144</sup> Directive no. 7 was both a military and political document, as the first item of the directive contained a description of the military-political situation.<sup>10145</sup> Obradović testified that while this directive was from the Supreme Command, participation of the sectors and administrations of the VRS Main Staff in its creation was inevitable since the Supreme Command and the civilian leadership lacked the professional staff to cover all segments of the directive.<sup>10146</sup>

2373. Obradović further testified that a directive only stated which operation should be implemented, whereas the planning of an operation was left to the corps commands, which included the manner in which the objective was to be reached.<sup>10147</sup> In this context, with respect to the portion of Directive no. 7 dealing with Srebrenica operations, Obradović confirmed that, in contrast to what is set out in the directive, the SRK did not take part in the operation against Srebrenica which was, in fact, an operation run by the DK.<sup>10148</sup> A portion of Directive no. 7 refers to operation Krivaja 95 to be carried out by the HK, in a plan to reach the Neretva river valley.<sup>10149</sup> Every operation had a different code-name and the name Krivaja was not mentioned in Directive no. 7 in relation to the DK, nor did he know who, in the DK, chose this code-name for the operation against Srebrenica.<sup>10150</sup> Directive no. 7 ordered the DK to carry out a certain operation under a certain code-name when the time came to implement that task.<sup>10151</sup> The DK was duty bound, pursuant to the directive, to submit documents pursuant to which it would execute the operation, to the superior command, i.e. Mladić, for approval prior to carrying out the operation.<sup>10152</sup> Mirko Trivić testified that on 20 March 1995, the DK Command issued an order to the commands of its subordinated units recalling the tasks of the DK stated in Directive no. 7.<sup>10153</sup>

2374. On 26 March 1995, Karadžić ordered a mobilisation of all human and material resources to ‘finally crush and defeat the enemy’ and, pursuant to this order, Mladić ordered VRS Corps Commands and units to ‘continue to execute combat tasks in conformity with Directive no. 7’.<sup>10154</sup> On 27 March 1995, the DK Commander, Milenko Živanović, forwarded Mladić’s order dated 26 March 1995 to its subordinates units.<sup>10155</sup>

Directive no. 7/1

2376. Trivić testified that on 31 March 1995, the VRS Main Staff issued Directive no. 7/1, signed by Mladić.<sup>10158</sup> According to Milovanović, the directive was drafted by Miletić.<sup>10159</sup> Kovač testified that the directive number indicates that it was a follow-up document to Directive no. 7.<sup>10160</sup> In this directive, Mladić repeated most of the tasks of the VRS outlined in Directive no. 7 and stated that he had decided to conduct, with the VRS main forces, including the 1KK, IBK, DK, and Air Force and Anti-Aircraft Defence, a strategic operation under the code-name Sadejstvo 95. The operation’s objectives included inflicting the heaviest possible losses on the enemy, restoring the reputation of the VRS, widening the Posavina corridor, and removing the threat of a breakthrough from Doboj and the joining up of coalition forces in the Brčko area, thereby forcing the Muslim leadership to accept an end to the war at the achieved lines.<sup>10161</sup>

2377. Obradović testified that the fact that Mladić signed Directive no. 7/1 suggests that he approved the parts as drafted by the various sectors.<sup>10162</sup> Directive no. 7/1 was addressed to the 1KK, IBK, DK, and the Air Force and Anti-aircraft Defence. The Directive was also addressed, for their information, to the 2KK, the SRK, and the HK.<sup>10163</sup> The witness testified that the tasks of the DK as set out in Directive no. 7/1 were aimed at tying down enemy forces around the enclaves, and not at the separation or capture of the enclaves.<sup>10164</sup> He further testified that when a new directive was issued, the previous directive was no longer in force.<sup>10165</sup> In this context, Obradović testified that Directive no. 7 remained in force with respect to the 2KK, SRK and the HK, but that the main body of the force consisting of the 1KK, IBK, and DK, were now tasked with what was set out in Directive no. 7/1.<sup>10166</sup>

2378. According to Kovač, Directive no. 7/1 altered a few elements contained in Directive no. 7, primarily by omitting the incriminatory sentence on the tasks of the DK contained therein.<sup>10167</sup> It meant that there was no intention to put civilians in jeopardy and that the formulation of Directive no. 7 on this point was to be attributed to the ‘poor judgement’ of an operations officer of the Main Staff who wrote the document.<sup>10168</sup> This ‘mistake’ was later noticed and removed from Directive no. 7/1.<sup>10169</sup> Milovanović testified that Mladić omitted the two controversial sentences from Directive no. 7 which referred to the creation of unbearable conditions and the separation of Srebrenica and Žepa by force.<sup>10170</sup> The witness’s presumption was that Mladić intentionally withdrew this part of the order as he considered it to be unlawful.<sup>10171</sup> The witness, however, stated that there is nothing in Directive no. 7/1 explicitly rescinding the controversial parts and he agreed that somebody reading the reference to Directive no. 7 in Directive no. 7/1 would have to look at Directive no. 7 in order to be able to fully implement it.<sup>10172</sup>

VRS actions undertaken pursuant to Directive no. 7 and no. 7/1

2379. Butler testified that on 31 May 1995, elements of the DK undertook operation Jadar-95, a scaled-down version of that envisioned in Directive no. 7. This operation forced the DutchBat troops to abandon OP Echo south of Srebrenica ultimately leading to the fall of the village of Zeleni Jadar.<sup>10173</sup>

2380. On 3 August 1995, Mladić issued a directive to the Commands of 1st and 2KK, VRS Main Staff and the SVK instructing VRS forces to prevent further advances of the enemy along all axes, then to re-group and move into counter-attack along the Livno axis.<sup>10174</sup> According to this directive, Mladić was to be personally in charge of the entire operation Vaganj-95, which was to be executed in the spirit of Directive no. 7 and Directive no. 7/1.<sup>10175</sup>

2381. On 11 October 1995, Mladić sent an order to inter alia, the Corps Commands and the MUP, to carry out combat security ‘as per Directive no. 7’.<sup>10176</sup>

The Trial Chamber’s findings

2382. Based on the above, the Trial Chamber finds that in March 1995 Radivoje Miletić (see chapter 3) and the VRS Main Staff drafted Directive no. 7. The directive was signed by Karadžić, Supreme Commander of the VRS (see chapter 2.1.1) on 8 March 1995. The directive was addressed to the 1KK, 2KK, SRK, IBK, HK, DK, Air Force and Anti-Aircraft Defence, and the Centre of Military Schools of the VRS.

2383. In Directive no. 7, Karadžić outlined the four main priorities of the VRS: (i) through resolute offensive and defensive military operations, impose a military situation which the international community would be compelled to accept; (ii) improve the operational and strategic position of the VRS; (iii) reduce the front-line, and create conditions for the economic revival of the Bosnian-Serb Republic by sending a number of military conscripts home; and (iv) create the conditions for the state and political leadership to negotiate a peace agreement and accomplish the strategic objectives of the war. The DK was to carry out the ‘complete physical separation of Srebrenica and Žepa [...] as soon as possible, preventing even communication between individuals in the two enclaves’, and ‘by planned and well-thought-out combat operations create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica and Žepa’.

2384. On 31 March 1995, the VRS Main Staff issued Directive no. 7/1, signed by Mladić and sent to the 1KK, IBK, DK, and the Air Force and Anti-Aircraft Defence

(and to the 2KK, SRK, and HK, for their information). In this directive, Mladić repeated most of the tasks of the VRS outlined in Directive no. 7 and stated that he had decided to conduct, with the VRS main forces, including the 1KK, IBK, DK, and Air Force and Anti-Aircraft Defence, a strategic operation under the code-name Sadejstvo 95.

2385. Regarding the issue of whether Directive no. 7/1, as issued by Mladić, rescinded, amended or corrected, Directive no. 7 issued by Karadžić, as argued by the Defence, the Trial Chamber considered Obradović and Milovanović's evidence, as well as documentary evidence.<sup>10177</sup> The Trial Chamber notes that Obradović testified that when a new directive was issued, the previous directive was no longer in force. He also testified that Directive no. 7 remained in force with respect to the 2KK, SRK and the HK, as stated in Directive no. 7/1, but that the main body of the force consisting of the 1KK, IBK, and DK, were tasked with what was set out in Directive no. 7/1. The Trial Chamber further considered Milovanović's evidence that there is nothing in Directive no. 7/1 explicitly rescinding the controversial parts of Directive no. 7 and that in order to fully implement Directive no. 7/1 one would have to look at Directive no. 7. Further, the Trial Chamber reviewed exhibits P803, P345, P5048 and P4317 stating that: (i) on 26 March 1995, following an order on mobilisation issued by Karadžić, Mladić ordered VRS Corps Commands and units to, inter alia, 'continue to execute combat tasks in conformity with Directive no. 7'; (ii) on 30 March 1995, Mladić recorded in his notebook a meeting held on 30 March 1995 with the VRS Main Staff Command during which a discussion took place on the operation undertaken pursuant to Directive no. 7; (iii) on 3 August 1995, Mladić issued a directive instructing VRS forces to prevent further advances of the enemy along all axes and this operation was to be executed in the spirit of Directive no. 7 and Directive no. 7/1; and (iv) on 11 October 1995, Mladić sent an order to, inter alia, the Corps Commands and the MUP, to carry out combat security 'as per Directive no. 7'.

2386. Based on the above, the Trial Chamber finds that Directive no. 7/1 did not rescind or amend the content of Directive no. 7, but rather translated it into operational military tasks. The Trial Chamber thus rejects the Defence's arguments in this regard.

<sup>10177</sup> See exhibits P803 (Mladić mobilisation order, 26 March 1995), P5048 (Directive no. 8, signed by Ratko Mladić, 3 August 1995) and P4317 (Combat order by Mladić to the commands of various VRS corps and units, 11 October 1995).

2387. The Trial Chamber will analyze the events on the ground during the take-over of the Srebrenica enclave in chapters 7.1.1 and 7.1.3.

7.1.3 The fall of Srebrenica and the gathering of people in Potočari

2388. In this chapter, the Trial Chamber will review the evidence and make findings concerning the fall of Srebrenica and the gathering of people in Potočari in July 1995. The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to the events surrounding the fall of Srebrenica and the gathering of people in Potočari. It further received evidence from Momir Nikolić, the Assistant Commander for Intelligence and Security of the Bratunac Brigade from November 1992 to at least October 1995;<sup>10178</sup> Witness RM-322, an officer in the VRS Zvornik Brigade in 1995;<sup>10179</sup> Lazar Ristić, the Acting Commander of the 4th Infantry Battalion of the Zvornik Brigade between 1 July and 18 July 1995;<sup>10180</sup> Robert Franken, the Deputy Commanding Officer of DutchBat in Potočari from 15 January to late July 1995;<sup>10181</sup> Pieter Boering, a former DutchBat Major who served as liaison officer with the VRS and ABiH in Srebrenica from 3 January to July 1995;<sup>10182</sup> Eelco Koster, a member of DutchBat;<sup>10183</sup> Rupert Smith, UNPROFOR Commander in Bosnia-Herzegovina between 23 January and December 1995;<sup>10184</sup> Anthony Banbury, an UNPROFOR Civil Affairs Officer in Sarajevo between March 1994 and May 1995 and later the Assistant to the UN Special Representative of the Secretary-General in Bosnia-Herzegovina;<sup>10185</sup> Paul Groenewegen, a member of DutchBat stationed in Potočari from January until July 1995;<sup>10186</sup> Witness RM-204, a Bosnian Muslim from Srebrenica;<sup>10187</sup> Mujo Subašić, a Bosnian Muslim from Podžeplje, who worked as a

The attack on the enclave

2389. The VRS offensive on Srebrenica began in earnest on 6 July 1995.<sup>10214</sup> Robert Franken testified that the VRS attacked the enclave inter alia with tank and heavy machine gun fire.<sup>10215</sup> A report from the Command of the 28th Division of the ABiH dated 6 July 1995, mentioned an ‘exceptionally difficult’ humanitarian situation: a convoy set to arrive on 6 July did not arrive; elderly and weak persons were in an exceptionally difficult situation due to starvation; and the first people to die of hunger in the area of Srebrenica were registered on that day. The report further mentions numerous attacks from ‘the aggressor’, launched with heavy artillery and tanks, against

2390. Witness RM-257 stated that the shelling was continuous until 10 July 1995.<sup>10219</sup> Shelling on 7 and 8 July 1995 was relatively quiet due to weather conditions but intensified on 9 July 1995.<sup>10220</sup> Witness RM-204 stated that on 8 or 9 July 1995 the first shell hit the Slapovići settlement of Srebrenica from the direction of the ‘Chetnik’ front lines.<sup>10221</sup> The shelling continued for two or three days.<sup>10222</sup>

2391. Targets included Srebrenica Town, Potočari, and DutchBat positions.<sup>10223</sup> Franken testified that at the beginning of the attack, Bravo Company reported random shelling of the city of Srebrenica Town and ‘civilians’ being brought to the hospital, and there was firing directed at the UN base in Potočari and its surroundings.<sup>10224</sup> Early in the morning of 6 July 1995, five rockets exploded near the DutchBat headquarters in Potočari.<sup>10225</sup> Witness RM-255 testified that the enclave was constantly shelled for seven days before 11 July 1995, with shells coming from the directions of Zeleni Jadar, Zvijezda, and Caus.<sup>10226</sup> Evert Rave testified that on 7 July 1995, the VRS resumed its attack against the enclave, firing into the safe area, targeting UN facilities, and causing several civilian deaths.<sup>10227</sup> On 8 July 1995, Dutchbat troops were forced to retire.<sup>10228</sup> Franken testified that while withdrawing they were fired upon by members of the 28th Division of the ABiH, resulting in the death of a private.<sup>10229</sup> OPs Delta, Sierra, and Mike also came under fire from what DutchBat had concluded to be members of the

ABiH.<sup>10230</sup> On 8 July 1995, one peacekeeper was mortally wounded and two UN OPs were overrun by the VRS.<sup>10231</sup> Soldiers at the OPs were detained and forced to hand over their equipment, including in one case an APC.<sup>10232</sup> Some of the Dutch soldiers retreated into the enclave after their posts were attacked, but the crews of other OPs surrendered into Bosnian-Serb custody.<sup>10233</sup> The DutchBat soldiers who were detained were taken to Bratunac and Milići.<sup>10234</sup>

2392. Witness RM-204 stated that on 8 or 9 July 1995, when the first shell hit the Slapovići settlement of Srebrenica from the direction of the ‘Chetnik’ front lines, some residents decided to leave the settlement in the direction of Sućeska. When they reached the village of Vijogor most of the women and children went to Potočari while the men and some of the women stayed in Vijogor for one night.<sup>10235</sup>

2393. In the days following 6 July 1995, the five UNPROFOR OPs in the southern part of the enclave fell one by one in the face of the advance of the Bosnian-Serb forces.<sup>10236</sup> By the evening of 9 July 1995, the VRS DK had pressed four kilometres deep into the enclave, halting just one kilometre short of Srebrenica Town.<sup>10237</sup> Franken testified that DutchBat was ordered by UNPROFOR Command to defend Srebrenica Town with all military means necessary, even though its military effectiveness had been greatly reduced to the point that it relied on machine-guns and rifles only.<sup>10238</sup> Upon receiving the order to defend the town, DutchBat concluded that its mandate had changed.<sup>10239</sup> Franken issued an order that evening which he noted was a ‘seriously intended green assignment’ to DutchBat’s Bravo Company, augmented by Quick Reaction Forces, to take blocking positions on the southern edge of Srebrenica to prevent the Serbs from entering the town.<sup>10240</sup> Franken testified that ‘green’ orders meant normal military-like operations, whereas ‘blue’ orders meant orders related to less aggressive policing operations and that he had included a reference to a green assignment to make clear that the defence of Srebrenica was meant as a military action.<sup>10241</sup> Rave testified that Franken's order was issued on or about 9 July 1995 and as a result of it the Dutchbat became less visible and moved 'more into a military situation'; they were now allowed to fire back, if there was any fire at the battalion, but they only fired overhead.<sup>10242</sup>

2394. Also on 9 July 1995, Rupert Smith informed the VRS that the 7 and 8 July attacks against the UN OPs and the UN-declared safe area were unacceptable.<sup>10243</sup> The UNPROFOR demanded that the VRS withdraw to the perimeter of the demilitarised zone and that the Dutch peacekeepers be released. The VRS was further informed that the Dutchbat had been ordered to establish a blocking position to the south of the town, and that if this position was attacked, the NATO Close Air support would be employed. The VRS was reminded of the grave consequences of ignoring this warning.<sup>10244</sup> Franken testified that the VRS responded to the ultimatum over the radio with an ultimatum of its own, read by a DutchBat detainee, that if the DutchBat stopped all hostile activity and agreed to leave its equipment and weapons behind, its personnel and the civilian population would be allowed to leave the enclave.<sup>10245</sup>

2395. The blocking positions on the southern edge of Srebrenica Town were generally established early in the morning on 10 July 1995.<sup>10246</sup> On that day, the DutchBat blocking positions were under Bosnian-Serb tank and artillery fire and there was 'massive' shelling of Srebrenica Town and the DutchBat compound from over 160 rounds fired by approximately 32 artillery or mortar positions and about six main battle tanks, resulting in the wounded being taken to the civilian hospital in Srebrenica.<sup>10247</sup> Pieter Boering testified that a mortar grenade fell close to the UNPROFOR Bravo Company compound, wounding a little boy.<sup>10248</sup> On the same morning, residents in Srebrenica Town, some armed, crowded the streets.<sup>10249</sup> Simultaneously, the defending ABiH forces came under heavy fire and were pushed back towards the town.<sup>10250</sup> Once the southern perimeter began to collapse, about 4,000 Bosnian-Muslim residents, who had been living in a nearby Swedish housing complex for refugees, fled north into Srebrenica Town.<sup>10251</sup> Rave testified that on the same day, people began putting tree logs on the road leading to the UN compound and gathering in front. According to the witness, they were afraid that the UN would leave Srebrenica.<sup>10252</sup>

2396. Franken testified that at some point during the attack on the enclave, DutchBat allowed members of the ABiH 28th Division to take the weapons that were being stored in the WCP in the UN compound.<sup>10253</sup> During the evening or night of 10 July, members of the 28th Division stopped a column of Bosnian-Muslim ‘civilians’ on the Srebrenica-Potočari road and asked them to return to Srebrenica. The last sighting of members of the 28th Division in Srebrenica was in the late evening of 10 July when Colonel Karremans apparently saw them at the market place in the town. By the morning of 11 July 1995, the 28th Division had left the area.<sup>10254</sup> The DutchBat OPs continued to be taken over by the VRS on that day, and in most cases, when the VRS took over an OP, the DutchBat soldiers there had to hand in their small arms and were all eventually detained by the VRS and transported to Bratunac, with the exception of OP Alpha personnel who were directed to return to Potočari.<sup>10255</sup>

2397. Mujo Subašić stated that he heard while working at the hospital that on 10 July 1995 a counter-attack was launched by the ABiH against the Serb forces, which had gathered at the border of the enclave.<sup>10256</sup> The day after, Serb forces took over the villages of Ljubisavići and Pasmulići and torched houses.<sup>10257</sup> As the inhabitants of this area had started leaving, the witness decided to bring his family, residing in the neighbouring village of Bajramovići, to the Vezionica factory in Srebrenica, then used by UNPROFOR.<sup>10258</sup>

2400. Dražen Erdemović testified that in the afternoon of 10 July 1995, he and the other members of the Bijeljina platoon of the 10th Sabotage Detachment travelled to Bratunac pursuant to an order from their commander, Pelemiš.<sup>10268</sup> In Bratunac, they were joined by the Vlasenica platoon of the 10th Sabotage Detachment.<sup>10269</sup> The members of the two platoons then boarded military vehicles and moved towards

2401. Witness RM-333 testified that on 10 July 1995, based on an order by the VRS Supreme Commander and in order to crush the enemy offensive from the Srebrenica protected zone, Tomislav Kovač, Headquarters Commander in the Office of the Minister of the Interior, ordered a company from the MUP training centre in Jahorina, Pale Municipality; the 2nd Special Police Detachment from Šekovići, commanded by Miloš Stupar and Rado Čturić; the 1st Company of the Zvornik Special Police Unit of the Zvornik CSB; one company of joint forces of the RSK MUP, the Serbian MUP, and the Bosnian-Serb MUP, and one company from the Jahorina police training centre to join an independent unit of MUP forces which was to be sent to the Srebrenica sector on 11 July 1995 to participate in the Srebrenica 95 operation.<sup>10272</sup> Pursuant to the same order, Kovač appointed Ljubiša Borovčanin, the Deputy Commander of the Special Police Brigade, to command this MUP unit.<sup>10273</sup> Kovač further ordered Borovčanin to contact General Krstić upon arrival at the destination.<sup>10274</sup> Borovčanin arrived in Bratunac around noon on 11 July 1995, and contacted Mladić, who, according to Borovčanin's report, personally commanded the operation. Mladić ordered him to go with all available manpower and equipment to Potočari and Milačevići. Borovčanin reported that he found the task to be unrealistic since none of the envisaged MUP forces had arrived yet. Mladić had ordered Borovčanin to launch an attack in the early morning hours of 12 July 1995. At about 3 a.m., the 2nd Special Police Detachment from Šekovići arrived in Bratunac.<sup>10275</sup>

2403. András Riedlmayer testified that the Čaršjska, Petrička, and Vidikovac mosques, located in Srebrenica Town, were destroyed with explosives.<sup>10280</sup> The Čaršjska mosque was destroyed a few days after 14 July 1995, the Petrička mosque sometime after 14 July 1995, and the Vidikovac mosque sometime between 14 July 1995 and the end of the war.<sup>10281</sup> According to an article published in a Serbian magazine in July 1995 and reproduced in Riedlmayer's report, soldiers positioned further explosives in the Čaršjska mosque after its minaret was blown up.<sup>10282</sup> The Čaršjska mosque's ruins were razed, its rubble cleared, and the site levelled after the summer of 1996.<sup>10283</sup> After the first half of 1996, the Petrička mosque was razed and its rubble bulldozed.<sup>10284</sup> According to Riedlmayer, the buildings adjacent to the Čaršjska mosque were lightly damaged, while the buildings adjacent to the Petrička and Vidikovac mosques were in good condition.<sup>10285</sup>

2404. Two religious buildings located in Srebrenica Town were burned: the White mosque sometime after 19 July 1995 and before the end of the war and the building housing the archive and library of the Medžlis of the Islamic Community of Srebrenica, sometime after 11 July 1995 and before the end of the war.<sup>10286</sup> The ruins of the White mosque were blown up before the end of the war.<sup>10287</sup> In January 1993, an aircraft coming from the direction of Serbia dropped a bomb near the Crvena Rijeka mosque, which stood next to the building housing the archive and library, during the war, damaging the mosque, which was later repaired by residents of the neighbourhood. The mosque was destroyed, its ruins razed, and the site levelled sometime after 11 July 1995.<sup>10288</sup> According to Riedlmayer, the buildings adjacent to the White mosque were lightly damaged, those adjacent to the Crvena Rijeka mosque were heavily damaged, and those adjacent to the archive and library of the Medžlis of the Islamic Community of Srebrenica were completely destroyed.<sup>10289</sup>

2406. With regard to Riedlmayer's evidence on the destruction of other religious buildings,<sup>10294</sup> and as explained previously,<sup>10295</sup> the Trial Chamber will not rely on the witness's evidence with regard to the date and perpetrators of these incidents of destruction. Thus, in the absence of additional evidence on the date and perpetrators of these incidents of destruction, the Trial Chamber will not further consider these incidents in relation to any counts of the Indictment.

The fall of Srebrenica

2407. Witness RM-311 testified that in July of 1995, just prior to the fall of Srebrenica, she and her family fled from their homes, along with many other inhabitants from surrounding villages who were trying to escape from the 'shooting from all sides'.<sup>10296</sup> The witness and her family spent the night in a relative's house in Srebrenica Town. The next morning there was extensive shelling, breaking some of the windows in the house.<sup>10297</sup>

2408. Erdemović testified that on the morning of 11 July 1995, on the orders of Pelemiš, the 10th Sabotage Detachment descended into the town of Srebrenica.<sup>10298</sup> Before leaving for Srebrenica, Pelemiš ordered the members of the unit not to fire at or otherwise harm the civilian population.<sup>10299</sup> He also ordered the soldiers to direct any civilians towards the football stadium in town.<sup>10300</sup> When the witness and his unit approached the first houses in Srebrenica, two airborne bombs exploded near them.<sup>10301</sup>

<sup>10294</sup> These other religious buildings are: Dobrak Mosque, Osmaće Mosque, Osat Mosque, Tokoljaci New Mosque, Tokoljaci Old Mosque, Liješće Mosque, Peći Old Mosque, Peći New Mosque, Sase Mosque, and Gornji Potočari Mosque. According to the witness, these bombs were dropped by NATO warplanes.<sup>10302</sup> Other than this incident, the unit encountered no resistance and did not see any armed Bosnian Muslims when entering Srebrenica.<sup>10303</sup> Upon their arrival in Srebrenica Town, members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment were calling on the few people who remained there to leave their houses.<sup>10304</sup> When the unit called on the inhabitants of the town to leave their houses and go to the football stadium, only 100 to 200 people, mostly elderly, responded.<sup>10305</sup> Once the members of the unit reached the centre of the town, a Bosnian-Muslim man, around the age of 30, surrendered to them.<sup>10306</sup> However, contrary to the terms of his previous order, Pelemiš instructed a man named Zoran to kill the Bosnian Muslim.<sup>10307</sup> According to the witness, this man carried out this order by slitting the man's throat.<sup>10308</sup> The body of the victim was left behind, in plain view.<sup>10309</sup> After this killing, Pelemiš ordered Erdemović and two or three other members of the detachment to go back to the entrance of Srebrenica Town, form a checkpoint, and report back as soon as Mladić passed by.<sup>10310</sup> The group accordingly went back to the outskirts of the town and established a checkpoint.<sup>10311</sup> After about one or two hours, the witness saw Mladić pass by his checkpoint, riding in an ex-JNA military vehicle.<sup>10312</sup> Erdemović reported this to Pelemiš.<sup>10313</sup>

2409. DutchBat Commander Colonel Thomas Karremans sent urgent requests for NATO air support to defend the town, but no assistance was forthcoming until around 2:30 p.m. on 11 July 1995, when NATO bombed VRS tanks advancing towards the

2410. Srebrenica remained under fire until the enclave fell on 11 July 1995 when the VRS entered Srebrenica Town.<sup>10316</sup> Witness RM-284 testified that he was present when Mladić, Krstić, and the VRS entered Srebrenica around 11 a.m. or noon on that day.<sup>10317</sup> Upon arrival in Srebrenica, Mladić said: ‘Here we are, on 11 July 1995, in Serb Srebrenica. On the eve of yet great Serb holiday, we give this town to the Serb people as a gift. Finally, after the [R]ebellion against the Dahis, the time has come to take revenge on the Turks in this region’.<sup>10318</sup> Soldiers from the 10th Sabotage Detachment were present at a checkpoint during the VRS victory walk through Srebrenica on 11 July 1995 and the Commander of that unit, Miso Pelemiš<sup>10319</sup> was in the centre of Srebrenica Town on that day.<sup>10320</sup>

2411. On 11 July 1995, President Karadžić appointed Miroslav Deronjić as the Civilian Commissioner of the ‘Serb Municipality of Srebrenica’.<sup>10321</sup> The Trial Chamber also considered the evidence of Witness RM-260 on the fall of Srebrenica, which has been placed in the confidential annex in Appendix D.

2412. Witness RM-362, who was living in Srebrenica Municipality, testified that on 11 July 1995, after the fall of Srebrenica, his neighbours told him that someone from the ‘civilian protection’ had come and told them that the old and infirm should go to the UNPROFOR compound in Potočari whereas the military-age men should ‘go through the forest’.<sup>10322</sup> The witness and the female members of his family joined a column of people heading towards Potočari and arrived there around 9 p.m. There they spent the night at the compound of a nearby factory, approximately 500 metres away from the UNPROFOR compound, having been told that they could not enter the compound.<sup>10323</sup> Šehra Ibišević stated that she and members of her family walked from Kutlići to the UNPROFOR base in Potočari, after Srebrenica fell on 11 July 1995. 2413. The VRS embarked upon a campaign of burning Bosnian-Muslim houses.<sup>10325</sup> In the early morning on 12 July 1995, VRS soldiers with German Shepherd dogs in the northern direction of the enclave threw hand grenades into civilian houses in Potočari.<sup>10326</sup> As a result, the inhabitants were forced to flee from their houses to the UN compound.<sup>10327</sup> The refugees in the compound could see Serb soldiers setting houses and haystacks on fire.<sup>10328</sup>

2414. Paul Groenewegen testified that on 12 July during the day, he saw heavily armed infantry VRS forces approaching Potočari from Bratunac in the north.<sup>10329</sup> According to the witness, the first soldiers wore all sorts of camouflage, including purple and green tints, while some were dressed in partial camouflage uniforms with black pants.<sup>10330</sup> This group wore a variety of emblems.<sup>10331</sup> While these forces were approaching, other troops were coming over the hills.<sup>10332</sup> The witness heard shelling explosions and saw houses catching fire, first from the northern direction towards OP Papa and then continuously closer to Potočari.<sup>10333</sup> About 20 or 30 minutes later, other groups which appeared to be composed of members of the press and officers arrived. According to the witness, these groups appeared to be acting in coordination with the group of VRS forces who had previously arrived.<sup>10334</sup>

noon on the same day, mortar shells landed inside the compound, wounding several people.<sup>10336</sup> Following the shelling of Bravo Company and with the encouragement of the DutchBat troops, Bosnian-Muslim residents from Srebrenica began to move north towards Potočari.<sup>10337</sup>

2416. Once Srebrenica had fallen under the control of Bosnian-Serb forces, thousands of Bosnian-Muslim residents from Srebrenica fled to Potočari seeking protection within the UN compound.<sup>10338</sup> Eelco Koster testified that a message was received that the approach route to the compound should be cleared for the fleeing Muslim population.<sup>10339</sup> Franken testified that he ordered Bravo Company to withdraw from Srebrenica since the town was empty and to move along with the rear of the column headed north towards Potočari so as to stay between the column and the advancing Serb forces.<sup>10340</sup> Franken received reports of the column being shelled by mostly mortar and artillery fire, and DutchBat personnel transported wounded from the column and brought them to Potočari.<sup>10341</sup> Rave testified that the fire was coming from VRS positions.<sup>10342</sup> According to the witness, this was a deliberate attempt to ‘steer’ the ‘refugees’ towards Potočari.<sup>10343</sup>

2417. Šifa Hafizović stated that the residents that moved towards Potočari included women, children, and elderly men.<sup>10344</sup> Rave testified that he could not exclude the possibility that there were members of the ABiH among the men going to Potočari.<sup>10345</sup> At about 5 p.m., the witness arrived in Potočari where he was informed that the road from Potočari to Bratunac was being shelled, which, according to the witness, could indicate that the Serbs wanted the Muslim ‘refugees’ to remain in Potočari.<sup>10346</sup> On the same day, Lieutenant Versteeg from the Reconnaissance Platoon informed the witness that he saw houses in the southern part of the enclave being ‘cleansed’.<sup>10347</sup> Nikolić testified that on the afternoon of 11 July 1995, at an OP of the 2nd Infantry Battalion at Borići in the Kokarde sector, he observed that civilians moved en masse from the area of Srebrenica to the area of Potočari.<sup>10348</sup> Given the size of the group and based on the information available to them, the 2nd Infantry Battalion Command and the witness assessed that there were 1,000 to 2,000 military-aged, able-bodied men at Potočari amongst the crowd.<sup>10349</sup> The witness assessed that a number, although not all, of these able-bodied men were actively involved in the Muslim Srebrenica Brigade, 28th Division.<sup>10350</sup> The witness and Janković wrote reports to the DK Command and the VRS Main Staff with the information available to them.<sup>10351</sup> The reports included the information regarding the able-bodied men at Potočari and were sent prior to the Hotel Fontana meetings (see chapter 7.1.4).<sup>10352</sup>

2419. Franken testified that DutchBat received close-air support for the first and only time at around 2 p.m., and then received a message in English over one of the APCs that had been captured by the VRS and taken to Bratunac warning that the air support had to stop immediately or the VRS would shell the DutchBat compound including where the Bosnian Muslims were, and kill the DutchBat ‘POW’s’ of whom there were 55.<sup>10355</sup> He took the VRS threat to shell the compound very seriously because the VRS had fired on

'refugees' with all their means before. In particular, shortly after receiving this threat, the VRS had shelled the area of the bus station, wounding some of the civilians.<sup>10356</sup>

2420. The witness further testified that he decided that the people coming from Srebrenica be placed in a building so that DutchBat would be able to function militarily and also for cover, so that the people would not be visible to the VRS and in the line of artillery and tank fire. Once the building was full, the people gathered around the area of the bus station and factories as well as on the western side of the road.<sup>10357</sup> Koster testified that the first small groups of 'refugees' consisting of women and children who were overwrought and in tears, were accommodated in the nearby bus depot.<sup>10358</sup> Soon after, thousands of Muslim people started arriving on foot, and three or four UN trucks which had driven ahead with wounded Muslim people also arrived.<sup>10359</sup> The stream of 'refugees' kept increasing and some 'refugees' were allowed into the compound, including those who were injured or near childbirth.<sup>10360</sup> The rest were kept back by red and white tape which was put across the road.<sup>10361</sup> Groenewegen heard from a colleague that a man, who had previously tried to get inside the compound, hit his head with a stone to be let inside.<sup>10362</sup> Towards the evening shelling began from the north, but the shells landed near the road and no one was hit.<sup>10363</sup> The shells hit houses and destroyed them.<sup>10364</sup> This lasted for approximately 15 minutes, after which rifle shots came from the same direction, causing the people to panic and run in the direction of the factory buildings.<sup>10365</sup> throughout the neighbouring factories and fields.<sup>10367</sup> Franken testified that by the evening of 11 July 1995, the crowd at Potočari was very large with people completely exhausted and lethargic, and DutchBat estimated that Bosnian-Muslim men inside the compound numbered 300.<sup>10368</sup> Boering testified that the DutchBat only had food ratio for a few days and could only provide water to the ‘refugees’.<sup>10369</sup> The water supply available was insufficient for the refugees who were outside the UNPROFOR compound.<sup>10370</sup> Many of the refugees seeking shelter in the UNPROFOR headquarters were injured and there was a shortage of medical supplies.<sup>10371</sup> Boering testified that the only medical help available was coming from MSF but was insufficient for all the wounded.<sup>10372</sup> The presence of armed members of the Bratunac Brigade in Potočari contributed to the intimidation of the Bosnian-Muslim refugees there.<sup>10373</sup> Groenewegen testified that during the night of 11 and 12 July 1995, DutchBat soldiers assisted mothers, children and elderly men outside the UN compound, including those who were forced to spend the night in the open.<sup>10374</sup>

2422. Witness RM-268 stated that on 11 July 1995, Borovčanin instructed the 1st company of the Jahorina Detachment to go to Bratunac.<sup>10375</sup> Borovčanin was in possession of an order which had been issued by Tomislav Kovač on the previous day and in which Borovčanin was designated as ‘MUP unit commander’.<sup>10376</sup> Members of the 1st Company and its commander, Mendeljev Đurić, reached Bratunac in the afternoon.<sup>10377</sup> Mendeljev Đurić stated that the company was billeted in a nearby village school.<sup>10378</sup> Witness RM-268 stated that afterwards, Borovčanin ordered the MUP Special Police Brigade to carry out a reconnaissance tour of the Potočari area, the UNPROFOR base, and the access routes to Srebrenica and to report back to him. number of officers of the MUP Special Police Brigade, assisted by a local policeman, carried out the reconnaissance before nightfall and reported to Borovčanin that a large number of people had gathered at the 'UNPROFOR base area'.<sup>10379</sup> During a meeting held in an hotel in Bratunac, it was decided that the civilians were to be evacuated from the Potočari area.<sup>10380</sup> Following this meeting, Borovčanin told the MUP Special Police Brigade that the task for the following day was to go to Potočari and secure the UNPROFOR and the Bosnian-Muslim population until the start of the evacuation.<sup>10381</sup> Đurić stated that he was ordered by Jević to take his company the following day to Potočari to protect a large group of civilians arriving from Srebrenica to Potočari.<sup>10382</sup> The witness's instructions also included preventing any contact between the civilians and anyone else.<sup>10383</sup> Jević intimated to the witness that the civilians were likely to be transported to the Tuzla area.<sup>10384</sup>

2423. Rave testified that on 12 July 1995, at 9.03 a.m., VRS tanks fired the first round and two more rounds followed at 9.04 a.m. and 9.07 a.m. Rounds flew over the witness and landed in the vicinity of the compound.<sup>10385</sup> This was contrary to the information given by Mladić to the UNPROFOR during a meeting in Hotel Fontana the night before that the cease-fire would remain in place until 10 a.m. on 12 July 1992.<sup>10386</sup> At 9.07 a.m., Serb infantry advanced from the north towards Potočari; they could be seen coming from the mountains.<sup>10387</sup>

Thereafter Borovčanin and a DutchBat member entered the UNPROFOR base in order to check whether there were any civilians there. There were civilians, some of them injured, in what he described as a hangar.<sup>10391</sup> The witness stated that Vaso Mijović, a member of the Serbian MUP in 1993 was present during the distribution of food to the population in Potočari.<sup>10392</sup> On 12 July 1995, there was a large military presence in Potočari, involving various VRS units, including a unit of the Bratunac Brigade Military Police, and a number of police units, including a company from the Zvornik PJP.<sup>10393</sup>

2425. According to a document from the Special Police Brigade dated 13 July 1995, on 12 July 1995, the combat unit of the MUP Special Police Brigade, composed of the 2nd Special Police Detachment, a MUP company of the Zvornik Special Police Unit, and a mixed company of the Janja MUP, reported that it took control of Potočari and the Budak and Milačevići features. According to the report, there was no ‘strong’ armed resistance from the Muslims. The MUP combat unit sealed off the main UN base in Potočari where a throng of between 25,000 and 30,000 ‘civilians’ had gathered, approximately five percent of whom were able-bodied men.<sup>10394</sup>

2426. Hana Mehmedović stated that at approximately 9 a.m. on 12 July in Potočari, she could hear ‘Chetniks’ shouting from the surrounding hills, which caused panic among the ‘refugees’.<sup>10395</sup> Groenewegen testified that when VRS forces arrived in Potočari, the ‘refugees’ gathered in Potočari tried to move in the opposite direction again, back towards Srebrenica; but ended up staying after ‘they were spoken to’.<sup>10396</sup>

2427. Franken testified that shortly after 10 a.m. on 12 July, the VRS moved in an attack formation toward the DutchBat compound.<sup>10397</sup> Upon arrival, some of them were permitted by Franken to check, under DutchBat escort, whether parts of the 28th Division were in the compound. The VRS personnel looked like militia wearing several kinds of uniforms comprising a mix of civilian and military clothing and appeared to be from different units.<sup>10398</sup> In footage of MUP Forces and Armour entering Potočari on 12 July 1995, Duško Jević, Lalović, and Pantić discussed with a DutchBat member through the fence about how many civilians there were in the compound.<sup>10399</sup> The DutchBat member told Jević there were approximately 4,000 civilians inside, mostly women and children with a few men but no soldiers.<sup>10400</sup> Over the radio, a male voice could be heard asking if Pantić could secure vehicles to come here to transport civilians if he had a connection.<sup>10401</sup> Pantić responded over the radio that he was coming and that all civilians should be down at the road ready to be transported further.<sup>10402</sup> The male voice asked Pantić to mention that no one should touch them and that everything was alright and that they would proceed according to the plan.<sup>10403</sup> Meanwhile, Lalović demanded that the DutchBat member hand over his gun.<sup>10404</sup> Another DutchBat member responded that they would not do that but they would lay the guns down on the ground and not use them.<sup>10405</sup> Ljubodrag Gajić described the same event. He testified that in the morning of 12 July 1995, the 1st Company of the Jahorina training centre set out towards Srebrenica.<sup>10406</sup> When encountering Dutch troops upon arrival in Srebrenica, Gajić functioned as an interpreter to Jević.<sup>10407</sup> Jević and Borovčanin wanted to enter the factory in order to see whether the people inside were civilians or soldiers.<sup>10408</sup> At some point Borovčanin, Jević, Goran Marković, and the witness entered the facility, where they found between 350 and 500 people, including Muslim ‘civilians’.<sup>10409</sup>

2428. Groenewegen testified that the DutchBat created a buffer zone outside the UN compound to prevent contact between the ‘refugees’ and the VRS since the VRS soldiers approached the population aggressively.<sup>10410</sup> Ultimately, the DutchBat was not capable of keeping the groups separated.<sup>10411</sup>

was told that a convoy of vehicles had arrived to transport people.<sup>10412</sup> The witness went to the road and saw about ten Serb soldiers in dark green camouflage uniforms lined up down the road towards a number of trucks and buses, by the battery factory.<sup>10413</sup> Some other soldiers were just standing around.<sup>10414</sup> When the witness passed a roadblock upon approaching the buses, a Serb soldier took him by the shoulder and directed him to the other end of the road where around 20 elderly men were already standing.<sup>10415</sup> The witness asked the Serb soldier why he was separating him from his family, and was told that women and the children should be transported first. The witness saw that his family reached the buses.<sup>10416</sup>

2430. Mehmedović stated that the ‘Chetniks’ arrived among the UNPROFOR peacekeepers and immediately began removing men from the group, taking them past an iron fence to the far side of a wheat field bordering a creek. Mehmedović stated that some women reported hearing shouting and yelling and some heard that ‘Chetniks’ were killing the men by the creek. The witness saw men taken through the field by ‘Chetniks’, but she did not see any killings.<sup>10417</sup> Šehra Ibišević stated that ‘Chetniks’ used dogs to move people around the base.<sup>10418</sup> The ‘Chetniks’ took control of the base, confiscating weapons and clothing from UNPROFOR soldiers and taking men, boys, and girls away.<sup>10419</sup> Mehmedović stated that the ‘Chetniks’ continued to take men throughout that day and night, and those taken to the creek did not return.<sup>10420</sup> Mehmedović heard that ‘Chetniks’ were also taking young women from the group and raping them.<sup>10421</sup> Behara Krdžić identified these individuals as ‘Serb soldiers’.<sup>10422</sup>

2431. Zlatan Čelanović testified that on 12 July 1995, he drove Dr. Vesna Ivanovic and an unidentified nurse from Bratunac to Potočari to provide medical assistance to the people there.<sup>10423</sup> When they arrived in Potočari, Čelanović saw many buses waiting to receive people. Approximately 100 metres away from a building owned by an electric company, there was a small group of DutchBat soldiers who formed a line.<sup>10424</sup> Witness RM-255 testified he did not make an attempt to board the buses, as there were too many people in front of him.<sup>10425</sup> A factory building had been emptied, and the ‘Chetniks’ did not let anyone in.<sup>10426</sup>

2432. Screams, gunshots and other noise were audible throughout the night between 12 and 13 July 1995 and no one could sleep.<sup>10427</sup> Soldiers were picking people out of the crowd and taking them away; some returned, others did not.<sup>10428</sup> As a consequence of the threatening atmosphere, several refugees committed suicide, or attempted to do so.<sup>10429</sup> Hanifa Hafizović testified that during their second night at the UNPROFOR base in Potočari after the attack on Srebrenica, the ‘Chetnik’ soldiers started beating, killing, and raping people.<sup>10430</sup> They also took the men away and slaughtered them.<sup>10431</sup> Across the road, in Donji Potočari, there was a pale house, belonging to a certain Ibrahim Husanović. The witness stated that the ‘Chetniks’ brought men to this house and killed them there, and that she saw the blood running under the door of the house.<sup>10432</sup>

2433. Robert Franken testified that from 12 to 13 July, due to the hot weather and the lack of food, water, and toilets; the living conditions at the DutchBat compound began deteriorating rapidly for the 5,000 Bosnian Muslims who had taken refuge in the factory building of the compound. People were afraid to go outside and used the factory hall as a toilet and sleeping area, and by this time there had already been one death due to dehydration. Franken testified that he did not know exactly how many people died during this time, but DutchBat buried eleven bodies at the back of the base, including children who likely died of exhaustion or dehydration, two elderly people who died of exhaustion, and two elderly who had died from their wounds.<sup>10433</sup>

2434. Zoran Kovacević testified that he neither witnessed any mistreatment of the Muslim population gathered there, nor saw the men being separated from the women and children or the Muslim population boarding buses.<sup>10434</sup>

2435. Tomislav Savkić testified that on or around 11 July 1995, he received information that ‘our forces’ had entered Srebrenica, and that 12,000-14,000 Muslim soldiers had begun a breakthrough towards Tuzla while Muslim civilians had moved in the direction of Potočari, towards the UN base.<sup>10435</sup>

Mladić’s visit to Potočari on 12 July 1995

2436. Koster testified that during the afternoon of 12 July 1995 he heard, via walkie-talkie, that a Serb delegation was driving towards the UN compound in Potočari. There were about 40 Serb soldiers, about four passenger cars, and six German Shepard dogs.<sup>10436</sup> Kovačević testified that Mladić was present in Potočari and told the witness to ‘press ahead towards Milačevići’.<sup>10437</sup>

2437. Mile Janjić testified that he saw officers of the VRS Main Staff and Mladić in Potočari on that day.<sup>10438</sup> He saw Mladić staying a while at the barrier next to the civilians who were waiting to board the buses.<sup>10439</sup> Koster observed many Serb soldiers arriving, and then he saw a man arrive and was told by his interpreter that it was Mladić.<sup>10440</sup> The witness later recognized him on television.<sup>10441</sup> Koster asked Mladić what he wanted, and then saw two or three old city buses arriving, and Mladić told him that he wanted to evacuate the refugees.<sup>10442</sup> Mladić walked amongst the refugees, stroking children's heads, and when the witness received orders to protest against Mladić's wish to evacuate the 'refugees', Mladić became annoyed and irritated.<sup>10443</sup> He told the witness that he could not give a shit about the UN and that he would do as he wanted, and that he was now going to evacuate.<sup>10444</sup> He also said [i]f you oppose me, you will be in trouble.<sup>10445</sup> Mladić then addressed the crowd of 'refugees present', telling them that anyone who wished to be transported would be, regardless how big, small, young or old they were. The crowd thanked him. Mladić told them not to be afraid or panic and that nobody would harm them. He added that they should let the women and children go first, and that 30 buses would arrive to transport them to Kladanj from where they would go to territory controlled by 'Alija's' forces. A journalist asked Mladić what would happen to the several hundred Muslim civilians located in the newly- liberated Srebrenica. Mladić responded that 'representatives of the population' had asked him for assistance to enable the 'civilians' who wanted to leave Srebrenica to go to the territory controlled by the Muslims and Croats. Mladić said that transportation had been arranged for them along with food, water, and medicine and that the 'civilians' and UNPROFOR were never the VRS's targets. Women, children, and the elderly would be the first evacuated on that day without any kind of force along with anyone else who wanted to leave.<sup>10446</sup> Several witnesses testified that Mladić addressed the group of Bosnian Muslims. Nedo Jovičić testified that Mladić addressed the large group, including women and children, who had gathered at Potočari.<sup>10447</sup> Janjić later heard from persons who were standing close to Mladić at that moment, that Mladić had told the civilians that buses would arrive soon and bring them to Kladanj or wherever they wanted to be taken, that they were safe, but that women and children should leave first because they were a priority, while men should wait longer and be patient.<sup>10448</sup>

Groenewegen testified that Mladić told the ‘refugees’ that they were free to stay or, if they wanted to leave, that they would be transported to Kladanj.<sup>10449</sup> Milovan Milutinović testified that Mladić introduced himself to the people gathered there, told them there was no reason to be afraid, and that everyone would be transported to the Federation of Bosnia-Herzegovina.<sup>10450</sup> According to the witness, Mladić said that they must all reach the Federation of Bosnia-Herzegovina alive, and that they were to be treated humanely.<sup>10451</sup> According to Saliha Osmanović, Mladić ordered the Bosnian-Muslim women and children to move towards buses and trucks, and leave all their possessions behind.<sup>10452</sup> Ljubodrag Gajić testified that this was around 10:30 or 11 a.m.<sup>10453</sup> Mladić mentioned that he had issued an order to the civilian authorities in Bratunac to provide a convoy for the transportation of the population in the area.<sup>10454</sup> displaced people in Potočari.<sup>10461</sup> Milovan Milutinović saw Mladić handing sweets to the children. Mladić had bought the candy in a store on his way to Potočari and asked the vendor to invoice the VRS Main Staff. According to the witness, Mladić did not hand out the sweets because of the video being made, but because 'he was a man like that'.<sup>10462</sup> Pero Andrić testified that he saw that Mladić threw juice packs into the crowd of refugees and told them that they would be taken to the place they wanted to go.<sup>10463</sup> Dušan Mičić testified that he saw Mladić handing out food and cigarettes to the people but no soldiers or policemen near them. He also saw Borovčanin in the vicinity of Mladić. Later, he also saw policemen handing out food and water to the gathered people.<sup>10464</sup> Several witnesses testified that the food distribution was filmed by a Serbian TV crew.<sup>10465</sup> Milutinović testified that Mladić ordered him to sell the footage to foreign agencies, with funds being paid to the VRS Main Staff Financial Service.<sup>10466</sup> Koster testified that when the cameraman stopped filming, they stopped giving these things to the refugees.<sup>10467</sup> Joseph Kingori testified that on several occasions he witnessed VRS soldiers and at times General Mladić himself handing out candy and drinks to the displaced people in front of UNMOs or TV cameras, only to take it back when the observers left or the cameras were switched off.<sup>10468</sup>

2439. Jovičić testified that he observed that a few army officers started taking the juice and chocolate and Mladić reprimanded those officers by cursing and pushing someone, and ordered the witness and others to assist with the distribution.<sup>10469</sup> Janjić saw Mladić shouting at the members of the Logistics Battalion.<sup>10470</sup> He testified that after Mladić

Krstić guaranteed the safety of the civilian population and said they would be safely transported wherever they wished to go. ### The Trial Chamber's findings

The fall of Srebrenica

2443. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that the VRS attack on the Srebrenica enclave began on 6 July 1995. Members of the VRS 10th Sabotage Detachment participated in the attack. On 10 July 1995 pursuant to an order from the VRS Supreme Commander, the Bosnian-Serb MUP ordered various MUP units, including a company from the MUP training centre in Jahorina, the 2nd Special Police Detachment from Šekovići, the 1st Company of the Zvornik Special Police Unit of the Zvornik CSB, and one company of joint forces of the RSK MUP, the Serbian MUP, and the MUP, to form a combined unit of MUP forces. The order further tasked this unit, commanded by Ljubiša Borovčanin, to participate in the 'Krivaja 95' operation.

2444. On 10 July 1995, the UN sent an ultimatum to the VRS demanding its withdrawal from the enclave, which responded with an ultimatum of its own that if the DutchBat stopped all hostile activity and agreed to leave its equipment and weapons behind, its personnel and the civilian population would be allowed to leave the enclave. During the attack on the enclave, the defending ABiH forces came under heavy fire and were pushed back towards Srebrenica Town. The town, the UNPROFOR compound in Potočari, DutchBat positions in the municipality, and Bosnian-Muslim villages in the enclave were targeted by shells, grenades, and machine guns.

2445. During the attack, about 4,000 Bosnian-Muslim residents of the enclave, who had been living in a nearby Swedish housing complex for refugees, fled north into Srebrenica Town. Others, including civilians, fled their villages in the municipality to escape the shooting and moved towards Srebrenica Town. On 10 July 1995, a mortar grenade fell close to the UNPROFOR Bravo Company compound, wounding a little boy. On 11 July 1995, in execution of Pelemiš's order, members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment who were approaching Srebrenica Town called the inhabitants to leave their houses and go towards the football stadium in town. About 100 to 200 people, mostly elderly, responded to that call. The VRS entered Srebrenica Town on that day. Thousands of residents crowded around the UNPROFOR Bravo Company compound in town, eventually forcing their way inside. Around noon, mortar shells landed inside the compound, wounding several people. Some Bosnian Muslims left Srebrenica Town after they started hearing shots.

2446. Still on 11 July 1995, the military leadership in Srebrenica told mothers and children to head for the UNPROFOR compound in Potočari. A member of the civilian protection also told Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica Town that the elderly and infirm should go to the UNPROFOR compound in Potočari. Similarly, when the VRS entered some villages of the municipality, it ordered the villagers to go to the UNPROFOR compound in Potočari. Following the shelling of the UNPROFOR Bravo Company compound in Srebrenica Town and encouraged by the DutchBat troops, who had been ordered by the UNPROFOR Command to withdraw, Bosnian Muslims from Srebrenica began to move towards Potočari. Thousands of Bosnian Muslims, mostly women, children, and elderly and about 1,000 to 2,000 able-bodied men, fled to Potočari seeking protection within the UNPROFOR compound. Some of these able-bodied men were members of the ABiH 28th Division. The VRS fired mortars near the road taken by the Bosnian Muslims fleeing towards Potočari. The shelling ceased upon the arrival of NATO planes. Corpses and people crying for help were found on the road.

2447. Civilians died as a result of the attack on the enclave. In particular, when the 10th Sabotage Detachment arrived in Srebrenica Town on 11 July 1995, Pelemiš ordered Zoran Goronja to kill a Bosnian-Muslim man who had surrendered to them. Goronja slit the man's throat in execution of Pelemiš's order. Srebrenica remained under fire until the enclave fell under the complete control of the VRS on 11 July 1995.

2448. During the attack on the enclave, the VRS embarked upon a campaign of burning Bosnian-Muslim houses in the enclave, including in Potočari, Ljubisavići, and Pustumulići. During the attack on Sućeska on 6 July 1995, Bosnian-Serb forces<sup>10479</sup> heavily shelled the Sućeska mosque. On 8 or 9 July 1995, soldiers identified as 'Chetniks' burned the Slapovići mosque during the attack on the settlement. Around 11 July 1995, the VRS destroyed with explosives the Čaršjska, Petrička, and Vidikovac mosques, burned the White mosque and the building housing the archive and library of the Medžlis of the Islamic Community of Srebrenica, destroyed the Crvena Rijeka mosque, and shelled the Srebrenica Town Catholic church. In the early morning of 12 July 1995, VRS soldiers with German Shepherd dogs in the northern area of the enclave threw hand grenades into civilian houses in Potočari. As a result, inhabitants were forced to flee from their houses to the UNPROFOR compound.

<sup>10479</sup> The Trial Chamber understands the reference to the 'aggressor' in Exhibit P6862 to be a reference to Bosnian-Serb forces.

Gathering of people in Potočari and living conditions

2449. By the end of 11 July 1995, Bosnian Muslims from the municipality, mainly women, children, elderly men, and injured, were gathered in Potočari: several thousands had pressed inside the UNPROFOR compound, while the rest were spread throughout the neighbouring factories and fields and bus depot and were kept back by red and white tape which was put across the road. On the same day, the VRS shelled the area of the bus station wounding some of the Bosnian Muslims and threatened to shell the UNPROFOR compound unless air support provided to the DutchBat was to stop. A man, who had previously tried to get inside the compound, hit his head with a stone to be let inside 'Chetniks' could be heard shouting from the hills which caused panic among the Bosnian Muslims.

2450. The water supply was insufficient for the Bosnian Muslims who had gathered outside the compound and the DutchBat only had food rations for a few days. Many of the people were injured and there was a shortage of medical supplies. People were exhausted, lethargic, and frightened. The presence of armed members of the Bratunac Brigade in Potočari contributed to the intimidation of the Bosnian Muslims there.

2451. Towards the evening of 11 July shelling began from the north, but the shells landed near the road but no one was hit. Rifle shots came from the same direction as the shells, causing people to panic and run in the direction of the factory buildings. During the night of 11 and 12 July 1995, some of the Bosnian Muslims were forced to spend the night in the open.

2452. On 11 and 12 July 1995, various VRS units, including a unit of the Bratunac Brigade Military Police, and police units, members of the 1st Company of the Jahorina Detachment of the Special Police Brigade and a company from the Zvornik PJP were present in Potočari. Two platoons from the 1st company were ordered to secure the Konjević Polje-Bratunac road and one to stay in Potočari because of the planned evacuation. On 12 July 1995, the combat unit of the MUP Special Police Brigade, composed of the 2nd Special Police Detachment, a MUP company of the Zvornik Special Police Unit, and a mixed company of the Janja MUP, was present in Potočari and sealed off the compound.

2453. By 12 July 1995, 25,000 to 30,000 civilians had gathered in Potočari, five percent of whom were able-bodied men. On the same day, the VRS fired mortar rounds which landed in the vicinity of the compound and Serb infantry advanced from the north towards Potočari down the mountains. Screams, gunshots and other noises, including from women and children, were audible throughout the night between 12 and 13 July 1995 and no one could sleep. Soldiers were picking people out of the crowd and taking them away; some returned, others did not. In particular, some men were killed in a house across the road from the compound. As a consequence of the threatening atmosphere, several Bosnian Muslims committed suicide, or attempted to do so. Members of the units present in Potočari used dogs to move people around the compound, confiscating weapons and clothing from UNPROFOR soldiers and taking men, boys, and girls away. Still on 12 July 1995, members of the units present in Potočari raped people in the area of the compound. On the same day, DutchBat tried to create a buffer zone outside the UNPROFOR compound to prevent contact between the Bosnian Muslims and the VRS since the VRS soldiers approached the population aggressively. DutchBat was not capable of keeping the groups separated.

2454. The living conditions in Potočari deteriorated from 12 to 13 July due to hot weather, lack of food, water, and toilets, in particular for the Bosnian Muslims staying in the factory building of the compound. People were afraid to go outside and used the factory hall as a toilet and sleeping area. A nurse was present there on that day. Eleven bodies were buried at the compound, including those of children, two elderly people who are said to have died from dehydration, and two others who died from their wounds. Serb women and soldiers distributed food and beverages to Bosnian Muslims. Some of the soldiers told them things such as ‘here you are, filthy swine’, and the distribution was filmed. Policemen and VRS soldiers also took part in the distribution. Some of the soldiers only handed out chocolate and cigarettes when a cameraman was filming and took them back when the filming stopped.

2455. The Trial Chamber will further consider these findings in relation to Counts 2, 3, 7, and 8 of the Indictment in chapters 8 below.

2456. The Trial Chamber will address the evidence related to the alleged Srebrenica JCE and, in particular, the Accused's alleged contribution to such JCE (some of which has been reviewed above in this chapter such as the Accused's role and whereabouts during the attack on Srebrenica and the transfer of Bosnian Muslims out of Potočari) in chapter 9.

7.1.4 The Hotel Fontana meetings

2457. According to the Prosecution, from 11 to 12 July 1995, three meetings took place at Hotel Fontana in Bratunac involving the Accused, his subordinates, members of DutchBat, and, for the second and third meetings, representatives of the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.<sup>10480</sup> The Trial Chamber has received evidence about these meetings from Pieter Boering, a former DutchBat Major who served as Liaison Officer with the VRS and ABiH in Srebrenica from 3 January to July 1995;<sup>10481</sup> Evert Rave, a member of the DutchBat who served as Security and Liaison Officer in Srebrenica from January to late July 1995;<sup>10482</sup> Witness RM-294, a Bosnian Muslim from Srebrenica Municipality;<sup>10483</sup> Momir Nikolić, the Assistant Commander for Intelligence and Security of the Bratunac Brigade from November 1992 to at least October 1995;<sup>10484</sup> Miroslav Deronjić, the President of the Bratunac Municipality Crisis Staff as of April 1992;<sup>10485</sup> Milovan Milutinović Chief of the Press Centre and the Information Service at the 1KK between 1992 and 1994 and head of the VRS Main Staff Information Service and Centre for Information and Propaganda Activities between 1994 and 1996;<sup>10486</sup> Robert Franken, the Deputy Commanding Officer of DutchBat in Potočari from 15 January to late July 1995;<sup>10487</sup> Mile Janjić, a member of the Bratunac Brigade military police platoon in July 1995;<sup>10488</sup> Witness RM-284, a Bosnian Serb,<sup>10489</sup> as well as documentary evidence.

First Hotel Fontana Meeting

2458. Momir Nikolić testified that Colonel Radoslav Janković of the Main Staff informed him that DutchBat members had surrendered at Hotel Fontana and had requested a meeting between Mladić and DutchBat Colonel Karremans.<sup>10490</sup> The witness was tasked with preparing the hotel and providing security for the meeting.<sup>10491</sup>

Mile Janjić testified that on 11 July 1995 Nikolić ordered him and 10-15 other military police officers to go to the hotel.<sup>10492</sup> Outside the hotel, the military police officers were greeted by three men in VRS uniforms who introduced themselves as Mladić's personal security detail and who gave them tasks of providing security.<sup>10493</sup> Nikolić testified that at 8 p.m. Mladić and Karremans met in the conference room of the hotel.<sup>10494</sup> Milenko Živanović and Radislav Janković attended the meeting as well.<sup>10495</sup>

2459. Pieter Boering and Evert Rave provided their accounts of the meeting. Boering testified that he attended the meeting with Karremans and Rave of DutchBat, Mladić, Janković, Momir Nikolić, possibly Krstić, a person called Kosorić, a UN interpreter named Petar, as well as some other VRS members.<sup>10496</sup> Rave specified that Živanović was present as well, in addition to about ten Serbs in military uniforms, a man referred to as Mladić's lawyer, a number of Serb civilians, and a camera crew which was recording the entire event.<sup>10497</sup> When the witness entered, he noticed that in a separate room some Dutch soldiers were held under guard by the VRS soldiers.<sup>10498</sup> According to Boering, the DutchBat soldiers did not have the freedom to leave and looked like they were under threat.<sup>10499</sup>

2460. Mladić said during the meeting that neither the UNPROFOR forces, nor the Muslim population were the objective of his operations, and that he wanted to help the Muslim civilian population because they were not responsible for what had happened.<sup>10500</sup> Mladić offered to discuss a peaceful agreement to resolve the issues facing the civilian population, DutchBat, and the ABiH.<sup>10501</sup> He also offered to ‘accept’ wounded Muslims.<sup>10502</sup>

2461. According to Boering, Mladić, inter alia, said that he was in charge and that ‘[w]e can do as we please with you’.<sup>10503</sup> He moreover warned that if the air strikes continued, harm would befall the DutchBat soldiers held hostage, the Potočari compound, and the refugees, with bombs possibly being used.<sup>10504</sup> Mladić said that every DutchBat soldier only has one life, which the witness considered to be a clear threat.<sup>10505</sup> During the meeting, the witness felt intimidated and Mladić used threatening language and behaved in an imperious manner.<sup>10506</sup> Robert Franken testified that he believed Mladić’s statements at the meeting about the possibilities of the Bosnian Muslims and DutchBat going away, staying, or dying; as well as Mladić’s comments about DutchBat ‘POWs’ no longer being treated as guests, were implicit threats.<sup>10507</sup>

2462. According to Rave, Mladić was very upset about, and blamed DutchBat for, the air strikes inflicted on his troops earlier that day.<sup>10508</sup> Mladić threatened that if the air attacks continued, he would retaliate by shelling the Potočari compound and killing the DutchBat hostages then held by the VRS.<sup>10509</sup> In the beginning of the meeting Mladić threatened the Dutch representatives, saying that he would target the UN compound, that they only had one life, and asking whether they wanted to see their families again. The witness even wondered whether they would all be taken outside and shot.<sup>10510</sup> Mladić told the witness and others that a cease-fire was in effect and would remain in place until 10 a.m. the next day, and instructed them to return in the evening with Muslim civilian and military representatives. Mladić said that he wanted the Muslim troops to be disarmed.<sup>10511</sup> Mladić allowed Karremans to see his soldiers who were held hostage in a room of the hotel, but only after he and Karremans would have a drink together 'like true warriors'.<sup>10512</sup> As wine was being served, photographs were taken.<sup>10513</sup>

2463. Milovan Milutinović testified that Karremans asked for a suspension of combat activities and presented the request of the Muslim population that wanted to leave Srebrenica.<sup>10514</sup> Mladić accepted his proposal and requested that a delegation of Muslim representatives meet with him for talks the following day.<sup>10515</sup>

2464. Boering testified that after the meeting, he and Karremans drove back to Potočari and found a former teacher that Boering knew named Nesib Mandžić, who agreed to act as a representative of the population during the second meeting at Hotel Fontana.<sup>10516</sup> During the preparations for the second meeting, the witness and Karremans considered the various organisations which could help transport the population out of the enclave, noting that the wounded should be the first to be evacuated, followed by the elderly, then the remainder of the population.<sup>10517</sup>

Second Hotel Fontana Meeting

2465. Franken testified that after the first meeting at the Hotel Fontana in the evening of 11 July 1995, he, under orders from Karremans, located a representative of the Muslim population for a second meeting. Mandžić acted as this representative in the second Hotel Fontana meeting and was very nervous and almost panicking afterward because of the responsibility placed on him.<sup>10518</sup> Nikolić testified that he prepared Hotel Fontana and provided security for the second meeting.<sup>10519</sup>

2466. Boering testified that at 11 p.m. on 11 July 1995, he and Karremans attended this meeting, which lasted around 30 minutes, with the following participants: Rave of DutchBat; Mladić, Nikolić, Krstić, Janković, and a person called Kosorić of the VRS; Mladić's bodyguard, an interpreter named Petar, Nesib Mandžić, and some other civilians.<sup>10520</sup> Rave testified that Ljubisav Simić, the Mayor of Bratunac, and a camera crew were also present.<sup>10521</sup> Soon after the beginning of the meeting, a VRS soldier standing next to a window pulled back the window's curtains and opened the window.<sup>10522</sup> The sound of a pig being slaughtered under the window could be heard.<sup>10523</sup> The window was closed afterwards and the witness believed that the slaughter was staged to unnerve the DutchBat and to intimidate the Muslim representative.<sup>10524</sup> Boering testified that a broken part of a sign from the Srebrenica town hall was placed on the table in front of Mandžić, which the witness interpreted as signifying that the VRS was now in charge of Srebrenica.<sup>10525</sup>

2467. During the meeting, Mladić reiterated that the ‘innocent Muslim population’ was not the target of the VRS operations.<sup>10526</sup> He offered to provide buses for their transportation out of Potočari, if others provided the fuel.<sup>10527</sup> Boering testified that Karremans stated that those who remained around the village of Potočari were mostly women, children, and elderly.<sup>10528</sup> Mladić agreed to a ceasefire until 10 a.m. on 12 July and demanded the retreat of the ABiH from the enclave and the handover of their weapons in exchange for treatment of the wounded ‘refugees’.<sup>10529</sup> Mladić indicated that there would be more shelling in case of non-compliance.<sup>10530</sup> Witness RM-294 testified that Karremans also described the extremely poor humanitarian situation in Potočari to Mladić, stating that the population had to be evacuated, and referred Mladić to Mandžić to discuss where the population wanted to go.<sup>10531</sup> The latter told Mladić that he believed there were over 25,000, if not 30,000 people in Potočari, that he was not an official representative and that he was not prepared to say where the population wanted to go.<sup>10532</sup> Mandžić started to say that international organisations should be involved in the evacuation when Mladić interrupted him telling him that his people would either live or vanish and that their fate, not only in Srebrenica but elsewhere, was in Mandžić’s hands.<sup>10533</sup> Rave testified that Mladić informed Mandžić that the civilian population was free to go or stay and that the Serbs would provide transport for them.<sup>10534</sup>

2468. Boering testified that back in Potočari, Mandžić expressed his concern that he would need more representatives to support him in the next meeting, and then went off to look for others to join the delegation.<sup>10535</sup> In a letter to the UNPROFOR Headquarters, Karremans indicated that he was unable to defend the ‘refugees’ and his

Third Hotel Fontana Meeting

2470. Momir Nikolić testified that on 12 July 1995, he prepared the Hotel Fontana and provided security for another meeting at 10 a.m.<sup>10540</sup> Boering testified that he attended this meeting, which lasted around 30 minutes, with the following participants: Commander Karremans of DutchBat; Mladić, Nikolić, Krstić, Janković, a person called Kosorić, who was responsible for transporting the refugees, all of the VRS; Mladić's bodyguard, an interpreter named Petar, Nesib Mandžić, and two others that had been selected to act as representatives of the enclave: Čamila Omanović and Ibro Nuhanović.<sup>10541</sup> At the meeting, attempts were made to reach a solution for evacuating the refugees; however, some issues such as who would bear the responsibility for the transport of refugees and the welfare of the civilian population, along with the provision of fuel, could not be resolved.<sup>10542</sup> The screening of men aged between 16 and 60 for possible war crimes or other criminal behaviour was also discussed at the meeting.<sup>10543</sup> After two soldiers entered the meeting room, Krstić stepped out and later called other people out.<sup>10544</sup> According to the witness, Mladić said that if the Muslim soldiers would not surrender, the enclave would be attacked and bombed by his troops.<sup>10545</sup>

2471. Witness RM-294 testified that during the meeting, Mladić reminded the Bosniak delegation what he had told them the night before, namely that they could either survive or disappear, and demanded that should they want to survive, all their armed men, even those who had committed crimes against his people should surrender their weapons to the VRS.<sup>10546</sup> Mladić added that, after surrendering the weapons, they could choose to stay in the territory if they so wished, or go where they wished and that he would let everyone go regardless of the fact that some may have been involved in crimes.<sup>10547</sup> According to the witness, the people gathered in Potočari had nothing with them let alone weapons and the Bosniak delegation to which Mladić addressed his demands could not influence the Bosnian military authorities to surrender their weapons.<sup>10548</sup>

2472. Milovan Milutinović testified that Mladić gave the Muslim delegation his word that everyone gathered at Potočari who had surrendered their weapons could choose whether to go to ‘Yugoslavia, the Federation’ or to stay in the Bosnian-Serb Republic, and guaranteed them full rights and freedoms.<sup>10549</sup> Mladić stated that all soldiers could leave apart from those who had committed crimes against Serbs, as proceedings would be instituted against them.<sup>10550</sup> He ordered his subordinates to ensure that there was transportation, food, and fuel for the population.<sup>10551</sup> UNPROFOR representatives informed those present that Muslim forces were opening mortar fire from positions around Srebrenica on ‘columns of their compatriots’, which were moving towards the UN base in Potočari. According to the witness, they wanted to prevent their gathering in

Although there are discrepancies in the dates and sequence of meetings described by Milutinović, the Trial Chamber understands his evidence to refer to two meetings on 11 July, followed by a third meeting on 12 July.

Potočari and their departure from Srebrenica.<sup>10552</sup> When discussing how many vehicles would be needed for transportation, the Muslim representatives informed those present that the number of people in Srebrenica had been considerably exaggerated by the Srebrenica authorities, in order to receive more humanitarian aid.<sup>10553</sup> After talking to the Muslim delegation, Mladić told Krstić that they should ‘behave like knights’; that he had given his word as a general, and that no one must be harmed.<sup>10554</sup> When the witness returned to Hotel Fontana the following morning, he was informed that all the Muslims wanted to leave Srebrenica and head for Tuzla.<sup>10555</sup>

2473. Boering testified that after the meeting, he returned to Potočari with Karremans and discussed its outcome; as the areas of agreement were unclear, Karremans sent the witness back to Hotel Fontana. At Hotel Fontana, the witness ran into Momir Nikolić who told him that everything had been agreed upon, that Boering had no business there and he should ‘get lost,’ that things had already started, and that Boering should leave immediately.<sup>10556</sup>

2474. A document signed by the DutchBat Deputy Commander Major Franken, Miroslav Deronjić, and Nesib Mandžić on 17 July 1995 states that at the 12 July 1995 meeting the Serb side was represented by the Civil Affairs Commissioner for Srebrenica Miroslav Deronjić, Mladić, the President of Bratunac Municipality Ljubisav Simić, the Chief Executive of Bratunac Municipality Srbislav Davidović, the Chief of the Zvornik police with the last name Vasić, Krstić, Popović and Kosorić.<sup>10557</sup> It describes that the participants agreed that each civilian could decide to ‘remain in the enclave or evacuate’, the Bosniak representatives had decided that civilians wanting ‘to evacuate’ were to evacuate to Kladanj Municipality, and that the evacuation would be carried out by the VRS and Bosnian-Serb Republic police under UNPROFOR supervision and escort.<sup>10558</sup>

2475. The Defence submitted that the testimony of Momir Nikolić with regard to the Hotel Fontana meetings is not credible because, inter alia, he downplayed his role in the meetings, which is in contrast to the evidence of Boering who testified that Nikolić was 'in charge of everything at that point'.<sup>10559</sup> The Trial Chamber notes, however, that the evidence of Boering cited by the Defence relates to meetings with Nikolić other than the Hotel Fontana meetings alleged to have taken place on 11 and 12 July 1995.<sup>10560</sup> The Trial Chamber, therefore, finds the Defence submissions in this regard to be unpersuasive.

2476. Based on the foregoing, the Trial Chamber finds that on 11 and 12 July 1995, three meetings were held at Hotel Fontana in Bratunac. The first meeting was between members of the VRS and DutchBat officers. In the subsequent two meetings, one or more designated representatives of the Bosnian Muslims in Potočari were also present. These individuals had been designated by the Serb side.<sup>10561</sup> At the meetings, the fate of those who had gathered in Potočari was discussed. These meetings were filmed by a camera crew. The first meeting took place at approximately 8 p.m. on 11 July, and was attended by, inter alios, Mladić, Živanović, Janković, Nikolić, Krstić, Kosorić, some other VRS members, as well as DutchBat representatives. Also present was a camera team and a UN interpreter. During this meeting unarmed DutchBat soldiers were being detained by the VRS in an adjacent room. Mladić led the meeting in an intimidating atmosphere, using threatening language. He was upset about NATO air strikes earlier that day and warned that if they were to continue the detained DutchBat soldiers would be killed. He further threatened to target the UN compound, stating that each DutchBat soldier and officer had only one life to live and he believed that they did not want to lose it there. He also stated that neither UNPROFOR nor the civilian Muslim population were the objective of the VRS. Mladić offered to discuss a peaceful agreement to resolve the situation of the civilian population, DutchBat and the ABiH and stated his willingness to accept wounded Muslims. He allowed Karremans to see his detained soldiers, but only after they had a drink together. As wine was being served, photographs were taken. Mladić instructed the DutchBat officers to return for a subsequent meeting scheduled for that same evening together with Muslim civilian and military representatives.

2477. On the same evening at approximately 10 or 11 p.m., the second meeting took place. It was attended by the same participants, in addition to Ljubisav Simić, the Mayor of Bratunac, and Nesib Mandžić, who had been asked by Karremans and Boering to act as a representative for the Bosnian-Muslim population gathered in Potočari. Soon after the start of the meeting, a VRS soldier pulled back some curtains and opened a window. The sound of a pig being slaughtered just outside could be heard, after which the window was closed. During the meeting, a broken sign of the Srebrenica town hall was placed on the table in front of Mandžić. The evacuation of the civilian population out of Potočari was again discussed and Mladić reiterated that they were not the target of the VRS and were free to go or stay. He offered to provide buses for their transport, if others provided the fuel. When Mandžić proposed that international organizations should be involved in the evacuation process, Mladić told him that his people were to either live or vanish and that their fate was in Mandžić's hands. Mladić agreed to a ceasefire until 10 a.m. the following day, demanding the retreat of ABiH soldiers from the enclave and the handover of all weapons and threatened with more shelling in case of non-compliance.

2478. The following morning, on 12 July 1995, a third meeting took place at around 10 a.m. attended by Mladić, several VRS officers, including Krstić, as well as Miroslav Deronjić, two DutchBat officers Karremans and Boering as well as three Bosnian Muslims who were acting as representatives of the civilian population in Potočari, Nesib Mandžić, Ibro Nuhanović and Čamila Omanović. Mladić repeated his demand for the surrender of all armed Bosnian-Muslim men and weapons, and stated that 'you can either survive or disappear'. Mladić stated that the civilians could stay or go where they wished and that he would let everyone go regardless of the fact that some of them may have been involved in crimes. On 17 July 1995, a document was signed by Franken, Deronjić, and Mandžić stating that an agreement had been reached that the civilians were to be 'evacuated' to Kladanj Municipality by the VRS and Bosnian-Serb Republic police forces under the supervision and escort of UNPROFOR. The screening of men aged between 16 and 60 was also discussed. For Boering, some issues remained unresolved after the meeting, such as who would bear the ultimate responsibility for the transport or the provision of fuel, however when he sought clarification, Nikolić told him that everything had been agreed upon, that things had already started, and that he should ‘get lost’ and leave immediately.

7.1.5 Transportation from Potočari

2479. In this chapter, the Trial Chamber will review the evidence and make findings concerning the transportation of people out of Potočari, including organisation of the transportation of Bosnian Muslims out of the enclave and the separation of Bosnian-Muslim men from the rest of the population in Potočari . The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of a number of Adjudicated Facts relating to this event.<sup>10562</sup> It further received evidence from Momir Nikolić, the Assistant Commander for Intelligence and Security of the Bratunac Brigade from November 1992 to at least October 1995;<sup>10563</sup> Miladin Mladenović, a watchman at the Vihor vehicle fleet in Borkovac during the Srebrenica operation;<sup>10564</sup> Mile Janjić, a member of the Bratunac Brigade military police platoon in July 1995;<sup>10565</sup> Mendeljev Đurić, a.k.a. representatives there, but rather ordered by Mladić.<sup>10596</sup> In an intercepted conversation dated 12 July 1995, between Mladić and an unidentified individual, Mladić inquired about the departure of buses and trucks and stated that they all surrendered and should be evacuated including those who did not want to leave. Mladić told the unidentified individual that a corridor towards Kladanj would be opened for the evacuation. He further instructed the individual to take a patrol to remove the mines and obstacles.<sup>10597</sup> Franken further testified that the content of the conversation was consistent with the reality that he witnessed on the ground at the time.<sup>10598</sup>

2481. Petar Škrbić testified that late at night on 11 July 1995 he was requested via telephone by someone from the operation centre located at Crna Rijeka to mobilize buses.<sup>10599</sup> The witness knew that the request came from Mladić.<sup>10600</sup>

2482. On 12 July 1995 at around 4:30 a.m., the 1st Company of the Zvornik Special Police Unit and a MUP company from Jahorina had taken their starting positions on both sides of the Žuti Most near Potočari. The MUP companies took control of the UN checkpoint on the bridge without incident and without resistance from the DutchBat soldiers. Borovčanin estimated that there were 25,000 to 28,000 ‘civilians’ gathered in Potočari on that day.<sup>10601</sup>

2483. Still on 12 July 1995, Dragomir Vasić, Chief of the Zvornik SJB, reported that that morning at 8 a.m., Mladić and General Krstić had met at the Bratunac Brigade Command and assigned tasks to all participants at the meeting.<sup>10602</sup> Momir Nikolić confirmed that Mladić, Vasić, and other senior officers from the police and the army attended the meeting in the morning of 12 July 1995.<sup>10603</sup> According to Vasić’s report, the military operations were proceeding according to plan: the ‘Turks’ were fleeing towards Sućeska, while around 15,000 ‘civilians’ had gathered in Potočari. Vasić reported that at 10 a.m. that morning, a meeting would be held with representatives of UNPROFOR, the International Red Cross, and the Muslims from Srebrenica, at which an agreement would be reached on the evacuation of the civilian population from Potočari to Kladanj, to which he added: 'for them to have more problems there'. One hundred trailer trucks had been provided for transport. Joint police forces were advancing on Potočari to take UNPROFOR personnel prisoner, surround the entire civilian population, and clear the terrain of enemy groups.<sup>10604</sup>

2484. Also in the early morning of 12 July, General Živanović signed an order addressed to all the subordinate units of the DK directing that 'all buses and mini-buses belonging to the VRS be secured for use by the DK,' arrive at the Bratunac stadium by 4:30 p.m., and follow instructions about locations for fuel distribution.<sup>10605</sup> The order further stated that the DK Command had sent a message to the Bosnian-Serb MoD asking for private buses to be mobilised.<sup>10606</sup> The same morning, the Bosnian-Serb MoD sent three orders to its local secretariats directing them to procure buses and send them to Bratunac.<sup>10607</sup> Skrbić testified that on that day, he sent an urgent written request to the MoD to mobilise all buses available in the Pale, Sokolac, Rogatica, Višegrad, Han Pijesak, Vlasenica, Milići, Bratunac, and Zvornik Municipalities.<sup>10608</sup> At least 50 buses were to be mobilised and sent to the Bratunac stadium by 2:30 p.m.<sup>10609</sup> According to a document dated 12 July 1995, the DK Command sent a request to the VRS Main Staff for additional approval of 10,000 litres of diesel fuel and 2,000 litres of petrol, referring to the order to provide 50 buses for 'evacuation from the Srebrenica enclave'.<sup>10610</sup> Traffic police and the military police of the 65th Protection Motorised Regiment were tasked to monitor the movement of the buses from the DK area to the SRK area.<sup>10611</sup> The Commander of the 65th Protection Motorised Regiment was Milomir Savčić, whose commander was Mladić.<sup>10612</sup>

2485. General Krstić ordered the procurement of buses for the transportation of the Bosnian-Muslim population from Potočari on 12 and 13 July 1995. He issued orders to his subordinates about securing the road along which the buses would travel to Kladanj and he generally supervised the transportation operation.<sup>10613</sup> Witness RM-284 testified that on the morning of 12 July 1995, he heard Krstić ordering that buses be secured from Zvornik and other municipalities.<sup>10614</sup> He further heard a conversation between Krstić and Popović in front of Hotel Fontana, still on the same day, wherein Krstić asked Popović about how to structure the column of buses to ensure safe passage for the ‘civilian’ Muslim population that was gathering in Potočari near Srebrenica to the Muslim side.<sup>10615</sup> In front of Hotel Fontana, the witness also heard Mladić asking Krstić how everything was going. Krstić replied that he believed everything was going according to plan but that he was ‘going to check’. Krstić then went inside Hotel Fontana.<sup>10616</sup> On 12 July 1995, dozens of buses and trucks arrived in Potočari to collect the Bosnian-Muslim women, children, and elderly.<sup>10617</sup>

2486. Miladin Mladenović testified that between 1 and 2 p.m. still on 12 July, two employees from Vihor – a driver and an electrician named Milenko Jovanović from Bratunac – came to his house.<sup>10618</sup> They told him that his boss at Vihor, a man named Stević who was the head of transport, had ordered that the witness get a bus and drive Muslims to Kladanj.<sup>10619</sup> The director of Vihor was Dragan Jovanović.<sup>10620</sup> The witness reported to the foreman at Vihor who issued him fuel and a white TAM bus with a blue horizontal line and a Vihor logo.<sup>10621</sup> The witness was told to go to Potočari to transport Muslims.<sup>10622</sup> Driving to Potočari, the witness saw approximately 50 buses and heavy-duty vehicles, such as lorries, driving in the direction of Bratunac towards Kladanj.<sup>10623</sup> When he arrived in Potočari, VRS soldiers directed him to park his bus within the grounds of the White House.<sup>10624</sup>

2487. On 12 July 1995, at 5:30 p.m., Lieutenant Colonel Vujadin Popović of the DK IKM sent a report to, amongst others, the DK Command and the VRS Main Staff.<sup>10625</sup> Popović reported that there had been no heavy exchange of fire with the 'balijas' that day, as MUP forces had entered Potočari without combat.<sup>10626</sup> Popović further reported that around 30,000 to 35,000 women, children, elderly, infirm, and sick persons were located near the UNPROFOR base on the road and in former factories.<sup>10627</sup> UNPROFOR soldiers were assisting in loading women and children into the vehicles.<sup>10628</sup> Nikolić and Janković also estimated that there were around 30,000 to 40,000 people at Potočari.<sup>10629</sup> At the end of the day, Nikolić compiled a report with all the intelligence information at his disposal and sent it to the DK Command.<sup>10630</sup> That evening, Nikolić also reported verbally to his commander, Blagojević, and they discussed the operation to transport woman and children to Kladanj and to separate, detain, and kill able-bodied Muslim men in Potočari.<sup>10631</sup> The witness generally informed Colonel Blagojević of everything that was happening in the Bratunac Brigade's zone of responsibility on the days around 12 July 1995.<sup>10632</sup>

2488. On 12 July 1995, part of the MUP forces were also involved in organizing the evacuation of 'civilians' from Srebrenica to Kladanj.<sup>10633</sup> On 13 July 1995, at 9:30 a.m., Mladić, Colonel Vasić, Lieutenant Colonel Popović, and General Krstić met at the Bratunac Brigade headquarters.<sup>10634</sup> Mladić informed Vasić, Chief of Zvornik SJB, that part of the MUP forces was delegated the task of organising the evacuation of approximately 15,000 civilians from Srebrenica to Kladanj by bus.<sup>10635</sup> Following this meeting, Blagojević tasked Nikolić with continuing the Potočari operation to transport Muslim women and children to Kladanj and separate and detain able-bodied Muslim men.<sup>10636</sup>

2489. When the evacuation began, Nikolić saw the following persons in Potočari: Mladić; Ljubiša Borovčanin; Colonel Janković; Popović and Kosorić, both of the DK intelligence and security; Acamović, Assistant Commander for logistics; Krsmanović, Head of the traffic service in Potočari, and a number of officers from the brigades engaged in the attack on the enclave.<sup>10637</sup> The witness identified several units 'engaged' in Potočari around that day: part of Bratunac Brigade military police, members of the 65th Protection Regiment from Nova Kasaba and part of the Military Police Battalion of the DK, whom the witness knew and recognized; the 2nd Infantry Battalion; a unit which carried out an attack from the area of Pribičevac; the Wolves from Drina, who were members of the Zvornik Brigade; police units, including members of the Bratunac SJB, the MUP Special Brigade under the command of Ljubiša Borovčanin, and a company of the PJP; and parts of the 10th Sabotage Detachment under the responsibility of the VRS Main Staff.<sup>10638</sup> The units of the DK present in Potočari on 12 July 1995 were under the command of Vujadin Popović and Kosorić.<sup>10639</sup> According to the witness, General Krstić was in command of all units taking part in the Krivaja operation until Mladić arrived and took over command of all units engaged in the combat operations, which were completed on 11 July 1995.<sup>10640</sup> According to the witness, as of 12 July 1995, the units present in Potočari were under the direct command of their commanders.<sup>10641</sup> When carrying out joint tasks with the army, police officers maintained command and control over their own units when participating in a joint operation.<sup>10642</sup> Prior to this, the engagement of MUP units was discussed at the level of the Minister of the Interior and senior officers of the VRS.<sup>10643</sup>

2490. Mendeljev Đurić stated that on 12 July 1995, he deployed the 1st Company of the Special Police Brigade largely around the civilians near the UN compound.<sup>10644</sup> Members of this company were also tasked to secure civilians in Potočari on 13 July 1995.<sup>10645</sup> Members of this company, together with DutchBat, led by a lieutenant called

2491. Leendert van Duijn testified that on 12 July 1995, he was approached by a Serb military official and his interpreter, ‘Miki’, at the factory sites near the UN Compound in Potočari.<sup>10655</sup> Through his interpreter, the Serb military official introduced himself as ‘Mane’<sup>10656</sup> and told Van Duijn that he was the captain of a military police unit and the local commander of the Serb forces in the area.<sup>10657</sup> Mane also told the witness that his superior was an individual who went by the code name ‘Stalin’.<sup>10658</sup> Mane went on to describe Stalin as a short man with a big pair of Ray-Ban sunglasses, and subsequently pointed him out to the witness.<sup>10659</sup> During the course of their conversation, Mane informed Van Duijn that he had a liaison with the Drina Wolves, but that he was not part of that unit.<sup>10660</sup> Mane then stated that there would be 200 buses to pick up the Bosnian Muslims in Potočari and transport them out of the Srebrenica enclave.<sup>10661</sup> He enquired with the witness whether the UN forces would stay or whether they would withdraw to the UN Compound. The witness considered it to be a part of DutchBat’s assignment to stay in order to provide humanitarian aid to the Bosnian Muslims in Potočari.<sup>10662</sup> He and other members of DutchBat therefore remained on the scene to try to calm down the Bosnian Muslims; it was hot and people were collapsing from dehydration.<sup>10663</sup> Shortly after, a large number of buses and trucks began to arrive.<sup>10664</sup> Around the same time, Van Duijn had contact with his superior, Major Franken, who told the witness that he had heard about the plans for the evacuation of the Bosnian Muslims from the enclave but appeared to be surprised that the process was already underway.<sup>10665</sup> As for the process whereby the Bosnian Muslims were boarded onto the buses and trucks, the witness testified that Mane would tell him how many people could board.<sup>10666</sup> The witness would then give orders to the DutchBat soldiers to let people through in small groups to ensure families could stay together and to prevent people from trampling on each other.<sup>10667</sup> The witness and Mane agreed on separated designated areas: one for Serb soldiers and another one for the Dutch soldiers and the

'refugees'.<sup>10668</sup> Both agreed that Serb soldiers would not cross over to the area designated for the Dutch soldiers and the 'refugees' and vice versa.<sup>10669</sup>

2492. Boering testified that on 12 July 1995 he informed Karremans about Mladić's presence and that Karremans sent him to Mladić with the request that the injured, elderly, and women be transported first.<sup>10670</sup> Mladić considered the request but did not act upon it; buses and trucks were filled with people without any selection.<sup>10671</sup> The witness, however, saw mostly women, children, elderly, and a few men between the ages of 16 and 60 boarding the first convoys.<sup>10672</sup> He did not see any vehicles bringing bread to the population.<sup>10673</sup> In at least one case, he saw a man being refused entry into a bus.<sup>10674</sup> UNMOs and UNPROFOR members were present during this selection.<sup>10675</sup>

2493. Franken testified that when the bus convoys first arrived, people in the crowd were eager to board, but he believed that this was only because they were afraid and had no other choice.<sup>10676</sup> Later, the Bosnian-Serb soldiers used some force to get a lot of people in a bus, which caused DutchBat to begin preparing busloads of people.<sup>10677</sup>

2494. The DK was instrumental in procuring the buses and other vehicles that were used to transport the Bosnian-Muslim women, children, and elderly out of the Potočari compound on 12 and 13 July 1995, as well as the fuel needed to accomplish this task.<sup>10678</sup> DK Command officers and units were present in Potočari monitoring the transportation of the Bosnian-Muslim civilians out of the area on 12 and 13 July 1995.<sup>10679</sup> General Krstić was present within the area of the former Srebrenica enclave at least up until the evening of 13 July, by which time the first mass executions had already taken place.<sup>10680</sup> The Bratunac Brigade monitored fuel disbursements to buses

2495. Groenewegen testified that he saw Mladić in Potočari on both 12 and 13 July 1995.<sup>10683</sup> Eelco Koster testified that on 13 July 1995, as it had happened the day before, a Serb film crew arrived. He also saw two trucks with military personnel and Mladić in a military jeep, driving past and in the direction of Srebrenica.<sup>10684</sup> They returned later that day, but Mladić did not get out of the vehicle. The compound was also visited by the Serb airborne troops, who wore bright red berets and had insignia.<sup>10685</sup> There were about four or five of them and they arrived in two jeeps, stayed for approximately 15 minutes, looked around a bit, and spoke to two Serb commanders, Mickey and Mane.<sup>10686</sup> Most buses and trucks taking away refugees were escorted by UN jeeps. The wounded were collected later by people from the Red Cross.<sup>10687</sup>

Separation of Bosnian-Muslim men from the rest of the population in Potočari

2496. Having reviewed the evidence on the organization of the transportation of Bosnian Muslims out of the enclave in the previous section, the Trial Chamber will now review the evidence on the separation of Bosnian-Muslim men from the rest of the population in Potočari.

2497. Nikolić testified that in the afternoon of 12 July 1995, he went to Potočari.<sup>10688</sup> He was present at Potočari several times that day.<sup>10689</sup> DutchBat, the police, and the forces present in Potočari maintained order while the buses arrived.<sup>10690</sup> When the first convoy boarded the buses, the men were not separated from the women.<sup>10691</sup> Images of this first convoy were filmed and later broadcast by a press service of the DK Command.<sup>10692</sup> The witness concluded that these images of the first convoy (which included men) were used for propaganda purposes, to indicate that nothing unusual or bad had happened.<sup>10693</sup> According to the witness, the men on the first convoy were separated at checkpoints before reaching Kladanj.<sup>10694</sup> Boering testified that the convoy stopped in Tišća, where people got out of the vehicles.<sup>10695</sup> The Trial Chamber took judicial notice of Adjudicated Facts number 1560, 1561, and 1564, concerning the presence of DK personnel upon orders from the DK Command at the Tišća checkpoint on that day, reviewed in chapter 7.6. In particular, Major Sarkić, the Chief of Staff of the Milići Brigade, and his troops were present upon orders of the DK Command, including General Krstić. Boering testified that a group of approximately ten able-bodied men were separated from the group and taken away in the direction of a forest by VRS soldiers under the command of Major Sarkić, Liaison Officer for the Milići Brigade.<sup>10696</sup> When the witness inquired about the separation of these men from the group, Sarkić responded that he was getting orders to act and had to execute these orders, adding that he did not have a complete picture of what was going on.<sup>10697</sup> The witness tried to follow the group into the forest but was stopped by VRS soldiers.<sup>10698</sup> The convoy resumed and reached a no man's land, where people were asked to disembark and walk to Kladanj in Muslim-held territory.<sup>10699</sup>

2498. Nikolić testified that after the first convoy, the women and children were separated from the men.<sup>10700</sup> As the Bosnian-Muslim refugees began boarding the buses, Bosnian-Serb soldiers systematically separated out men of military age who were trying to clamour aboard. Occasionally, younger and older men were stopped as well.<sup>10701</sup> Nikolić testified that separation was ordered on the pretext that women and children should have the priority to board the buses and that the men would be let through later.<sup>10702</sup> Mile Janjić testified that when the yard of the White House was full of people unrest started and the witness heard Colonel Janković tell the people that there was no need for concern and that they would join their families later.<sup>10703</sup>

2500. Franken testified that as the transportation was being carried out, he had information gained from a debriefing, that at one of the meetings with DutchBat members, Mladić, and individuals designated as representatives of the Bosnian Muslims, Mladić had said that he wanted to interrogate the men aged 16 to 60 because they were potential soldiers and he wanted to check if they were war criminals.<sup>10708</sup> The separation of Bosnian-Muslim males from the women in Potočari began around 2 p.m. on 12 July, around the same time that the second convoy of buses was nearly full.<sup>10709</sup> Franken challenged Janković with regard to the separation of able-bodied men, and Janković responded by promising to treat the Bosnian-Muslim soldiers in accordance with the Geneva Conventions.<sup>10710</sup> According to the witness’s interpretation, the normal procedure when dealing with a large group of people in war time was to separate the group into civilians and military; as well as dividing the group into men, women, children and elderly was a normal procedure.<sup>10711</sup> According to the witness, the ‘existence of war crimes’ did not have a role in that procedure.<sup>10712</sup>

2501. Rave testified that on 12 July 1995 he saw the Muslim men and boys being crammed into the buses.<sup>10713</sup> Sometimes the Serb soldiers beat them and ordered them to keep their heads down.<sup>10714</sup> Mladić and Janković were present when the separation was taking place.<sup>10715</sup> According to the witness, about 300 to 500 men were separated from their families on that occasion.<sup>10716</sup> During the separation the witness continuously heard firing from small calibre weapons, although there were no ongoing hostilities at the time.<sup>10717</sup> Groenewegen testified that he was told by some of the people among the population that the younger men stayed behind the hills since they considered it was better to remain and fight rather than go along willingly.<sup>10718</sup> According to the witness, the vast majority of the people gathered in Potočari did not want to leave and those who left did so out of fear.<sup>10719</sup> Initially, people were allowed to board the buses themselves but after a while, Serb soldiers forced those who did not want to leave.<sup>10720</sup> At first, Serb soldiers shouted at the people and called them names to get them onto the buses and used weapons to force them to board the buses.<sup>10721</sup> During the night of 12 to 13 July 1995, the people remaining in and around the UN compound in Potočari were those who did not want to leave with the buses. The witness did not see any VRS troops then.<sup>10722</sup> The people gathered in Potočari had very few belongings with them and therefore very few belongings were left behind in the compound after they left.<sup>10723</sup> Koster testified that buses arrived at 7 a.m on 13 July 1995, the Serbian soldiers loaded the refugees onto them, and there was chaos. It was a very hot day and people were

2503. Nura Efendić stated that after the Serb army entered her village in July 1995, she went to the UNPROFOR base with her husband where they stayed for one night and were among the last ones to leave the day after.<sup>10728</sup> On that day, the witness and others were lined up on the road and women and children were separated from the men and boys over twelve years old.<sup>10729</sup> The women were put on trucks.<sup>10730</sup> One of the witness's neighbours climbed on the truck with her twelve-year-old twins but the Serbs separated the boys from their mother and took them away.<sup>10731</sup> The witness saw men filming when she was climbing onto the truck.<sup>10732</sup> The witness arrived in Kladanj and lived at different places before moving to Sarajevo a few years later. The witness has not seen her husband since they were separated and she has not seen her sons Meho and Asim since they left for the woods.<sup>10733</sup> The witness stated that her neighbours told her that they had seen a film on television, which was apparently made in Potočari, in which

2504. Witness RM-255 saw approximately seven 'Chetniks' walking around with dogs among the crowd in Potočari in the morning of 13 July 1995.<sup>10735</sup> Around 9 a.m., when the witness and his family set out towards the buses, the witness noticed two barricades.<sup>10736</sup> The witness was not sure whether the first barricade was manned by UNPROFOR or the 'Serb army'.<sup>10737</sup> Only about 200 to 250 people were allowed to go through that barricade.<sup>10738</sup> The second barricade was placed 50 meters further down and was manned by the soldiers of the 'Serb Army', who were wearing camouflage or multi-coloured clothes.<sup>10739</sup> The witness overheard that the men were told that they would be questioned and then sent to Tuzla.<sup>10740</sup>

2505. Witness RM-311 testified that on 13 July 1995, she and some of her family members decided that they should leave Potočari.<sup>10741</sup> When they reached the area allocated for the vehicles, the witness heard that the Serbs told Sabhudin Šečić that he had to step aside and was not permitted to board.<sup>10742</sup> She never saw Sabhudin Šečić again and his body was subsequently discovered in a mass grave in Pilica.<sup>10743</sup> In September 2003, she went to a morgue in Visoko where she viewed the remains of Sakib Muhić, which were discovered in Cerska and identified through DNA testing.<sup>10744</sup>

2506. Hana Mehmedović stated that there was a line of yellow tape or rope blocking the road, at which men were directed toward buses and women toward trucks. The witness stated that the last time she saw her husband was when he got on the bus, wearing a white pullover and a backpack.<sup>10745</sup> The witness stated that near Konjević Polje she saw Serb forces surrounding and pointing their weapons at a large group of captured, shirtless Bosnian soldiers sitting in a field beside their bags and backpacks. Further along that road, a single 'Chetnik' stopped the truck, demanded that the women give him their money, and threatened to slaughter them with a knife if they did not comply.<sup>10746</sup>

2507. Behara Krdžić stated that on 13 July 1995, she and her husband, Nazif, were told to move towards trucks and buses in columns.<sup>10747</sup> Her husband was first and the witness was following with some members of her husband's family.<sup>10748</sup> As they were approaching a truck, her husband was separated from her by a uniformed soldier of the VRS.<sup>10749</sup> The soldier grabbed her husband and told him to come with him.<sup>10750</sup> When she asked to stay with her husband the soldier replied: 'You can stay, but you'll meet the same fate as he!'. Her husband stayed in Srebrenica, and she never saw him, or anyone who remained at Potočari on that day, again.<sup>10751</sup>

2508. Miroslav Deronjić stated that when he learned, on 12 July 1995, about separations going on at Potočari, he asked Vasić to contact Mladić and tell him that this should stop.<sup>10752</sup> Vasić later confirmed to Deronjić that he conveyed the message to Mladić.<sup>10753</sup>

2509. The separations were frequently aggressive. DutchBat members protested, especially when the men were too young or too old to reasonably be screened for war criminals or to be considered members of the military, and when the soldiers were being violent.<sup>10754</sup> According to Janjić, he did not see that the population was subjected to any abuses or ill-treatment, because due to Mladić's presence the level of discipline was

'civilians' was over, and returned by bus to a school in Bratunac around 9 or 10 p.m.<sup>10764</sup>

2512. Witness RM-312 stated that around 10 a.m. on 12 July 1995, Serb soldiers started to arrive from different directions, including Pećišta and Budak, and surrounded Potočari.<sup>10765</sup> The witness's brother was separated and when she wanted to bring his bag to him, the soldiers told her that he would not need it anymore.<sup>10766</sup> When she tried to follow her brother, a soldier pulled her hair, pushed her to the ground and kicked her with his army boots.<sup>10767</sup> She saw her brother walk towards a house and followed him to that house to look for him, but he was not there.<sup>10768</sup> The house was made of red bricks and men dressed in civilian clothes were held inside by guards.<sup>10769</sup> While walking back from the house, the witness saw lorries parked on the road.<sup>10770</sup> Men were being forcibly loaded on to a lorry by soldiers who were kicking and hitting them with rifle butts.<sup>10771</sup>

2513. Elements of the Bratunac Brigade participated in the separation of Bosnian-Muslim men from the Bosnian women, children, and elderly in Potočari. Members of the Bratunac Brigade Military Police participated in the separation, by actively separating men from their families and by providing security for the other units engaged in the separations.<sup>10772</sup> The assistant commander for security and intelligence, Captain Nikolić, participated in the separations of Bosnian-Muslim men from the rest of the Bosnian-Muslim population in Potočari.<sup>10773</sup> Janjić testified that he observed that members of the MUP's Special Police units, including their commander Mane or Manić, directed the women and children towards the buses, while they brought the men away, towards the yard of the White House on the other side of the Srebrenica-Bratunac

2514. Van Duijn testified that when he questioned Mane about these separations, Mane responded that the Serb forces had a list of Muslim war criminals whom they intended to prosecute for their activities earlier in the war, and that they were separating the men in order to determine whether any of them were on that list.<sup>10776</sup> This explanation seemed credible to the witness at the time, as he found such a screening process to be a normal military procedure during the time of armed conflict.<sup>10777</sup> Later however, Van Duijn observed that individuals who were either too young or too old to take part in combat activities were also being taken away. He raised the issue with Mane who then made sure that the individuals in question could pass through and accompany their families onto the buses or trucks.<sup>10778</sup> In another instance, he saw a Serb soldier who was dressed in a black overall take hold of the throat of a young boy in order to prevent him from accompanying the group that was boarding the buses.<sup>10779</sup> Following an intervention by Van Duijn, Mane instructed the Serb soldier to let go of the boy and ultimately led the soldier away from that location.<sup>10780</sup> According to Van Duijn, he intervened on 12 and 13 July and was successful in preventing the separation of young boys and elderly men approximately 50 to 100 times a day.<sup>10781</sup> Witness RM-372 stated that the soldiers loading people onto buses were guided by a VRS major, known by the witness to come from a local military base in Bratunac.<sup>10782</sup> participated in the separation of men from women and children.<sup>10784</sup> When the men were taken to the White House, they were forced to leave their belongings, including their wallets and identification papers, in a large pile outside the building prior to entering.<sup>10785</sup> Nikolić testified that the police or soldiers who escorted the men, insulted them, hit them, and spat on them.<sup>10786</sup> Franken saw columns of 30 to 40 unarmed men in total, ten to fifteen of whom were wearing articles of military clothing, being led by uniformed Bosnian Serbs going in the direction of the White House, which was 80 to 90 metres from the Srebrenica-Bratunac road, and later saw piles of their personal belongings along that road.<sup>10787</sup> Franken ordered the UNMOs to the White House to monitor the situation there.<sup>10788</sup> DK officers were seen in the vicinity of the ‘White House’ during the time the separated men were detained there.<sup>10789</sup> DutchBat patrols attempted to monitor the situation but the VRS did not allow them to enter the White House.<sup>10790</sup> One Dutch officer was removed from the premises at gunpoint.<sup>10791</sup> Groenewegen testified that Serb soldiers separated men between the age of 16 and 60 from the crowd and took them to a house.<sup>10792</sup> The separation caused fear amongst the families.<sup>10793</sup> Van Duijn testified that he asked Mane why the men detained at the White House had relinquished their passports given that they required those documents in order to prove that they were not on the list of alleged war criminals.<sup>10794</sup> Mane grinned and, through his interpreter, told the witness that the men in the house would not need their passports anymore.<sup>10795</sup> This comment made the witness fear for the fate of the men held at the White House.<sup>10796</sup> Đurić stated that he had not told any member of the DutchBat that people in the White House would not be needing their passports.<sup>10797</sup>

2516. Boering testified that he saw a group of VRS soldiers being led to the back of the building by Mladić's bodyguard, who told him to '[p]ay attention to what we're doing', but the witness could not follow them because VRS soldiers with dogs blocked his path.<sup>10798</sup> He then heard shots fired from behind the White House.<sup>10799</sup>

2517. Witness RM-362 testified that some of the soldiers guarding the men in the house threatened that they would cut the men's throats on the night of the 12 July 1995. Not all soldiers guarding them were behaving the same; one of the soldiers was told by another that he should not touch the men.<sup>10800</sup> More men continued to arrive at the house until it was completely full and they had to sit outside.<sup>10801</sup> None of the men held at the house were young; some of them were even older than the witness, and used walking sticks.<sup>10802</sup> No water or food was given to them nor did the soldiers give them any reasons why they had been separated.<sup>10803</sup> At some point, an officer in camouflage uniform who the witness described as 'bare-headed', arrived at the house, escorted by three or four soldiers, asking the men why they did not stick with Fikret Abdić and Alija and telling them that he was going to exchange them for 180 Serbs captured and held in Tuzla.<sup>10804</sup>

2518. Franken noted that on 13 July, the reports he had received made it clear to him that treatment of the males in the White House was getting worse, so he tried to protect the Bosnian-Muslim men by first making as many UN IDs as possible to show that they were UN personnel, and then to register them with the intention of sending the list of names to the higher echelons in the UN command, to make the list known in hopes of mobilising the public.<sup>10805</sup> Franken asked the designated Muslim representatives to take over the registration process and they began to register males inside and outside of the DutchBat compound, and ultimately about 60 to 70 men refused to be registered.<sup>10806</sup> The ‘representatives’ stopped registering men because they were massively intimidated by the Serb forces to the extent that the female in the group had a nervous breakdown and had to be taken to the hospital.<sup>10807</sup> In all, 251 males were registered, and Franken sent the list up his chain of command to the UN headquarters for sector north-east Tuzla, Bosnia-Herzegovina Command Sarajevo, and to The Hague Crisis Staff, letting Janković know that the list was known not only to the UN but also to the Dutch government, but Janković did not react.<sup>10808</sup> Franken did not show the list to Janković or any other VRS officer, but he brought the original list when DutchBat withdrew from the enclave.<sup>10809</sup> Franken testified that he did not know if the list ever reached the Tuzla or Bosnia-Herzegovina Commands because he did not get a confirmation of receipt from either entity.<sup>10810</sup>

military policemen also boarded the buses and then returned, very soon after, with the empty buses.<sup>10817</sup> Some of the military policemen told Janjić that their order was to bring the men to Bratunac and drop them at a school, where they would be guarded.<sup>10818</sup> At the end of the day, when all the buses had left, the witness followed Colonel Janković's order to drive towards Srebrenica and inform civilians that they might encounter en route that they should go to Potočari and wait there until they would be driven away on the next day.<sup>10819</sup>

2520. Witness RM-372 stated that he heard from a colleague that at the White House, the men were being interrogated and screened for 'people the Serbs specifically wanted'. The witness also heard from that colleague that Muslim men were offering money to UNPROFOR, not as a bribe, but more in the sense that they had no more use for it.<sup>10820</sup> Zoran Petrović stated that in Potočari on 13 or 14 July 1995, he saw piles of bags, blankets, clothing, and a large number of people who had fled Srebrenica.<sup>10821</sup>

2521. Beginning on the afternoon of 12 July and continuing throughout 13 July, men detained in the White House were placed on separate buses from the women, children and elderly and were taken out of the Potočari compound to detention sites in Bratunac.<sup>10822</sup> Witness RM-362 testified that about four hours after arriving at the house on 12 July 1995, when it was getting dark, Serb soldiers told the men to board two buses that had arrived; the buses were so full that some of the men had to stand.<sup>10823</sup> On the bus which the witness boarded, a soldier with an automatic rifle stood next to the bus driver and the bus set off, following a red car that had parked in front of the buses.<sup>10824</sup> Janjić testified that Colonel Janković, who had tasked the witness and others to count the people boarding the buses, ordered him to also include the men boarding separate buses into his counting.<sup>10825</sup> Janjić estimated that 10 to 15 buses, each loaded with 50 to 70 men, left Potočari on that same day.<sup>10826</sup> The witness estimated that altogether more than 9,000 Bosnian men, women, and children were removed from Potočari on 12 July 1995.<sup>10827</sup> A member of the civilian police, Milisav Ilić, also counted the buses.<sup>10828</sup>

2522. Franken testified that DutchBat had originally been asked by the UN headquarters to organize the transportation of Bosnian Muslims out of Potočari, but was unable to do so because of its lack of resources, and it was then ordered to assist in the VRS transportation to ensure that it was done in a humanitarian way.<sup>10829</sup> Franken later became aware of the written agreement between General Smith and Mladić, but noted that this agreement did not include guidelines on transportation or how to assist. General Nicolai had said that DutchBat should undertake the transportation of the civilians itself, but Franken made it clear that this was, in his words, absolutely impossible.<sup>10830</sup> Franken heard from the commander on duty in the 'refugee-area' that Mladić came near the compound to address the crowd gathered there and had his soldiers hand out bread while being nice to the children in the presence of Serbian television.<sup>10831</sup> Karremans met Mladić just outside of the compound where Mladić told him that Colonel Acamović would be responsible for the transportation of the population from Potočari and Franken was ordered by Karremans to coordinate the possible support to the Serbs.<sup>10832</sup> At approximately 2 or 3 p.m., Acamović introduced himself to Franken and asked for support, in particular for transportation and fuel.<sup>10833</sup> Franken testified that the VRS was very aware that DutchBat did not have diesel fuel and he refused the request.<sup>10834</sup> When Franken met Acamović, General Krstić, whom he later identified from a video still, was standing in a group of officers in discussions.<sup>10835</sup> Also on 12 July, Franken met Colonel Janković, whom he identified from a picture, and who introduced himself as the General

Staff Officer from Supreme Command.<sup>10836</sup> Janković added that he had been tasked with coordinating the withdrawal of DutchBat from the enclave but was not involved in the evacuation.<sup>10837</sup>

2523. DutchBat had estimated on the basis of the number of buses that there were approximately 30,000 people in the crowd at Potočari, with 600 to 700 men among them.<sup>10838</sup> In the evening of 12 July 1995, Ibro Nuhanović, one of the Bosnian-Muslim 'representatives', came to Franken asking for the transportation out of Potočari to be stopped because he feared for the fate of the Bosnian-Muslim males. Franken explained to him that he had to choose between the 800 to 1,000 males and 25,000 to 35,000 women and children and he chose the latter.<sup>10839</sup>

2525. Buses procured by the DK were used for the transportation of Bosnian-Muslim prisoners to detention and execution sites.<sup>10843</sup> Mladenović testified that on 13 July 1995, the bosses at Vihor ordered him to go to Potočari at approximately 9 a.m.<sup>10844</sup> When he parked the bus within the grounds of the White House, he saw no luggage or other personal items there.<sup>10845</sup> Following orders received from the VRS soldiers at Potočari, the witness drove approximately ten busloads of able-bodied Muslim men from the 'White House' to the sports hall at the elementary school in Bratunac.<sup>10846</sup> The witness estimated that he drove 450 to 500 Muslim men, an estimate he calculated on the basis that the bus had roughly 45 seats and no one was standing.<sup>10847</sup> At all times the witness was accompanied on the bus by at least one, sometimes two, military policemen from the Bratunac Brigade wearing the camouflage uniform of the VRS.<sup>10848</sup>

2526. The Bosnian-Muslim men who had been separated from the women, children and elderly in Potočari (numbering approximately 1,000) were transported to Bratunac and subsequently joined by Bosnian-Muslim men captured from the column.<sup>10849</sup> Ultimately they were taken to the Zvornik Brigade area of responsibility.<sup>10850</sup> From 13 July 1995, the Zvornik Brigade became aware of plans to transport Bosnian-Muslim prisoners to its zone of responsibility and began locating detention sites for them.<sup>10851</sup> No discernible effort was made to keep the prisoners from Potočari and the men captured from the column separate. These men were held in various locations, such as an abandoned warehouse, an old school and even in the buses and trucks that had brought them there.<sup>10852</sup> Identification papers and personal belongings were taken away from both Bosnian-Muslim men at Potočari and men captured from the column; their papers and belongings were piled up and eventually burnt.<sup>10853</sup> Franken testified that they were burnt by the VRS.<sup>10854</sup> The Bosnian-Muslim men, from Potočari as well as from Sandići and Nova Kasaba, who had spent the night on 13 July in Bratunac Town went in a long column of buses the following day to various temporary detention facilities and execution sites in the Bratunac and Zvornik municipalities.<sup>10855</sup>

Two DutchBat members followed this bus to a school in Bratunac. A few ‘Serb soldiers’ approached them and warned them to return to Potočari saying that ‘there was nothing going on’. They refused to leave. Then, six men in military uniform arrived in two civilian vehicles, disarmed these two DutchBat members, took the keys of their vehicle and brought them to the Bratunac police station. After being dropped at the Northern checkpoint, they got a lift back to Potočari.<sup>10856</sup> Later the same day, after they had been released, these two DutchBat members escorted another convoy, but during the trip they were stopped by three armed individuals in military uniform, who forced them out of the vehicle and drove it off.<sup>10857</sup>

2528. Neđo Jovičić testified that on 13 July 1995, he saw people boarding buses in Potočari in the presence of Borovčanin and some policemen.<sup>10858</sup> In his opinion, they were being transported to Kladanj or Tuzla.<sup>10859</sup> Dušan Mičić testified that he saw buses and lorries passing through a side street in Bratunac towards Konjević Polje in the morning of 14 July 1995.<sup>10860</sup>

2529. Ljubodrag Gajić testified that on 13 July, he received a specific task, as a member of the MUP 1st Company of the Jahorina training centre, to evacuate the population present in the area by bus and trucks.<sup>10861</sup> The people wanted to leave voluntarily as it was an area affected by war.<sup>10862</sup> UNPROFOR forces were present.<sup>10863</sup> Food and water were distributed.<sup>10864</sup> DutchBat helped with the evacuation of the people in order to ensure fast transportation.<sup>10865</sup> The evacuation ended between 3 and 4 p.m. and the witness left Potočari around 6 p.m..<sup>10866</sup>

2530. Rave testified that at some point on 13 July 1995, he spoke to Mladić who asked him to tell the Bosnia-Herzegovina authorities to surrender.<sup>10867</sup> He said that the Srebrenica males were brought to a camp in Bijeljina.<sup>10868</sup> On 14 July 1995, on the way back from the Serb checkpoint 'JOVO', his vehicle was seized by VRS soldiers under the threat of arms.<sup>10869</sup>

2531. Franken testified that sometime after 13 July, Janković told him that the 28th Division had attempted to breakout of the enclave and that the VRS had captured 6,000 'POWs'.<sup>10870</sup> Franken testified that by adding the 6,000 to the 300 Bosnian-Muslim men that DutchBat estimated were inside the compound on 11 July, and the 600 to 800 they estimated were outside the compound, it appeared that there were up to 7,000 Bosnian-Muslim men involved.<sup>10871</sup>

2532. Ljubomir Bojanović stated that he spent the night of 14 to 15 July at the barracks of the Zvornik Brigade but did not see a bus with detainees there, whose presence had been recorded in the Zvornik Brigade duty officer logbook.<sup>10872</sup> According to the witness, the entry in the logbook was written by the duty officer of the barracks, who worked at the main gate, and neither he nor the duty operations officer who worked at the command could have been aware of the presence of the bus.<sup>10873</sup>

2533. As early as 14 July 1995, reports of missing Bosnian-Muslim men from Srebrenica began to surface in the international media.<sup>10874</sup> On that day, the UNSC expressed concern about the forced relocation of civilians from the Srebrenica 'safe area' by the Bosnian Serbs, asserting it was a clear violation of their human rights.<sup>10875</sup>

Transportation of Bosnian Muslims out of the enclave

2534. Having reviewed the evidence on the separation of Bosnian-Muslim men from the rest of the population in Potočari, the Trial Chamber will now review the evidence on the transportation of Bosnian Muslims out of the enclave.

2535. On 12 and 13 July 1995, about 25,000 Bosnian-Muslim civilians were bussed out of the enclave of Srebrenica to the territory under Bosnia-Herzegovina control.<sup>10876</sup>
